Jim Knight: The Department allocates education funding to local authorities so the requested information for Wansdyke constituency is not available. The figures provided in the following table are for Bath and North-East Somerset, City of Bristol and South Gloucestershire local authorities as each of these authorities are responsible for schools located in Wansdyke constituency.

Secondary Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many secondary schools there were at the latest date for which figures are available. [251923]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the number of secondary schools in England at 26 January 2009. These figures do not include special schools.

Number of secondary schools in England

	Number
Secondary Schools	2,993
Middle deemed Secondary Schools	231

Sight Impaired

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidelines his Department follows in respect of making printed materials and forms accessible to people suffering red/green colour blindness. [245710]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department's new corporate branding has strict guidelines for the application of colour. For all corporate publications text should be:

Black on white for large blocks of text

A bold colour on white for headings or short snippets (for example quotes)

In black or white, on a bold block of colour

Our corporate design guidelines specifically prohibit the use of any colour text on any colour background.

Although not specifically formulated to address colour blindness, we believe these design principles should avoid it being an issue for our corporate publications.

Social Services: North East

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many complaints were made against children's social services departments in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in the latest period for which figures are available. [249829]

Beverley Hughes: This information is not collected centrally. However, local authorities are required to keep a record of each representation or complaint received; the decisions made in response and any action to be taken; and whether there was compliance with the time limits. The local authority must produce an annual report drawing on this information. This should not contain personal information that is identifiable about any individual complainant.

Special Educational Needs

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary, (b) secondary and (c) special schools have (i) two to four per cent., (ii) four to six per cent., (iii) six to eight per cent., (iv) eight to 10 per cent. and (v) more than 10 per cent. of its pupils in care. [247862]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is shown in the table. This is based on data obtained via the school census.

The census shows 34,390 pupils aged five to 19 attending primary, secondary and special schools who are classed as being in care as at January 2008. Data published by the Department as SFR 23/2008: Children looked after in England (including adoption and care leavers) year ending 31 March 2008, shows 47,600 children aged between five and 19 as being looked after as at 31 March 2008. The school census does not cover all looked-after children; information is not collected for pupils in alternative provision, including pupil referral units, FE colleges, voluntary provision and those not in education or training. These differences in coverage partly explain the difference in the numbers from each source. It is possible that the school census undercounts the number of looked-after children in primary, secondary and special schools where they are unaware of a child's looked-after status. The improvements in care planning arrangements and increased focus on education through the implementation of the Children and Young Person's Act 2008 will ensure that schools have the information they need about a child's looked-after status. In particular, all maintained schools will be required to appoint a designated teacher for looked-after children on the school's roll. Through our wider Care Matters programme, the Department is funding 11 local authorities to pilot the role of a virtual school head to work with schools which have looked-after children on roll.

Special Educational Needs: Children in Care

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many looked-after children have a statement of special educational needs. [251783]

Beverley Hughes: In 2007, there were 9,300 looked-after children (who have been looked after for at least 12 months) with a statement of special educational needs. This figure can be found in table A of the 'Outcome Indicators for Children Looked After, 12 months to 30 September 2007—England' Statistical First Release accessible via

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000785/SFR08_2008_NationalTables2.xls

Young People: Homelessness

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department has issued to local authorities on the management of those under 16 years who become homeless as a result of running away. [251161]

Beverley Hughes: Guidance to local authorities on how to respond appropriately to the needs of young people who run away was published by the Department of Health, the Department which then had responsibility for children's services, in 2002. As part of the commitments made in the Young Runaways Action Plan, this guidance is currently being updated, and a draft version is out for formal consultation, in advance of publication later this year.

Running away should be seen as an indicator of an underlying problem for a young person which may need further intervention. Many children who run away from home are likely to be children in need requiring support and services provided by local authorities or by voluntary organisations acting on their behalf. Most runaways will return home; where it is inappropriate for them to do so, it is for the local authority to ensure that they are appropriately cared for.

The new guidance will clearly set out local authorities' responsibilities relating to providing emergency accommodation for young people who have run away. It will reflect the emerging findings of the current review into the provision of emergency accommodation for young people. This review will help local authorities identify successful and cost effective forms of provision, and young people's perceptions of different types of emergency accommodation.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many births there were in England in each year since 1979. [250775]

Children: Disadvantaged

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what percentage of children lived in families claiming out-of-work benefits in 2008, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [249369]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 702W.

Death: Carbon Monoxide

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people died as a result of carbon monoxide poisoning in (a) Southampton and (b) Test Valley borough in each of the last five years. [251033]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many people died as a result of carbon monoxide poisoning in (a) Southampton and (b) Test Valley Borough in each of the last five years. I am replying in her absence. (251033)

The attached table provides the number of deaths where the toxic effect of carbon monoxide was the cause of death for people in (a) Southampton unitary authority and (b) Test Valley local authority district, from 2003 to 2007 (the latest year available).

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Scott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248800]

Kevin Brennan: Since 2004-05 a lifecycle programme covering the maintenance and decoration of the majority of the Cabinet Office's buildings has been in place. Information on maintenance and decoration costs prior to then and for wallpaper is not held separately. The cost of maintenance and decoration work has been as follows:

2007-08	1,292,000

Maintenance and decoration work will continue to be done as part of the lifecycle programme. Information about capital expenditure on improving Cabinet Office buildings is included in the Cabinet Office Annual Report and Resource Accounts available in the House of Commons Library.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how much has been spent on designing 10 Downing Street-branded (a) mouse mats and (b) desktops in each of the last five years; [252358]

(2) what products featuring departmental or Government branding were procured by (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) the Prime Minister's Office in each of the last five years; [252359]

(3) how much was spent on products featuring departmental or Government branding by (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) the Prime Minister's Office in each of the last five years. [252360]

Kevin Brennan: For these purposes the Prime Minister's Office forms an integral part of the Cabinet Office. The Cabinet Office, like all departments, uses various forms of branding in publications and printed material to differentiate itself from other Government departments.

The information is not held in a format that would enable the questions to be answered without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the cost of (a) the Cabinet Office's and (b) No. 10 Downing Street's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each of the last five years. [251535]

Kevin Brennan: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of the Cabinet Office and therefore the answer provided is for the whole of the Cabinet Office.

The information requested for the Cabinet Office is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Research

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the (a) terms of reference are and (b) timescale is of the review by the right hon. Member for Darlington into social mobility and elitist professions. [250512]

Kevin Brennan: The panel's work will focus on identifying barriers to access to the professions and look at the contributions the professions, supported by Government where required, could make to widen access. The work will not touch on aspects of social mobility covered elsewhere in the New Opportunities White Paper, and will not look at employment law, illegal discrimination, or wider issues of equality such as race or gender.

The panel is expected to report on its findings in the summer.

Employment

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people in employment aged (a) 16, (b) 17 and (c) 18 are employed by (i) small and medium-sized employers, (ii) large private employers and (iii) the public sector. [251125]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated 28 January 2009:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people in employment aged (a) 16, (b) 17 and (c) 18 are employed by (i) small and medium-sized employers, (ii) large private employers and (iii) the public sector. I am replying in her absence. (251125)

The available information is provided in the attached table. The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey (LFS).

The estimates by size of employer are based on respondents' understanding of the number of employees in their workplace. This may not equal the employer's total employment as it may have more than one site.

The distinction between public and private sector is based on respondents' views about the organisation for which they work. The public sector estimates provided do not correspond to official Public Sector Employment estimates. Those are derived directly from employers and are based on National Accounts definitions, but do not include this detailed age breakdown.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The figures have been derived from the LFS microdata which are weighted using the official population estimates published in autumn 2007. Consequently the estimates from Q3 2006 onwards are not entirely consistent with the figures published in the monthly Labour Market Statistics First Release, which are weighted using more up-to-date population estimates.

[1] Employees at the respondent's workplace This will exclude those working for the same employer on different sites

[2] It should be noted that public and private sector estimates,

- are based on survey respondents' views about the organisation for which they work;
- do not correspond to the National Accounts definition used for Public Sector Employment estimates.

[3] Includes nationalised industry or state corporation, central Government, civil service, local government or council (incl. police, fire services and local authority controlled schools or colleges), university or other grant funded educational establishment, health authority or NHS trust and armed forces.

[4] Includes self-employed and unpaid family workers.

[5] Excludes those whose type of employer was not known.

[6] Excludes those whose number of employees at the workplace was not known

[7] Coefficients of Variation have been calculated as an indication of the quality of the estimates, as described as follows:

Guide to Quality:

The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV - for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.

Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) (%) Statistical robustness

* 0 ≤ CV <5 Estimates are considered precise.

 5 ≤ CV <10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise.

 10 ≤ CV < 20 Estimates are considered acceptable.

* CV ≥ 20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes and have not been provided

It should be noted that the above estimates exclude people in most types of communal establishment (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites etc.)

Government Departments: Training

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether his Department has issued guidance to other departments on the practice of holding departmental away days outside departmental buildings. [250326]

Kevin Brennan: The Cabinet Office has not issued guidance to other departments on the practice of holding departmental away days outside departmental buildings, as policy on this area is a matter for individual departments to establish.

Life Expectancy

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent estimate he has made of the life expectancy of (a) men and (b) women in (i) the North East and (ii) the UK; and what the life expectancy of each was in (A) 1997 and (B) 2001. [250057]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 28 January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what recent estimate has been made of the life expectancy of (a) men and (b) women in (i) the North East and (ii) the UK; and what the life expectancy in each was in (A) 1997 and (B) 2001. (250057)

Life expectancy figures are calculated as three year rolling averages. The table attached provides the period life expectancy at birth for (a) males and (b) females for (i) the North Last government office region, and (ii) the United Kingdom, for (A) 1996-98, (B) 2000-02 and (C) 2005-07 (the latest period available).

Table 1: Period life expectancy at birth[1], North East government office region and United Kingdom[2], 1996-98, 2000-02 and 2005-07[3]

				Years of life
Area	Sex	1996-98	2000-02	2005-07
North East	Males	73	75	76
	Females	78	79	80
UK	Males	75	76	77
	Females	80	80	82

[1] Period life expectancy at birth is an estimate of the average number of years a newborn baby would survive if he or she experienced the area's age-specific mortality rates for that time period throughout his or her life. The figure reflects mortality among those living in the area in each time period, rather than mortality among those born in each area. It is not therefore the number of years a baby born in the area in each time period could actually expect to live, both because the death rates of the area are likely to change in the future and because many of those born in the area will live elsewhere for at least some part of their lives.

[2] Using boundaries as of 2008 for all the years shown.

[3] Three year rolling averages, based on deaths registered in each year and mid-year population estimates.

Public Bodies: Lobbying

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the Answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1364W, and the Answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham of 13 October 2008, Official Report, column 949W, on public bodies: public relations, whether guidance or advice has been produced in relation to public bodies hiring public affairs firms for lobbying purposes, as opposed to public relations media activity. [250253]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office publication "Public Bodies: A Guide for Departments" provides guidelines on the use of consultants by non-department public bodies (NDPBs). Copies of the publication have been placed in the Libraries.

Risk Capital Fund

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the effect on social enterprises of the Risk Capital Fund; and what steps his Department is taking to draw the attention of social enterprises to the fund's existence. [250879]

Kevin Brennan: The Risk Capital Fund has not yet been launched. The Office of the Third Sector (OTS) is currently in the process of appointing a fund manager or managers for the Fund. The announcement of this appointment will be made in the coming weeks. As a consequence, no assessment of the effect of the Fund on social enterprises can be made.

We have regularly publicised the Fund's development, including consulting on our proposals, since its announcement in the Social Enterprise Action Plan.

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 29 January 2009

TREASURY

Alcoholic Drinks: Excise Duties

Annette Brooke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received from (a) brewers and (b) owners of public houses on the effects of alcohol duty on their businesses; and if he will make a statement. [252957]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Banks: Finance

David Howarth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1630W, on banks: Government assistance, what the discount rates and maturities are of the Treasury Bills issued in accordance with paragraph 6.9 of the Debt and Reserves Management Report 2008-09 in order to make finance available to the Bank of England to purchase corporate assets from banks. [252892]

Ian Pearson: As announced by the Debt Management Office (DMO) in the "DMO financing remit: impact of the financial intervention package: 19 January 2009", the financing to support the asset purchase facility will initially be raised by the DMO through a combination of Treasury bill sales and cash management operations.

Gradually, the cash management operations will be replaced by funding raised through Treasury bill issuance. The Treasury bills that will be issued to fund the asset purchase facility will be issued consistent with the Debt Management Office's cash management objective as set out in paragraph 6.5 of the "Debt and reserves management report" for 2008-09.

Building Societies: Finance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what consideration his Department has given to modifying the allocation of the Financial Services Compensation Scheme levies to reflect the differences in levels of risk associated with bank and building society business models; [252997]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of whether the Financial Services Compensation Scheme levies paid by (a) banks and (b) building societies reflect the relative risk associated with the two business models; [252998]

(3) what criteria are used to assess the level of risk in (a) banks and (b) building society business models in determining Financial Services Compensation Scheme levies for each. [253001]

Ian Pearson: The Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS) levies are statutory levies. They are allocated to classes of levy payers and apportioned within those classes in accordance with rules made by the Financial Services Authority (FSA) under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000.

Chelsea Building Society

Sir John Butterfill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date the Chelsea Building Society approached the Financial Services Authority (FSA) for consent to establish a banking subsidiary in Guernsey; on what dates meetings were held between the building society and the FSA; what matters were discussed at each such meeting; what conditions the FSA attached to the establishment of the subsidiary; and which of these conditions provided for protection of depositors. [252768]

Ian Pearson: The matters raised in this question are the responsibility of the Financial Services Authority, whose day to day operations are independent from Government control and influence.

Credit: Interest Rates

Dr. Kumar: To ask Mr Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Government is taking to ensure that interest rates charged by high street credit schemes are reasonable. [242380]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

The Government introduced reforms in statutory instruments in 2005 and in the Consumer Credit Act 2006 to strengthen the regulation of consumer credit. These ensure that consumers are given clear and transparent information to enable them to shop around with confidence and that the OFT can take targeted and effective enforcement action against rogue lenders. The Act also replaced previous provisions which gave consumers a right to challenge extortionate credit bargains with a new wide-ranging right for consumers to challenge before the courts any aspect of their relationship with a lender which is unfair. This could include, but is not limited to, the level of interest charged.

The Government recently held a summit with the credit card industry on risk based re-pricing - the practice that was leading to some consumers facing significant interest rate increases at short notice. As a result of this, the credit card industry agreed a statement of principles for risk based re-pricing. This ensures that consumers are fairly treated when a card lender seeks to increase their individual interest rate on the basis that their risk profile has deteriorated. These principles come into force on 1 January 2009.

Departmental Buildings

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the location is of each office occupied by (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies which has been (i) newly occupied and (ii) refurbished in the last 24 months; and what the floor area in square metres is of each. [251674]

Angela Eagle: No new occupations or refurbishments have been undertaken in the last 24 months.

EU Countries

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of his European counterparts he has met in the last two months. [251658]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Gold and Foreign Exchange Reserves

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much gold the Government has sold in each year since 1997. [251657]

Ian Pearson: The Government undertook a gold sales programme from 1999 to 2002. In that time, 395 tonnes of gold have been sold: 75 tonnes in 1999; 150 tonnes in 2000; 130 tonnes in 2001; and 40 tonnes in 2002. The Government have not conducted an official gold sales programme since 2002.

Jobcentre Plus

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many visits on official business he has made to Jobcentre Plus offices in the last 12 months. [251663]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers' official duties entail visits throughout the United Kingdom.

Mortgage Interest Deferral Scheme

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the number of households likely to (a) qualify for and (b) take up the mortgage interest deferral scheme; and what his estimate is of the cost of the scheme in (i) 2009 and (ii) 2010. [240769]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

As part of a wider package of real help for homeowners, the Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme, will enable ordinary hard-working households that experience a redundancy or significant loss of income to reduce their monthly payments to a more manageable level, by deferring a proportion of the interest payments on their mortgage for up to two years. The Government will guarantee to lenders they will get the payments back in return for them participating in the scheme.

Homeowners remain responsible for repaying the mortgage in the long term but the scheme will result in more affordable monthly payments. This will give them the breathing space they need to get their finances back on track, and help ensure they can stay in their homes.

This is a consumer and lender-led scheme, supported by a Government guarantee. The Government want to see this scheme help as many struggling homeowners as possible. We will publish a full impact assessment when the scheme description has been finalised.

Tax Credits: Conditions of Employment

Alan Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance his Department provides to employers on whether employees on extended periods of sabbatical leave on part pay are eligible for tax credits. [251119]

Mr. Timms: Entitlement to Working Tax Credit (WTC) is dependent upon whether the claimant meets the condition of being in qualifying remunerative work. Entitlement during a period of paid sabbatical work would depend on the circumstances in the individual case.

Guidance for customers with changing working patterns is available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/taxcredits/changes-work.htm

UK Financial Investments: Manpower

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many staff have been employed by UK Financial Investments Ltd in salary bands of (a) up to £25,000, (b) £25,000 to £50,000, (c) £50,000 to £75,000, (d) £75,000 to £100,000 and (e) over £100,000; [249664]

(2) what the estimated cost of remuneration for staff at UK Financial Investments Ltd, including guaranteed bonuses and pension contributions will be in the next 12 months; [249665]

(3) what the (a) salary and (b) total remuneration and title of post is of each of the five highest paid employees of UK Financial Investments Ltd; [249666]

(4) what consultancy arrangements have been entered into by (a) his Department and (b) UK Financial Investments Ltd (UKFI) in connection with UKFI's activities; and what the (i) cost and (ii) nature of work under each contract is; [249667]

(5) how much the establishment of UK Financial Investments Ltd has cost to date, broken down by category of expenditure. [249668]

Ian Pearson: UKFI was established on 3 November 2008 under the Companies Act, with HM Treasury as sole shareholder. The UKFI board is responsible for governing the company's activities and will, by the end of February 2009, recommend to the Treasury a budget and funding plan appropriate to ensure the fulfilment of UKFI's remit.

The company's annual report and audited accounts will be laid before Parliament.

Additionally, the chairman and chief executive of the company will, as required, attend meetings of relevant parliamentary committees for scrutiny and answer questions.

Valuation Office: Rent Service

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) will be permitted to access data previously available to the Rent Service upon the transfer of the Rent Service's functions to the VOA. [251722]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 20 November 2008, Official Report, column 776W, regarding Valuation Office Reorganisation.

VAT

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to businesses of re-pricing products as a result of the reduction in value added tax to 15 per cent. [251916]

Mr. Timms: Estimated costs to businesses from re-pricing products are published in the impact assessment of changes to the standard rate of VAT. This is available on the HM Treasury website.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what expenditure his Department incurred in promulgating the 15 per cent. value added tax rate. [251917]

Mr. Timms: HMRC sent a summary guide on dealing with the temporary reduction in the VAT rate to all 2 million VAT registered businesses immediately after pre-Budget report 2008. More detailed guidance was produced and published on the HMRC website. Additional staff were made available in the National Advice Service to answer questions on the rate change. A full evaluation of all the associated costs is not readily available.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by the House, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250143]

Nick Harvey: No cars are owned, leased or hired on a regular basis. Cars with drivers are hired for the Speaker and Deputy Speakers in connection with their official duties. Taxi services are regularly used for print service deliveries and under certain conditions, for example when there are late night sittings, by House officials and staff.

Parliament: Buildings

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the (a) specifications and (b) cost of (i) carpets, (ii) office furniture, (iii) building materials and (iv) light fittings in (A) 1 Parliament Street and (B) Portcullis House are. [248233]

Nick Harvey: The information requested is as follows:

No. 1 Parliament street

The refurbishment of the buildings that now form No. 1 Parliament street was carried out by the Property Services Agency of the Department of the Environment. Details of the costs and specification are not available.

The most recent works carried out were the refurbishment of the Bellamy's Bar and Clubroom and security works at a cost of £0.86 million. Day-to-day building and furniture maintenance and minor improvements costs in 2007-08 were £0.6 million.

Portcullis House

The final cost of the construction and fitting out of Portcullis House was £23 5 million (including VAT and fees). This figure includes the loose office furniture contracts which cost £1.7 million. The cost of the light fittings cannot be readily identified as they were included in a number of contracts.

The Accommodation and Works Committee's reports recommended a long life building, which in terms of British Standards meant 150 years. This was the basis of the specifications for the individual contracts, which in turn were based on BSI or DIN standards or other appropriate industry standards.

Since the building was completed the only major works have been the replacement of the escalators at a cost of £0.45 million, and improvements to the fire alarm system to reduce the number of false alarms at £0.2 million. Day-to-day building and furnishing maintenance and minor replacement costs in 2007-08 were £0.9 million.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Baseball: World Cup 2009

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps (a) he and (b) Sport England have taken to ensure that the UK baseball team can compete in the 2009 World Cup; and if he will make a statement. [251019]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The issue of the GB national baseball team competing in the 2009 World Cup is a matter for UK Sport not Sport England, as Sport England does not lead or fund baseball's elite programme.

On March 10, 2008 the Secretary of State approved Sport England's outline strategy to focus resources on building the foundations of sporting success through the creation of a world leading community sports system. One of the key outcomes of this system is the development of well-defined, appropriate talent support systems to underpin NGB—national governing body—elite programmes, resulting in more talented performers moving through to world class programmes and success.

Sport England has recently announced four year funding awards to 46 national governing bodies, including the sports of baseball and softball. Sport England has advised that they will be meeting with the sport imminently to discuss the award, which interventions will be funded and to agree how the sport will contribute to Sport England's strategic outcomes, such as the above, over the next four years.

UK Sport has advised that its current investment strategy does not provide funding to baseball and has therefore made no estimate of the cost of sending a British baseball team to the final 2008 Olympics qualification event in Taiwan. The sport will not receive world class funding in the future as it is not on the competition programme for London 2012.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in departmental buildings in the last 12 months. [252370]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department has spent £40,625 plus VAT on works and refurbishments to offices allocated to ministers in the last 12 months. This cost also includes work to offices occupied by private office staff.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which external organisations his Department have engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in his Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252227]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In the last three years the National School of Government (NSG) have provided specific training for fast stream staff in DCMS.

Fast stream staff are also entitled to, apply for and attend, other learning and development interventions open to all staff in DCMS. Many of these are provided by external organisations but they are not exclusive to fast stream civil service staff.

Information is not available to say how many civil servants in DCMS have participated in the provision of training for external organisations in the last three years.

Film: Licensing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what grounds local licensing authorities may (a) amend the classification of a film classified by the British Board for Film Classification and (b) withhold a licence for a film to be shown. [252476]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The only mandatory requirement imposed by the Licensing Act 2003 is the imposition of a condition to be included in the premises licence or club premises certificate requiring the admission of children to films to be restricted in accordance with the film classification given by the BBFC.

However, licensing authorities must also take into account the guidance issued under the Licensing Act which recommends that they should not duplicate the effort underpinning the BBFC's classification, and only classify films themselves if there are good reasons for doing so.

The guidance is clear that children should not be allowed access to regulated entertainment 'of a clearly adult or sexual nature' and draws the licensing authorities' attention to the BBFC's classification scheme. The guidance recommends that:

(i) where the licensing authority itself is to make recommendations on the admission of children, the venue operator must submit the film to the licensing authority at least 28 days before it is to be shown to allow the licensing authority time to classify the film and ensure that the licence holder adheres to its own age restrictions;

(ii) the BBFC's classification shall be shown on screen for at least five seconds before the film (or any trailers);

(iii) where a licensing authority recommends restriction of admission of children, visible notices should be displayed both inside and outside the venue.

(b) A licence or certificate for a film to be shown could be revoked or withdrawn on an application for review by an interested party (e.g. local resident or business) or responsible authority (e.g. police or local body with responsibility for child welfare) if the licence or certificate owner breached the mandatory or any additional conditions or acted in a way that contravened the objectives of the Licensing Act.

Playing Fields: Planning Permission

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer of 21 October 2008, Official Report, column 244W, on playing fields: planning permission, for what reasons the statistics for 2006-07 were not published in December 2008; and when he expects them to be published. [251308]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has advised that they are still collating the statistics on planning permission affecting playing fields for 2006-07. These statistics are due to be finalised and published in the spring of 2009. The last statistics for planning applications affecting playing fields were published in spring 2008.

South Bank Centre: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Arts Council England paid to the South Bank Centre for managing its collections in each year since 1997. [249412]

Barbara Follett: Arts Council England has advised that it has the information requested only for the years since its merger with the Regional Arts Boards in 2002-03. Before this date, the Regional Arts Boards maintained their records according to their own systems and requirements. As a result, any figures relating to periods before 2002-03 can be provided only at disproportionate cost. The figures for the period from 2002-03 are set out in the following table.

2003-04	150,500
2004-05	160,000
2005-06	160,000
2006-07	257,000
2007-08	257,000

Arts Council England advises that these figures represent costs separately identified in the funding agreement with the South Bank for particular storage facilities. The ongoing general costs of the collection are covered by the overall grant in aid allocation to the South Bank. The increase in 2006-07 was due to a significant expansion of these storage facilities.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much her office's media and communication unit has spent on public surveys since its inception. [248029]

Tessa Jowell: The Government Olympic Executive (GOE) commissions an annual poll, to help inform the Government of the general public's views on London 2012 and ensure their views are accounted for in developing plans for London 2012.

The total expenditure for each of the last three years is:

2006-07	[1]—
2008-09	53,475

[1] Nil return

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what the cost of her Office's contracts with press monitoring services has been since it was established. [251198]

Tessa Jowell: The Government Olympic Executive shares Media monitoring with DCMS provided by EDS Media through a contract that began in April 2008. The total cost to the Department to-date is £36,283.33. It is not possible to break down the exact proportion of this contract used by the Government Olympic Executive.

In addition, the Department pays an annual subscription charge to the Media Monitoring Unit (this is part of the Central Office of Information, previously part of the Cabinet Office). A breakdown of this cost is unavailable as the annual charge includes a number of services including some press monitoring.

Olympic Games 2012: Contracts

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether contractors at the Olympic site with business continuity plans are required to comply with BS25999 on business continuity management. [250567]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Delivery Authority applies a 'balanced scorecard' approach to evaluating bids. 'Cost', 'delivering on time' and 'quality' are paramount scorecard factors. While compliance with the BS25999 is not a specific requirement, contractors' ability to comply with this standard for business continuity management is a consideration when reviewing contractor tenders.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

10 Downing Street: Internet

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many hits the 10 Downing street website has received since its most recent redesign. [249903]

The Prime Minister: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1481-82W. Further information requested is available on the Downing street YouTube channel at:

http://uk.youtube.com/user/DowningSt.

A copy of this webpage has been placed in the Library of the House.

Employment Summit

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the cost to the public purse of catering at the employment summit held on 12 January 2009 was; and what suppliers were used for catering at the event; [249908]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the list of attendees at the employment summit held on 12 January 2009; [249916]

(3) what the cost to the public purse was of the employment summit held on 12 January 2009. [249917]

Mr. McNulty: I have been asked to reply

The employment summit was held in London on 12 January. It was led by the Prime Minister and was attended by over 120 key figures from business, trade unions, academia, work-place providers and representative bodies.

The summit provided an opportunity to discuss how Government and employers could best work in partnership to help people and business through the downturn fairly and get people and business in the best possible shape for the up-turn.

The list of attendees has been placed in the Library.

The total cost of the event was £162,076.18, of which the cost of the catering was £5,641.82. The catering was provided by Mustard Catering.

Public Expenditure: Wales

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which of the schemes outlined in the New Opportunities White Paper, Cm. 7533, will entail a Barnett consequential for Wales in (a) each year to 2010-11 and (b) the period of the next comprehensive spending review; and which have been identified as entailing no such consequential payments. [252770]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Spending measures in the New Opportunities White Paper are funded from within departmental budgets and therefore there are no new Barnett consequentials beyond those announced in the comprehensive spending review.

WALES

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales with reference to the answer of 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 600W, on departmental training, what personal training courses at public expense other Ministers in his Department have undertaken since 1 January 2008. [251322]

Mr. David: One Minister in the Wales Office has taken a personal training course at public expense since 1 January 2008:

Action Learning Set—National School of Government.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251868]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office does not record individual journeys made in ministerial cars. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 6W. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the 'Ministerial Code'.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement; [252007]

(2) how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252008]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Wales Office employees may be given time off in lieu for any overtime taken at the individual line manager's discretion, staff are actively encouraged to take the minimum of half-hour for lunch on a daily basis.

Time off in lieu is not recorded centrally by the Wales Office. As such the answer cannot be obtained without disproportionate cost.

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the cost of his Department's contracts with press monitoring services was in each of the last five years. [251217]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has spent the following amounts on media monitoring with the companies listed:

COI

2007-08: £11,045

Meltwater News UK Ltd.

2007-08: £3,309

TNS Media Intelligence

2007-08: £13,700.

We do not hold records in this form before 2006-07.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250134]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office leases three vehicles from the Government Car and Dispatch Agency (GCDA). I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W, about cars provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency.

Prisoners: Mentally Ill

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much was spent on mental health services for prisoners in each (a) prison and (b) health authority area in Wales in each of the last five financial years; and how many prisoners received such treatment in each such year. [251942]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Welsh Assembly Government does not collect centrally how much of the ring-fenced mental health allocation is spent in respect of prisoners in Wales.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Carers

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress his Department has made in implementing the provisions of the National Carers Strategy, published in June 2008, which relates to (a) the provision of support for carers by Jobcentre Plus, (b) flexible provision of skills training for carers and (c) a review of the benefits for which carers may be eligible. [250813]

Mr. McNulty: The National Carers Strategy committed Jobcentre Plus to improvements to the support it offers to carers by improving information about flexible job vacancies; introducing Care Partnership Managers in every district; introducing specialist training for Jobcentre Plus advisers who work with carers; funding replacement care for those who are participating in approved training; ensuring carers have access to appropriate employment programmes and investigating the feasibility of providing return to work support through third sector organisations. It is expected that recruitment for the Care Partnership Managers will begin in April 2009 and that the remaining support will be available by the end of the year.

The National Carers Strategy committed the Department to providing skills training in a flexible manner so it is accessible for carers. A training pilot in the west midlands is currently looking at the best way to deliver flexible training to Jobcentre Plus customers and we are currently developing plans for a Great Britain wide roll-out.

In the National Carers Strategy, the Department also committed to examining carers' benefits in the context of our wider ambitions for the welfare state, and the future of the care and support system.

In December, we published the White Paper, "Raising Expectations and Increasing Support: Reforming Welfare for the Future" (Cm 7506), in which we outlined our views for the future of the benefit system, and gave a commitment that the needs of carers would be a central consideration in these changes.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent progress has been made on commissioning Jobcentre Plus training programmes for carers; and if he will make a statement. [248131]

Mr. McNulty: Carers currently have access to Jobcentre Plus approved training through a range of New Deal programmes. As part of the National Carers' Strategy, Jobcentre Plus is examining the most effective ways of supporting carers into training. Some carers may need more specialist support because of their caring responsibilities or the length of time they have spent caring. It is envisaged that Jobcentre Plus staff will identify gaps in the provision and work with experienced third sector providers to meet this demand.

Disability Living Allowance: Children

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment he has made for the reasons for increases in expenditure on disability living allowance for children since 1992-93; and if he will make a statement; [251976]

(2) for what purposes disability living allowance is paid in respect of children; and if he will make a statement. [251977]

Jonathan Shaw: Disability living allowance provides a contribution towards the extra costs faced by severely disabled people as a result of a long-term disability. Broadly, entitlement depends on the extent to which the person needs help with personal care, needs supervision or, from the age of three years, has difficulties with walking. In the case of children under the age of 16, disability living allowance can only be paid if their needs are substantially in excess of the typical requirements of a child of the same age.

The increase in expenditure on disability living allowance paid to children broadly reflects the overall increase in disability living allowance expenditure. The reasons for that increase are complex but are mainly attributable to demographic changes, greater awareness of the benefit, improvements in diagnosis for childhood conditions and an extension of the higher rate mobility component to children aged three and four in 2001.

Employment

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to undertake an assessment of employment retention assessments as referred to in his Department's White Paper, "Raising expectations and increasing support: reforming welfare for the future". [248546]

Mr. McNulty: As outlined in the White Paper, "Raising expectations and increasing support: reforming welfare for the future", we will work across Government and with the Equality and Human Rights Commission to consider including appropriate references to employment retention assessments in the guidance and code(s) of practice that will accompany the Equality Bill.

In addition, DWP and the Office for Disability Issues will examine options to deliver a cross-Government employment retention strategy for disabled people as part of the development of the Independent Living Strategy.

EU Grants and Loans

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what allocation of funding the UK has received from the European Social Fund (ESF) for the next 12 months; and what allocations of funding from the ESF have been made. [252127]

Mr. McNulty: The allocation of funding for the UK from the European Social Fund (ESF) for 2009 is €645.93 million. The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) has responsibility for ESF funding in England. The €449.555 million for England for 2009 has been allocated to the Department, the Learning and Skills Council and other funding bodies within their ESF plans for 2007-10. The devolved Administrations have responsibility for ESF funding in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Industrial Health and Safety: Hearing Impaired

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department takes to (a) improve employers' understanding of deafness and (b) ensure employers do not discriminate on grounds of health and safety against (i) deaf British Sign Language users and (ii) employees who become deafened during the course of their employment. [247571]

Jonathan Shaw; Through the "Employ ability" programme, we are engaging with employers to improve their understanding of disability and their attitudes towards employing disabled people.

The key aims of "Employ ability" include challenging negative assumptions about the skills and talent that disabled workers, and those with long-term health conditions, have to offer, building the confidence of employers in recruiting and retaining disabled workers. "Employ ability" activity is aimed at small to medium-sized employers and is being rolled out to Scotland, Wales and seven regions between 24 March 2008 and 27 February 2009.

To ensure that employers do not discriminate against deaf people, we support and uphold the principles of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. The Act provides protection from discrimination for a person who has a hearing impairment, provided that the person meets the definition of a disabled person under the Act. The Act requires an employer not to discriminate against a disabled person by treating the person less favourably for a reason related to the person's disability, unless that treatment can be justified.

People who are deaf or who become deaf in the course of their employment, and their employers may also receive support from Access to Work. Support is tailored to the individual customer's needs but can include funding for British Sign Language Interpreters, Lip Speakers or Palantypists; whether as support workers in the work place or for communication support at job interviews.

Access to Work could also provide indirect support to a deaf person by funding awareness training to help the person's work colleagues, including their employer, gain a better understanding of their condition.

Jobcentre Plus: Christchurch

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the former Jobcentre Plus office at Wick lane, Christchurch, will be brought back into use; and what the liability of his Department is for empty property rates on the premises. [248850]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking when the former Jobcentre Plus office at Wick lane, Christchurch will be brought back into use and what the liability of his Department is for empty property rates on the premises. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Christchurch Jobcentre Plus was closed on 28 March 2008 as a result of the review of our service delivery plans in the South West region. As a part of the review the new Bournemouth Jobcentre Plus was future proofed to cope with any downturn in the economy and consequent increase in Jobcentre Plus business volumes. There is no intention to bring the Jobcentre Plus office at Wick lane, Christchurch into use.

I can confirm the property used in Christchurch by Jobcentre Plus was provided for the Department by Landsecurities Trillium under the PRIME contract, and upon completion of the formal vacation actions, the Department has no further liability (Landsecurities Trillium hold all the leases). The Asset manager for Trillium has confirmed the lease for part of the space has expired and it was "returned" to the landlord in the summer. The remaining part of the space is unoccupied and is currently being marketed. However, they have had no firm interest and the building remains vacant. Trillium is meeting the business rates payable on the property. The Department has had no liability for empty property rates since the property was formally disposed of on 1 July 2008.

I hope this information is helpful.

Jobcentre Plus: Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people (a) used the services of and (b) found work through the Nairn Jobcentre Plus office in each of the five years before it was closed. [251472]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the percentage change in the number of jobseeker's allowance claimants in each local authority area has been over the last 12 months. [249692]

Mr. McNulty: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Jobseeker's Allowance: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what courses his Department offered to claimants of jobseeker's allowance in Chelmsford in the last 12 months; and what the cost was per person of each course completed. [249834]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what courses his Department offered to claimants of Jobseeker's Allowance in Chelmsford in the last 12 months; and what the cost was per person of each course completed. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Eligible customers in Chelmsford receiving Jobseeker's Allowance have had access to a range of training provision over the last twelve months through our training programmes including New Deals, Access to Work, Programme Centres, Workstep, Workprep and through our Rapid Response Fund. We have also purchased individually tailored training for eligible customers. Jobseeker's Allowance customers have also accessed training by other partners including The Learning and Skills Council, Local Authorities and Colleges.

Specific information is not available for all training courses completed by our Jobseeker's Allowance customers in Chelmsford, nor on what the cost was per person of each course completed.

My District Manager for Essex, Neil Brettell, will be delighted to brief you in more detail on the range of provision available in the Chelmsford area. Neil can be contacted on 01245 214242, by post at Government Buildings, Beeches Road, Chelmsford, Essex CM1 2RT or by email at:

Neil.Brettell@jobcentreplus.gsi.gov.uk

Pensioners: Carers

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate, on the basis of household surveys supported by his Department, how many people over state pension age are engaged in caring for (a) at least 20 hours per week and (b) at least 35 hours per week for a person over pension age who is in receipt of either attendance allowance or the care component of disability living allowance; and if he will make a statement. [250397]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The information requested is not available.

Poverty: Children

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1685W, on poverty: children, how many children were living in poverty in Scotland in January (a) 2007, (b) 2008 and (c) 2009. [252650]

Kitty Ussher: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 19 November 2008, Official Report, column 563W.

2006-07 data is still the latest available information.

Social Fund

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many applications for (a) grants and (b) loans from the Social Fund were (i) approved and (ii) refused in each of the last 10 years. [252610]

Kitty Ussher: The available information is in the following tables.

Social Security Benefits: Databases

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the error rate in benefit system data; and what factors he has identified as the most common causes of such error. [251719]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to tables 4A, 4B and 5B, 5C, and 5E in "Fraud and Error in the Benefit System: April 2007 to March 2008" (ISBN: 978-1-84763-691-1), a DWP National Statistics publication, a copy of which is in the Library.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to reduce instances of fraud and error in the benefit system which arise from cases where mail has been misdirected. [251720]

Mr. McNulty: The Department and local authorities have in place an agreement with Royal Mail whereby any mail that is returned to the postal system because the customer is not, or no longer, at the delivery address is returned to the Department or local authority and not redirected to any forwarding address.

State Retirement Pensions: Overseas Residence

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will take steps to ensure that payments made by his Department in sterling to UK pensioners resident abroad can be made by direct deposits into overseas sterling accounts; and if he will make a statement. [248819]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Pension payments to UK pensioners resident abroad are paid directly into an account overseas in local currency. This is more convenient for the majority of customers and the rates the Government have negotiated to convert from sterling to the relevant currency are more competitive than those that could be obtained by individual customers.

Customers can choose to have their payments made in sterling to a UK bank account if they wish.

Take Up Taskforce: Manpower

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many full-time equivalent staff make up the Take Up Taskforce. [249452]

Kitty Ussher: The taskforce membership comprises 15 representatives from local authorities and business, public and third sector bodies, and key voluntary organisations. Members are giving their time free of charge and bringing a wealth of existing expertise and research from within their organisations.

The secretariat for the Take Up Taskforce is provided by one full-time equivalent member of staff who has been seconded to the joint child poverty unit from a local authority. The secretariat also has some analytical support from within the child poverty unit.

TRANSPORT

A435

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what investigations the Highways Agency has undertaken into the state of the culvert under the A435 in Ashchurch parish; and if he will make a statement. [251920]

Paul Clark: The A435 through Ashchurch has now been renumbered the A46. The culvert has been the subject of CCTV investigation to identify its condition.

Debris which had collected at the southern outfall of the culvert has been cleared and the location is regularly monitored and clearance work undertaken as appropriate. The CCTV survey has shown that there is a problem with disjointed pipework and blockages within the culvert and a scheme is currently being costed by the Highways Agency and will be added to a future works programme.

Bus Services: Concessions

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if his Department will reimburse local authorities for the full cost to them of implementing the national concessionary bus fares scheme. [252290]

Paul Clark [holding answer 28 January 2009]: The Government are confident that there is sufficient funding in total for statutory concessionary fares.

The statutory concession was improved from April 2008 to provide free off-peak concessionary bus travel throughout England. An additional £212 million is being provided to local authorities by special grant in 2008-09, rising over the next two years, solely to pay for this improvement of the statutory concession.

In autumn 2007 the Department for Transport consulted widely on the formula used to distribute the grant. The distribution is based on generous assumptions about fares, bus pass take-up, extra journeys and additional costs, taking account of the likely demand in visitor hotspots such as coastal towns, urban centres and tourist destinations.

The special grant is solely to cover the additional cost of the new concession. Funding for the existing elements of the concession, which make up the bulk of the costs, will continue to be provided through Revenue Support Grant and is not separately identified.

The Department proposes to begin consulting shortly on possible changes to the way concessionary travel is administered. Any changes may provide an opportunity to consider how best to distribute the totality of funding.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247371]

Mr. Hoon: A complete list of contributions to voluntary organisations and charities within the last five years could be made only at disproportionate cost. However, I can provide details over the last three years of contributions made within the third sector over the last three years. Tables have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Table A sets out expenditure made by the Central Department. Table B sets out expenditure made by the Department's agencies; details of expenditure of less than £100 could only be provided at disproportionate cost and these costs are therefore shown as an amalgamated total.

Dartford-Thurrock Crossing: Tolls

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much the operator of the Dartford-Thurrock crossing has made under its contract with the Department in each year since 2002; and how much revenue has accrued to the Department from the operation of the crossing in each such year. [252597]

Paul Clark: The current operator, Le Crossing Company Ltd., has been managing the operation of the crossing since 1 April 2003. Prior to this the crossing was managed by Dartford River Crossing Ltd. Details of their accounts are available through a search at Companies House.

The Highways Agency does prepare an annual account for the Dartford-Thurrock Crossing Charging Scheme. Copies of the accounts for the years from 2003-04 to 2006-07 have been placed in the House Library and include details of the amounts paid to the managing agent for operating the crossing and the gross/net revenue. The 2007-08 accounts were laid today.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much capital expenditure has been brought forward in response to the economic downturn by his Department, its agencies and non-departmental public bodies to (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; from which years such expenditure has been brought forward; and if he will make a statement. [251400]

Mr. Hoon: As part of the fiscal stimulus the Department for Transport has brought forward £700 million from 2010-11 to 2009-10. £400 million will be used by the Highways Agency to bring forward high value schemes on the strategic roads network. £300 million will be used for the procurement of diesel unit rolling stock as part of the Department's High Level Output Specification for Britain's rail network.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252272]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Written Questions

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many holding answers his Department has given in response to parliamentary questions for written answer in the last 12 months; and of those how many are still awaiting a final answer. [252679]

Mr. Hoon: In the 12 months to 28 January 2009 the Department for Transport gave 363 holding answers. As of 28 January 2009 three await substantive answer.

Legal Opinion

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost was of external legal services engaged by his Department in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [251360]

Mr. Hoon: In the past two years the Department for Transport (including its agencies) has spent the following on external legal fees.

M5: Land

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what land the Highways Agency owns between junctions 8 and 9 of the M5; and if he will make a statement. [251919]

Paul Clark: Between Junctions 8 and 9 of the M5, the Highways Agency owns land within the highway boundary that was originally purchased to construct the motorway. Generally these boundaries are fenced from the adjoining land.

M5: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what studies the Highways Agency has undertaken into possible improvements to the culvert of the Carrant Brook under the M5 between junctions 8 and 9; and if he will make a statement. [251918]

Paul Clark: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1007W, to his previous question, which gave details of the work carried out by the Highways Agency to clear culverts and drains between Junctions 8 and 11a of the M5. This work identified maintenance requirements which are now being carefully monitored, but did not show a particular problem at the Carrant Brook culvert. As a result, the Highways Agency does not consider that a further specific study of this culvert is necessary at this stage.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent works to improve drainage have been undertaken between junction 8 of the M5 junction and junction 1 of the M50; and if he will make a statement. [251921]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency has carried out the following investigatory work at this location:

Schemes to repair damaged drainage systems have been identified and are currently being priced and will be entered into future programmes;

Problems were identified with a Severn Trent water main being located within the present drainage system and the company has been contacted. They are programming work to remove this;

Removal of tree roots within the drainage system to improve capacity; and Liaison with local land owners has resulted in them increasing drainage capacity on their land to prevent run-off onto the motorway.

Northern Rail: Rolling Stock

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average age of the rail rolling stock operated by Northern Rail is; and if he will make a statement. [252051]

Paul Clark: Northern Rail can provide the most accurate answer. However, our calculations indicate the average age of the fleet is 19.78 years. The life of diesel and electric rolling stock is assumed to be around 30-35 years. During the life of the rolling stock it will undergo a number of major examinations and will normally have improvements made to the interiors of the vehicles.

Operon

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department gave to Operon facilities management to supplement Operon employee wages in 2008. [252676]

Mr. Hoon: Nothing

Railway Stations: Crime

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effects of staff presence at rail stations on rates of (a) ticket fraud and (b) other crimes at stations. [251909]

Paul Clark: Whether and how to staff stations are primarily matters for individual operators. The Department for Transport has not therefore carried out any recent study of the effect of staffing on crime. However, the National Passenger Survey includes a question about how safe passengers feel when using stations. In the most recent survey, in autumn 2008, only 8 per cent. of those questioned were dissatisfied with station security.

Roads: Accidents

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic accidents resulted in a fatality in Crosby constituency in each of the last five years. [253184]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of fatalities resulting from personal injury road accidents in Crosby constituency in each of the last five years is given in the following table:

	Number of fatalities
2003	1
2004	2
2005	1
2007	0

Note:
Based on 2004 boundaries

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were (a) injured and (b) killed in road traffic accidents in the north-west in each of the last five years, broken down by police authority area. [253195]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of casualties that were (a) injured and (b) killed resulting from personal injury road accidents in the north-west in each of the last five years, broken down by police authority area are given in the following table.

Number of casualties

Policy authority area		2003	2004	2005	2006	2007

	Killed	405	338	362	321	271

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people (a) died and (b) were injured in road accidents where the cause of the accident was drink-driving in each of the last five years, broken down by police authority. [253288]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport publishes estimates of the number of casualties in drink-drive accidents where one or more of the motor vehicle drivers or riders involved was over the legal alcohol limit. These estimates are calculated on a national basis. Police force area estimates are not available. Figures for Great Britain are shown in the following table.

Number of casualties

	Killed	Injured
2003	580	18,410
2004	580	16,400
2005	550	14,850
2006	560	13,810
2007[1]	460	14,020

[1] Provisional data. Final figures will be published in August 2008.

The drink-drive estimates are published in an article entitled "Drinking and driving" in "Road Casualties Great Britain—Annual report 2007". Copies of the report have been deposited in the Libraries of the House and it is also available at the following web address:

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which projects in the proposed public works schedule he proposes to bring forward as part of the programme of accelerating public works; and when he expects work on each accelerated project to begin. [251172]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 26 January 2009]: In November 2008 the Chancellor announced, as part of his pre-Budget report, that £700 million of fiscal stimulus funding was being brought forward by the Department for Transport.

£400 million of this will be used by the Highways Agency in 2009-10 to bring forward high value schemes on the strategic roads network. This includes, subject to completing statutory processes and confirmation of co-funding from the region, bringing forward by two years the start of construction for the scheme to dual the A46 from Newark to Widmerpool. In addition the funding will allow us to bring forward work to strengthen hard shoulders in advance of the implementation of hard shoulder running as well as other high value structure and asset renewal projects.

The exact schemes that will benefit from the fiscal stimulus is being developed as part of developing the Highways Agency's 2009-10 Business Plan.

The remaining £300 million is to be used for the procurement of diesel unit rolling stock as part of the Department's High Level Output Specification for the British rail network. The first part of the procurement process has begun.

Transport: Employment

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the up to 100,000 jobs the Government expects to be created he expects will result from transport capital projects; and if he will make a statement. [251841]

Mr. Hoon: Preliminary estimates suggest that approximately 37,500 jobs will be created over the next two years as a result of expenditure of £15 billion on transport capital projects. The figures are based on the Department's evidence base of analyses of previous capital projects.

Transport: Expenditure

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in respect of which transport infrastructure projects with a forecast cost of more than £5 million the Highways Agency has carried out feasibility studies; how much these studies have cost; how many of the schemes subject to a feasibility study were approved; and if he will make a statement. [252060]

Paul Clark: Since being established in 1994 the Highways Agency has conducted a significant number of feasibility studies which are carried out routinely for projects that are estimated to cost in excess of £5 million. This covers all major infrastructure projects categorised into widening, bypass, junction and technology schemes, consideration of high occupancy vehicle lanes and, more recently, managed motorway improvements. Historically the Highways Agency's operating protocols and governance arrangements have not required discrete tracking of the costs associated with feasibility work but have been managed within overall resource budget allocations provided by central Government.

Taking into account the number of feasibility studies undertaken since 1994, the amount of work required and the need to access a large number of archived records, it has been concluded that the cost associated with identifying the cost of each study is considered disproportionate.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Air Pollution

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what estimate he has made of levels of (a) PM10, (b) PM2.5, (c) O3, (d) NO2 and (e) NO in each of the 20 largest cities and towns in England by population size for each year between 2005 and 2012; and if he will make a statement; [249760]

(2) which cities and towns in England are currently in breach of air quality laws on (a) nitrogen dioxide, (b) ozone and (c) other nitrogen oxides; and if he will make a statement; [249761]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of maps of the following air pollutants for each of the 20 largest cities and towns in England by population site showing the latest estimate he has for levels of (a) PM10, (b) PM2.5, (c) nitrogen dioxide, (d) ozone and (e) nitrogen oxide. [249782]

Huw Irranca-Davies: For the purposes of assessing and reporting exceedences and breaches of air quality limit values, the UK is divided up into 43 agglomeration zones (areas with a contiguous population of over 250,000 as specified by the air quality directives) and non-agglomeration zones. There are 23 agglomeration zones in England and eight non-agglomeration zones; the latter are based on Government office regions in England.

The air quality framework directive (1996/62/EC) and four daughter directives (1999/30/EC, 2000/69/EC, 2002/3/EC, and 2004/107/EC) set out our current obligations in relation to various pollutants in ambient air. Of the pollutants mentioned, the limit values currently in force are for particles measured as particulate matter (PM_{10}). There are also limit values for the protection of vegetation and ecosystems for nitrogen oxides (NO_x), but these specifically do not apply to urban areas, or to areas near busy roads.

The limit values for nitrogen dioxide (NO_2) do not come into force until 2010. The levels set for ozone (O_3) are in the form of either target values, which do not have the same strict compliance criteria as limit values, or long term objectives, which have no compliance date. Other than those for the protection of vegetation and ecosystems, there are no additional limit values for other oxides of nitrogen. A new Council directive on ambient air and cleaner air for Europe (2008/50/EC) consolidates existing legislation and introduces new controls for $PM_{2.5}$. The limit values for this pollutant are not yet in force.

Under the EU legislation set out above, the UK is required to monitor the air continuously for levels of PM_{10}, $PM_{2.5}$, NO_2, NO_x (from which levels of NO can be derived), O_3 and a number of other pollutants. These data are freely available from the National Air Quality Archive http://www.airquality.co.uk/archive/index.php

This archive contains all the monitoring data collected for and by the Government in relation to air quality since 1962. It also contains details of the monitoring sites currently in use. In addition, the UK was one of a small number of member states to report modelled data alongside monitoring data. The national model used complies with the relevant data quality criteria set out in the various air quality directives, and is validated against monitored data. The annual report complied to accompany the UK submission to the European Commission on air quality is also held on the air quality archive:

http://www.airquality.co.uk/archive/reports/cat09/0807231621_dd12006mapsrep_v2.pdf

This contains maps of roadside and background levels of PM_{10}, and NO_2/NO_x, although these are not given on a city by city basis; such information is not readily available. Maps for O_3 are held in a separate report on the same site:

http://www.airquality.co.uk/archive/reports/cat09/0807301054_DD3_mapsrep2006_v2.pdf.

These reports also contain a map showing the location and extent of the UK agglomeration and non-agglomeration zones.

The model used to produce these reports is also used to provide projections of future air quality. This is a complex process and is generally only carried out in response to specific policy needs. In predicting future air quality, a "baseline" is constructed to show what effect currently planned measures and policies will have on air quality. Such a baseline has been prepared for 2010, 2011 and 2012 for PM_{10} and NO_2, to support potential applications for time extensions for these pollutants, allowed under the 2008 directive, for compliance with the limit values. A consultation on the application for PM_{10} will be published shortly; it is planned to initiate a consultation on the application for NO_2 towards the end of 2009. One of the outputs from this baseline is an assessment of the agglomeration and non-agglomeration zones predicted to contain locations where the air quality is above the relevant limit value level.

For NO_2, the limit value is predicted to be exceeded in all but three zones in England in 2010, all but four in 2011 and all but five in 2012. The zones in compliance are predicted to be Brighton/Worthing/Littlehampton, Blackpool Urban Area, and Preston Urban Area in 2010, additionally Bournemouth Urban Area in 2011, and additionally Coventry/Bedworth in 2012.

The outcome of the baseline assessment for PM_{10} was that two zones—Greater London and the West Midlands were predicted to be in exceedence in 2010, reducing to one (Greater London) in 2011 and 2012. The extent of the predicted exceedence in 2011 was a total 40km of roads, mainly in central London. However, the baseline assessment had not taken into account all of the traffic and transport measures planned for implementation by the Greater London Authority and Transport for London. Nor did the assessment use the more accurate traffic growth projections prepared by Transport for London for the London area, relying instead on national data. Sensitivity analysis including these measures reduced the total road length exceeding to around 6km, which is well within the uncertainties of the model. Using this additional analysis, there is no exceedence predicted for 2012.

Birds: Nature Conservation

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the merits of strengthening controls on the sale of those non-CITES species of birds removed from Schedule 4 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981. [252762]

Huw Irranca-Davies: All non-CITES species of birds removed from Schedule 4 are subject to the sales controls provided in the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981. The removal of certain species from Schedule 4 has not affected the fact that it will remain an offence to possess or sell a wild bird that has been illegally taken.

British Waterways Board: Finance

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether the £5 million spending on the infrastructure of British Waterways announced in the pre-Budget report will be included in the allocation for British Waterways for 2010-11; [251696]

(2) what budget his Department plans to provide for British Waterways in 2010-11. [251697]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The £5 million brought forward from 2010-11 to 2009-10 is a movement of indicative budget from one year to another and will not be double-counted. Final allocations for the constituent parts of the DEFRA budget for 2010-11 have not yet been made. The intention is to agree 2010-11 budgets by the spring of 2009.

Charlotte Atkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of British Waterways' projected funding shortfall for 2010-11 in relation to the funding requirement identified by the steady state model. [252092]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA is working with British Waterways to agree a sustainable and affordable strategy for the waterways in order to get the best public benefits from the resources available.

The KPMG report published in September last year concluded that British Waterways has a significant funding gap in relation to the requirements of the steady state model. This has led to a review by British Waterways into its overall funding and initiatives to raise more income from a variety of sources and to see additional efficiencies and savings in its expenditure. These will feed into its consultation on future strategy later this year. We will discuss with British Waterways the conclusions of its review and its implications for future strategy and funding requirements for its waterways.

Carbon Emissions: Water

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the level of carbon dioxide emissions from (a) industrial, (b) commercial and (c) agricultural uses of water; what steps he is taking to reduce levels of carbon dioxide emissions from heavily intensive water usage in each sector; and if he will make a statement. [251692]

Huw Irranca-Davies: A carbon footprint for the UK water industry was published for the first time in 2008 in "Future Water", the Government's water strategy for England. The industry emits around five million tonnes of greenhouse gases per year, as carbon dioxide equivalents (CO_2e). There are no separate figures for different end-uses, however, the non-domestic sector that includes the industrial, commercial and agricultural sectors is estimated to use 23 per cent. of the public water supply. The industrial sector also uses significant quantities of direct abstractions but it is difficult to estimate the associated carbon emissions due to variability in the extent of treatment and in pumping distances.

The Carbon Reduction Commitment will bring about reductions in carbon emissions from across the economy, including from the water industry. In addition, we have received a commitment from Water UK that the water companies will seek to ensure that at least 20 per cent. of all energy used by the UK water industry comes from renewable sources by 2020.

Departmental Contracts

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contracts to which his Department is a party continue beyond 1 July 2010. [242150]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Department is compiling this information for publication in its departmental report for 2009, a copy of which will be placed in the Library of the House. The report is published normally in May of the named year.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251440]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

The 2008 DEFRA Departmental Report contains the 2006 and 2007 performance figures for the handling of all types of correspondence. The 2009 report will contain the figures for 2008 and will be published as soon as it is ready. The report can be found on the DEFRA website.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) external contractors and (b) other non-departmental staff were employed by his Department in London in each of the last five financial years; and at what cost were such staff employed in each year. [251074]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Information on how many external contractors and other non-departmental staff were engaged by the core-Department in London and their costs in each of the last five financial years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The core-Department's expenditure on consultancy and professional services for the financial years 2003-04 through to 2007-08 is set out in the following table.

Expenditure

Departmental Official Residences

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 9 October 2008, Official Report, columns 727-28W, on departmental official residences, whether the council tax bills for departmental residential accommodation are paid from departmental funds; and what his Department's policy is on responsibility for paying charges for the collection of household waste associated with the property. [252210]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Department has a limited number of dwellings used to accommodate key workers. These premises are usually let on formal tenancies which require the occupiers to discharge council tax among the usual occupational outgoings.

With regard to a policy for the responsibility for paying charges for the collection of household waste, this is yet to be considered. However as an occupier cost it would not be unreasonable for any such charges to be borne by the occupiers.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252267]

Huw Irranca-Davies: From information held centrally, there is no vendor 'Internet Advertising Bureau' registered on the core-Department's financial system.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251878]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right. hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 5W. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the 'Ministerial Code'.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249139]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Department strives to answer all parliamentary questions with the relevant information as accurately and as concisely as possible having regard to the disproportionate cost threshold. The Department does not keep records of occasions on which Ministers have used their discretion to overrule the application of the cost threshold.

Floods: Lancashire

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether Lancashire county council has bid for funding to protect against future flooding. [247015]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency has received no bids for funding from Lancashire county council this financial year and the council has not applied for funding for the resilience grants pilots.

Lancashire, as a county, benefited from grant funding from the resilience grants pilot project through the Sunderland point pilot. This was run by Lancaster city council in collaboration with the Environment Agency from 2007 to 2008, with a project with a budget of £110,000. The results of this work are available in a report on the DEFRA website.

Floods: Montgomeryshire

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely effects of flooding on the Pylon development scheme in Kerry, Montgomeryshire; and if he will make a statement. [251614]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Flooding in Wales is a matter for the Welsh Assembly.

Rodents

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to publish the latest English Condition Survey data on rodent presence in domestic dwellings. [252402]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My Department has published on its website the latest report on rodent presence in domestic properties as revealed by the English House Condition Survey data for 2002-03 and 2003-04. Key findings are that the occurrences of rats inside and outside properties in these years are not significantly different from those observed in 2001.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the size of the rat population in the country. [252640]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My Department does not hold data on the size of the UK rat population. However, the latest report on rodent presence in domestic properties as revealed by the English House Condition Survey data for 2002-03 and 2003-04 is now available on DEFRA's website. Key findings are that the occurrences of rats inside and outside properties in these years are not significantly different from those observed in 2001.

Water Charges

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department has made an impact assessment of new site area-based charges for surface drainage on (a) sports clubs, (b) churches and (c) other voluntary groups. [252621]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Ofwat, the independent economic regulator for the water industry, is responsible for approving charging schemes. The Government are aware of the affordability issues faced by some customers as a result of the switch from charging based on rateable value to site area and are currently reviewing their position.

Water Supply

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1626W, on water supply, for what reason the original timetable for water companies to prepare their statement of response to the consultation was not met. [252078]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The overriding requirement of section 37 of the Water Industry Act 1991 is that a water company must provide a coherent plan that demonstrates how it will ensure a supply and demand balance for water.

In their statements of response, water companies must respond to the representations they received and say how these have been reflected in their plans and any changes that have been made to the plan in light of the representations.

The original timetable was extended to allow water companies additional time, which they needed in order to provide the evidence required to demonstrate the impacts any changes made to the plan will have on their subsequent appraisal, and selection, of the preferred water supply and demand options necessary to maintain their statutory water supply duties over the next 25 years.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Buildings

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what Government Equalities Office assets are planned to be sold in each financial year from 2007-08 to 2010-11; what the (a) description and (b) book value of each such asset is; what the expected revenue from each such sale is; and if she will make a statement. [251677]

Maria Eagle: As recorded in its Annual Report and Resource Accounts 2007-08 the Government Equalities Office does not own any fixed or intangible assets.

Departmental Internet

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what websites the Government Equalities Office (a) funds and (b) part-funds. [251670]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office (GEO) has overall responsibility for one website:

www.equalities.gov.uk.

The GEO has also made a financial contribution to the Ethnic Minority Foundation to develop a website aimed towards issues of concern to young people.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much the Government Equalities Office spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in the Government Equalities Office attended at least one such training course. [252238]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office has not spent any money on digital media training courses.

Domestic Violence: Nottinghamshire

John Mann: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many recorded incidents of domestic violence there have been in (a) Bassetlaw and (b) Nottinghamshire in each of the last three years; and how many of these resulted in a successful prosecution. [250763]

Maria Eagle [holding answer 26 January 2009]: Government figures from 2006-07 and 2007-08 show the number of domestic violence cases being reported has increased. This is a testament to the growing confidence victims have that they will be listened to and their reports effectively investigated coupled with the specialist and practical support victims receive.

The available data on domestic violence incidents are based on domestic violence arrest rates taken from the Statutory Performance Indicators (SPI 8a) suite used in police force performance assessments for 2007-08. The following table shows the number of recorded incidents of domestic violence in Nottinghamshire for each of the last three years. The Government do not hold discrete figures for Bassetlaw.

Nottinghamshire domestic violence incidents

	Number
2005-06	15,279
2006-07	17,534
2007-08	19,166

The following table shows the outcome of prosecutions for domestic violence from the records held by the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS). The figures are for Nottinghamshire as a whole. No discrete figures are held in respect of Bassetlaw.

Nottinghamshire Crown Prosecution Service domestic violence outcomes

Convictions	691	801	815
Unsuccessful	467	555	364
Total	1,158	1,356	1,179

The figures represent the number of defendants whose case was completed in each year and are divided into convictions, (including guilty pleas), and unsuccessful outcomes which represent all outcomes other than where a conviction is recorded.

There has been an improvement in the proportion of post-charge proceedings for domestic violence resulting in a conviction over recent years. Nationally, convictions increased from 63.5 per cent. of completed cases in 2006 to 72 per cent. in 2008. The improvement in CPS Nottinghamshire over the same period was from 59.7 per cent. to 69.1 per cent.

Domestic Violence: Victims

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government have taken to support women and children who are subject to domestic violence in the last two years. [250058]

Maria Eagle: Independent domestic violence advisers provide invaluable support to victims of domestic violence and their families. Evidence shows that incidents of victimisation decrease and victims are less likely to withdraw from cases. This is why we have provided over £6 million this financial year to support the extension of Advisors and Multi-Agency Risk Assessment Conferences across England and Wales. Also, in 2006-07, local authorities spent over £61 million of their funding allocated through the Supporting People programme on housing-related support services for women at risk of domestic violence. Further, last financial year we provided funding to local authorities worth £47.2 million through the Homelessness Strategy and Support Directorate's grant programmes a proportion of which can be used to develop outreach and other innovative models, such as the sanctuary scheme.

Females: Human Trafficking

Mr. Bone: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality if she will work with the Secretary of State for the Home Department to bring forward proposals for a commissioner with the remit of reducing the trafficking of women to the UK for sexual exploitation. [251266]

Maria Eagle: We believe that existing mechanisms (the Inter-Departmental Ministerial Group on Human Trafficking and the Home Office NGO Stakeholder Group) provide appropriate forums for discussion and advocacy on issues surrounding trafficking for sexual exploitation, as well as allowing for close scrutiny of progress on the Action Plan and the Council of Europe Convention.

As Minister for Women and Equality, I ensure all Government departments are considering the specific concerns of vulnerable women. The Home Office and the UK Border Agency continue to work with our international partners both to raise awareness of human trafficking and further strengthen our ability to prevent this crime taking place.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on improving security in Afghanistan in the last year; and if he will make a statement. [252001]

Mr. Hutton: In 2008 progress was made across Afghanistan but the insurgency remains resilient and 2009 will continue to present significant security challenges in certain areas of the country, particularly in the south and east.

In Helmand, successful military operations by ISAF and Afghan National Security Forces (ANSF) have allowed more of the province to come under the control of the Afghan Government. The recent Operation SOND CHARA saw Task Force Helmand, supported by ANSF, successfully clear Taleban from the town of Nad-e-Ali and its environs creating a secure environment to promote stabilisation and economic growth.

Aircraft Carriers

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons the date for the completion of the Royal Navy aircraft carriers has been delayed; and if he will make a statement. [252897]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence made on 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 65WS.

Armed Forces: Married People

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of personnel in each service who were (a) divorced and (b) separated in each year between 1997 and 2006. [251962]

Mr. Kevan Jones: For the number and proportion of divorced personnel, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to him on 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 51W.

Figures on separation rates for this time period could be provided only at disproportionate cost and no such estimates have been made.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of personnel in each service who were (a) divorced and (b) separated in each month in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [251963]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Records on the number of serving military personnel by marital status for this time period are not held centrally, following the implementation of the Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many recruits of each sex have joined each unit of each of the armed forces at each rank in each of the last 10 years. [252098]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information on armed forces recruitment by sex can be found in United Kingdom Defence Statistics (UKDS) 2008, Table 2.19 Intake to UK regular forces from civil life by Service and sex. UKDS is published annually; the most recent publication shows figures for the 12 months to 31 March 2008 and can be found at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/modintranet/UKDS2008/c2/table219.html

Intake to UK regular forces from civil life by unit could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The majority of personnel recruited into the armed forces do so at the lowest level rank of either the officer or other ranks rank structure. Only professional personnel (for example doctors and lawyers) are recruited at any other than the lowest rank and therefore data has not been provided.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the next stage in the Future Rapid Effects System procurement will be; and whether his Department has plans for off-shelf procurement of reconnaissance vehicles. [252096]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Outline plans for the procurement of the Future Rapid Effects System were announced by the Secretary of State for Defence on 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 65WS. The MOD is currently considering how to take forward the procurement of the Utility Vehicle element of the Future Rapid Effects System (FRES) programme in order to ensure we provide Defence with the best possible capability at the best value for money.

The Specialist Vehicle element of the FRES programme continues to make good progress and received Initial Gate approval to enter its Assessment Phase in June 2008. A range of programme options are currently being considered for the Reconnaissance variant, FRES Scout. A recommendation as to the preferred option will be made to the Department's Investment Approvals Board upon completion of the Assessment Phase.

Army : Deployment

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what occasions the (a) heavy and (b) light artillery regiments have been deployed in each of the last 10 years; and (i) to which locations and (ii) on which operations they were deployed. [252100]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The deployments of the heavy and light artillery regiments over the last 10 years are shown as follows:

Departmental Land

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) estimated monetary value, (b) location and (c) size is of each land asset owned by his Department. [252097]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Details of all land owned by the Ministry of Defence are held on a property database, including the last valuation based on the rolling five year revaluation programme undertaken by the Department. Valuations are stated at either replacement cost or existing use value rather than market or sale value and thus do not take account of the possibility of any development potential or any costs associated with the decontamination of the land.

An extract has been taken from the database and will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend, East (James Duddridge) of 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 1000W, on departmental public relations, which areas of work and projects the external public relations firm worked on; and for what reasons such work was not conducted in-house. [252214]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence gave on 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1673W.

Gulf War: Veterans

Mr. Mates: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will commission further research into the diagnosis and treatment of Gulf War veterans' illnesses; and if he will make a statement. [251121]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Medical Research Council (MRC) has provided independent advice on our Gulf research programme. In 2003, the Ministry of Defence asked the MRC to undertake an independent scientific review of all the UK research work that has been carried out into Gulf veterans' illnesses in an international context and to advise on whether there are any areas appropriate for future research. The MRC's recommendations were published on 22 May 2003 and are available at:

www.mrc.ac.uk/index.htm.

A key recommendation was that future research work should focus on improving the long-term health of veterans with persistent symptoms and proposals on rehabilitation therapies were sought. A contract for research into ways of rehabilitating unwell Gulf veterans was awarded to an expert group at Cardiff University last summer and work is expected to be complete by April 2012. In the event of any new research proposals being made that would add to our knowledge on Gulf health issues then the Ministry of Defence will consider funding any proposal for research which has been formally considered and approved by the MRC.

HMS Plymouth

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if his Department will seek to provide an open berth for HMS Plymouth in a British port. [252390]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The former HMS Plymouth is a privately owned vessel. While the Ministry of Defence would always wish to see a dignified and appropriate use for the vessel, it has no practical role in her placement or usage.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether HMS Richmond will be deployed to duties pertaining to the arms embargo on the Gaza Strip before Operation Telic ends. [251891]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We are considering the provision of naval resources to counter the smuggling of weapons into Gaza. No decisions have yet been taken.

Joint Strike Fighter Aircraft

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether Lockheed Martin have been asked to postpone the completion date for the Joint Strike Fighter. [252898]

Mr. Quentin Davies: We have never asked Lockheed Martin to postpone the completion date for JSF. We have not even declared an In Service Date for this programme in the UK and will only do so when the programme is sufficiently mature. We are one of nine participant nations in the JSF programme and its completion date cannot be determined by one participant in isolation.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the Joint Strike Fighter to enter service. [252899]

Mr. Quentin Davies: We will not be setting in-service dates for the Joint Combat Aircraft (JCA) until we take the main investment decision, and we will take that decision when the project is sufficiently mature. The Joint Strike Fighter remains our preferred solution to meet the JCA requirement and our current plans for JCA remain coherent with the CVF programme.

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost of his Department's contracts with press monitoring services was in each of the last five years. [251223]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Information is only available for the last four financial years. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 12 November 2008, Official Report, column 1177W, to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox).

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of helicopter pilots did not undertake the required 15 hours individual flying training per month in the last year. [251748]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: NATO guidance recommends that helicopter aircrew undertake 15 hours flying training per month in order to maintain competency. While this is an accepted guideline across the MOD it is not interpreted as an absolute requirement for Army and RAF helicopter pilots.

Information on individual flying training hours for Army and RAF helicopters is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, Royal Navy regulations require that Royal Navy helicopter pilots undertake 15 hours flying training per month. Figures for the number and proportion of Royal Navy pilots who did not complete 15 hours training per month in the last year are shown in the following table.

These figures only represent the data requested in the question and do not reflect the number of aircrew in current flying practice and therefore ready for duty. Three month rolling currency requirement and currency checks ensure the number of aircrew ready for duty is maximised.

Somalia: Piracy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what Royal Navy assets will form the UK contribution to CTF-151, broken down by asset type. [251890]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: HMS Portland will conduct counter-piracy missions around the Horn of Africa, as and when required, through the newly established Combined Task Force 151. HMS Portland will also continue to carry out broader maritime security operations through Combined Task Force 150, which operates in the same region.

We continue to work with our international partners to ensure all activities are co-ordinated through the UK maritime component command in Bahrain and the EU operation headquarters at Northwood.

Submarines: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel have received (a) wet training and (b) dry training at the submarine escape training tank at Gosport in (i) each year from 2005 to 2007 and (ii) each month since January 2008. [251646]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The numbers of armed forces personnel who completed wet and dry training at the submarine escape training tank at Gosport for the period requested are as follows:

Wet training refers to those individuals who complete pressurised ascents during the training course. The figures given for dry training are for those trainees who only complete the non-pressurised elements of the course, this includes tower acquaint drills and surface survival.

Qualifying trainees would have undertaken, in order, 2 x 9 m buoyant exhaling ascents, 1 x 18 m buoyant exhaling ascent and 1 x 30 m suited ascent. Those trainees requalifying conducted, in order, 1 x 30 m suited ascent and 1 x 9 m buoyant exhaling ascent.

The information provided for foreign students undertaking wet training during November and December 2008 relates to training provided under a contract which had been agreed prior to the Royal Navy's decision to suspend such training.

Territorial Army: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual number of personnel in each corps of the Territorial Army is; and what the percentage shortfall for each corps is. [251749]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 10 November 2008, Official Report, column 780W.

Defence Analytical Services and Advice figures as at 1 September 2008 show the overall Territorial Army liability requirement as 34,620 and the strength as 28,890 personnel. This represents an overall percentage shortfall of 16.5 per cent.

Figures for each corps of the Territorial Army are not held in the format requested.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of the trained strength personnel complement of the Territorial Army were unavailable for deployment under his Department's policy of deploying individuals for one year in every five (a) at the latest date for which figures are available and (b) in each of the last five years. [251897]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As at 12 December 2008, approximately 6,600 Territorial Army personnel were unavailable for further deployment, in line with the Department's policy of deploying individuals for one year in every five following operational deployments. This figure represents approximately 38 per cent. of the trained Territorial Army strength.

In the past five years (January 2003-April 2008) more than 15,000 Territorial Army personnel have deployed on operations. Accordingly, each period of individual service has attracted an exemption from additional service in the following five year period.

Tristar Aircraft

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 554W, on TriStar aircraft, when the process of fitting glass cockpits to the RAF Tristar fleet is due to commence. [251932]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The trial installation on the first aircraft is already under way and is due to be completed in May 2009.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Bosnia: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the terms of the Odzak agreement signed on 8 November 2008 in Bosnia-Herzegovina. [240836]

David Miliband: The Odzak agreement sends a positive signal and demonstrates that common ground can be found between the political parties. The agreement covers important issues, including constitutional reform and some of the requirements for closure of the Office of the High Representative.

We urge all political leaders in Bosnia and Herzegovina to build a wider consensus which will lead to concrete follow up to the agreement.

Burma: Human Rights

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government has taken in (a) the UN Security Council, (b) the UN Human Rights Council, (c) the UN General Assembly and (d) other United Nations bodies on the sentencing of pro-democracy activists in Burma in November 2008. [251192]

Bill Rammell: The UK has consistently supported firm action in all relevant UN bodies on human rights abuses perpetrated by the Burmese regime. We played an important role in securing a resolution passed by the UN General Assembly on 21 November 2008. The resolution called on the Burmese authorities to desist from further politically motivated arrests and release, without delay or conditions, of all political prisoners, including the 88 Generation group leaders and others detained as the result of the autumn 2007 protests.

On 5 December 2008, the UK Permanent Representative to the UN underlined the UK's deep concern at the harsh sentencing of opposition activists at a meeting of the Group of Friends, chaired by the UN Secretary General. The UK will continue to work with partners in New York to keep Burma on the Security Council agenda.

The UN Human Rights Council has not been in session since this latest round of sentencing began, but the UK will raise the issue as a priority at the Council's 10th session in March.

Burma: Political Prisoners

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the access of Red Cross officials to political prisoners in Burma following the partial lifting of restrictions by the government of Burma; and if he will make a statement. [250944]

Bill Rammell: We have received no reports that the International Committee of the Red Cross has been permitted to visit any political prisoners since 2005, despite our consistent calls for this much needed access through the Security Council, UN human rights bodies, the EU and directly to the Burmese authorities.

Over 200 opposition activists have been given severe sentences since November 2008, some with prison terms of up to 105 years, and placed in prisons in remote parts of the country away from the support of their families. This brings the total number of political prisoners in Burma to over 2,200.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the Answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1794W, on departmental training, what personal training courses at public expense other Ministers in his Department have undertaken since 1 January 2008. [251330]

Gillian Merron: As well as the training received by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary detailed in my reply of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1794W, from January to July 2008, my hon. Friend the former Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, received training in the Spanish language.

No personal training courses have been undertaken by the other Ministers in this Department since 1 January 2008.

Departmental Work Experience

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many individuals have worked in his Department on (a) paid and (b) unpaid work experience or internships in each of the last three years; on average how many hours a week were worked by such people in each year; what types of work each was involved in; what proportion were in full-time education; what proportion did not complete their set period of work experience; and how much those who received remuneration were paid on average per week in each year. [242114]

Gillian Merron: The following tables provide information on how many individuals have worked in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and FCO Services, a Trading Fund of the FCO, on paid and unpaid work experience or internship placements in each of the last three years.

FCO

	Paid	Unpaid	Average hours worked per week
2006	38	10	36
2007	39	10	36
2008	51	10	36

FCO Services

	Paid	Unpaid	Average hours worked per week
2006	0	16	14:48 over two days
2007	0	16	14:48 over two days
2008	0	16	14:48 over two days

Work experience students work on projects and areas associated with various FCO departments. This could include writing briefs and research work.

Of the 158 individuals undertaking work experience at the FCO, 138 were still in full-time education, 20 were recent graduates. All individuals undertaking work experience at FCO Services were in full-time education.

We do not hold statistics on the proportion of individuals who completed their set period of work experience in 2006 and 2007. All individuals completed their periods of work experience in 2008.

Individuals on the FCO's undergraduate work placement scheme are given allowances to cover hotel accommodation, travel and expenses. In 2006, these averaged £321 per week. In 2007 and 2008 this average increased to £341 per week.

Diplomatic Service: Public Appointments

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK (a) embassies, (b) high commissions and (c) other overseas missions have a politically-appointed head of mission. [252111]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has two political appointees as high commissioner:

The right hon. Paul Boateng, high commissioner in South Africa, took up the post in June 2005.

India: Human Rights

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the Answer of 27 October 2008, Official Report, columns 532-3W, whether the next EU-India Human Rights Dialogue will take place before the end of 2008; and what subjects are on the agenda for the next dialogue. [243352]

Bill Rammell: We had hoped the EU/India Human Rights Dialogue would take place before the end of 2008. We now understand that it is due to take place in 2009, although the date has not yet been finalised by the EU presidency and the Indian government.

We expect religious freedom and minority rights in India, including the recent attacks in Orissa state, to be included on the agenda.

Iran: Diplomatic Relations

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on holding high-level direct discussions with the government of Iran. [252112]

Bill Rammell: We are fully prepared to engage Iran in direct discussions. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has met his Iranian counterpart on several occasions. These discussions allow us to make clear that we want a constructive relationship with Iran, but that this depends on its addressing issues of serious concern to the international community, including its nuclear ambitions and its failure to live up to its international human rights commitments.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings Ministers in his Department have had at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office with groups of British Muslims on events in Gaza since 27 December 2008; and what the names were of the individuals who attended each meeting. [252091]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 27 January 2009]: Since 27 December 2008 the following meetings have been held:

On 6 January 2009 my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (PUSS) at the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) and I met with representatives and individuals from a number of organisations including the Quilliam Foundation, Muslim Council of Britain, British Muslim Forum, the Sufi Muslim Council, the Al Khoei Foundation, the UK Ismaili Council and the Ithna Asheri Khoja Shia World Federation.

On 8 January 2009 we met with members of the Muslim Women's Advisory Group.

On 12 January 2009 my right hon. Friends the Foreign Secretary and Communities Secretary met with representatives and individuals from a number of organisations including the Quilliam Foundation, Muslim Council of Britain, British Muslim Forum, the City Circle, British Muslims for a Secular Democracy, the Sufi Muslim Council, the Al Khoei Foundation, the UK Ismaili Council and the Ithna Asheri Khoja Shia World Federation.

On 13 January 2009 my hon. Friend the PUSS at DCLG and I met with members of the Young Muslims Advisory Group.

Palestinians: Detainees

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Israeli Government on the detention without trial of elected members of the Palestinian Parliament. [251615]

Bill Rammell: We continue to restate our call for all elected Palestinian Legislative Council members detained by Israel to be either released or subject to due legal process.

Sri Lanka: Press Freedom

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Sri Lankan Government on the development of independent human rights reporting in Sri Lanka. [251080]

Bill Rammell: In March 2008, my noble Friend, the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, made clear at the UN Human Rights Council UK support for a stronger mandate and presence for the UN human rights mission in Sri Lanka directly with the Sri Lankan Government. He also raised this during his visit to Sri Lanka in July 2008. We continue to emphasise the need for independent human rights reporting in our regular contacts with the Sri Lankan Government.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent assessment of press freedom in northern Sri Lanka is; and what recent reports he has received of threats to the personal safety of journalists operating in the region. [251088]

Bill Rammell: I refer the hon. Member to the Written ministerial statement on Sri Lanka by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, 21 January 2009, Official Report, columns 29-32WS.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provide for staff. [249069]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office provides directly operated catering facilities for staff at Stormont House, Maghaberry Prison, Magilligan Prison, Hydebank Wood Young Offenders Centre and the Prison Service college in Millisle, and franchised catering outlets for staff at the Northern Ireland Forensic Science Agency. Staff from the Department also have access to franchised catering facilities at Castle buildings and Dundonald house in Belfast and at its office in Millbank, London, which are shared and managed by other Departments and Agencies.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 882W, on departmental travel, how much was spent by his Department's (a) agencies and (b) executive non-departmental public bodies on (i) staff travel within the UK and (ii) international staff travel in the last 12 months. [244007]

Mr. Woodward: Northern Ireland Office (NIO) agencies spent £1,772,000 in the last 12 months on staff travel. Of this total £5,000 has been identified as international travel.

More than £1,400,000 of this expenditure related to the Northern Ireland Prison Service, their main costs in this area came from training days and staff transfers:

> Almost 9,000 training places were filled by staff at the Prison Service college for which they could reclaim travel expenses. The training college is based in Millisle which is a round trip of 182 and 78 miles respectively from the two main establishments which are Magilligan and Maghaberry. The other operational establishments are Hydebank Wood based in Bangor and PECCS which is also based in Maghaberry.
> Excess fares are payable to staff that have been transferred to an establishment which is further from their home address than the one from which they are being transferred, this is payable for a three year period if the official remains in their new establishment.

Information for the Northern Ireland Office's executive non-departmental public bodies is an operational matter for each of the bodies, who operate independently of Government. I would encourage the hon. Member to write to the respective chief executives. Details of the NIO's non-departmental public bodies can be found in the NIO 2008 Departmental Report:

> http://www.nio.gov.uk/northern_ireland_office_departmental_report_2008.pdf

Fire Services: Resignations

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland for what reasons five officers resigned from the proposed dedicated road rescue team of the Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service to be established on 1 February 2009. [252958]

Paul Goggins: This is a devolved matter which is the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety.

Offensive Weapons: Crime Prevention

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether he plans to hold a knife amnesty in Northern Ireland. [252962]

Paul Goggins: Although there are no plans to hold another knife amnesty in the near future in Northern Ireland, I am currently developing a knife awareness campaign on the dangers of carrying knives. The campaign will be focused on young people and will launch in the next couple of months.

Parades

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions he has had with (a) political representatives and (b) the Parades Commission on the 2009 parades season in Northern Ireland. [252961]

Mr. Woodward: The disclosure of the information requested would be prejudicial to the effective conduct of public affairs. In the course of my duties I have discussions with a range of people and organisations to discuss various issues, such as, parading in Northern Ireland.

Police: Recruitment

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2009, on police recruitment in Northern Ireland, whether the 50/50 recruitment policy will be ended when the 30 per cent. Roman Catholic recruitment figure is reached if that takes place before 2011. [252959]

Paul Goggins: We are committed to reaching 30 per cent. Catholic composition within the PSNI regulars. When this target is reached the temporary provisions will lapse.

Prisoner Escapes

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many prisoners in Northern Ireland have absconded in each of the last five years; and how long each spent at large either (a) to date or (b) before being apprehended. [251273]

Paul Goggins: Since 2004, six prisoners have absconded and not yet returned to custody (one in 2004, one in 2006, one in 2007 and three in 2008).

The following tables provide a breakdown by calendar year of all prisoners who have absconded and returned to custody from 2007 to date. Prior to 1 January 2007 the specific time periods of absence for those abscondees who returned to custody are not available on a central record. To answer this question for those years would incur disproportionate costs.

Sexual Offences: Prisoners Release

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people who had been convicted of a sexual offence in Northern Ireland since 2005 were subjected to MASRAM supervision after release and were subsequently found guilty of a further offence. [252960]

Paul Goggins: In 2005, the latest year for which re-conviction data can be made available, 71 persons were released from immediate custody or disposed of by a community sentence for a sexual offence. All cases would have been risk assessed and managed under the MASRAM arrangements. The latest figures show none of these persons were re-convicted of a further sexual offence within a two year period.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Leader of the House what her Office's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251445]

Chris Bryant: The information requested is not available in precisely the form requested.

However, we aim to respond to correspondence from hon. Members and peers within 15 working days. In 2008, the Leader's Office answered 94 per cent. of correspondence from hon. Members and peers within deadline. In 2007 this was 94 per cent. and in 2006, 95 per cent.

The Office aims to respond to correspondence from members of the public within 20 working days. In 2008, the Leader's Office answered 96 per cent. of correspondence from members of the public within deadline. In 2007 this was 90 per cent. and in 2006, 95 per cent.

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Leader of the House what the cost of her Office's contracts with press monitoring services was in each of the last five years. [251196]

Chris Bryant: The press monitoring services for the Leader's Office are provided by the Cabinet Office and costs are therefore not identifiable separately.

Mr. Michael Foster: Details on Official Development Assistance (ODA) can be found on the OECD Development Assistance Committee's (DAC) website at

Burma: Overseas Aid

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of British aid to Burma is delivered via cross-border mechanisms. [250796]

Mr. Michael Foster: Approximately £569,000, 4.6 per cent. of DFID's £12.5 million regular programme for Burma in 2008-09 (excluding £45 million emergency relief following Cyclone Nargis) is being delivered via cross-border mechanisms. This figure breaks down as follows:

£193,000 of DFID's £1 million funding to the Thailand Burma Border Consortium (TBBC) in 2008-09 has been allocated to cross-border humanitarian activities. Since DFID's contribution to TBBC was not earmarked to specific activities, this proportion reflects TBBC's own priorities.

DFID is contributing about £300,000 in 2008-09 to cross-border health assistance to Kachin and Shan States from China.

Around £76,000 of £220,000 provided to three Burmese non-governmental organisations based in Thailand is being used for humanitarian work inside Burma. The remainder of this funding is used to assist Burmese refugees and migrants in Thailand.

Community Relations

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funds his Department contributed to local authority Preventing Violent Extremism projects in 2008, broken down by local authority; and if he will make a statement. [251764]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development did not contribute any funds in 2008 to any local authorities for programmes on preventing violent extremism.

Corporate Communications

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Selby of 6 February 2007, Official Report, column 767W, on public relations, if he will place in the Library a copy of the corporate communications strategy provided by the firm Corporate Communications. [250279]

Mr. Michael Foster: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr. Mitchell) on 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 832W.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251443]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members' correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

DFID does not routinely collate data on average time taken to respond to letters from members of the public, and this information cannot be provided within the disproportionate cost limit.

DFID aims to respond to all written correspondence from members of the public within 15 working days. Information on DFID's performance against this target in 2008 is currently being collated and will be published in our 2009 Annual Report. Data for 2007 can be found in our Annual Report, section 10.12, at http://www.dfid.gov.uk/Pubs/files/departmental-report/2008/Chapter10.pdf.

Data for 2006 were not published. However in that year DFID's Public Enquiry Point handled 1,754 letters, of which 88 per cent. were answered within the 15 day target.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the initial estimated (a) cost and (b) delivery date was of each ICT project initiated by his Department in each year since 1997; what the (i) outturn cost and (ii) completion date was of each such project subsequently completed; which contractors were hired for each project; and how much has been paid to each contractor in respect of each project to date. [251384]

Mr. Michael Foster: The ASSIST 2000 programme began in 1999 and completed in June 2004. The total cost of the programme was £4.32 million. The primary contractor was Methods Application Ltd and the contracted cost was £1.33 million.

The Human Resources Database project began in 2001-02. The initial estimated cost and delivery date was £1.18 million and March 2004 respectively. The project was completed in March 2004 at a cost of £1.22 million. The primary contractor was RebusSoftware Limited (now Northgate-Arinso) and the contracted cost was £1.22 million.

The Quest Electronic Document and Records Management (EDRMS) project began in 2001-02. The initial estimated cost and delivery date was £8.98 million and December 2005 respectively. The project was completed in March 2006 at a cost of £11.68 million, which included additional options available under the original contract. The primary contractor was LogicaCMG (now Logica) and the contracted cost was £11.68 million.

The PRISM (Performance Reporting Information System for Management) programme began in 2001-02. The cost at completion was £1.14 million and the programme was completed by March 2005. The programme was carried out largely using in-house resources.

The ARIES Finance, Procurement and Reporting System began in 2004. The initial estimated supplier base cost was £11 million, the initial estimated delivery date was October 2008. The current expected completion date is September 2009 with an estimated supplier cost of £17.6 million. This estimate reflects agreed changes to the scope of the project, a software upgrade, additional consultancy support for change management, development of end-user training materials, and assistance with training and rollout. The primary contractor is Agresso Ltd.

The HR transformation project started in March 2005 and was completed on time in March 2008. The original budget was £6.5 million and the cost on completion was £6.0 million This was primarily a business change project but included a number of smaller IT components.

The Desktop Refresh project started in 2005 and was completed on time in March 2006. The cost at completion was £1.87 million. The project was carried out using in-house resources and equipment was purchased from Hewlett Packard Ltd.

The Laptop Refresh project started in October 2007 and was completed on time in December 2008. The original budget was £1.8 million and the final outturn was £1.7 million. The project was carried out by DFID staff and equipment was purchased from Dell Ltd.

The Web Transformation project began in December 2007 and is on track to complete in July 2009. The original projected budget was £2.0 million and the current forecast is £2.5 million. The project is managed in-house but uses a range of smaller contractors.

The Knowledge and Information Management Programme began in 2008. The project is at an early stage but is on track to complete in March 2011. The original cost estimate of £6.8 million is still accurate. This programme is managed in-house but uses a range of smaller contractors.

The Information Technology Infrastructure Programme (ITIP) began in 2007 and is on track to complete in March 2011. The original estimate of £5.0 million is still accurate. This programme is managed in-house but uses a range of smaller contractors.

DFID has also let a number of small IT related contracts. However, our central records do not distinguish IT contracts, so provision of details for these projects would incur disproportionate costs.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [247921]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development's (DFID) expenditure on public surveys in the last three financial years is as follows:

Financial year	Expenditure (£)
2007-08	403,742

The major items of spending in 2007-08 relate to the development of an audience segmentation model for international development—as per good practice advocated by the Government Communications Network. This is being used to inform future communications strategy. Further details of this were given in the answer to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) of 2 June 2008, Official Report, column 658W.

Malaria

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department is providing for (a) research into and (b) prevention of malaria; and if he will make a statement. [249689]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) is providing £10 million to the Medicines for Malaria Venture (MMV), which is a product development partnership developing new drugs for malaria. A further £6.5 million is being provided to the Drugs for Neglected Diseases Initiative (DNDi). The DNDi is also a product development partnership developing new drugs for a number of neglected tropical diseases, including malaria. DNDi launched two new fixed dose artemisinin combination drugs in 2007 and 2008 and to date over one million courses of these drugs have been distributed in developing countries.

Two research programme consortia on communicable diseases, including malaria, are also supported by DFID. They are led by the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and the Nuffield Institute for International Health at Leeds University. Each of these consortia will receive a total of £5 million over five years.

DFID supports work on malaria prevention through its support to international organisations such as the World Health Organisation, UNICEF and the World Bank all of whom have programmes on malaria. In addition support is being provided to global health partnerships such as the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria (GFATM), UNITAID, and the Roll Back Malaria Partnership. DFID has made a commitment to provide £1 billion to the GFATM from 2008 to 2015. DFID is also providing support for prevention through our country programmes, which includes a commitment to provide 20 million insecticide treated bed nets over three years made by the Prime Minister in 2008.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250141]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Transport Secretary, on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much official development assistance was (a) pledged and (b) spent by the Government in each year since 2004; and if he will make a statement. [252401]

Mr. Michael Foster: Details on UK official development assistance (ODA) for 2004-07 are available in Table 7 of the DFID publication 'Statistics on International Development 2008'. This publication is available in the Library and online at www.dfid.gov.uk. The 2008 figures will be published in April. The UK remains committed to achieving a 0.7 per cent. ODA to gross national income (GNI) ratio by 2013. The 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review also put the Government on track to achieve a 0.56 per cent. ODA/GNI ratio by 2010.

Sri Lanka: Internally Displaced Persons

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 21 January 2009, Official Report, columns 30-31WS, on Sri Lanka, when he expects a humanitarian expert from his Department to visit Sri Lanka to assess the distribution of aid to assist internally displaced persons in northern Sri Lanka; and when he expects to publish the expert's report. [251083]

Mr. Michael Foster: An humanitarian assessment mission will visit Sri Lanka from 16-26 February. The findings of the report will subsequently be placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with the Sri Lankan Government on access for an independent group to carry out an assessment of the humanitarian needs of internally displaced persons in northern Sri Lanka. [251086]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) Ministers have discussed the need for an independent assessment of the humanitarian situation in their recent engagements with Sri Lankan officials. I raised the issue with the Sri Lankan high commissioner on 4 December. My hon. Friend, the Minister of State (Mr. Thomas) also discussed the humanitarian situation with the high commissioner on 26 November.

Diplomatic efforts are ongoing at the highest level. My right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister has written to President Rajapakse to express his concerns at the humanitarian situation, including the need for a full independent assessment to be carried out. The British high commissioner in Colombo also regularly presses for increased humanitarian access and the need for an independent needs assessment in his contacts with Government officials at senior levels, including with the President.

PRIME MINISTER

10 Downing Street: Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Prime Minister what the staffing costs of No. 10 Downing Street were in 2007-08; and what the budget for such costs is for 2008-09. [250510]

The Prime Minister: The total staff costs for the Office for the most recent financial years are set out in the following table.

2006-07	11.6

Figures for the financial year 2008-09 are not yet available.

Cabinet

Mr. Hands: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what estimate he has made of the costs of policing provided for the Cabinet meeting in Liverpool on 8 January 2009; [247929]

(2) how much was spent from public funds on (a) lunch and (b) refreshments for those attending the Cabinet meeting held in Liverpool on 8 January 2009; [247930]

(3) what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of holding the meeting of the Cabinet in Leeds on 28 November 2008; [247939]

(4) how much was spent on (a) lunch and (b) refreshments for those attending the Cabinet meeting held in Leeds on 28 November 2008; [247944]

(5) how much was spent on police protection for the Cabinet meeting held in Leeds on 28 November 2008; [247945]

(6) what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of holding the meeting of the Cabinet in Liverpool on 8 January 2009. [247948]

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Prime Minister what the additional security cost has been for each Cabinet meeting held outside 10 Downing Street since January 2008. [248550]

The Prime Minister: The visit of the Cabinet to Leeds on 28 November was linked with a number of ministerial visits across the region; there was a public engagement event with around 220 people which was followed by a formal Cabinet meeting. There are no separate figures for the Cabinet meeting. The cost of the public engagement event and the Cabinet meeting was approximately £57,190, excluding VAT. The figure includes the cost of hiring the venue, catering, associated security and search equipment, delegate management and rail travel for both staff and Ministers. In addition, Departments and agencies will have incurred costs in terms of staff time and other support. The cost of any security provided by the police is a matter for the relevant police force. The cost of the public engagement event and Cabinet in Liverpool on 8 January will be published once figures are available.

In addition, I have placed in the Library of the House the "Response to Cabinet public engagement event Leeds 2008".

Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Prime Minister what No. 10 Downing Street's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251451]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 53W.

Sri Lanka

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 21 January 2009, Official Report, columns 30-31WS, on Sri Lanka, if he will place in the Library a copy of his letter to President Rajapakse. [251079]

Keith Vaz: To ask the Prime Minister what steps he has taken to promote a ceasefire in Sri Lanka since 14 January; what recent discussions he has had with the (a) German Chancellor and (b) French President on Sri Lanka; and what recent correspondence he has had with the Prime Minister of Sri Lanka. [251708]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Members to the written statement made by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on 21 January 2009, Official Report, columns 30-31WS. I have written to President Rajapakse to urge him to increase efforts in relation to the provision of humanitarian assistance; to take action against human rights abuses and set out the need for a political solution. It is not the practice of the Government to make public details of all correspondence and discussions with foreign Governments.

I discussed a range of issues with Chancellor Merkel and President Sarkozy and I have also asked my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary to work closely with his French and German counterparts on this matter.

JUSTICE

Courts: Witnesses

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of witnesses in court on Merseyside (a) applied for and (b) were granted special measures in giving evidence in the last year for which figures are available; and what assessment has been made of witnesses' views on the special measures available. [251341]

Maria Eagle: In 2008 the Crown Court at Liverpool received 806 applications for Special Measures. Of these, 601 or 74.6 per cent. were granted. Of the remaining applications, the majority were in cases in which guilty pleas were entered so there was no need for the application to proceed.

The number and percentage of successful requests for special measures in the magistrates court and youth court is not held centrally. These figures could not be produced without incurring disproportionate cost.

In 2004 the Home Office published independent research which found that special measures were working effectively. The study showed that 76 per cent. of witnesses overall were satisfied with special measures. A further breakdown of these statistics for different subgroups of witnesses is available from:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs04/r240.pdf

The research also found that one-third of vulnerable or intimidated witnesses would not be able or willing to give evidence without the assistance of special measures. This rose to 44 per cent. where the witness was a victim of a sexual offence.

Further independent studies include NSPCC research that interviewed 50 young witnesses and concluded that special measures, in particular live links, helped child witnesses who would otherwise have been reluctant to give evidence.

Our own consultation exercise, 'Improving the Criminal Trial Process for Young Witnesses (2007)' found that where young witnesses used special measures, they had significantly more confidence in the criminal justice system.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251444]

Bridget Prentice: This information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the Ministry of Justice aims to reply to all written correspondence within 20 working days of receipt. The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he will publish the results of his Department's consultation on weekend voting. [252848]

Mr. Wills: The "Election Day: Weekend Voting" consultation attracted nearly 1,000 responses. Detailed analysis of the views and evidence provided has taken some time, but good progress is being made. The Government will publish the results as soon as practicable.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1299W, on departmental training, what personal training courses at public expense other Ministers in his Department have undertaken since 1 January 2008. [251318]

Mr. Wills: Ministers in the Ministry of Justice have attended six Action Learning Set training courses at public expense since 1 January 2008.

Employment Tribunals Service: Damages

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times employment tribunals awarded costs to a successful applicant in each of the last five years; and what the average award was over that period. [251056]

Bridget Prentice: The following table details the number of claimants, who in a successful claim, were awarded costs and the average sum awarded per case for each of the last five years. The information relates only to costs awarded and does not include awards of compensation where a claim has been successful. In addition, the information does not include preparation time orders, in respect of time spent by a party carrying out preparatory work directly relating to the proceedings or conduct of the hearing, made as a consequence of, for example, the postponement of a hearing, or wasted cost orders made against a representative. These details are not available in current management information systems and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Costs awarded for 2007-08 are not yet available as the data are being validated before publication.

		Costs
	Number of applicants awarded	Average award (£)
2006-07	166	2,079
2005-06	148	2,256
2004-05	281	1,828
2003-04	332	1,859
2002-03	307	1,524

Inquests: Armed Forces

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applications for legal aid have been made in order to secure legal representation at inquests into the deaths of armed forces personnel since 2000; and how many have been refused. [251130]

Mr. Malik: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North Thanet (Mr. Gale) on 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1332W.

Applications for exceptional funding are made to the Legal Services Commission (LSC), the independent body which administers the legal aid scheme, in the first instance. Exceptional funding legal aid can be granted by the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) on the recommendation of the LSC for representation at inquests, if the exceptional funding criteria are met. The LSC does not break down the number of applications it receives for representation at inquests by category of inquest.

The MOJ has received applications relating to 16 military inquests since January 2003 and has granted funding for all 16 inquests.

Neither the Legal Services Commission nor the Ministry of Justice has specific data on military inquests prior to January 2003.

Juries: Mentally Ill

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will review the restrictions which prevent people with mental illness from serving as jurors. [252509]

Maria Eagle: We are committed to publishing a consultation paper reviewing the law in this area. We expect to publish it shortly.

Legal Services Ombudsman

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the legal services ombudsman plans to respond to the application of Mrs. Yvonne Randles of Birkenhead made in January 2006. [252769]

Mr. Straw: The Legal Services Ombudsman (LSO) is independent of Government and therefore it would not be appropriate to comment on individual cases.

However as the sponsoring department, this particular case has been brought to the attention of the Office of the Legal Services Ombudsman.

Magistrates Courts: Welsh Language

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1126W, on magistrates courts: Welsh language, what the (a) estimated cost, (b) expected completion date and (c) start date for the bilingual version of the Libra IT system is; and if he will make a statement; [251178]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1126W, on magistrates courts: Welsh language, how much his Department has spent (a) in total and (b) in each month on translating summonses into Welsh since the Libra IT system became operational; and if he will make a statement; [251179]

(3) pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1126W, on magistrates courts: Welsh language, how many requests there have been for summonses to be translated into Welsh (a) in total and (b) each month since the Libra IT system became operational, broken down by the smallest geographical area for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [251180]

(4) what the (a) estimated (i) cost and (ii) completion date at the project outset, (b) outturn cost and (c) completion date of the Libra IT system was; and if he will make a statement. [251287]

Bridget Prentice: The estimated cost of the Libra bilingual solution is £4 million. Final contractual papers are yet to be signed so precise figures are not available at this point. This figure represents application development costs and does not include support costs which are on-going for the life of the application.

The expected completion and start date for the bilingual version of the Libra IT system is September 2009.

Since the Libra IT system became operational, the Department has spent £425 in total on translating summonses into Welsh. Of this, £80 was spent in August 2008; £165 in December 2008 and £180 in January 2009.

Since the Libra IT system became operational, there have been 21 requests in total for summonses to be translated into Welsh. The following table shows a breakdown of monthly requests by the smallest geographical area.

At the project outset (in December 1998), the Libra IT system was

(i) estimated to (i) cost £184 million and (ii) to complete rollout in July 2001;

(ii) The outturn cost of the project is £444 million;

(iii) The date of completion of rollout was 9 December 2008.

Maintenance

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what target he has set for the maximum duration between a court awarding a maintenance payment and that payment being made; what steps he plans to take to minimise the amount of time taken; and if he will make a statement. [250945]

Bridget Prentice: In family proceedings, the court has power to order periodical payments for maintenance in a variety of situations. The court can order periodical payments to be made for the benefit of a former spouse or civil partner or for the benefit of a child of the family on divorce or on dissolution of a civil partnership. The court can also order payments to be made when a spouse or civil partner has failed to maintain the other party to the marriage or civil partnership or any child of the family. Additionally, the court can also order any parent to make periodical payments for the benefit of a child under schedule 1 to the Children Act 1989.

When making an order for periodical payments for maintenance, the court can order when the payments shall be made, the amount of the payments to be made and the term for which payments may be made. The court can also order periodical payments to be made on an interim basis before the proceedings are finally resolved. It is not possible to set a target for commencement of payments because the court will determine the appropriate date for the first payment after considering the circumstances of each individual case.

If the periodical payments ordered by the court are not made, the person entitled to receive the payments under the court order can apply to the court to have the order enforced.

Offenders: Learning Disability

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will introduce systematic screening of offenders for (a) learning disabilities and (b) learning difficulties; and if he will make a statement. [250939]

Mr. Hanson: The issues of learning disability and learning difficulty are matters where my Department works closely with the Department of Health, the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills, the Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Welsh Assembly Government.

The National Offender Management Service and the Department of Health are shortly to pilot a simple screening tool aimed at identifying the possibility of a learning disability. The results of piloting in three prisons will then inform plans for implementing a screening tool across all care settings in the criminal justice system.

In current use with offenders, section 4 of the Offender Assessment System (OASys), assesses level of problems with reading, writing and numeracy and any learning difficulties. OASys is used with offenders sentenced to over 12 months in custody, or on a community sentence, excluding unpaid work.

Through the Learning and Skills Council, we are broadening the assessment requirement for learning difficulties that is placed on offender learning and skills service providers with effect from August 2009. With Dyslexia Action, the Learning and Skills Council is developing tools to identify additional learning needs and a training programme to support their use by its offender learning and skills service providers' staff. This is a matter also under consideration in Wales.

For young people in custody, we intend to place statutory duties on local authorities to fund and commission education in juvenile custody (in England and Wales) and this will include legislation relating to those with special educational needs. In the meantime, we are developing training materials on dyslexia and speech, language and communication needs during 2009-10 for those responsible for education of young people in custody.

To support this greater focus on screening for learning disabilities and difficulties, my Department has worked with the Department of Health to trial a one-day training course for prison officers, aimed increasing awareness of these issues. The training is being rolled out nationally, focused on key staff within each prison: the disability liaison officer; a member of the health care team and a member of the induction team.

Work is also under way to tailor the awareness package for use in probation areas. The training materials to support the probation training are currently under discussion with roll out of the training planned for later this year.

Prison Radio Service: Finance

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his Department's expenditure on the Prison Radio Service was in 2008-09; and what estimate he has made of such expenditure in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [251181]

Mr. Straw: Forecast expenditure for the National Prison Radio Service is £1.6 million for 2008-09.

Estimated expenditure for subsequent years is as follows:

2009-10	500,000
2010-11	120,000

This investment in set up costs, licences and other costs falls to the Ministry of Justice and enables the significant majority of ongoing service cost delivery to be met by the Prison Radio Association (a registered charity).

Rape: Criminal Proceedings

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the existence and effect of prejudice among (a) the police, (b) the Crown Prosecution Service, (c) criminal lawyers, (d) the judiciary and (e) juries towards rape and sexual assault victims. [242059]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are determined to tackle the barriers to the successful prosecution of rape cases and set out its plans for doing so in the cross-Government Action Plan on Sexual Violence and Abuse published in 2007.

No assessment has been made on the existence of prejudice within the criminal justice agencies, the judiciary or juries however action has been taken to ensure that policies on rape investigation and prosecution are translated into practice.

Reparation by Offenders: Fixed Penalties

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will consider the merits of proposals for (a) appealable community penalties and (b) reparation fixed penalty notices for minor crimes. [251238]

Maria Eagle: Community sentences are available for all offences that also carry imprisonment. The sentence in any individual case is entirely a matter for the court, which can impose a community sentence if it considers the offence serious enough to warrant that but not so serious if the custody is the only proper response. All sentences are appealable.

Fixed penalty notices are simple non-bureaucratic financial punishments designed to deal with minor crimes on the spot. As their name implies, they are fixed. This concept does not lend itself to reparation. There are alternative, more suitable out-of-court disposals available, such as conditional cautions, where offenders can be required to make reparations such as repairing any damage caused.

Sentencing: Public Opinion

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment his Department has made of public attitudes to prison and alternative sentences. [251460]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice conducts its own assessments of public attitudes to prison through perceptual questions contained in the British Crime Survey (BCS).

Raising public confidence in the criminal justice system (CJS) is one of the Government's key public service agreement (PSA) targets, and is measured through responses given to the BCS. The PSA2 indicator (year ending March 2003 to March 2008) was based on the question

> "How confident are you that the criminal justice system is effective in bringing offenders who commit crime to justice?".

Research by Smith (2007) suggested that people's confidence varied according to which CJS agency they were considering. A copy of the research can be found on the Ministry of Justice website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/research070807.htm.

As part of the process of measuring the new 'Justice for All' public service agreement PSA 24, a new set of questions were developed to measure public perceptions of the 'fairness' and 'effectiveness' of the criminal justice system (CJS). These questions are contained in the British Crime Survey, and respondents are asked about their confidence in each of the individual agencies that comprise the CJS. Two of these questions relate to prisons:

> "How confident are you that Prisons are effective at punishing offenders who have been convicted of a crime?"

> "How confident are you that Prisons are effective at rehabilitating offenders who have been convicted of a crime?"

In addition, a set of questions relating to public perceptions about 'Community payback' have been developed for inclusion in the British Crime Survey for 2009-10.

Supreme Court

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the (a) original estimated cost and (b) most recent estimated cost of the new Supreme Court building in London was. [251107]

Mr. Straw: As announced on 14 June 2007, the estimated set-up costs for the UK Supreme Court are £36.7 million for capital construction, which will be met over a 30-year period through rental payments of £2.1 million per annum, increasing at a rate of 2.5 per cent per annum, plus £20.2 million of other set-up costs (including provision of library, visitor and dining facilities). The only change to this estimate is an additional £2 million for repair work I announced on 3 July 2008, Official Report, column 59WS, and new security measures. The House will be updated of costs once we have the final figure.

Weights and Measures: Prosecutions

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) convictions and (b) acquittals there have been in cases where people have been prosecuted for using imperial weights and measures at point of sale in each of the last three years; and what sentence was handed down in respect of each conviction; [251058]

(2) how many cases are (a) under investigation and (b) awaiting trial for alleged use of imperial weights and measures at point of sale; and if he will make a statement. [251059]

Maria Eagle: The available information on convictions and acquittals under the Weights and Measures Act 1985 for offences relating to the weights and measures provisions is provided in the following table.

It is not possible to identify the number of these convictions and acquittals relating solely to the use of imperial weights and measures from other convictions and acquittals under the Weights and Measures Act 1985.

Enforcement of weights and measures legislation is undertaken by local authority Trading Standards Departments. Local authorities do not report the number of cases under investigations or awaiting trial under weights and measures legislation to my Department.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts, acquitted at Crown courts, found guilty at all courts and the sentences given under the Weights and Measures Act 1985 for offences related to the weights and measures provisions, England and Wales, 2005 to 2007[1,2]

Proceeded against	21	15	14
Acquitted	—	—	—
Found guilty	17	9	12
Sentenced	17	9	11
Conditionally discharged	2	—	2
Fined	15	9	7
Otherwise dealt with	—	—	2

[1] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Witnesses

John Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1345-6W, what means are used to assess the effectiveness of witness intermediaries. [251847]

Maria Eagle: The Intermediary Special Measure was piloted in six pathfinder areas and extended nationally after an independent evaluation. The evaluation report indicated that feedback from witnesses and carers was uniformly enthusiastic. Support for intermediaries was almost unanimous across the judiciary and among other criminal justice personnel involved in the pathfinder cases. A summary of the evaluation report is available at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/research120607a.htm

The full report is available at:

http://lexiconlimited.co.uk/PDF%20files/Intermediaries_study_report.pdf

Our intention is that from April 2009 those who commission intermediaries—the police, the CPS and defence—will have the opportunity to provide feedback. This information will be reported to the intermediary governance board on a regular basis and be used to evaluate the service provided by individual intermediaries.

HEALTH

Accidents: Roads

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were admitted to hospital following road traffic accidents in each of the last five years. [252333]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not available in the format requested. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr. Lansley) on 10 September 2008, Official Report, column 1916W. Tables showing the number of people injured in all transport accidents and the number of pedestrians injured in transport accidents respectively have already been placed in the Library.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248055]

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much was spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248797]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department and its executive agencies, the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency and Medical and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency has spent the following sums on maintaining, decorating, and otherwise improving departmental buildings.

2004-05	6,773,772
2005-06	7,418,915
2006-07	5,679,138
2007-08	3,953,125

It is not possible to separate out the costs of maintaining, decorating and improving buildings.

There has been no expenditure on wallpaper since 2001.

Future plans for redecoration are aligned with our overall capital works programme, which is currently under review. Planned expenditure for 2008-09 is £2,343,600.

Departmental Consultants

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of his Department's contracts with management consultants was in each of the last five years. [251371]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect information on contracts with management consultants in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251438]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department's average response times to letters received are as follows:

			Days
	2005	2006	2007
Letters from hon. Members	13	16	16
Letters from members of the public	10	11	11

Figures for 2008 are not yet available.

The number of letters answered within our Whitehall standard target of responding to 90 per cent. of correspondence within 20 working days is as follows:

			Percentage
	2005	2006	2007
Letters from hon. Members	91	90	92
Letters from members of the public cases	97	93	99

Figures for 2008 are not yet available.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which ICT projects his Department initiated and abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred in each project; who the contractors for each were; on what date each was (a) commenced and (b) abandoned; and if he will make a statement. [251394]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much capital expenditure has been brought forward in response to the economic downturn by his Department, its agencies and non-departmental public bodies to (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; from which years such expenditure has been brought forward; and if he will make a statement. [251404]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government announced in their pre-Budget report (24 November 2008) that as part of the £3 billion fiscal stimulus package the Department would bring forward £100 million of capital spending to advance the upgrading of up to 600 general practitioner surgeries to training practices. This spending is being brought forward from financial year 2010-11 to 2009-10.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps [illegible] the Secretary of State for Health what exp[illegible] Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251876]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not collected centrally. Ministers use their official cars in accordance with the 'Ministerial Code', July 2007.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy where an answer refers to material published on his Department's website to (a) make a copy available to the hon. Member who tabled the question and (b) place a copy of the material in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [253018]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is our practice that documents containing information requested in a parliamentary question are deposited in the Library and a copy provided for the hon. Member. To be helpful to hon. Members, we may refer in a written answer to more general additional information available on a website and this may not be appropriate for deposit.

Departmental Written Statements

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at what time of day his Department makes written ministerial statements available to (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the press; and if he will make a statement. [250428]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is not available in precisely the form requested. The available information, from the National Centre for Health Outcomes Development, is contained in the tables 'Emergency readmissions to hospital within 28 days of discharge from hospital', which have been placed in the Library. This gives figures separately for the age groups 0-15 years and 16 years and over, analysed either by primary care trust or by individual hospital trust.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was for a hospital appointment in each primary care trust in Merseyside in each year since 1995. [251457]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not available in the format requested. However, the following table shows the average (median) waiting times for a first out-patient appointment in Merseyside primary care trusts (PCTs), or organisations in existence at the time, in each year since 1997.

Notes:

1. The average waiting times given are estimated from quarterly and monthly Korner returns submitted by health authorities/PCTs to the Department of Health.
2. Data on waiting times for outpatient appointments was first collected in 1997-98. All patients seen by length of time waited was collected, but only a proportion of the patients not seen. The total number of patients still waiting was first collected in 2004-05. Therefore, to give a meaningful time series data for both seens and not seens have been provided where data was collected. Calculating the average on patients not seen is the preferred method, in line with the method for inpatient waits.
3. The figures show the median waiting times for patients waiting for a first consultant outpatient appointment following a general practitioner referral. Figures relating to patients who have been seen are based on quarterly data aggregated to an annual figure, and the figures relating to patients who have yet to be seen are based on a stock month end figure at the end of the year. Calculations are made on aggregate data, rather than patient level data, and therefore are only estimates of the position on average waits.
4. The median, rather than the mean, is the preferred measure for average waiting times. This is because the mean waiting time can be skewed by small numbers of long waiters, and is therefore higher than the median.
5. Figures are shown for organisations in existence at the time.

Medical Records

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what legal advice he has received on the issue of access rights to summary care records. [252282]

Mr. Bradshaw: No legal advice has been sought or received on the specific issue of access rights to summary care records. Summary care records are no different in this respect from any other confidential personal patient information held by national health service organisations. Access rights are set out in statute, most particularly the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Access to Health Records Act 1990.

In the absence of a statutory right of access to information, an individual may only gain access to information where doing so meets the confidentiality requirements established under the common law. Confidentiality requirements are set out in the Department's publication "Confidentiality: NHS Code of Practice (2003)" which was endorsed by the Information Commissioner, the General Medical Council and the Department's legal advisers. A copy of the publication has been placed in the Library. In line with these requirements, access to summary care record information is only permitted to clinical staff who have a legitimate relationship with the patient for which consent may be implied, for example because they are providing NHS healthcare or treatment, or who have express consent from the patient for other reasons, for example clinical research. Exceptionally, confidential information may be passed to third parties in accordance with certain specific statutory provisions or where required under court order, or where the public interest is such that both the obligations of confidentiality and the competing public interest in the provision of confidential health services need to be overridden.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much money due to each local service provider in respect of delivery of care record systems has been withheld owing to delays in delivery. [252337]

Mr. Bradshaw: National programme for information technology contracts provide for delay deductions to be paid by the local service provider (LSP) should the LSP fail to achieve certain key milestones. Under these arrangements, some £25.875 million has to date been paid by CSC, some of which has been earned back. Delay deductions have not to date been paid by any other LSP, but those that have been assessed for Fujitsu will be factored into the contract termination arrangements.

Mental Health Services: Per Capita Costs

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much is spent per head of population on the provision of mental health services (a) on average and (b) in each primary care trust area in England. [252598]

Phil Hope: The average primary care trust (PCT) per capita expenditure is £167. The average total per capita spend on mental health is £183, as this includes spend by strategic health authorities, special health authorities and the Department. The per capita spends on mental health in each PCT area in England are shown in the following table.

Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust: Hospital Beds

To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many beds there were in the Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust area in (a) May 1997 and (b) the latest date for which figures are available. [252593]

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the format requested. Information on beds data is collected annually via the KH03 return collecting the total available bed-days by trust. The following numbers are the calculated average daily bed number at the Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust.

2007-08: 786 beds (open overnight and day only beds)

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what proportion of beds in the Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust area were in mixed sex wards in (a) 1997 and (b) the latest period for which figures are available; [252594]

(2) how many beds in the Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust area were in mixed sex wards in (a) May 1997 and (b) the latest period for which figures are available. [252595]

Ann Keen: Information about the number/proportion of beds that are in mixed sex wards is not collected centrally. However, the Healthcare Commission's annual national in-patient survey does provide data relating to mixed sex accommodation. For Mid Essex Hospital Services NHS Trust, the survey shows that in 2007[1], 36.8 per cent. of respondents reported sharing their sleeping area with a patient of the opposite sex upon first admission to the hospital.

Our guidance to the national health service has always required single sex accommodation rather than single sex wards. Even within a mixed ward, good single sex accommodation can be achieved by using single rooms or single sex bays and toilet facilities.

On 28 January 2009, the Department announced a six-month programme to eliminate mixed sex accommodation, this includes a £100 million 'Privacy and Dignity Fund' to support local improvements and tough financial penalties from 2010-11 for those trusts that do not deliver.

NHS: Finance

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the capital budget for the NHS in 2008-09 is; and what proportion of this budget has been spent to date; [252330]

(2) how many (a) private finance initiative, (b) public capital project and (c) local improvement finance trust schemes were in operation at the latest date for which figures are available; how many such schemes were subject to delays; and for how long the completion date of each such scheme has been put back; [252510]

(3) what capital expenditure his Department is planning to bring forward; [252511]

(4) what he expects the capital budget for the NHS to be in 2009-10; and what proportion of it he expects to be underspent. [252512]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under this Government 76 private finance initiative funded schemes (with capital value over £10 million); 225 public capital projects over £1 million using the Procure 21 Framework agreement have opened; and 196 local improvement finance trust facilities have opened. Detailed records on schemes below these capital cost thresholds and other public capital funded schemes are not held centrally. Information on delays which occurred on these schemes and the impact on their project timetables is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Government announced in their pre-Budget report (24 November 2008) that as part of the £3 billion fiscal stimulus package the Department would bring forward £100 million of capital spending to advance the upgrading of up to 600 general practitioner surgeries to advanced training practices. This spending is being brought forward from financial year 2010-11 to 2009-10.

The Department will have £5.6 billion of public capital resources in 2009-10. This funding is fully committed albeit based on plans that are still being finalised.

The 2008-09 capital departmental expenditure limit for the Department is £4.7 billion. This funding is fully committed against national and local national health service capital spending programmes. The latest forecast outturn suggests that the great majority of available capital resources will be spent in 2008-09.

Patient Choice Schemes

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the merits of reducing the scope of Choose and Book to operate only as an electronic booking service. [252283]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has not considered and has no plans to reduce the scope of choose and book.

The choose and book system has been designed to support patients and general practitioners. It is a big step towards giving patients greater involvement in the decisions about their treatment and is a tool to support patient choice—helping them shape for themselves the services that are on offer. It also helps general practitioners (GPs) navigate through the increasing array of choices that national health service patients can make.

"The NHS Constitution" published on 21 January 2009, gives patients the right to make choices about their NHS care and to information to support these choices. A copy has already been placed in the Library. Primary care trusts must ensure that choices are available and the necessary systems are in place to offer and support choice and to enable booked appointments to be made.

Pharmacy

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to encourage the use of medicine use reviews to meet local health priorities. [250932]

Phil Hope: There is provision within the Pharmaceutical Services (Advanced and Enhanced Services) (England) Directions 2005 to allow primary care trusts to notify pharmacists in their area of the categories of patients who would benefit from the provision of Medicines Use Review (MUR) services. The pharmacist should consider this in determining who to offer the service to.

Further, the White Paper 'Pharmacy in England: Building on strengths—delivering the future' makes clear we are concerned that the provision of MUR services is currently geared to rewarding the volume of MURs undertaken. We believe it is necessary for MUR services to be prioritised to meet health needs. NHS Employers (NHSE) and the Pharmaceutical Services Negotiating Committee (PSNC) have discussed a mechanism for delivering this objective and ensuring funding rewards health outcomes. NHSE and PSNC have now presented their proposals to the Department, which are being considered.

Teenage Pregnancy

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how he plans to assess the value for money of the £26 million allocated to primary care trusts for programmes to reduce teenage pregnancies; [251784]

(2) how the £26 million allocated to primary care trusts (PCTs) for programmes to reduce teenage pregnancies has been spent by each PCT; and what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the expenditure. [251786]

Dawn Primarolo: A total of £26.8 million has been allocated this year to strategic health authorities (SHAs) and primary care trusts (PCTs) to improve women's knowledge of, and access to the full range of contraception, to help reduce the number of teenage pregnancies and abortions.

It is for SHAs and PCTs to determine how to use this funding most effectively to meet the needs of their local populations. However, departmental officials are working with SHAs to provide advice and spread good practice. Priority areas include encouraging innovation and ensuring equitable access to all methods of contraception including long acting reversible (LARC) methods. Guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) highlighted that the National Health Service could save around £100 million through reducing unintended pregnancies if women switched to LARC.

The South West Public Health Observatory is developing a balanced score card for sexual health which will monitor a range of indicators at PCT, SHA and national level. This will be available during 2009 and the first phase will focus on outcomes for young people.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Arms Trade

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what was the total value of military equipment supplied by the UK to (a) Israel and (b) Palestine in 2007-08. [249672]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 20 January 2009]: HM Revenue and Customs' Overseas Trade Statistics do not provide a complete identification of defence equipment. For Standard International Trade Classification division 98 (military weapons and accessories), they record UK exports to Israel worth £77,000 in 2007 and £1,445,000 in the first 10 months of 2008, and UK imports from Israel worth £607,000 and £1,947,000 respectively. There was no recorded UK trade in SITC division 98 with the Occupied Palestinian Territories.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248405]

Mr. McFadden: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 757W.

Furniture: Safety

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many items of unsafe furniture have been seized by scambuster teams since 2005. [251169]

Mr. Thomas: Since 2005 Trading Standards scambuster teams have been involved in two operations involving unsafe furniture. To date, the majority of the scambuster investigations have been in relation to doorstep selling and rogue traders providing home improvement products.

The north-east team seized 161 pieces of furniture in a warehouse raid. After testing, all 161 items were found to be in compliance with the Furniture and Furnishing (Fire) (Safety) Regulations 1998.

The scambuster team covering the south-east region investigated a rogue trader selling furniture door to door. Seven of the nine items of furniture seized failed to comply with the regulations.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much the scambusters programme has spent in each year since 2005, broken down by category of expenditure. [251170]

Mr. Thomas: £1.8 million of funding was allocated for the pilot phase of the project. Scambusters teams were piloted in three areas; the North East, Central England and across the South East, London and East of England. In June 2008 the Government announced that £7.5 million of funding was available over three years for specialist trading standards scambuster teams throughout Great Britain. During the course of this year, five new scambuster teams have become operational. The final team in the North West will be operational from April 2009.

Since 2005, the scambuster initiative has spent the following:

Lynne Jones: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what support his Department is providing to the proposal by the UK company Global Coal Management Resources plc for an opencast mine at Phulbari in Bangladesh. [248925]

Mr. Thomas: Global Coal Management Resources plc is in contact with officials within the British high commission, Dhaka with respect to their proposed project in Bangladesh. Mr. Thomas: We understand the Office of Fair Trading does not propose to examine this transaction on competition grounds. My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State has no plans to issue an intervention notice to require an investigation on public interest grounds. There is no indication that the purchase may be expected to result in inaccurate presentation of news or a loss of plurality of views in newspapers.

Regional Development Agencies: Trade Unions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much funding each of the regional development agencies has given to trades union bodies in the last 12 months; and what the purpose of such funding was. [250594]

Russia

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the Answer of 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 955W, on official visits: Russia, when he plans to place a list of the Secretary of State's engagements during his visit to Russia in October 2008 in the Library. [252417]

Mr. Thomas: A copy of the list of my noble Friend the Secretary of State's engagements during his visit to Russia in October 2008 was placed in the Libraries of the House on 26 January 2009.

Unfair Practices: Loans

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps the Government are taking to protect consumers from unsolicited mail offering loans without clearly stating the effective rate of interest applied to the loan. [250751]

Mr. Thomas: The Government have taken steps to protect consumers from misleading loan advertisements. In October 2004 the new Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations came into force. These increase consistency and transparency, allowing consumers to compare financial products with confidence. Lenders are now required to provide consumers with clear information when advertising loans. Information relating to the cost of the loan must be displayed with equal prominence to other key mandatory information, ensuring consumers are not misled over additional charges or costs. In particular, any credit advertisement for a specific loan product must include a typical APR (Annual Percentage Rate of Charge).

Video Games: Canada

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress has been made in investigating whether Canadian subsidies to the video games industry breach World Trade Organisation (WTO) rules; and when the Government expect to lodge a formal complaint with the WTO. [246712]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 12 January 2009]: BERR officials have discussed this issue with the European Commission on several occasions last year, as WTO disputes are a matter of Community competence.

No disciplines on subsidies exist under the WTO General Agreement on Trade in Services, and Canada has not made any specific market access commitments with regard to computer games services.

On the basis of information examined to date, the Government currently share the Commission's analysis that there therefore appears to be little or no scope to bring a complaint to the WTO in relation to any subsidies Canada may be granting to video games producers established in Canada.

However, we have passed to the Commission additional details recently received from the Entertainment and Leisure Software Publishers Association (ELSPA) in response to earlier questions from the Commission.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Caravans: Ministerial Responsibility

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1133W, on caravans, which Minister in her Department is responsible for (a) mobile caravans and (b) Travellers. [252803]

Mr. Iain Wright: I am the Minister responsible for housing and planning policies within the Department relating to mobile caravans and Travellers.

CMPi

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 18 March 2008, Official Report, column 961W, on CMPi, what payments have been made since February 2008; and for what purpose payments were made to CMPi from 2007-08 to date. [252489]

Mr. Khan: The following table sets out payments made by the Department and its agencies to CMPi since 1 March 2008.

Agencies	28,482

Payments were made for various reasons including recruitment advertising, publications, exhibition stands at conferences and to cover conference delegation fees.

Council Tax

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will commission research into the incidence of local authorities issuing court summonses for non-payment of council tax in error; and if she will make a statement. [251336]

John Healey: The Government believe that the regulations governing the enforcement of unpaid council tax are robust enough to keep any errors in the system at a minimum, and provide ample opportunity for citizens to establish that there has been an error. Local authorities are legally required to send the taxpayer at least two reminders about unpaid council tax before seeking a liability order from the court. They are required, in second reminders, to give the taxpayer 14 days within which payment of any outstanding amount must be paid and a warning that the local authority will apply to the magistrates court for a liability order if the debt remains outstanding after 14 days. The person summoned may appear before the court and always has an opportunity to establish that the council tax has been demanded in error. The court is required to satisfy itself that the sum demanded has become payable by the defendant and has not been paid. Commissioning such research would therefore not be a prudent use of public money.

Council Tax: Discounts

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the purpose is of her Department's (a) council tax discount grant, (b) performance reward grant and (c) restoration fund grant. [251823]

John Healey: Communities and Local Government does not administer a council tax discount grant.

The purpose of performance reward grant is to provide local authorities and their partners with a financial incentive to achieve targets agreed within Local Area Agreements.

The Restoration Fund was a one off £31 million fund paid out to the 62 local authorities who incurred significant unmet costs as a direct result of the summer 2007 floods. The funding was intended to support local authorities in their continued efforts to rebuild their communities. Local authorities were free to spend the fund as they saw fit, depending on local priorities.

Council Tax: Non-Payment

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of summonses issued by each local authority for non-payment of council tax were subsequently withdrawn in the most recent year for which information is available. [251331]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Eastbourne (Mr. Waterson) on 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1657W.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 15 October 2008, Official Report, column 1315W, on council tax: valuation, whether the observations on consequentials referred to were made in writing. [251970]

John Healey: No.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the initial estimated (a) cost and (b) delivery date was of each ICT project initiated by her Department and its predecessors in each year since 1997; what the (i) outturn cost and (ii) completion date was of each such project subsequently completed; which contractors were hired for each project; and how much has been paid to each contractor in respect of each project to date. [251378]

Mr. Khan: A full answer to the question could be given only at disproportionate cost. However I refer the hon. Member to the following answers given previously to questions covering some of the same ground:

Hon. Member for Tatton (Mr. Osborne) on 19 January 2005, Official Report, columns 998-99W

Hon. Member for Chipping Barnet (Mrs. Villiers) on 9 February 2006, Official Report, columns 1420-21W

Hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 17 December 2008, Official Report, column 786W.

Departmental Procurement

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 302-3W, on departmental procurement, what the breakdown is of the associated costs of Euro RSCG London Ltd in relation to the fire campaign.[1] [252791]

Mr. Khan: The breakdown of the costs paid to Euro RSCG London Ltd (and associated companies) in relation to the fire campaign in 2007-08 is as follows:

Breakdown	£
Euro RSCG 4D Digital
Transmission costs for Fire Kills national advertising and usage fee for advertisements.	166,468

Radio narrative for research carried out for Fire Kills advertising	10,234

Agency commission on Media Advertising	145,113
TV production costs for Fire Kills advertising	188,845

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost of her Department's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each of the last five years. [251537]

Mr. Khan: For contracts with public relations consultancies for the financial year 2006-7 and prior, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Member for Basildon (Angela E. Smith) on 5 June 2007, Official Report, column 331W. For contracts during 2007-8, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the right hon. Member for Devizes (Mr. Ancram) on 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 717W.

Eco-Towns

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1265-6W, on eco-towns, which external companies were engaged to perform communications work using the £385,200 referred to; and what the purpose of each such contract was. [251913]

Mr. Iain Wright: We commissioned a number of agencies through the Central Office of Information (COI) to support us on the communications aspect of the eco-towns programme. The names of the companies involved and their role is set out in the following table.

Agency	Role
Four	Public relations and raising awareness about the eco-towns programme and consultation process in the regional media.
M-is	Organising and managing the logistics for a series of consultation 'roadshow' events in and around the potential eco-town locations.
COI	Advertorials in respect of first stage consultation procurement fees for digital work

We also commissioned further agencies through our own framework contract and the details of these are set out in the following table.

Agency	Role
Red House Lane	Graphic design and artwork for branding, advertorials and posters.
Andrew Irving Associates	Eco-towns questionnaire for online You Gov omnibus survey.
Cragg Ross Dawson	Qualitative research to explore national and local attitudes to the proposals for eco-towns

Emergency Services: ICT

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which communications systems used by the different emergency services are not inter-operable. [252187]

Mr. Khan: The provision of radio communications is a local responsibility for each of the emergency services, the Department for Communities and Local Government does not maintain a central record of operational equipment locally procured. To promote inter-operability between fire and rescue services and the other emergency services, the Department for Communities and Local Government is exercising its powers under the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004 to procure and implement a new wide area radio communications network (the "Firelink" project) for the fire and rescue service. When Firelink has been implemented, the fire and rescue service will be able to communicate with the other emergency services at strategic and operational command level.

Energy Performance Certificates

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the likely effects on (a) the environment and (b) those buying or renting houses of making energy performance certificates publicly accessible. [252144]

Mr. Iain Wright: The assessment made of the likely effects on (a) the environment and (b) those buying or renting houses of making energy performance certificates publicly accessible is contained in the "regulatory impact assessment energy performance of buildings directive articles 7-10", published in March 2007. This was deposited in the House of Commons Library on 23 March 2007.

Fire Services

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether staff employed in regional fire control rooms will be eligible for the Fire Brigade's Long Service and Good Conduct Medal. [252730]

Mr. Khan: Staff in the new regional fire control centres which are local authority owned companies will not be in Fire Brigade employment and will not be eligible.

Fire Services and Local Government: Influenza

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment the Audit Commission has made of the preparedness of (a) the fire and rescue authorities and (b) local authorities for an influenza pandemic. [252481]

Mr. Khan: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission, and I will ask the chief executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Steve Bundred:

Your Parliamentary Question on what assessment the Audit Commission has made of the preparedness of (a) the fire and rescue authorities; and (b) local authorities for an influenza pandemic has been passed to me to reply.

The Audit Commission has made no specific assessment of the preparedness of fire and rescue authorities or local authorities for an influenza pandemic.

Auditors appointed by the Commission undertake an annual use of resources assessment at each fire and rescue authority and local authority. One element of this assessment covers the risk management arrangements in place at the authority and auditors report any significant weaknesses they identify in those arrangements as part of their annual audit reporting.

Fire Services: Equality

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) advice and (b) guidance (i) her Department and (ii) the Fire Service College have given to fire services on diversity (A) quotas and (B) recommendations for operational fire and rescue roles. [252292]

Mr. Khan: In June 2008 Communities and Local Government published the Fire and Rescue Service Equality and Diversity Strategy (the strategy). The strategy provides advice for Fire and Rescue Services on equality and diversity issues. The Fire and Rescue Service national framework requires Fire and Rescue Services to implement the provisions of the strategy. A copy of the strategy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Guidance on setting specific local minority ethnic recruitment targets were provided to the Service under cover of Fire Service circular 55-2008 published on 23 October 2008. The circular is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/fire/pdf/frc552008.pdf

The Fire Service college does not issue advice or guidance to the Fire and Rescue Service on diversity targets or recommendations for operational fire and rescue roles.

Fire Services: Military Aid

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department classifies the withdrawal of armed forces' emergency fire cover and the associated obligation to pay for alternative contingency cover as a new burden on the fire and rescue authorities. [252181]

Mr. Khan: The provision of the armed forces to provide emergency fire cover has always been discretionary. The 2003 White Paper 'Our Fire and Rescue Service' made it clear that no party should proceed on the basis that the armed forces would be available to provide emergency cover in the event of industrial action. Delivery of an efficient and effective fire service, including arrangements for the provision of emergency fire cover, is the responsibility of fire and rescue authorities, which are expected to live within existing resources.

Government Offices for the Regions: Expenditure

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which programme budgets were administered by the Government offices for the regions in 2007-08, broken down by sponsoring Department; and what the amount of each was. [252387]

Mr. Khan: The Government offices do not undertake an annual exercise to collect information on the programme budgets administered on behalf of sponsor Departments. No information is therefore available for 2007-08.

The most recent year in which information on programme budgets was collected was in 2006-07 when the figures were as follows:

Sponsor Department	Programme funding (£)
Department for Transport	2,389,000,000
Communities and Local Government	2,180,046,041
Department for Work and Pensions	1,150,845,613
Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform	947,214,000
Department for Education and Skills	811,379,686
Home Office	233,313,878
Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs	16,155,346
Total	7,727,954,564

Government Offices for the Regions: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the administration costs of the Government Offices for the Regions were in 2007-08; and what the budget for each is for 2008-09. [252482]

Mr. Khan: The administration costs for the Government Offices for the Regions in 2007-08 were as follows:

GO	Final outturn 2007-08 (£000)
North East	11,826.45
North West	16,095.53
Yorks and Humber	13,447.21
West Midlands	15,000.75
East Midlands	10,857.39
East	11,398.50
South East	13,105.84
South West	13,763.68
London	16,198.99
Total	121,694.34

The budgets for the Government Offices for the Regions for 2008-09 are as follows:

GO	Budget 2008-09 (£000)
North East	9,723.87
North West	12,208.56
Yorks and Humber	9,125.90
West Midlands	10,831.40
East Midlands	8,951.99
East	9,505.75
South East	10,613.61
South West	10,645.94
London	12,002.99
Total	93,610.02

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 23 October 2008, Official Report, column 489W, on Government Office for the Regions: finance, for what reason the Government Office Network has stopped retaining records of the total programme expenditure of the Government Offices for the Regions; and which bodies audit the overall expenditure of the individual Government Offices. [252738]

Mr. Khan: The Government office network does not undertake an annual exercise to review departmental programme expenditure that passes through the GOs since all programme budgets administered by the Government offices are the responsibility of the Secretaries of State for the relevant sponsor Departments. Departments can delegate authority to the regional directors, though all expenditure incurred is recorded in the accounts of the Department concerned.

The Government offices are audited by the Government office audit team and the National Audit Office, although programme expenditure is audited by sponsor Department audit teams.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 952W, on home information packs, if she will place in the Library a copy of the report of the working group. [251958]

Mr. Iain Wright: I will place a copy in the Library of the House.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 321W, on home information packs, if she will place in the Library a copy of the proposals submitted to her by the Stakeholder Panel on Home Buying and Selling. [252167]

Mr. Iain Wright: No formal paper was submitted by the Stakeholder Panel on Home Buying and Selling. Following discussions at the panel in November, it became apparent that further work was needed. That is why my right hon. Friend the Minister for Housing announced, on 8 December, the establishment of a working group to consider the issue of condition information.

Homes and Communities Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which members of the Homes and Communities Agency board have made a declaration of political activity. [251803]

Margaret Beckett: This information is already in the public domain, the Communities and Local Government press notice dated 17 October 2008 refers to it:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/news/corporate/996383

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans the Homes and Communities Agency has to buy land. [251820]

Margaret Beckett: The new Homes and Communities Agency (HCA), which was established on 1 December 2008, is the Government's key delivery partner in relation to housing and regeneration. It has the ability to acquire land in support of its statutory objects and in accordance with priorities established through its corporate planning process. The HCA can acquire land for a range of purposes, for example to unlock sites in fragmented ownership or to provide access enabling development to proceed.

In addition, the HCA is responsible for the management of the programme for the delivery of more and better homes on surplus public sector land, with a target of 200,000 homes by 2016, of which the aspiration is that up to 50 per cent. of homes delivered will be affordable homes. The HCA is working closely with landowning Departments to ensure that land is coming forward.

In the current market, however, we are keeping all options under constant review and both my Department and the HCA are actively engaged in discussions with the industry.

Homes and Communities Agency: Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much of the Homes and Communities Agency's national affordable homes budget for 2008-09 has been (a) allocated and (b) spent. [251821]

Margaret Beckett: Over £2.1 billion has been allocated from the Homes and Communities Affordable Housing Programme budget for 2008-09 by the end of December 2008. The HCA are accepting and assessing bids on a continuous basis as part of their continuous market engagement.

Spend on the Affordable Housing Programme to the end of December totalled £1.1 billion which is in line with trajectory for this programme.

Housing

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what planned capital expenditure on housing in future years by her Department and its agencies she is bringing forward. [251797]

Margaret Beckett: On 2 September 2008 we announced a £1 billion market rescue package to increase confidence, stability and fairness in the housing market. On 24 November we brought forward additional capital spending as part of the 2008 pre-Budget report fiscal stimulus. Considering together the September housing announcement and the pre-Budget report, we are making £330 million, £1.195 billion and £55 million of capital available for expenditure on housing in years 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 respectively. A further £100 million is being brought forward for regeneration programmes in 2008-10. In addition, £95 million has been made available for 2009-10 and 2010-11 to support reforms to Support for Mortgage Interest announced in the September 2008 housing package.

This total package of £1.775 billion includes the additional flexibility offered by the Government, at the pre-Budget report, to the regional development agencies to bring forward £100 million of capital expenditure from financial year 2010-11 to 2009-10. Communities and Local Government and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform are currently working closely with the regional development agencies to take this forward.

It also takes account of the flexibility offered by the Government to local authorities in England to bring forward up to £175 million of planned major housing repairs expenditure from 2010-11 to 2009-10. Communities and Local Government will invite local authorities in England to bring forward up to this amount to enable councils to invest in a way which will maximise investment in the housing stock in 2009-10.

Housing: EC Action

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to Lord Berkley of 13 January, Official Report, House of Lords, column WA132, what assessment she has made of the likely effects on (a) churches and (b) listed buildings of implementing the EU proposal that member states will no longer be able to provide incentives for the construction or renovation of buildings which do not comply with minimum energy performance requirements. [251907]

Mr. Iain Wright: We are currently considering the European Union's proposal for the recast of the Energy Performance of Buildings Directive and have yet to carry out the impact assessment.

Housing: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether householders are required to obtain a certificate of lawfulness when paving over their front garden with permeable material; and what powers local authorities have to inspect the materials used. [252501]

Mr. Iain Wright: Householders are neither required to seek specific planning permission nor obtain a certificate of lawfulness when paving over their front gardens using permeable materials. Local authorities have the right to inspect the materials used as part of their normal enforcement powers.

Housing: Prices

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the mix-adjusted average price of a property purchased by a first time buyer was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [252193]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government calculate monthly mix-adjusted average purchase prices of domestic dwellings bought by first time buyers based on data from the Regulated Mortgage Survey. This is available for the UK, by country and Government Office region back to February 2002 on our website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/livetable592.xls

From the weblink given the average mix-adjusted price of a property bought by a first time buyer in November 2008 was £147,329 in England.

Housing: Regeneration

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department provided to each Housing Market Renewal Pathfinder area in 2007-08. [252307]

Mr. Iain Wright: HMR Pathfinder allocations for 2007-08 are given in the following table:

Total pathfinder funding 2007-08

HMR Pathfinder	£ million
Birmingham Sandwell	29.2
East Lancs	48.9
Hull and East Riding	24.9
Manchester Salford	53.9
Merseyside	50.9
Newcastle Gateshead	41.0
North Staffs	38.5
Oldham Rochdale	37.5
South Yorks	49.8
Tees Valley[1]	12.75
West Yorkshire[1]	12.75
West Cumbria[1]	5.5

[1] The three wider lower demand areas.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties were (a) demolished, (b) acquired and (c) refurbished in each housing market renewal pathfinder area in 2007-08. [252498]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) on 4 June 2008, Official Report, column 990W.

Housing: Students

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what planning policy guidance or circulars have been issued which address issues relating to student housing. [251804]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning Policy Statement 3 (PPS3) 'Housing' and its supporting practice guidance on Strategic Housing Market Assessments address issues relating to the provision of student housing.

The Regional Spatial Strategy and Local Development Framework Core Output Indicators—Update 2/2008 addresses monitoring issues relating to the provision of student housing.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how student halls of residence are treated for (a) planning policy purposes and (b) valuation purposes. [251888]

Mr. Iain Wright: The way in which student halls of residence are treated for planning policy purposes and valuation purposes differs. Under the planning system, uses of land and buildings are categorised through reference to the Town and Country (Use Classes) Order 1987 (as amended). It is for local planning authorities to determine, in the first instance, depending on the individual circumstances of each case, whether student halls of residence would fall under one of the residential use classes or would be considered 'sui generis' (i.e. does not fit into any of the specified use classes).

For valuation purposes, student halls of residence are treated as domestic property, and subject to council tax bandings. Where they form part of the same hereditament as a college, they will be treated as composite property. The value of the domestic element of a composite is apportioned out of the value of the whole. Though they are banded, they are an exempt class under Class M of the Council Tax (Exempt Dwellings) Order 1992 (SI No 558), and no council tax is payable.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what account is taken of (a) student halls of residence and (b) houses of multiple occupation in the process of establishing local authority targets for house construction. [251889]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning Policy Statement 3: Housing (PPS3) requires all local planning authorities to adopt an evidence based approach to assessing current and future levels of need and demand for housing. Local authority housing targets are set through Regional Spatial Strategies. Houses of multiple occupation are taken into account as a single dwelling when establishing local authority housing targets for construction. Student halls of residence are not included because they are not available on the open market for occupation and often provide only temporary accommodation during term time.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood (Mr. Pickles) and Ongar of 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 960W, on housing: students, what assessment she has made of the extent to which new additional student accommodation in university towns releases housing stock for non-student use; and if she will make it her policy to count such new accommodation towards regional spatial strategy building targets. [251961]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information is not collected centrally on the extent to which new additional student accommodation in university towns releases housing stock for non-student use.

As mentioned in my earlier answer, communal establishments, such as student accommodation, are not included in the regional spatial strategy housing targets. This is because they are not available for occupation on the open market and often provide only temporary accommodation during term time.

Interreg Programme

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1147W, on the Interreg Programme, what projects are being considered under the Interreg (a) IVA and (b) IVB programmes which relate to the United Kingdom. [252787]

Mr. Khan: This information is not held centrally by my Department and it could not be provided without disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1147W, on the Interreg Programme, what the (a) purpose and (b) remit is of each of the five Interreg IVC programmes. [252794]

Mr. Khan: The information on each of the five projects is as follows:

1. Power

The lead partner is South East England Development Agency. The project will explore ways to move towards a low carbon economy at regional level, in particular re-formulating regional development strategies and policy instruments and identifying effective forms of sub-regional action which also contribute to regional competitiveness. The seven participating regions will work towards achieving long-term policy objectives around low carbon by finding the best way forward.

2. SEE

The lead partner is Design Wales. The project will share information on policies that have been successful in using design to boost innovation, entrepreneurship, sustainability or economic development. The project has a partnership of 11 organisations, which targets small and medium enterprises and their lack of resources for implementing design practice and innovation into their business.

3. PIMMS Transfer

The lead partner is the London borough of Bromley. The project builds on the 'transfer methodology' developed under Interreg IIIC, which identified the critical success factors behind best practice case studies in mobility management. It aims to stimulate modal shift towards more sustainable forms of transport by increasing the implementation of high quality mobility management techniques and policies in European regions and to extend, deepen and promote best practice in mobility management. The partnership is composed of 15 organisations from 15 countries.

4. GRaBS

The lead partner is the Town and Country Planning Association. The Green and Blue Space Adaptation for Urban Areas and Eco Towns project aims to improve the regional decision and policy making process in relation to the planning and development of new and existing urban areas in nine member states in the context of climate change. It comprises 14 partners.

5. RAPIDE

The lead partner is the South West Regional Development Agency. The project deals with the role of the public sector in stimulating innovation in regions, in particular helping mainly small businesses bring innovative products to market more quickly. By focusing on good practices already identified in partner regions, it aims to develop robust, workable action plans that each region will implement. The project includes 13 partners from 11 member states.

Liverpool Corporation Act 1902

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers she has to refer to the courts an alleged breach of the provisions of the Liverpool Corporation Act 1902. [251224]

Mr. Khan: Ministers have no power to refer to the courts an alleged breach of the provisions of the Liverpool Corporation Act 1902. Ministers' powers under the 1902 Act or the Lever Park Act 1969 which replaced certain provisions of the 1902 Act, are restricted to resolving disputes, or appointing an arbitrator to resolve disputes, between the county council and the corporation. No request has been made to resolve any dispute.

Lloyds TSB

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the meeting held by the Minister for the South West with the Chairman of Lloyds TSB on 14 January 2009. [252089]

Mr. Khan [holding answer 27 January 2009]: A copy of the minutes has been deposited in the Library.

Local Government

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued on the designation of billing authorities in areas with two executive tiers of local government. [251986]

John Healey: Section 1 of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 defines a billing authority as a district or London borough council, the Common Council or the Council of the Isles of Scilly. That definition is expanded by section 19 of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 and regulation 7 of the Local Government (Structural Changes) (Finance) Regulations 2008 (SI 2008/3022) ("the Finance Regulations") to include county councils to which the functions of district councils have been transferred. The Regulations also provide that, in the period to 1 April 2009, for those two tier areas undergoing restructuring on that date, the preparing or shadow council (i.e. the council responsible for implementing restructuring) will be the billing authority for the reorganised area in relation to 2009-10.

Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what requirements parish councils must meet in order to be able to use the new well-being power under the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007. [251806]

John Healey: In order for a parish council to be eligible to exercise the power of well-being it must first meet all four conditions set out in the Parish Councils (Power to Promote Well-being) (Prescribed Conditions) Order 2008. A council must have:

A qualified clerk in the use of the well-being power

A minimum of two-thirds of vacancies on the council filled at the last ordinary elections

80 per cent. of councillors trained in the use of the well-being power

Published a statement on how it intends to involve the community in the use of the well-being power.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what advice her Department has provided to local authorities on placing money in government bonds. [251799]

John Healey: The Department does not provide advice to local authorities on particular financial products. Under the Local Government Act 2003, local authorities are responsible for their own investment decisions. The Department's guidance on local government investments is available at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/capital/data/lginvest2.pdf

Local Government Finance: Coastal Areas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent estimate she has made of the effect of inward migration on the level of funding for local authority services in each of the principal seaside towns in England. [251147]

John Healey: Formula grant is distributed to all local authorities in England taking into account the relative needs and relative resources of each local authority relative to all other authorities providing the same services. There is also a central allocation and a floor damping mechanism. For the current three-year settlement, 2008-09 to 2010-11, the floor damping mechanism ensures that all authorities receive at least the minimum percentage increase in grant year-on-year on a like-for-like basis.

In the 2008-09 to 2010-11 settlements, the 2004-based sub-national population projections for 2008, 2009 and 2010 respectively have been used as the main measure of the resident population. These projections were published by the Office for National Statistics on the 27 September 2007, and were the latest data available at the beginning of the three year settlement period. Population projections take into account trends in fertility, mortality and migration.

Local Government: Billing

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1659W, on local government: billing, whether her Department has made an estimate of the number of local authorities which pay invoices within 10 days of receipt. [252596]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the right hon. Member for East Yorkshire (Mr. Knight) on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 242W.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions her Department has had with the Local Government Association on the payment of supplier invoices within 10 days of receipt. [252605]

John Healey: Both my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government and I have discussed with the LGA how authorities could help support business by paying invoices more promptly. These discussions were in the context of wider discussions about the range of local responses authorities are putting in place to the current economic downturn.

Local Government: Carbon Emissions

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what financial penalties local authorities may incur in circumstances where they do not meet their carbon dioxide emissions reduction targets from 1 January 2010 onwards. [251819]

Mr. Iain Wright: If targets included in local area agreements (whether targets related to carbon emissions or otherwise) are not achieved in full it can result in a lower level of performance reward grant. My Department consulted on the operation of a new reward scheme for local areas in 2008, based upon local area agreements. This will be related to targets agreed by local authorities and their partners and our intention is to judge the amount of reward payable by reference to average performance across the targets agreed within the LAA. Responses to this consultation are being considered and an announcement will be made shortly.

The Carbon Reduction Commitment is a mandatory cap and trade scheme designed to cover emissions from large business and public sector organisations which the Government intend to bring in to operation in 2010. Large local authorities are expected to qualify for the scheme. There will be no targets for individual organisations in the scheme, but an overall cap will be applied to the sector. Revenue raised from CRC will be recycled back to participants. To incentivise improved energy efficiency, the revenues repaid to participants will be subject to a bonus or penalty related to their relative performance compared to other participants. In 2010-11 the maximum bonus or penalty will be +/-10 per cent. rising to 50 per cent. in later years. However it is important to recognize that the net savings due to energy efficiency measures will outweigh any costs of the scheme.

Local Government: Pensions

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what effect she estimates the recent stock market downturn will have on the funding of the Local Government Pension Scheme. [251790]

John Healey: The scheme's most recent actuarial valuation of the 89 pension funds in England and Wales confirmed its ongoing solvency and set the required employer contributions until 31 March 2011.

The next triennial valuation takes place on 31 March 2010 and will assess the factors influencing the stability and solvency of the scheme. New employer contribution changes will apply from 1 April 2011 until 31 March 2014.

In the meantime, scheme administrating authorities will be monitoring events carefully and in consultation with their advisers within the context of their investment strategies and funding strategy statements, both of which are published locally.

Local Government: Referendums

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance has been given to local authorities on the use of public funds to campaign in local referendums. [251731]

John Healey: The Code of Recommended Practice on Local Authority Publicity, first issued in 1988 and revised in 2001, which local authorities must have regard to, states that local authority publicity should not be capable as being perceived as seeking to influence public support for, or opposition to, the referendum proposals and should not associate support for, or opposition to, the proposals with any individual or group.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to reply to the letter of 25 November 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton, with regard to Belle Vue Vision. [250869]

Hazel Blears: I have now replied to my right hon. Friend's letter.

Mortgages

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of homebuyers took out mortgage payment protection insurance in respect of new mortgages in each year since 2000. [251726]

Mr. Iain Wright: Estimated numbers of households in England with mortgages that have mortgage insurance back to 2002-03 are presented in the following table. It is not possible to say if these insurance policies were taken out at the time of house purchase/remortgage or at another time.

Trend in households buying with a mortgage that have mortgage insurance[1], England

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
All buying with mortgage (thousand)	8,504	8,523	8,300	8,144	8,072
With mortgage insurance (thousand)	5,036	5,088	4,812	4,798	4,670
with mortgage insurance (percentage)	59	60	58	59	58

Non-Domestic Rates: Ports

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the most recent editions of guidance and rating manuals that the Valuation Office Agency uses for valuing ports and businesses within ports. [251723]

John Healey: The latest Rating Manuals used by the Valuation Office Agency are published on their website and are available to inspect at:

http://www.voa.gov.uk/index.htm

There are separate sections for different types of property, including docks and harbours. There is not a separate section for businesses within ports.

Optimisa

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 353W, on Optimisa, if she will place in the Library a copy of the reports by Andrew Irving Associates and its parent company Optimisa on (a) eco-towns public attitudes, (b) local government petitions and (c) sustainable homes telephone survey. [252174]

Mr. Khan: With regards to part (a) eco-towns public attitudes, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Member for Don Valley (Caroline Flint) to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) on 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 642W.

The following reports will be placed in the Library:

(b) local government petitions

(c) sustainable homes telephone survey.

Parking: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans the Government office for the East Midlands has to make budgetary provision for payment of the workplace parking charge proposed by Nottingham city council. [252471]

Mr. Khan: No decision has been taken by Transport Ministers on whether to confirm Nottingham city council's workplace parking levy scheme order, and it would not be appropriate to speculate on the implications for the Government office.

Public Bodies: Inspections

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which public bodies she expects to (a) inspect and (b) audit local authorities in 2009-10. [251861]

Mr. Khan: From 1 April 2009 a new system of assessment and inspection will be introduced, the Comprehensive Area Assessment (CAA). CAA will cover priority outcomes in local areas delivered by local authorities, either by themselves or with other service providers. As part of CAA there will continue to be a scheduled programme of inspections for services for vulnerable children (looked-after children and safeguarding) and for youth offending, led by the Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills (Ofsted) and Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Probation respectively.

Other inspections under CAA will be primarily triggered by risk, and carried out by the relevant independent local services inspectorates, either individually or jointly. The inspectorates involved in carrying out CAA and associated inspections will be the Audit Commission, the new Care Quality Commission, Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary, Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Prisons, Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Probation, and Ofsted.

The inspectorates are aiming to publish the final framework for the operation of CAA shortly.

All audits of local authorities will continue to be carried out by external auditors appointed by the Audit Commission.

Tenant Services Authority: Publicity

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Tenant Services Authority has spent on (a) branding, (b) external public affairs consultancies and (c) external public relations. [251735]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Tenant Services Authority (TSA) has spent £90,066 on research, planning and delivery work to develop the TSA brand.

The TSA has spent £56,133.14 to date on engaging with its stakeholders, further to its statutory objective to deliver effective, tenant-focused regulation.

The TSA has spent £17,019.79 on external public relations.

Travelling People: Caravan Sites

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what methodology her Department uses to determine whether an unauthorised Travellers' camp is (a) tolerated and (b) not tolerated in circumstances where the camp is on (i) the Travellers' own land and (ii) land not owned by the Travellers and has been established without planning permission; what definition her Department uses of (A) tolerated and (B) not tolerated unauthorised Travellers' camps; and who is responsible for determining whether such camps are tolerated. [251776]

Mr. Iain Wright: It is for the local authority or landowner to decide whether to tolerate an unauthorised site.

For the purposes of the bi-annual count of Gypsy and Traveller caravans, we ask that local authorities count caravans:

> on unauthorised encampments as "tolerated" where the local authority or landowner has decided not to seek the removal of the encampment; and "not tolerated" where the local authority, police or landowner are using, or preparing to use powers to remove the encampment.
> on unauthorised developments as "tolerated" where the local authority has decided not to seek their removal (this includes those developments with temporary planning permission); and "not tolerated" where a planning enforcement notice has been served, the results of a planning inquiry are pending, an injunction has been sought or where the compliance period has been extended.

Advice on toleration is set out in DOE circular 18/94 'Gypsy Sites Policy and Unauthorised Camping', as amended, and 'Guidance on Managing Unauthorised Camping'.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Higher Education

17. Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what progress has been made towards the target of having half of all young people experience higher education. [252531]

Mr. Lammy: Over half of young people from all social backgrounds aspire to go to university and we are helping them to fulfil that aspiration. The latest UCAS figures show that acceptances from England are up by 7.4 per cent. (22,764) on the same point last year, and this year's figures are the highest ever. Increasing initial participation in higher education towards 50 per cent. of those aged 18-30 is challenging but an essential investment in our future prosperity.

19. Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he plans to announce a timetable for the proposed review of higher education. [252533]

Mr. Lammy: My right hon. Friend the Member for Norwich, South (Mr. Clarke) the then Secretary of State for Education and Skills, told the House on 8 January 2004 that there would be an independent review of tuition fees, reporting to the House, once we had evidence on the first three years of the variable fee regime. The first three years of operation will not be concluded until autumn next year.

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what progress is being made on his Department's University Challenge programme. [252536]

Mr. Lammy: At the end of the new 'University Challenge' consultation we were delighted to receive 27 initial expressions of interest from across the country. These demonstrated a widespread recognition of the value of university centres to education, economic development, regeneration, and the cultural life of rural areas, towns and cities. HEFCE are currently preparing a policy document to guide formal applications. We expect to fund 20 new local higher education centres over the next six years.

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent progress has been made in the higher education debate; and if he will make a statement. [252519]

Mr. Denham: We have a world-class higher education system in this country with rising student numbers and an increasing world share of citations and high impact research papers. Total Government investment in HE will rise by 30 per cent. in real terms by the end of this CSR period compared to 1997. This is in sharp contrast to the 36 per cent. fall in funding per student between 1989 and 1997. We have also doubled investment in research.

I want to ensure our university system will still be world class in the future. That is why we are currently consulting on the framework for higher education for the next 10 to 15 years.

The debate is progressing well, and I am delighted by the healthy level of engagement and discussion it has provoked. As well as the contributions we published last year, we have received a number of submissions from businesses and others who depend on universities for their success. We will publish these shortly.

Skills Levels

12. Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what support his Department provides to businesses, community leaders and training providers for them to work together to raise skills levels in their local communities. [252526]

Mr. Simon: The Learning and Skills Council is working closely with businesses, colleges, community leaders and training providers to raise skill levels in local communities. Further education colleges are playing a crucial role in bringing communities together. This includes providing English for speakers of other languages courses, which underpin broader efforts to ensure community cohesion. The LSC is also working closely with local authorities through local area agreements and multi area agreements to ensure that skills provision is better aligned to local need. This local focus will be carried through to the Skills Funding Agency where local colleges and providers will work with the SFA and other key partners to respond quickly to the needs of local communities.

Further Education Colleges

13. Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of capital funding for further education colleges; and if he will make a statement. [252527]

Mr. Simon: It is thanks to this Government's commitment to colleges that investment in capital projects will amount to £2.3 billion between 2007 and 2010. In total, since the programme began under this Government, nearly 700 projects, at 330 colleges have been agreed. Only 42 colleges have not yet benefited from investment. The programme has therefore been a huge success.

In 1997 not a single penny was spent on FE colleges, with a National Audit Office report saying FE buildings were not fit to learn in. The Opposition have committed to cutting £610 million from the skills and universities budget; and have repeatedly refused to say whether they would continue our capital programme. Until they come clean about where their cuts would fall, every college should be worried.

I want to make it clear today that there is no freeze in the capital programme. There is no question the £110 million brought forward for this year, and the £100 million for next year will be spent.

Research Funding: Universities

14. Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans he has for research funding for universities in the next three years. [252528]

Mr. Lammy: Altogether public investment in science and research will reach over £6 billion by 2010-11, taking Government support for the UK's research base to its highest level ever.

This investment is essential in these economically challenging times. It is crucial we continue to invest in research and higher level skills, as this will underpin our recovery and be key to our future prosperity.

Economic Downturn

15. Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what discussions he has had with higher education institutions and universities on assistance they can provide to people and businesses during the economic downturn; and if he will make a statement. [252529]

Mr. Denham: I have met with university vice-chancellors, representatives of university careers services and graduate recruiters to discuss the response of universities to the economic downturn. The recent publication "Standing Together" provides impressive evidence of universities helping business.

I am particularly pleased that HEFCE is supporting universities to help individuals through the announcement of the £50 million Economic Challenge Investment Fund announced earlier this week. We are also helping graduates re-train by trebling the number of professional and career development loans and working with major employers and the third sector to encourage internships and volunteering, both of which provide valuable employability skills for young graduates.

Further Education: Capital Projects

16. Mr. Syms: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans his Department has for funding capital projects in further education. [252530]

Mr. Simon: Since 1997, this Government have invested £2.4 billion modernising further education colleges, and plan to invest a further £2.3 billion in the next three years.

However, the pace of demand for capital funding has increased. In addition there are signs that the ability of colleges to raise their own funds for projects is being affected by the downturn.

The Learning and Skills Council will therefore examine the position of individual projects by early March before making further funding decisions.

University Places

18. Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many university places were available at the start of the academic year (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [252532]

Mr. Lammy: There continues to be strong growth in student numbers. There were 1,505,000 students enrolled at higher education institutions at the beginning of 2007/08. UCAS suggests an increase of around 7.4 per cent. in English-domiciled applicants who have been accepted on to full-time undergraduate courses for 2008/09. We are providing full funding for 30,000 more places in 2009-10 than we did in 2007-08.

Apprenticeships

20. Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to increase the number of people taking up apprenticeships. [252534]

Mr. Simon: As set out in the recent response to the hon. Member for Ribble Valley (Mr. Evans) we are taking a wide range of steps. Most notably we recently launched the National Apprenticeships Vacancy Matching Service and announced a further £140 million to provide 35,000 extra places this year. From April 2009 we will be extending group training associations and creating apprenticeship training associations to help deliver the anticipated increases in the number of people taking up apprenticeships.

Further Education

21. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what work his Department is undertaking with the further education sector to provide training or retraining for those who become unemployed. [252635]

Mr. Simon: We are doing everything we can to help people through this tough time. Further education is at the heart of our response. We are investing £4.5 billion to give employers and individuals the skills they need to improve their competitiveness now and in the future. We have recently announced:

£83 million to provide training for a further 75,000 people who have been unemployed for six months or more;

£158 million to support those looking for work;

£140 million expansion of 35,000 apprenticeship places;

£350 million improved flexibilities in Train to Gain for bite-sized courses for SMEs;

A trebling of the number of Professional Career Development Loans available so that up to 45,000 learners a year can use loans as a way to finance reskilling; and Greater flexibility in how colleges and providers use their funding below Level 2.

'FE Works', a good practice guide recently published by the Association of Colleges, provides further examples of ways the sector is responding to the economic downturn.

North Notts College

22. John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans he has to modernise the buildings of North Notts College. [252537]

Mr. Simon: Since 1997, this Government have invested £2.4 billion in redeveloping and modernising further education colleges—including support for North Nottinghamshire College. In addition we have plans to invest a further £2.3 billion in the next three years.

The Learning and Skills Council is responsible for the administration of the capital programme. Decisions on individual proposals are an operational matter for the council.

I will ask the council's chief executive, Mark Haysom, to write to my hon. Friend.

Construction Industry

23. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he next expects to meet representatives of the construction industry to discuss skills levels in that industry. [252538]

Mr. Simon: The Department is in regular touch with representatives of the construction industry about the industry's skills base. We are working closely with them to tackle key current issues like ensuring support for apprentices, and also the longer term skills challenges the industry faces.

Employment-related Skills

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent steps he has taken to improve the employment-related skills levels of people with low skills. [252520]

Mr. Simon: This Government are committed to giving real help to people who want to improve their skills levels during this difficult time. Alongside existing programmes and training provision, we have announced new measures to provide employment-focused training for people facing or at risk of redundancy, as well as those who have been out of work for a longer period of time:

£158 million, comprising funding from Train to Gain and the European Social Fund, which will allow training providers to deliver a holistic service to support individuals facing redundancy and employers.

£83 million to provide 75,000 additional places in colleges and other training providers for people who have been out of work for more than six months.

£140 million to fund an additional 35,000 apprentices nationally in both the public and private sectors.

Departmental Compensation

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the total amount of compensation claims in respect of which legal proceedings are complete made against (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which his Department is responsible in the last 12 months was; and what the nature of each of the 10 highest such claims in each case was. [249099]

Mr. Simon: One compensation claim was settled at some £71,000 (including costs) in the past 12 months. The claim arose out of a case of a former employee contracting mesothelioma as a result of asbestos exposure. Another claim was settled and paid just over 12 months ago for the same condition although the solicitor's costs at some £16,000 for that claim were paid within the last 12 months.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each year since the Department was established. [251874]

Mr. Simon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on Monday 26 January, Official Report, column 6W.

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the ministerial code.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted hours, in the last year for which figures are available; [252022]

(2) what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252021]

Mr. Simon: The information requested of the Department and its agencies is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

As part of flexible working arrangements, employees from Grade 6 to Executive Assistant can take time off in lieu for extra hours worked or adjust their working week to make up for shortfalls or excess hours work on a particular day. All flexible working arrangement records are held locally and a central record is not kept and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Flexible working arrangements are not available to members of the senior civil service.

The Department's non-departmental public bodies do not keep central records.

Graduates: Taxation

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will assess what effect the introduction of a graduate tax would have on university students. [252553]

Mr. Lammy: We have no plans to assess the effect of introducing a graduate tax for repayment of financial support made to higher education students. A graduate tax was considered alongside variable and fixed fee options as part of the student finance review in 2002 and the White Paper 'The future of higher education' in 2003.

A number of disadvantages were identified including: the cost of a graduate tax (which is greater than variable fees and loans), the lack of any mechanism for early additional repayments and the slower rate of repayment of a graduate tax when compared with loans.

Government concluded that the Graduate Contribution Scheme based on variable fees of up to £3,000 set by higher education institutions presented the best option for both students and universities and this was subsequently enacted via the Higher Education Act in 2004.

Higher Education: Advertising

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many advertisements to attract students were placed by each university in each year since 1997; which universities placed such advertisements; how many were placed (a) in print newspapers and magazines, (b) on a website and (c) on television and radio; and at what cost in each case. [249385]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills was formed in June 2007, following the Machinery of Government changes, and as a result we are only able to provide information from June 2007.

The Department does not hold the information requested centrally and there would be a disproportionate cost to gather the information requested.

Higher Education: Northamptonshire

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what consideration the Higher Education Funding Council for England will give to the effect on local area regeneration of establishing a university in north Northamptonshire. [252891]

Mr. Lammy: The Higher Education Funding Council for England will shortly publish its criteria for the assessment of proposals for new higher education centres. In our new "University Challenge" policy document launched last year we set out the full range of benefits which such centres can bring to local communities, including local and regional regeneration. The strongest proposals for new centres should be able to demonstrate the full range of benefits which our policy is designed to promote.

London Metropolitan University: Redundancy

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will make it his policy to minimise the number of redundancies at the London Metropolitan University; and if will make a statement. [252597]

Mr. Lammy: London Metropolitan University is a company limited by guarantee under the Companies Acts. As such the Secretary of State has no powers to intervene in how London Metropolitan University chooses to operate its employment policies.

Research: Standards

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what proportion of research projects commissioned by the research councils in each of the last five years are collaborations between different disciplines; [249100]

(2) what proportion of research commissioned by the research councils in each of the last five years is considered multi-disciplinary. [249105]

Mr. Lammy: Research councils define multidisciplinary research as research that brings together knowledge and modes of thinking from two or more disciplines or established fields of study. The proportion of research supported by each council classified as multidisciplinary research is set out in the following table:

Multidisciplinary research as a proportion of research funded, (approximate)

			Percentage
Research Council	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC)	9	14	27
Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC)	29	31	31
Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC)	44	40	41
Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC)	37	42	59
Medical Research Council (MRC)	39	36	36
Natural Environment Research Council (NERC)	42	47	39
Science and Technology Facilities Council (STFC)	8	6	11

Note:

1. Individual Councils use different ways of classifying multidisciplinary research and of collating relevant data. In addition, BBSRC, MRC, NERC and STFC also fund their own institutes and centres, which are intended to foster multidisciplinary research. Data on these are not included.

Equivalent data are not readily available for research funded prior to 2005-06.

Students: Children

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of (a) full-time and (b) part-time students attending higher education institutions with children under the age of three receive a childcare grant. [250972]

Mr. Lammy: The childcare grant is available for full-time, higher education students with dependent children in registered or approved childcare; it is not available to part-time students. In academic year 2007-08 there were 3,700 students with at least one child under three who were receiving childcare grant. While information is available on students who receive a childcare grant, information is not held centrally which identifies students with children under three who do not apply for a childcare grant. Therefore the proportion of students with children under three who receive a childcare grant is not known. Students receiving childcare grant make up around 1 per cent. of higher education students applying for some form of student finance support.

Students: Greater Manchester

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people from Manchester, Withington constituency were admitted to universities in England in 2008. [251030]

Mr. Lammy: In the 2006/07 academic year 1,765 students were admitted to English Higher Education Institutions from Manchester Withington parliamentary constituency. This figure covers entrants to courses of all levels and modes and has been rounded to the nearest five. This figure has been taken from the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) student record and is based on a standard registration population.

Figures for the 2007/08 academic year will be available from 29 January 2009, and for the 2008/09 academic year in January 2010.

Technology Strategy Board: Grants

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many offers of financial support by the Technology Strategy Board have not resulted in grants being awarded because matching funding requirements were not met in each month since June 2007. [252687]

Mr. Lammy: For the period in question there were three projects that received an offer of grant from the Technology Strategy Board, but where no grant was paid due to the inability to provide the matched funding required.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments: Vaccination

Dr. Palmer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department has taken to ensure that the target animal batch safety testing of veterinary vaccines (a) is not taking place under any existing licence and (b) will not be permitted under any future licence unless an application for a waiver has been rejected by the Veterinary Medicines Directorate or the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate has identified a specific reason why an application cannot be made. [252992]

Meg Hillier: Under current arrangements, target animal batch safety testing of veterinary vaccines is authorised under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 in project licences covering a range of safety tests, rather than on a product by product basis.

The obligation on a project licence holder to seek a waiver to the requirement for such tests would be triggered by project licence standard condition 6 which requires that the minimum number of animals of the lowest degree of neurophysiological sensitivity is used in procedures causing the least pain, suffering, distress or lasting harm.

The role of the Animal (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate, which is aware of the technical requirements, is to advise on whether and under what terms proposals for animal use should be authorised and to inspect to ensure compliance with the terms and conditions of the relevant project licence.

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to issue new guidance to the Association of Chief Police Officers on the issuing of penalty notices for disorder; and if she will make a statement. [250808]

Mr. Straw: I have been asked to reply.

The Government will be issuing revised operational guidance on the issuing of penalty notices for disorder to police forces in due course. Additionally, ACPO have issued guidance to police officers on the use of penalty notices for disorder in respect of certain offences.

Asylum

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the asylum support budget was in each of the last five years; and what it is projected to be in each of the next five years. [242778]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 16 December 2008]: Expenditure on asylum support in the four years from 2004-05 to 2007-08 was as follows:

2004-05	814
2005-06	626
2006-07	515
2007-08	485

Budgeted expenditure for 2008-09 is £452 million. UKBA is currently reviewing plans and forecasts for future years and we are unable to provide information about budgets for these periods until plans have been finalised and agreed by the UKBA Board.

Borders: Personal Records

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects the e-borders programme to cover all passenger movements in and out of the United Kingdom. [250065]

Mr. Woolas: The e-Borders system will count all passenger and crew movements in and out of the UK by March 2014.

This will be done by processing travel document information provided by carriers in advance of travel.

Burglary

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many reported incidents of domestic burglary there were in (a) England and Wales, (b) the South East, (c) Hampshire and (d) Romsey constituency in each of the last five years. [251038]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The available information on the number of offences recorded by the police is given in the following table.

Crime statistics are not collected at constituency level. The area of Romsey comes within the Test Valley Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) and therefore these figures have been provided.

Offences of burglary in a dwelling recorded by the police, 2003-04 to 2007-08

Crime

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions in each of the last three years she or her predecessor was informed that an individual was about to be arrested. [244233]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 16 December 2008]: There are occasions where, in the course of the duties as Home Secretary, she is advised that an individual is about to be arrested. The information requested is not held centrally.

Crime: Hampshire

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many reported cases of (a) violence against the person, (b) sexual offences, (c) robbery, (d) burglary, (e) theft, (f) fraud and forgery, (g) criminal damage and (h) drug offences there were in (i) Southampton, (ii) Test Valley borough and (iii) the ceremonial county of Hampshire in each of the last five years. [251096]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The available information on the number of offences recorded by the police is given in the following tables. These statistics relate to the Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships (CDRPs) for Southampton and Test Valley, and for Hampshire police force area.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets her Department and its agencies provide for staff. [249076]

Mr. Woolas: On available information the Home Office has no directly operated or franchised catering outlets. Staff restaurants are provide by contract caterers.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251441]

Mr. Woolas: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of departments in replying to Members' correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS.

Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

The specific information requested for 2008 is as follows:

Average response times

Number of days

Correspondence Category	2006	2007	2008
Home Office ministerial correspondence	7.4	7.6	9.8
Home Office public correspondence (letters)	10.0	9.7	16.6
Home Office public correspondence (emails)	8.6	9.7	14.2
UKBA ministerial correspondence - ministerial replies	22.1	19.6	20
UKBA Ministerial Correspondence - official replies	24.3	16.9	16.4

Note:
The target for replying to Home Office Ministerial Correspondence is 15 working days. For all other correspondence categories it is 20 working days. UKBA figures for public letters and emails are not available.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long on average her Department took to provide a substantive response to correspondence from members of the public in the last 12 months. [251613]

Mr. Woolas: The average time taken to respond to correspondence from members of the public—letters and e-mails—is 15.6 working days.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long on average her Department took to reply to correspondence from hon. Members in the last 12 months. [251680]

Mr. Woolas: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members' correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS.

Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

The specific information requested is as follows for 2008:

Correspondence category	Average response time 2008 (days)
Home Office ministerial correspondence	9.8
UKBA ministerial correspondence—ministerial replies	20
UKBA ministerial correspondence—official replies	16.4

Note:
The target for replying to Home Office ministerial correspondence is 15 working days. For UKBA ministerial correspondence it is 20 working days.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many contracts (a) her Department and (b) its agencies have which allow contractors to store personal data of UK citizens overseas; for which contracts this applies; in which countries the data for each contract are held; and how many people have their data stored overseas in the case of each such contract. [245346]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Department inclusive of its agencies does not hold a central register of contracts which allow contractors to store personal data of UK citizens overseas. To extract and collate the information from individual records would incur a disproportionate cost.

Departmental Languages

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in her Department received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months; what expenditure her Department incurred in providing such coaching; and in what languages such coaching was provided. [248080]

Mr. Woolas: In the last 12 months no Ministers within the Department received coaching in a foreign language. Information relating to the number of civil servants who have received such coaching and the expenditure such coaching incurred is not available centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the Answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 962W, on departmental personnel, what the current figure is for staff without posts in her Department and its agencies; how many of the staff without posts were classified as such on returning from maternity leave; and how many of the staff without posts have been classified as such for at least (a) six months and (b) 12 months. [250540]

Mr. Woolas: The position as at 31 December 2008 is shown in the following table.

	Staff classified as:
	Being without a post on returning from maternity leave	Being without a post for up to six months	Being without a post for more than six months but less than 12 months	Being without a post for more than 12 months
Home Office HQ	0	11	0	[1]—
UK Border Agency	0	17	7	[1]—
Identity and Passport Service	0	0	0	0
Total	0	28	7	[1]—

[1] Less than 5.

The 39 members of staff classified as being without posts represents 0.15 per cent. of the total Home Office workforce.

These staff are currently undertaking work for the Department while a new post is actively sought, either within the Home Office and its agencies, or in another Government Department.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many special advisers were employed in her Department at each pay band on 30 November 2008; and what her Department's total expenditure on special advisers was in 2007-08. [243571]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer provided by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 870W.

Departmental Procurement

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium-sized businesses were paid within 10 days of receipt by (a) her Department and (b) the agencies for which her Department is responsible in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [243354]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Department including United Kingdom Border Agency terms of payment was 26 days in 2006-07 and 2007-08 except in special circumstances, where an immediate payment was required. To provide this information would incur disproportionate cost.

However, following the Prime Minister's commitment of 8 October that central Government Departments will make payment within 10 days we will additionally report 10 day payment performance and are able to report on this.

Both the Identity and Passport Service and Criminal Records Bureau agencies do not hold the required information for 2006-07 and 2007-08 financial years and to obtain it would incur disproportionate cost.

Following the announcement on 8 October both of these agencies are working towards paying SMEs within 10 days of receipt of invoices.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [248034]

Mr. Woolas: In the last three full financial years 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08, the Home Office central communications unit estimates that the total expenditure on public surveys is as follows:

2006-07	763,097
2007-08	631,996

Domestic Violence

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of domestic violence police in each police authority have dealt with in each year since 1997. [251338]

Mr. Alan Campbell: From the information collected centrally on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify recorded cases of domestic violence. Such offences are not specifically defined by law and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected.

Domestic Violence: Research

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research her Department has evaluated on the link between cases of domestic violence and subsequent murders. [250598]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Office has not commissioned any specific research on this.

The Home Office does routinely collect recorded crime information, via the Homicide Index, on the relationship of homicide victims to the principal suspect. The latest published information for 2007-08 can be found online on the Home Office website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs09/hosb0209.pdf

Draft Constitutional Renewal Bill

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1241-42W, on demonstrations: Parliament Square, when the Government's response to the Joint Committee on the draft Constitutional Renewal Bill's report, stated in the answer to be imminent, will be published. [249772]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The Ministry of Justice is co-ordinating the Government's response to the report of the Joint Committee on the draft Constitutional Renewal Bill. We continue to give careful consideration to the recommendations on protests around Parliament which are set out in the Joint Committee's report and a full response will be published ahead of the Constitutional Renewal Bill's introduction to Parliament.

The Government are keen to give a substantial response to the Joint Committee but this has meant resolving all outstanding policy issues before the Bill is introduced. We recognise that there has been a long period since the publication of the report, but believe it is better to respond fully to the committee's recommendations on all aspects of the draft Bill. We intend to respond as early as possible in 2009.

Drugs: Crime Prevention

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of the budget for her Department's drug control programme was spent on (a) enforcement and (b) treatment in each year since 2004. [251465]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Drug treatment is the responsibility of the Department for Health, and the Home Office does not therefore commit any of the Department's budget to drug treatment.

Figures published in the Updated Drug Strategy 2002 show estimates of the labelled and non-labelled total expenditure on drugs, and on strands of the strategy, calculated on the basis of its four thematic aims. Elements of enforcement fall within two of these four aims—supply reduction and protecting communities—although these aims will also include expenditure on items which do not relate to enforcement of the law. As it is not possible to disaggregate these figures, those which have been given for expenditure on enforcement from 2003-04 to 2005-06 will therefore exceed the real level of expenditure.

Figures for 2006-07, while not published, have been calculated on the same basis as those for 2003-04 to 2005-06. Figures for 2007-08 and 2008-09 are labelled expenditure only, as published in the drug strategy Drugs: protecting families and communities. These figures have been calculated on a departmental basis and, while expenditure on enforcement activity will fall broadly within the departmental expenditure of the Home Office, the figure will exceed the real level of expenditure on enforcement activity only. Similarly, the Department of Health will fund activity which would not fall within a rigid definition of treatment, nor is all expenditure on treatment—particularly that for young people—covered by the Department of Health budget. These figures should therefore be treated as indicative.

Drugs: Hillingdon

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crack house closures there were in (a) Uxbridge constituency and (b) the London borough of Hillingdon in each of the last five years. [250772]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Anti-Social Behaviour Act 2003 introduced the provision for police to serve a closure notice on any premises that is believed by the police to be used for the production, supply or use of Class A drugs, and which is causing serious nuisance or disorder.

The Home Office collects data on the number of closure orders issued through the voluntary Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) survey of antisocial behaviour tools and powers. Latest available data from this survey cover the period from October 2003 to September 2007 and show that in the Hillingdon CDRP area no such orders were served in this period. Data are not collected at a parliamentary constituency level, although as the Uxbridge constituency is entirely within the Hillingdon CDRP area, there have also been no closure orders issued.

Data for 2007-08 will be published early in 2009.

Entry Clearances: China

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will place in the Library a copy of the guidance issued to staff for the purposes of determining tourist visa applications from applicants from mainland China; and if she will make a statement. [247908]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 27 January 2009]: All tourist visa applications are considered against paragraph 41 of the Immigration Rules for General Visitors. In addition to paragraph 41 of the Immigration Rules, Chinese tourist visitors seeking leave to enter under the approved destinations status (ADS) agreement with China will have their applications considered against paragraph 56G-56J of the immigration rules.

Chinese tourist visitors who apply under paragraph 56G-56J of the immigration rules are required to use an accredited ADS travel agent, of which there are over 60 throughout China.

All visa officers are subject to intensive training in the United Kingdom prior to overseas deployment to ensure they are able to assess all types of visa applications to enter the United Kingdom. The guidance used throughout this training period and subsequent reference material used by visa officers is substantial. All immigration rules, including those for paragraph 41 and 56G-56J, are publicly available and can be located on the internet. The section on Visit and Transit in Entry Clearance Guidance gives additional guidance to entry clearance officers for dealing with visit visa applications. This guidance can also be found on the internet.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applicants for visas from mainland China were refused visas in each of the last three years, broken down by category of refusal. [248117]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The following table provides issue and refusal statistics per year for 2006, 2007 and 2008 broken down into categories for total applications received in mainland China at our embassy in Beijing and the Consulate-Generals in Shanghai, Chongqing and Guangzhou.

Entry Clearances: Marriage

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times application of the two-year rule has resulted in the removal of the right of a spouse to remain in the UK in the event of relationship failure in 2007-08; and what steps were taken following the application of the rule in each case. [250679]

Mr. Woolas: The specific data requested could be obtained by the detailed examination of individual case records only at disproportionate cost.

In order to qualify for settlement on the basis of marriage, an applicant must show that they are still married to the person they were admitted or granted an extension of stay to join and that relationship is subsisting. If the parties are no longer married or their relationship no longer subsists, the applicant will not meet the requirements of the immigration rules for settlement and the application will fall for refusal on this basis.

Foreign Workers

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 13 January 2009, Official Report, columns 706-07W, on foreign workers, if she will break down the figures by year, and indicate the percentage of the relevant work force they constitute. [249751]

Mr. Woolas: The following tables provide information on the number of work permits approved and Worker Registration Scheme certificates issued by occupation category. We are unable to provide an indication of the percentage of the relevant work force they constitute as data are not held on the size of each work force.

Note:

Work permit approvals includes all work permit application types—including work permit extensions, change of employment and technical changes to existing work permits and therefore does not equate to the number of individuals to whom permits were issued. The figures do not equate to the number of individual nationals because they include those applications approved to extend or amend an existing permit or where the individual has moved to another job with a different employer. Additionally, not all of those who are granted a permit take up the job, some may be refused entry clearance or further leave to remain.

Genetics: Databases

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 7 May 2008, Official Report, columns 994-96W, on genetics: databases, how many new profiles have been added to the national DNA database in each month since March 2008, broken down by police force; and if she will make a statement. [251163]

Mr. Alan Campbell: It is understood that this question refers to the number of crime scene sample profiles added to the National DNA Database, since a separate question has been asked on the number of people added in each month from 18 January 2008 to date.

The number of crime scene samples added in each of the nine months from April 2008 to December 2008 for all police forces is shown in the following table.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will reduce the length of time for which the police retain DNA samples of people who have not been convicted of any offence. [251187]

Mr. Coaker: We are considering what steps are required to implement the decision of the European Court of Human Rights in the case of S and Marper following the Court's judgment on 4 December 2008. As my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary indicated on 16 December 2008 in her speech to the Intellect Trade Association, the detailed proposals for change will be subject to public consultation in a Forensics White Paper to be published later this year.

Graffiti

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it her policy that incidents of graffiti be recorded separately from other criminal damage. [251227]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Recorded crimes (notifiable offences) such as criminal damage are broken down at a main offence group level based on legal definitions. Sir Ronnie Flanagan's independent Review of Policing published on 8 February 2008 focused on the need to reduce unnecessary bureaucracy including the amount of information collected by officers for crime recording purposes. The extra breakdowns requested would place an additional burden on the police and there are no plans to ask forces to do this at this time.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals resident in Peterborough constituency have been (a) arrested, (b) charged with and (c) found guilty of offences related to (i) trafficking persons to the UK for the purposes of sexual exploitation and (ii) running a brothel since May 2005; and if she will make a statement. [250834]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The Home Office holds figures on crime by force area only and not by residence of offenders.

Records from the UK Human Trafficking Centre show that since May 2005 there have been nine arrests for human trafficking in Cambridgeshire with one conviction for trafficking. Of the remaining eight cases four were not progressed and four convicted of other offences.

Statistics from the Crown Prosecution Service indicate that there have been a total of 48 people charged under sections 33 and 34 (a) of the Sexual Offences Act 1956 since May 2005 in Cambridgeshire whose cases reached first hearing at a magistrates court. CPS does not have data held centrally on the number of convictions.

Identity Cards: Foreigners

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to use the receipts from foreign nationals from charges in respect of (a) identity cards and (b) registering biometric information to meet the cost to the public purse of the identity card scheme; and what estimate she has made of the amount of such receipts from foreign nationals in each of the next 10 years. [243298]

Jacqui Smith: The operational cost of the Identity Cards for Foreign Nationals scheme, including capturing and registering biometric information, will be fully recovered through the application fees.

We review and set fees annually. We do not currently have estimates of fee income for each of the next 10 years as fees have not yet been set for future years. We will continue to set fees in a way which ensures those who benefit from the system make an appropriate contribution towards the end to end costs of the immigration system.

Identity Cards: Internet

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of visits to the mylifemyid website had originated from Government internet addresses between the establishment of the site and the end of 2008. [251644]

Meg Hillier: It is not possible to provide the information requested as the web analytics package that is used for mylifemyid (Google Analytics) does not provide the IP addresses of people visiting the website.

Illegal Immigrants

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) educational facilities and (b) health care facilities have been (i) raided on suspicion of and (ii) fined for providing a service to an illegal immigrant by the UK Border Agency and its predecessors since 2004; and what the (A) offence and (B) amount of the fine was in each case. [246236]

Jacqui Smith: The UK Border Agency does not specifically conduct operational enforcement visits to educational or health care facilities that might be providing a service to an illegal immigrant nor has a fine been issued in such circumstances.

The UK Border Agency does conduct compliance visits to educational providers to ensure that they are a bona fide establishment and will act on any intelligence it receives that immigration offenders might be present at certain premises or that a business is employing illegal workers.

If an employer is found to be employing an illegal migrant worker, then they may be subject to a civil penalty of up to £10,000 for each illegal worker or, in more serious cases, criminal prosecution. If convicted on indictment, the employer may face an unlimited fine and, in some cases, imprisonment for up to two years.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many suspected illegal immigrants were discovered as lorry stowaways at motorway service areas, broken down by location, in each month since January 2005. [246243]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested about how many illegal immigrants have registered at reception centres in (a) Liverpool and (b) Croydon following detection as lorry stowaways is not available from existing records.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many illegal immigrants have registered at reception centres in (a) Liverpool and (b) Croydon following detection as lorry stowaways in each month since January 2005. [246271]

Jacqui Smith: The UK Border Agency's National Operations Database (NOD) records the number of individuals arrested and referred to the Agency by the police broken down by office and not where the individual was discovered. The number of lorry stowaways arrested and referred to the UK Border Agency by the police since August 2005 to November 2008 broken down by office is as follows at Annex A.

This information has only been recorded since August 2005.

The figures provided do not constitute part of National Statistics as it is based on management information. This information has not been quality assured under National Statistics protocols and should be treated as provisional.

NOD OAR Reports April to September 2008, October 2008 and November 2008.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) analysis has been commissioned and (b) research has been carried out by her Department on the likely number of illegal immigrants in the UK since her Department's online report 58/04, "Sizing the Illegally Resident Population in the UK". [250070]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 22 January 2009]: No Government have ever been able to produce an accurate figure for the number of people who are in the country illegally. By its very nature it is impossible to quantify accurately and that remains the case.

Although it is impossible to determine accurately how many people are in the UK illegally, the Home Office published the report "Sizing the unauthorised (illegal) migrant population in the United Kingdom in 2001" in 2005 as Home Office Online Report 29/05. This was a follow-on report from Online Report 58/04, "Sizing the Illegally Resident Population in the UK".

A copy of the report is available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://rds.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs05/rdsolr2905.pdf

Illegal Immigrants: Deportation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many illegal immigrants have been deported from the UK in each year since 2004. [246239]

Jacqui Smith: The chief executive of the UK Border Agency has regularly written to the Home Affairs Select Committee in which she has provided all of the most robust and accurate information on the subject of deportation of foreign criminals. In her most recent letter to the Committee, dated 8 December, she advised that the agency had deported or removed over 4,500 foreign criminals and was on track to not only meet but exceed its target of deporting or removing 5,000 foreign criminals in 2008. Copies of her letters are available in the Library of the House.

The UK Border Agency has since confirmed that, according to provisional management information, more than 5,000 foreign criminals were removed or deported in 2008.

Published statistics on immigration and asylum, including removal of illegal immigrants, are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html.

Immigrants: English Language

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of those who have taken the English language test for immigrants have (a) passed and (b) failed the test since its introduction. [251476]

Mr. Woolas: It is assumed that the question refers to the Life in the UK test.

For the period October 2005, when the test was introduced, to October 2008:

69.9 per cent. of tests have resulted in a pass

30.1 per cent. have resulted in a fail.

These figures relate to the number of tests taken and not the number of candidates taking the test as candidates who fail may take the test as many times as they wish.

Note:

Figures provided by Ufi Ltd.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons her Department has decided to exempt foreign footballers bought by British football clubs from completing the English language test for a year; and what other conditions apply exclusively to footballers immigrating to this country. [251477]

Mr. Woolas: There are provisions for sports people under Tier 2 and Tier 5 of the points based system. Those entering under Tier 2: Sport need to meet an English language requirement, while those entering under Tier 5 will not. This is due to the temporary nature of Tier 5. Those entering under the Tier 5: Creative and Sporting sub-category, are granted leave for a maximum of 12 months. These routes are available to all sports.

We have provided arrangements exclusively for footballers to enable them to switch from Tier 5: Creative and Sporting into Tier 2: Sport without having to leave the UK. This is because we have recognised that the tight time scales around the transfer window mean that not all football players will have time to take an English test to prove that they are able to meet the English language requirement for Tier 2: Sport. Therefore they will be able to switch in country from Tier 5 to Tier 2 once they can prove they meet the English language requirement.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what score is required to pass the English language test for immigrants; and what the procedure is when an individual fails the test. [251478]

Mr. Woolas: The pass mark for the 'Life in the UK test' is set at around 75 per cent. Applicants failing the test are required to wait a minimum of seven days before they are able to sit the test again. Those who wish to sit the test again need to book a new test date and time with their test centre and pay the test fee again.

Those applicants who feel they did not pass the test because of their level of English have the alternative option of attending an ESOL with citizenship course at their local further education college.

Immigration: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many residents in Peterborough constituency who are (a) Afghan, (b) Iraqi and (c) other non-EEA nationals are awaiting determination in respect of applications for leave to remain; and if she will make a statement. [249283]

Mr. Woolas: The following table details the number of Afghan, Iraqi and other non-EEA nationalities in Peterborough awaiting a decision on their leave to remain application.

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Nationality	Number of cases
Afghan	10
Iraqi	10
Other non-EEA nationals	200

1. Data relate to lead applicants only

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals applied for a marriage visa to enter the United Kingdom from (a) Pakistan and (b) other non-EEA countries whose intended spouse was resident in Peterborough constituency in each year since 2001; and if she will make a statement. [249288]

Mr. Woolas: The requested information is unavailable and could be obtained only by examination of individual case records and therefore at disproportionate cost.

Legal Opinion

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of external legal services engaged by her Department was in 2007-08. [251364]

Mr. Woolas: The Department's expenditure on external legal services is set out in the following table.

Home Office	2,856,099
Identity and Passport Service	3,460,000
Criminal Records Bureau	25,520

This figure does not include the cost to the Home Office of litigation or other legal services provided by the Treasury Solicitor or elsewhere within Government.

Legal costs are incurred in accordance with guidance, issued by Attorney General, on what constitutes core Government business and the use of the private sector for Government legal work.

Contracts for external legal services are awarded on the basis of value for money, in line with the Government's policy on public procurement.

Lunar House

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to provide facilities at Lunar House for all queuing to take place indoors. [252317]

Mr. Woolas: Planning is currently under way for the area beneath Lunar house to be enclosed, providing a safe and secure queuing area for customers attending both the public inquiry office and the asylum screening unit.

Offensive Weapons

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) warnings were given, (b) cautions were issued and (c) prosecutions were brought for the illegal possession of knives in each year for which figures are available, broken down by police force area. [248011]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Data collected centrally on the number of offenders cautioned and the number of defendants proceeded against for the possession of an article with a blade or point, from 1997 to 2007 (the latest available), broken down by police force area, are given in the following tables. Offences involving knives specifically are not separately identifiable from this data.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Information on the number of warnings given to offenders by the police is not collected centrally.

[4] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

[1] From 1 June 2000, the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.

[2] Includes the following offences and statutes:

Having an article with blade or point in public place. (Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139 as amended by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.3).

Having an article with blade or point on school premises. (Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139A (1)(5)(a) as added by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.4(1)).

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many investigations there have been into instances of persons without permission to work in the UK working on the Olympic site; and how many prosecutions have ensued. [251021]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 26 January 2009]: Between April and December 2008 UK Border Agency staff, working in close co-operation with CLM and contractors on the Olympic Park, have arrested 136 people on suspicion of working in the UK without permission. Of these: 16 have been prosecuted, 11 removed from the UK and 19 have been granted leave to remain in the UK based on new applications to the Home Office. The remainder either have applications awaiting decisions or are awaiting travel documents for removal from the UK.

Overseas Visitors: Fees and Charges

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how much has been accrued in fees paid by foreign visitors obliged to register with the local police service in each of the last five years; [252314]

(2) what expenditure has been incurred on administration arising from the requirement for some foreign visitors to register with the local police in each of the last five years. [252315]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not held centrally.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officials at each grade (a) are employed and (b) were employed in each of the last five years in her Department's Parliamentary Unit. [244888]

Passports: Fraud

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the cost of (a) processing and (b) issuing passports which arise from fraudulent applications in the most recent period for which figures are available. [250078]

Meg Hillier: The cost of processing and issuing a passport as the result of a fraudulent application which is not identified as such, is the same as it is for any other passport application. For the 2007-08 financial year the average cost of processing and issuing a UK passport in the UK was £55.69 per passport. The provisional average cost for the 2008-09 financial year is £57.35 per passport. The difference between these costs and the final cost of the passport is the FCO fee which varies according to the final price of the product.

Passports: Interviews

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applicants had been refused a passport as a result of decisions consequent on an interview carried out at a passport interview centre by the end of 2008. [251643]

Meg Hillier: There have been no applications refused yet as a direct result of a confirmation of identity interview. As the main function of the interview is to act as a deterrent to those attempting to assume another identity, we expect the number to remain low.

Police: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers per head of population in the Cambridgeshire Constabulary area there were in the Northern Basic Command Unit in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [250805]

Mr. Coaker: Basic command unit data have been centrally collected since 2002-03, and the available data are given in the following table.

The requested data are published annually in the supplementary tables of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin series "Police Service Strength, England and Wales" copies of which are available online and in the Library of the House.

Police officers (FTE)[1] per 100,000 population for Northern Basic Command Unit, Cambridgeshire Police

[1] These figures are based on full-time equivalents that have been rounded to the nearest whole number, due to rounding there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of constituent items. Figures include those officers on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.

Police: Diabetes

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) first aid training and (b) first aid training relating to diabetes is provided to police officers; how often police officers are required to complete first aid training; and which officer in each police force is responsible for ensuring that officers complete that training. [251486]

Mr. Coaker: First aid training is delivered as part of the Initial Police Learning and Development Programme (IPLDP), which is compulsory for all student police officers. The first aid module of IPLDP exceeds Health and Safety Executive recommendations for an 'Appointed Persons' first aid course.

Specific reference to diabetes (which may be mistaken for drunkenness) is covered in two sets of student notes that deal with legislation, policy and guidelines (LPGs). These are:

LPG1.3.16 Drunkenness in a public place, and

LPG1.5.10 Liquor licensing

Both of these subject areas are mandatory for student officers and optional for police community support officers. Attention is drawn to the fact that a person who is drowsy and smells of alcohol may also be suffering from diabetes, epilepsy, head injury, drug intoxication, overdose or stroke.

It is the responsibility of all police officers and staff to comply with the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 Code C—Code Of Practice For The Detention, Treatment And Questioning Of Persons By Police Officers when dealing with casualties who are detained in police custody.

Police: Finance

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) expenditure on policing and (b) her Department's resource budget allocation for police spending was in each year since 1997-98. [247113]

Jacqui Smith: Information on the provision for policing by central Government is set out in the following table.

Police: Personal Records

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance is issued to senior police officers on security and non-disclosure of their personal details. [250810]

Mr. Coaker: Senior police officers are advised, as with all police officers, to be aware of potential issues that could arise on the disclosure of their own personal information. This advice is given locally through their own Force Professional Standards or Information Assurance department. Problems with disclosure could include, but are not restricted to, an attack on either themselves or their family either by members of the criminal fraternity, terrorist organisations, or a member of the public.

It is also the duty of the individual force and the Government to maintain protection of these data where they are seen to be a threat to the police officer, their family, other police officers or members of the public.

Pornography: Internet

Dan Norris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government are taking to prevent children and young people from accessing pornographic material made available through file sharing programs on the internet. [251830]

Mr. Alan Campbell: In April 2008 the Government launched a kitemark for filtering software developed by the Home Office and Ofcom and in partnership with BSI. This kitemark will be promoted by the UK Council for Child Internet Safety through the industry standards working group. The Government accepted all of the recommendations in the Byron review, 'Safer Children in a Digital World', which includes continued research and reviews on age verification to further prevent children accessing inappropriate material. This work will be taken forward by UKCCIS.

Prostitution: Human Trafficking

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the evidential basis is for her Department's position that 80 per cent. of women working as prostitutes have been trafficked into the UK; and if she will place in the Library a copy of such evidence. [247522]

Mr. Alan Campbell: It is not the position of the Home Office that 80 per cent. of women working as prostitutes have been trafficked into the UK. Tackling the Demand for Prostitution: A Review stated that there were an estimated 80,000 people involved in prostitution in the UK, and that the most recent Home Office analysis (from 2003) had estimated that up to 4,000 women in the UK had been trafficked for sexual exploitation.

Terrorism

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the extent to which persons (a) convicted of and (b) suspected of terrorist offences in the United Kingdom have used (i) multiple and (ii) false identities. [251463]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally.

Investigations into a person's identity at the time of arrest is an operational matter for the police.

Terrorism: Libya

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what quantity of (a) weapons and (b) explosives is estimated to have been supplied to IRA terrorists by Libya between 1980 and 2000. [247220]

Paul Goggins: I have been asked to reply.

This is an intelligence matter and it is the longstanding practice of successive Governments not to comment on such matters.

UK Border Agency: Manpower

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals the UK Border Agency employs. [250180]

Mr. Woolas: As at 31 December 2008, the United Kingdom Border Agency (UKBA) employed directly 18,078 individuals (excluding 1,206 employees on career break, loan to other Government Departments, maternity leave etc.).

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Child Minding: Registration

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether childminders working two hours or less a week have to pay a fee to Ofsted to become registered. [251041]

Beverley Hughes: As part of a number of reforms that were introduced in September 2008, we extended and redefined the categories of child care that are exempt from compulsory registration. Where child care is provided by a child minder, or any other type of provider, for an individual child for two hours or less per day, these providers would be exempt from registration. The full range of exemptions are set out in the Childcare (Exemptions from Registration) Order 2008 (SI 2008 No 979.) which can be found at:

http://www.opsi.gov.uk/si/si2008/uksi_20080979_en_1

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many industrial tribunal cases there have been involving Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service staff in each of the last five years; and how many of them (a) were settled in the employee's favour and (b) involved redundancy payments. [252999]

Beverley Hughes: CAFCASS has had six employment tribunals within the last five years. There were no employment tribunals prior to 2007. During 2007-08 there were four employment tribunals and during 2008-09 there were two. None of these tribunals were settled in the employee's favour and none of these involved redundancy payments.

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment has been made of the current level of backlog of work in the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service; and what estimate has been made of the number of staff hours required to deal with that backlog. [253000]

Beverley Hughes: At the end of December 2008, CAFCASS had a backlog of 414 public law cases and 1,979 private law reports. The size of backlogs is influenced by levels of demand which, in December, were unusually high for public law cases.

CAFCASS attempts to allocate all care and supervision cases within two working days of receipt, and has achieved this on 73 per cent. of cases received between April and December 2008, against a key performance indicator of 65 per cent. for this financial year.

CAFCASS aims to complete all cases within timescales agreed by local courts for filing all types of report and case analysis. CAFCASS does not have an estimate of the time necessary to deal with the backlogs as this depends on the circumstances of individual cases. CAFCASS is working with its statutory partners in the family justice system to keep all backlogs and delays to a minimum.

Children: Databases

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what procedures are in place to request that a child's personal data be shielded on the ContactPoint database; and what appeals procedure is in place in respect of decisions taken on shielding requests; [252893]

(2) what guidance his Department has given to local authorities on the shielding of children's personal data on the ContactPoint database; [252894]

(3) what steps his Department is taking to ensure consistency across local authorities in their implementation of data shielding under ContactPoint; [252895]

(4) what recent estimate he has made of the number of records that will be subject to shielding on the ContactPoint database. [252900]

Beverley Hughes: ContactPoint is an online tool to enable support for children and young people to be effectively coordinated and ensure that they do not slip through the net. It will contain basic identifying information about all children and young people in England, up to their 18th birthday, and contact details for their parents/carers and for services working with a child or young person and nothing more. ContactPoint will be the quick way for practitioners to find out who else is working with the same child.

Shielding of a small proportion of records on ContactPoint is an additional precautionary measure appropriate in the case of children who are at risk of significant harm if their whereabouts were to become known. Parents who believe this to be the case can contact their local authority and make a request for the record to be shielded on ContactPoint. Local authorities will apply the criteria set out in statutory guidance to determine whether it is appropriate to shield the record on ContactPoint. Such decisions will be made on a case-by-case basis and may take into account the level of threat posed, and the views of the child or young person in question, their parents or carers and any practitioners involved with the child.

Where the child, young person, parent/carer or practitioner disagrees with a shielding decision, they should follow existing procedures in the local authority for complaints and appeals.

Comprehensive national guidance on shielding policy and processes has been made available to all local authorities:

The ContactPoint Guidance, which was made available to local authorities in July 2008, sets out the policy on shielding.

Best Practice Processes: Manage Data, which was made available to local authorities in August 2008, sets out the recommended business processes for shielding.

Additional guidance, produced in response to specific questions asked by local authorities, was made available in December 2008.

The policy and processes for shielding have been informed by the experience of a range of bodies including the Children's Society, Women's Aid, the Greater London Domestic Violence Project, the National Police Improvement Agency and the Association of Chief Police Officers.

We are not in a position at this early point to provide a definitive figure for numbers of records that may be shielded. However, early indications are that between one and two hundred records on average may be shielded in each local authority.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has spent on ContactPoint in each year since 2003; what its projected spend on ContactPoint is for each of the next four years; and under what budgetary headings such expenditure is expected to be incurred. [252964]

Beverley Hughes: The total costs for implementing the system are estimated at £224 million, unchanged since I announced in December 2005 that the Government would proceed with this project. These estimated costs include the costs of adapting systems that will supply the data to ContactPoint and adapting the day-to-day systems used by practitioners so they can access ContactPoint from their own systems. It also includes the costs to ensure security, data accuracy and staff training. Operating costs thereafter are estimated to be £41 million per year. Most of this will go directly to local authorities to fund staff to ensure the ongoing security, accuracy and audit of ContactPoint.

The following table shows actual and anticipated expenditure by year, broken down into set up costs and operating costs.

	Set up	Operating	Total
2005-06 (pre-project)	2,157	0	2,157

Children: Day Care

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of provision of childcare in each local authority area. [252966]

Beverley Hughes: Section 6 of the Childcare Act 2006 requires each local authority to secure, so far as is reasonably practicable, sufficient childcare provision to meet the needs of working parents in their area. Sufficiency does not simply relate to the numbers of places available but also encompasses consideration of the accessibility, affordability, flexibility, sustainability and quality of such places.

To enable local authorities to meet the Sufficiency Duty they were also required under Section 11 of the Act to complete a Childcare Sufficiency Assessment by 31 March 2008. These assessments included analysis of the extent of the provision of, and demand for, childcare places, and identified any local gaps. Local authorities have to repeat the assessment process every three years, and must keep their assessments up to date in between times. Assessments are required to be to be published on local authority websites.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many local authorities have (a) completed their childcare efficiency assessment and (b) identified gaps in their provision of affordable childcare. [252981]

Beverley Hughes: As required under Section 11 of the Childcare Act 2006, all local authorities have completed and published their first child care sufficiency assessments. These assessments offer a detailed analysis of the extent of the provision of, and demand for, child care places, and identify any gaps in such provision. The duty to secure sufficient child care which came into force in April 2008 requires local authorities progressively to eliminate gaps in provision and I would expect all local authorities to be working to close gaps they have identified.

Children: Forced Marriage

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he has implemented a national policy for safeguarding children at risk of forced marriage. [247394]

Beverley Hughes: The Home Office leads work on the Government's national domestic violence delivery plan including work on forced marriage. The Department for Children Schools and Families (DCSF) is a key partner in this work and we are committed to doing all we can to tackle forced marriage and to engage effectively with local communities. We work closely with the Forced Marriage Unit to improve the engagement of schools and local authorities. In April 2008 DCSF Ministers wrote to local authorities and schools reminding them of their responsibilities relating to forced marriage, and in June 2008 new materials were launched to raise awareness of forced marriage. These were sent to all secondary schools, pupil referral units, local authorities and local safeguarding children boards. In November 2008 new statutory guidance was published aimed at local authorities and other agencies entitled "The Right to Choose: Multi-agency statutory guidance for dealing with Forced Marriage". Practice guidelines to support the implementation of this statutory guidance are being developed and will be available shortly.

Children: Literacy

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent progress has been made under the (a) Every Child a Reader and (b) Every Child Counts programmes; and if he will make a statement. [247396]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Every Child a Reader (ECaR) was established by the KPMG Every Child a Chance Trust in 2005, and from September 2008 is being rolled out by the National Strategies on behalf of Government. By 2010-11, it aims to support the bottom 5 per cent. (approximately 30,000) of children aged 5 and 6 who are struggling to learn to read. It combines one-to-one Reading Recovery support with other less intensive interventions. The programme works on a cascade model whereby each local authority funds Teacher Leader training, and Teacher Leaders, in turn, train Reading Recovery teachers to deliver one-to-one tuition and coordinate the programme in schools. Forty-two Teacher Leaders have so far been trained, and a further 20 local authorities selected a Teacher Leader to undertake the required Masters level training from September 2008. A further cohort will begin training from September 2009, putting us on course to reach 30,000 children a year by 2010-11.

In November 2008, the KPMG Every Child a Chance Trust published their final report on the three-year ECaR pilot. This found that the programme has continued to deliver reliable results for children, both in terms of raising attainment levels and narrowing the social and gender gap. Over 86 per cent. of children who received Reading Recovery in year 1 went on to meet national expectations (level 2+) in reading at the end of KS1, in comparison to 84 per cent. nationally.

Every Child Counts (ECC) is a mathematics intervention programme targeted at the bottom 5 per cent. (around 30,000) of children aged 6 and 7 who are struggling with numeracy. The programme combines one-to-one Numbers Count support with other less intensive interventions. ECC builds on the relationship with the KPMG Every Child a Chance Trust, established to deliver the ECaR programme. The National Strategies will lead on the national roll-out from 2010. This follows a two-year development phase which began in September 2008.

ECC follows the same structure as ECaR. Twenty-one local authorities started the pilot programme in September 2008, each with a Teacher Leader training at Masters level, directing the work at a local level among schools and training Numbers Count teachers. From September 2009, a further cohort will begin training, expanding the programme until national roll-out in 2010.

Data from the research phase showed that 73 per cent. of children receiving the Numbers Count intervention went on to achieve level 2 or above at the end of KS1. Before receiving the programme, none of these children were predicted to reach age-level expectations at this stage.

Children: Protection

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were (a) on an at-risk register and (b) taken into care in each local authority area in the Government Office for the North East region in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [251856]

Beverley Hughes: Figures on the number of children subject to a child protection plan at 31 March, by local authority, are available in table 9D of the annual statistical first release "Referrals, Assessments and Children and Young People who are the subject of a Child Protection Plan, England". The publication can be found at the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000811/index.shtml

The number of children that have been taken into care in each local authority area in the Government Office for the North East region in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008 can be found in the following table.

1 Only the first occasion on which a child started to be looked after in the year has been counted.

[2] Figures exclude children looked after under an agreed series of short term placements.

[3] Children deemed to be "taken" into care are those who started to be looked after as the result of a care order (full or interim), police protection, emergency protection order or child assessment order.

[4] To ensure that no individual can be identified from statistical tables, we use conventions for the rounding and suppression of very small numbers. Numbers at Local Authority level have been rounded to the nearest 5 and numbers at region level have been rounded to the nearest 10.

SSDA903 return on children looked after

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1701W, on children: protection, when Ministers plan to make their decision on intervention; and what steps he plans to take to publish that decision. [252602]

Beverley Hughes: The nature of the Department's intervention in Birmingham was communicated in a letter to the Leader of the Council on 29 January 2009. The letter has also been copied to local MPs.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families who is responsible for writing the executive summaries to reports on serious case reviews. [252963]

Beverley Hughes: It is the responsibility of the Local Safeguarding Children Board (LSCB) to make sure that an executive summary of the Serious Case Review is completed. It should be written by the independent person commissioned to write the overview report. The LSCB should make sure that the executive summary includes, as a minimum, information about the review process, key issues arising from the case and the recommendations that have been made.

Children's Centres: Domestic Violence

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will issue guidance to children's centres on increasing awareness of domestic violence. [252655]

Beverley Hughes: The Sure Start Children's Centres Practice Guidance already highlights families experiencing domestic violence among those groups of families that find it hardest to access the services they need. It encourages centres to ensure that parents or other family members have access to appropriate support and to offer assistance through referral to helplines and counselling, or informal group support sessions, held at the centre itself. The guidance also provides details of the 24 Hour National Domestic Violence Helpline and the Men's Advice Line and Enquiries (MALE) which provides support for men in abusive relationships.

The Government recognise the strong links between child protection concerns and domestic violence and stresses the need for awareness of those links in its inter-agency guidance 'Working Together to Safeguard Children (2006)' which is available to all organisations working with, or who come into contact with children, including Sure Start Children's Centres.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public in each year since it was established. [251433]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

With respect to correspondence from members of the public, the Department cannot provide the requested information within disproportionate costs limits, but we do aim to respond to all written correspondence within 15 working days. Statistics on the handling of letters from members of the public is published in the Department's annual report.

Departmental Manpower

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made on plans to ensure that the target for full-time equivalent headcount reductions, referred to on page 109 of the Department's 2008 Annual Report, will be met. [247453]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department will reduce its headcount through a voluntary early release scheme to meet its targets. Since its inception, 118 employees in 2007-08 were released with a further 24 early releases planned in 2008-09 and 58 releases in 2009-10.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many staff his Department employs in each of its divisions. [249888]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The current number of employees in the Department's Directorates is set out as follows:

Directorate	Staff (full-time equivalent)
Children and Families	477.2
Communications	242.0
Corporate Services	866.7
Schools	698.1
Young People	305.9
Private Office	57.8
Legal	5
Internal Audit	38.2

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on entertainment and hospitality in each year since 1997. [247309]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Secretary of State on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 9W, to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove).

Departmental Responsibilities

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress his Department has made against its Action Plan; and if he will make a statement. [247266]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The departmental action plan focuses on the key improvements required in our culture and ways of working. It addresses the gaps identified through the Capability review process and other departmental reform. The Capability re-review undertaken in June 2008 confirmed the Department had made good progress in closing the capability gaps. The report of the re-review is published/publicly available and includes a response from the permanent secretary.

Departmental Sick Leave

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much sickness absence there was among staff in his Department in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [247189]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department was set up as part of the machinery of government changes on 28 June 2007, so figures only apply from 1 July 2007. Sickness absence data for the Department since its inception, including the average number of days are published on the Department's website at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/sicknessabsence/

Departmental Supply Estimates

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the written ministerial statement of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 49WS, on departmental expenditure limit (2008-09), what the budget was for each of his Department's budgets under (a) RfR1 and (b) RfR2 (i) before and (ii) after the changes announced in the written ministerial statement. [251415]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Changes to budgets are set out in Part II (Changes proposed) of the DCSF Winter Supplementary Estimate which was published as part of HC 1163 'Central Government Supply Estimate 2008-09 Winter Supplementary Estimates' dated 25 November 2008.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the written ministerial statement of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 49WS, on departmental expenditure limit (2008-09), which non-departmental public bodies have had their budgets increased as a result of the changes announced in the Statement. [251416]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Four non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) had their budgets increased as a result of changes announced in the written ministerial statement referred to: the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA); the National College for School Leadership (NCSL); the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDAS); and the Children's Commissioner. In addition the Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC) received a budget for the first time.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247336]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information on the use of 0844 and 0845 numbers by service providers to the department can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The DCSF does not participate in revenue share schemes associated with non-geographic telephone numbers and therefore derives no revenue from the use of these numbers. The Department does use non-geographic telephone numbers such as 0870 and 0845 for its public inquiry line and other entry points. However, the Department has never received any income from the use of these numbers and does not offer refunds to callers. It's important to note that, in accordance with Central Office of Information (COI) advice, in most cases the Department offers alternative non-telephone methods of contact such as email and letter.

The Department is in discussion with the COI to investigate, along with alternatives, the use of 03 numbers as replacements.

The Department and its service providers use the following 0845 numbers. We do not have any 0844 numbers. The total quantity of telephone numbers can change as services are introduced or closed.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 628W, on economic and monetary union, when the updating of his Department's euro changeover plan is expected to be completed. [250090]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Euro Changeover Plan will be revised by the end of 2009 to take account of DCSF changes in the delivery of corporate services during the year.

NVQ: Teaching Assistants

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teaching assistants have reached National Vocational Qualification level (a) 2 and (b) 3 of the Training Development for School programme. [248868]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Offences Against Children

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the statement of 20 November 2008, Official Report, columns 372-74W, on safeguarding children, when he expects the further serious case review to be complete. [252685]

Beverley Hughes: The Chair of Haringey Local Safeguarding Children Board has been asked to submit the new Serious Case Review into the death of Baby P to Ofsted for evaluation by the end of February and to publish the executive summary by the end of March.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what cars of what engine cubic capacity are (a) owned and (b) leased by his Department. [250030]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Two cars are currently owned by the Department for Children, Schools and Families (i) 2001 Vauxhall Vectra 1995 cubic capacity and (ii) 2003 Vauxhall Astra 1595 cubic capacity. No cars are currently leased by the Department.

Parents: Hearing Impaired

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of the number of deaf parents of children of school age. [251233]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not collect these data centrally.

We recognise the particular problems faced by disabled parents and our forthcoming parent survey will enable us to understand more fully the views of disabled parents. We have committed to providing guidance for schools and other settings on working with parents, which will include meeting the needs of deaf parents.

Pre-School Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the findings of the Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey in 2007, what assessment he has made of the likely effects of trends in the profitability of children's centres on levels of childcare provision. [252063]

Beverley Hughes: The Department continues to provide support through guidance and close-working with partners to ensure that child care in children's centres can be sustainable. Local authorities received £122 million in 2008/09 to help secure sufficiency and access to affordable, high quality child care in their areas. The Government remain committed to ensuring that high-quality child care is available for the most disadvantaged families, and children's centres play a pivotal role in supporting this aim.

Schools: Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps his Department plans to take to ensure that Building Schools for the Future schools which are required to display a Display Energy Certificate do so; and if he will make a statement; [252587]

(2) how many schools in each region (a) are required to display and (b) display Display Energy Certificates; and what the energy consumption of each of those schools was in the latest period for which information is available; [252608]

(3) how many schools have incurred penalties for failure to (a) display a Display Energy Certificate and (b) obtain an associated advisory report; and how much has been imposed in such penalties; [252609]

(4) how many and what percentage of Building Schools for the Future programme schools were in each of the Display Energy Certificate energy efficiency bands A to G at the latest date for which information is available; [252611]

(5) what data his Department are gathering on the effect on carbon dioxide emissions of use of renewables technologies in Building Schools for the Future schools. [252655]

Jim Knight: The requirements to display a Display Energy Certificate (DEC) for an existing school and an Energy Performance Certificate (EPC) for a new school are legal requirements, for which the enforcement responsibility rests with Local Trading Standards Offices. We do not keep records of whether schools have incurred penalties for non-compliance or of penalties. The Department's contribution is to help schools comply. To that end, we have issued guidance on the Teachernet website for all schools on the requirement for DECs in schools[1]. We have no plans for further action beyond this.

The regulatory impact assessment produced by the Department for Communities and Local Government gives an estimate of the number of educational buildings in England that require a Display Energy Certificate[2]. We do not know how many schools are displaying the certificates as required. The Department has published aggregated Benchmark National and Regional Statistics on Energy Consumption of Schools for 1999 to 2003[3].

New schools built under Building Schools for the Future are required to have an Energy Performance Certificate rather than a Display Energy Certificate. Existing schools which are refurbished will have DECs. Both DECs and EPCs are recorded on a national register available at:

To access the data the unique reference number of the certificate must be known. Schools can therefore access their data using their certificate number. Individual school energy data are kept confidential and Communities and Local Government only receive aggregated data from the register. There are no plans to publish individual school energy data although many local authorities and schools hold these data themselves. Communities and Local Government are developing a data handling strategy for the aggregate data which should be in place by April this year. From an existing extract of provisional data from 19 December 2008 we know that, at that date, 28 secondary schools and 64 primary schools had EPCs. The numbers of these schools in each of the efficiency bands is given in the following table. To put these figures into perspective the average non-domestic EPC rating is currently a 'C'.

Percentage of primary schools	Percentage of secondary schools	Asset rating efficiency band	Asset ratings
15	14	B	26-50
10	1	C	51-75
15	8	D	76-100
13	1	E	101-125
5	1	F	126-150
5	1	G	Over 150

We are asking Communities and Local Government for a similar data extract for Display Energy Certificates and will be able to supply the efficiency band percentage splits to the hon. Member in the next two weeks. We will be discussing how future reports of the percentage splits can be made public with CLG as part of the development of their strategy for DEC and EPC data.

The data extract we have from CLG also lists the main heating fuel for all the schools. Where Biomass is the main heating fuel it is therefore listed. The three schools which have achieved 'A' ratings all have used biomass as the main heating fuel. This shows the impact that the use of biomass can have on the carbon rating of a school. No other renewables are identifiable on the data provided.

The Department requires that newly constructed schools, including those within Building Schools for the Future, meet a carbon emissions reduction of 60 per cent. relative to the energy efficiency standards in 2002 building regulations. Additional funding has been provided for more than 200 schools in Building Schools for the Future and the academies programme to fund the implementation of energy efficiency and renewable energy measures on school sites to enable this requirement to be met. We have developed a 'carbon calculator'—a software tool—which allows users to compare the likely effectiveness of various energy efficiency and renewable energy solutions, and to demonstrate how they would achieve the 60 per cent. reduction. We have received completed carbon calculators for 53 school projects which are currently in design[4].

Partnerships for Schools monitors the compliance of the carbon ratings of school designs with government targets and in PFI schools ensures that the payment mechanism during the contract period (normally 25 years) reflects the DCSF policy on energy use. A low carbon rating may be due to energy efficient design or the employment of low and zero carbon fuels, including renewables.

Schools: Vetting

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) teachers, (b) classroom assistants and (c) school volunteers are waiting for Criminal Records Bureau clearance before taking up a position. [248865]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Social Services: Standards

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which local authorities have received a grade one for safeguarding in their joint area reviews by Ofsted in the last 18 months. [252275]

Beverley Hughes: Five joint area reviews undertaken since April 2007 have reported services for safeguarding as grade 1, which signifies that inspectorates judged the services to be inadequate. They were the reviews of services in Haringey, Hertfordshire, Reading, Surrey and Wokingham.

Special Educational Needs

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many places there were in maintained special schools in each of the last 10 years, broken down by local authority. [247853]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Tables have been placed in the Library showing the number of pupils by type of school, including maintained special schools, in each local authority for the years 1999 to 2008.

The Department does not collect data on maintained special schools places but collects actual pupil numbers. In general, local authorities fund special schools on the basis of the number of pupils for which they will normally be expected to cater, whether or not the places are actually occupied. This enables a stable resource base to be maintained, while allowing for the admission of pupils whose needs are identified during the year.

Truancy

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of pupils classed as persistent absentees were absent from school for more than (a) 100, (b) 150, (c) 200, (d) 250 and (e) 300 sessions of school in the 2007-08 academic year. [240612]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information is not yet available.

Young People: Financial Services

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps he is taking to ensure young people are equipped with personal finance skills; and if he will make a statement; [251202]

(2) what plans he has to include personal finance skills in initial teacher training courses; and if he will make a statement. [251203]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Personal finance education is currently covered in the primary curriculum as part of the non-statutory framework for Personal, Social, Health and Economic (PSHE) education and Citizenship. Sir Jim Rose is currently carrying out an independent review of the primary curriculum, including PSHE education, and will report in March 2009.

The new 'economic wellbeing and financial capability' programme of study has been taught in secondary schools since September 2008 as part of the revised secondary non-statutory curriculum for PSHE education. The place of economic wellbeing in the curriculum will be further strengthened by our intention to consult on making PSHE education statutory.

The Government have also committed £11.5 million over three years to support financial education in schools. This includes provision to improve Continuing Professional Development (CPD) in financial capability for teachers. Standard Q15 in our standards for the award of Qualified Teacher Status (QTS) requires all trainee teachers at Key Stage 3 and 4 to demonstrate a familiarity with economic wellbeing and financial capability. Teachers of Business Education in the secondary phase will receive training in aspects of personal finance relevant to the 14-19 curriculum. We are working with the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) to develop a specialist PSHE education route through Initial Teacher Training.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Pension Credit: Savings

12. Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he plans to amend the 10 per cent. rule on savings when calculating pension credit. [253035]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Tariff income rules provide a simple method of calculating the contribution people with £6,000 of capital are expected to make and does not reflect any rate of return.

80 per cent. of pension credit recipients are unaffected by the tariff income rules.

Incapacity Benefit

13. Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has for future arrangements for assistance offered by his Department to long-term recipients of incapacity benefit. [253036]

James Purnell: We have already invested heavily to support existing incapacity benefit customers into work, by ensuring they can volunteer for any appropriate back to work support available in Pathways to Work. Our recent White Paper announced a strong package of new initiatives to provide further support to this group, including pilots of new innovative approaches such as the 'invest to save' pathfinders recommended by David Freud.

Jobcentre Plus

17. Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps Jobcentre Plus is taking to help unemployed people find jobs. [253040]

Mr. McNulty: Everyone who becomes unemployed has access to the thousands of jobs on the Jobcentre Plus website or through the jobs helpline. Despite the recent increases in claimants, 70 per cent. of customers are seen within three days of claiming for discussions about help in finding work.

Local Employment Partnerships are being extended to cover all unemployed customers. And from April, Jobcentre Plus will be introducing extra help for people who have been unemployed for six months or more.

Youth Unemployment

18. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent representations he has received on levels of unemployment among 18 to 24 year olds; and if he will make a statement. [253041]

Mr. McNulty: Despite recent increases the number of jobseeker's allowance claimants aged 18 to 24 is still 13.3 per cent. lower than in May 1997 and long term youth claimant unemployment has fallen by 73.4 per cent.

Since (February to April) 1997 the number of 18 to 24 ILO unemployed has risen 124,000 to 614,000. The number of 18 to 24-year-olds who have been ILO unemployed for more than six months is 200,000, down 10,000 since 1997.

Jobseeker's Allowance

20. Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what projection he has made of the number of people who will have been claiming jobseeker's allowance for over 12 months by October 2009. [253043]

Mr. McNulty: Of all new jobseeker's allowance claims, over 50 per cent. leave within three months, and around 75 per cent. by six months, demonstrating the effectiveness of the JSA regime.

Based on the unemployment assumption published at the pre-Budget report, we estimate that in 2009-10 there will be an average of 190,000 claimants of jobseeker's allowance who will have been claiming for over 12 months. These figures are planning assumptions only, and do not reflect an official view of numbers of unemployed people, or the duration of unemployment. They are based on the HM Treasury unemployment assumption, which is an average of several independent unemployment forecasts. An update to this assumption will be published at the Budget.

24. Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people aged between 18 and 24 years are claiming jobseeker's allowance in (a) Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency and (b) the UK. [253048]

Mr. McNulty: The number of 18 to 24-year-olds in the UK claiming jobseeker's allowance in December 2008 was 355,300.

In Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey the number of 18 to 24-year-olds claiming jobseeker's allowance was 315.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answers of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1997W, on jobseeker's allowance, what research analysis his Department has undertaken on the proportion of time jobseeker's allowance claimants spent (a) on benefits and (b) not on benefits or in work over a set period of time, including claimants with more than one benefit claim in the last five years. [243218]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 15 December 2008]: The published research available is in the Department for Work and Pensions Research Report No. 394, 'Repeat Jobseeker's Allowance Spells by Hannah Carpenter' (a copy of which has been placed in the Library), which found that 54 per cent. of people who claimed jobseeker's allowance between July 2003 and June 2004 were repeat claimants. They had spent an average one year out of the previous four on jobseeker's allowance, although the length of spells on benefit varied widely. A quarter of repeat claimants had been on other benefits in the previous four years.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the highest number of repeat claims made for jobseeker's allowance is; [249363]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of people flowing on to jobseeker's allowance in the last 12 months who have made (a) no, (b) between one and five, (c) between six and 10, (d) between 11 and 20 and (e) over 20 previous claims for jobseeker's allowance. [249365]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not routinely collected and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have claimed jobseeker's allowance for (a) five, (b) six, (c) seven, (d) eight, (e) nine and (f) 10 or more years. [249364]

Mr. McNulty: The available information is in the table.

Jobseeker's allowance claimants at May 2008 by duration

5 years	1,630
6 years	950
7 years	680
8 years	410
9 years	560
10 years or more	990

National Minimum Wage

21. Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent discussions he has had with Ministers in the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on the effects of the national minimum wage on levels of unemployment. [253044]

Mr. McNulty: Ministers hold regular meetings to discuss the impacts of departmental policies on the economy.

Carer's Allowance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's estimate is of the cost to the public purse of introducing a withdrawal rate for carer's allowance of (a) 10 per cent., (b) 20 per cent., (c) 30 per cent., (d) 40 per cent., (e) 50 per cent., (f) 60 per cent., (g) 70 per cent., (h) 80 per cent. and (i) 90 per cent. that would take effect at the current earnings limit in each of the next six years. [249153]

Jonathan Shaw: We do not have estimates available for the costs of introducing these policy changes.

Child Support

Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to improve the performance of the child support system. [253037]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission took over responsibility for the Child Maintenance System on 1 November 2008.

The latest figures show that the Commission collected and arranged a record £1.1 billion maintenance in the 12 months to December 2008, and is on track to further increase the amount of maintenance collected by the end of this year.

The reforms we have already made to the child maintenance system, including the introduction of a full child maintenance disregard in April 2010, will lift around 100,000 children out of poverty. But more is needed to tackle those parents who wilfully refuse to support their children—this is why we have also introduced proposals in the Welfare Reform Bill to give the Commission the power to remove passports and driving licence from those parents who wilfully refuse to take responsibility for their children.

Child Poverty

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the level of child poverty; and what plans he has to reduce it. [253042]

Kitty Ussher: The number of children in households with incomes below 60 per cent. of contemporary median income (before housing costs) in the United Kingdom in 2006-07 (latest information available) is 2.9 million, down 600,000 from 1997 and expected to reduce by a further 500,000 as a result of measures already announced.

On 28 January we launched the consultation, 'Ending Child Poverty: Making it Happen', ahead of a child poverty Bill that will enshrine in legislation the Government's promise to eradicate child poverty by 2020. The Bill will provide a framework to guarantee that Government and delivery partners at all levels make a clear contribution towards ending child poverty.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of contractors and suppliers to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies has reported compliance with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245331]

Jonathan Shaw: Data security is taken very seriously by the Department and is a key priority for its commercial team who are in regular contact with its suppliers and contractors at both senior managerial and operational levels. The Department has incorporated the new Office of Government Commerce model contract clauses relating to data security into new contracts. All relevant suppliers have been informed of the requirements. 98 per cent. of suppliers have confirmed that they are fully compliant.

The Department is actively working with the remaining suppliers and has action plans in place to achieve 100 per cent. compliance.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the Answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 24W, on departmental data protection, what the names of the (a) Senior Information Risk Owner and (b) Information Asset Owners are. [248750]

Jonathan Shaw: The names of the Department's (a) Senior Information Risk Owner, and (b) Information Asset Owners, are as follows.

(a) Senior Information Risk Owner: R. Heaton.

(b) Information Asset Owners: N. Cheetham; J. Doherty; S. Furse; R. Ginn; P. Greening; S. McKinnon-Evans; R. Molan; J. Oliver; H. Orme; J. Perryer; K. Roberts; D. Smith; M. Whitehouse.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has for his Department to achieve capability maturity model integration level 3 and beyond. [248938]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has already achieved capability maturity model integration (CMMI) level 2 and plans to achieve level 3 for the new CMMI for Acquisition model in the next year. The new standard, applies to the management of outsourced IT services which conforms more closely to the Department's approach. Our plans include the development of new processes and standard products at project, management and organisation unit levels, the review of existing processes, and an intensive programme of rollout and training activity.

Once level 3 is achieved the Department will review the business case for moving to higher levels.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the Answer of 17 July 2008, Official Report, column 640W, on departmental personnel, how many staff without posts there are in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies; how many staff without posts were classified as such upon return from maternity leave; and how many of the staff without posts have been classified as such for at least (i) six and (ii) 12 months. [250103]

Jonathan Shaw: As at 31 December 2008 there were 301 members of staff, in the Department for Work and Pensions, who were without a permanent post. The following table shows the number of staff in each business area of the Department. The table also details the numbers of staff who have been without a permanent post for more than six months and of that number those who have been without a permanent post for more than 12 months.

Agency/ business area	Staff without a permanent post	For at least six months	For at least 12 months
Jobcentre Plus	252	122	105
Pensions, Disability and Carer Services	14	8	4
Rest of the Department	35	9	4
Total	301	139	113

The number of these staff who had returned from maternity leave is not held centrally and would be available only at disproportionate cost.

Staff without permanent posts are actively engaged in delivering a range of departmental projects and duties, while seeking a new permanent position. They are given priority for posts in this Department and other Government Departments.

The Child Support Agency, figures for which were included in the response of 17 July 2008, transferred to the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission on 1 November 2008. At that time, there were no staff in the agency without permanent posts.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many bonuses to staff were paid by his Department in each year since 1998; how much was so paid in each year; and for what purposes these bonuses were awarded. [248728]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) was formed in 2001 as a result of machinery of government changes. Therefore it is only possible to provide the information requested from the 2002-03 financial year, which is when pay arrangements including those for bonuses were harmonised for all DWP employees.

End of Year Performance Bonuses

DWP employees below the senior civil service are eligible for an annual individual performance bonus if they attain a 'Top', 'Higher' or 'Majority' rating under the annual performance and development system. The bonus awarded is determined by the employee's pay band and the performance level achieved.

For the senior civil service, end of year bonuses are determined by the relevant DWP SCS Pay Committee.

* Performance awards from the year 2007-08 were payable in July of the financial year 2008-09. A total of £23.32 million has been paid. This is broken down as follows:

Table 1: Department Total

Financial year	Total number of recipients	Total paid (£ million)
2002-03	131,776	30.82

2007-08	202	1.73
2008-09	208	1.82

Notes:

1. The information in tables 1 and 2 is based on the number of employees recorded on the DWP payroll systems as having received a qualifying performance mark. These are headcount.

2. Some individuals may have received more than one type of bonus payment in the year, which is why the information has been presented separately and not as an aggregated total.

3. The performance bonus is paid in the financial year following the performance year of 1 April to 31 March.

4. The total amount paid includes employers national insurance contribution (ERNIC).

5. In-year cash bonus data was previously held on a separate IT system. Data from this system can only be obtained from a third party and there would be a cost ascribed to this provision. This would bring the cost of answering this PQ to above the threshold considered proportionate.

Special Bonus and Voucher Payments

Individuals may also be entitled to special bonus payments either as cash or retail vouchers. These are one-off recognition awards, payable at any time during the performance year and are not linked to the annual pay award. Payments are made to recognise exceptional achievements beyond what would normally be expected.

The cost for voucher payments was £0.9 million in 2006-07 (14,392 vouchers issued), £1.77 million in 2007-08 (31,237 vouchers were issued) and £1.03 million in 2008-09 (28,869 vouchers issued). Some individuals might have received more than one voucher.

It is not possible to provide separate data for in-year cash bonuses across three years. However, based on 2007-08 payments, the cost in a typical year is around £2.7 million paid to approximately 11,250 individuals.

These figures are the best available.

Income Support: Mortgages

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether the two-year time limit on claims for income support for mortgage interest for jobseeker's allowance claimants will apply to existing claimants. [249368]

Mr. McNulty: The two year limit on payment of support for mortgage interest for income-based jobseeker's allowance claimants will not apply to existing customers who started to receive payment of mortgage interest under the previous rules that existed before 5 January 2009.

Jobcentre Plus: Closures

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Jobcentre Plus offices have closed in each of the last five years. [251467]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many Jobcentre Plus offices have closed in each of the last five years. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The following table provides the information you have requested:

Year	Jobcentre Plus offices open to the public and subsequently closed
2004	95
2005	99
2006	157

Jobcentre Plus

We have modernised our Jobcentre network to improve customer service, rationalising our estate to provide excellent high street coverage and a single, integrated customer facing office, at the same time reducing cost to the tax payer. We remain the largest office network in Government with 744 modern Jobcentres which are supported by 31 contact centres and 79 main benefit processing centres.

Increasingly, our services (in common with most large, modern organisations) are now also delivered through the telephone and internet. New claims to benefit are predominantly taken by telephone with some taken on-line. This has brought our customer facing services together in a more coherent and integrated network.

In December, I asked the customer service directors in our regions to review their service delivery plans for every Jobcentre Plus District in the light of the current economic conditions and welfare reform changes planned for the next two to three years. As an immediate measure, I decided to suspend proposed further Jobcentre closures while the current economic uncertainties exist, which will allow us to increase our capacity to deliver services to those in need of help.

Local Employment Partnerships

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many jobseekers in each region have found (a) employment and (b) sustained employment with employers who have signed-up to local employment partnerships in each quarter since local employment partnerships were established. [248440]

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have been placed in work through local employment partnerships in each year since such partnerships were established, broken down by Jobcentre Plus area. [249394]

Mr. McNulty: Over 90,000 people have found work to date through local employment partnerships (LEPs). The following table shows the number of people who found employment through LEPs in the 2007-08 operational year ending March 2008, and for each of the three following quarters ending June, September and December. The number of people given face-to-face help in Jobcentre Plus offices is shown by Jobcentre Plus Region; those helped following telephone contact with Jobcentre Plus are shown separately in the contact centre totals. An evaluation of the policy will examine sustained employment.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the maximum amount of funding that businesses are eligible to receive when working with Jobcentre Plus in local employment partnerships is (a) per person placed in work and (b) in total; [249396]

(2) how his Department determines the (a) amount and (b) timing of funding to businesses within a local employment partnership; [249397]

(3) how much has been paid by his Department to businesses in local employment partnerships in each year since such partnerships were established, broken down by (a) Jobcentre Plus district and (b) reason for payment. [249406]

Mr. McNulty: Businesses do not receive funding through local employment partnerships. Local employment partnerships (LEPs) are an enhanced way of working between the Government and employers. Each agreement is different and arrangements for LEP measures will be responsive to local circumstances. Jobcentre Plus works in partnership with existing structures including, local authorities, Cities Strategy Pathfinders, The Learning and Skills Council, Train to Gain, training providers and further education colleges to provide opportunities for help and training to assist people make the transition from benefit into work.

Public Expenditure

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to page 92 of the pre-Budget report (1) how much money his Department accrued in each of the last 10 years; and what proportion each year's contribution made to the stock of money not spent in earlier years; [245033]

(2) how much money was in his Department's stock of money not spent in earlier years, in each of the last six months. [245034]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions was formed in June 2001 from the Department for Social Security and parts of the former Department for Education and Employment including the Employment Service. Therefore it is not possible to provide information for 2001-02 or previous years.

Subsequent to 2001-02 the Department's stock of money not spent in earlier years increased in 2006-07 by £202 million (25 per cent. of the total stock) and in 2007-08 by £5 million (0.6 per cent. of the total stock). The increases are calculated net of stock drawn down to fund in year spend. Between 2002-03 and 2005-06 the Department's stock of unspent money was reduced.

The stock of money not spent (commonly referred to as end of year flexibility) is determined at the end of each financial year in conjunction with HM Treasury and is published in the Public Expenditure Outturn White Paper.

The stock is not accrued monthly and as such the balance does not move during the financial year.

Social Security Benefits

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the number of benefit claims maintained by post in each year since 1997; [249361]

(2) in what circumstances a benefit claimant may maintain a claim through postal signings. [249362]

Mr. McNulty: Information regarding the number of benefit claims maintained by post is not available.

Postal signing is made available to customers: who live more than one hour, door to door, by public transport, in either direction, from the nearest jobcentre; or who would be absent from home in excess of four hours if they had to attend in person; or who have a mental or physical disability, which restricts their mobility; and in other exceptional circumstances for example, the customer would have to use a form of transport they would not ordinarily be expected to use on a regular basis, i.e. an inter-city train, ferry or plane.

If no public transport is available, postal signing is not granted to customers who can reasonably be expected to walk from home to the jobcentre within one hour, taking into account their age, health and the terrain over which they must walk. No customer is expected to walk more than three miles.

Social Security Benefits: Interviews

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many work-focused interviews for each category of benefit were conducted in each of the last five years. [244202]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many work-focused interviews for each category of benefit were conducted in each of the last five years. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The information is not available prior to February 2005. The available information is in the table below.

Work focused interviews attended broken down by year and benefit

Social Security Benefits: Reform

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what steps he plans to take in (a) the UK, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency to ensure that his policy on welfare reform policies will be effective; [245808]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect on families in (a) the North East and (b) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency who have benefited from the Government's policy on welfare reform. [245857]

Mr. McNulty: Since 1997 our welfare reforms have contributed to a reduction of 26,600 people claiming out of work benefits in the North East and 864 in Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland constituency.

Our reforms have resulted in high numbers of people in work, and have put an end to the rise in the number of people claiming incapacity benefits.

Active intervention is key, at no time is this more important than in an economic downturn. If it is becoming harder to find work, it is right that we do more to help, not less. We need to learn the lessons from previous downturns, and from overseas: first, increase support, do not relax conditionality; second, do not move people onto inactive benefits; and third, maintain efforts to reduce inactivity.

Our Welfare Reform White Paper "Raising expectations and increasing support: reforming welfare for the future" (CM: 7506) published on 10 December 2008 drives forward the transformation of the welfare state, turning it from being essentially passive to profoundly active. The Bill to enact these proposals is now before Parliament.

Previous experience has taught us that the worst thing we can do in a downturn is to write people off, consigning them to a lifetime on benefits. We are investing an additional £1.3 billion over the next two years to support Jobcentre Plus and our employment programmes; and a further £0.5 billion to guarantee more support to people unemployed for six months or more by providing incentives for firms to hire, access to help in setting up a business, extra funding for training and opportunities for work-focused volunteering.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the Treasury Minute entitled Progress in tackling benefit fraud, issued in response to the Committee of Public Accounts' Thirty-first Report of Session 2007-08, when his Department expects to set recovery targets for benefit overpayments as a result of fraud. [253047]

Mr. McNulty: We welcomed the recommendation put forward by the Public Accounts Committee and as a result undertook research to establish the best means of implementation. This work is very near to completion and there will be a recovery target in place for benefit overpayments arising as a result of fraud at the start of the next financial year.

The good news is that we have reduced fraud from around 2 per cent. of benefit expenditure in 2000-01 to 0.6 per cent. in 2007-08 and is now at its lowest level ever. I hope the hon. Gentleman welcomes that.

A recovery target for benefit overpayments arising from fraud will be in place for the next financial year.

PRIME MINISTER

Lobbying

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if he will allow the recording and broadcast of lobby briefings given by his spokesman to lobby journalists. [253230]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my predecessor (the right hon. Tony Blair) on 2 February 2001, Official Report, column 335W.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agricultural Buildings Allowance

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the merits of reinstating the agricultural buildings allowance. [252106]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

The phased withdrawal of agricultural buildings allowance (ABAs) is part of a package of measures which also saw the reduction of the main rate of corporation tax and the introduction of a £50,000 annual investment allowance (AIA), allowing 95 per cent. of businesses to write off all their expenditure on plant and machinery in the year in which it is made.

The Government considered carefully the withdrawal of the ABA as part of this package of measures to modernise and simplify corporation tax. Taken as a whole these reforms to the business and personal tax systems are designed to deliver increases in investment and growth overall.

OLYMPICS

Olympic Games 2012: Facilities

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will consult residents of Hadleigh before any decisions are taken on the development of Hadleigh and the surrounding area to facilitate the Olympic mountain bike events; and if she will make a statement. [251063]

Tessa Jowell: In developing the plans for the mountain biking venue the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) will work with the local authority and the venue owner to ensure that the proposals meet the sporting and operational requirements for staging the Olympic event. Further to the Town Planning process, LOCOG and Essex county council will be talking to the local community to determine how best the games-time and legacy proposals meet with the satisfaction and support of the local people. This is a genuine opportunity to showcase Hadleigh, the county of Essex and the sport of mountain biking to a global audience.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Pensions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many civil servants working in the Government Equalities Office have pensions with a cash equivalent transfer value of over £1 million. [251671]

Departmental Public Expenditure

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the budget for the Government Equalities Office is for (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [251678]

Maria Eagle: The budget for the Government Equalities Office can be found in the Core Tables (Annex A) of the Annual Report and Resource Accounts 2007-08 which has been laid in the House of Commons Library.

Plain English Campaign: Finance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much the Government Equalities Office spent on Plain English Campaign training courses in each year since its establishment. [251652]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 3 November 2008, Official Report, column 13W.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost of the dinner hosted by his Department at the Walker Art Gallery in Liverpool on 20 November 2008 was, broken down by category of cost. [250404]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The cost of the event at the Walker Art Gallery was £5,550.

ICT: Reviews

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost of the Digital Britain review has been to date; what estimate he has made of the (a) staff costs and (b) total costs of the review; and when he expects the review to make its final report. [249190]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The estimated cost of the Digital Britain review to date is £195,315, borne jointly by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Tourism

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what the cost of (a) venue hire, (b) travel expenses and (c) food and drink was for the tourism summit hosted by his Department in Liverpool on 8 January 2009; [250251]

(2) what the cost to his Department was of the tourism summit in Liverpool on 8 January. [250403]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The estimated total costs to the Department for Culture Media and Sport of the tourism summit in Liverpool on 8 January is £7,745.01.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development with reference to the Answer of 21 May 2008, Official Report, column 329W, on apprentices, what progress has been made on increasing the number of apprentices in his Department; and how many apprentices his Department employed at the latest date for which figures are available. [251936]

Mr. Michael Foster: In line with the Skills Strategy—Next Steps, the Department for International Development (DFID) has committed to putting in place five apprenticeships for each of the next two years. The Department currently has no apprenticeships under way.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in departmental buildings in the last 12 months. [252376]

Mr. Michael Foster: Over the last 12 months the Department for International Development (DFID) has spent £14,146 on works to the Ministers' offices and those of their private office staff. This includes the creation of a new waiting and meeting area.

Departmental Conditions of Employment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development with reference to his Answer of 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 986, on departmental conditions of employment, what the (a) highest, (b) lowest, (c) mean and (d) total amount was spent on (i) travel and (ii) other expenses for those who took their (A) two week break in home country and (B) two week break outside their home country in each year since 2005. [251971]

Mr. Michael Foster: Employees working in Iraq and Afghanistan are entitled to a two week break away from post for every six weeks worked.

DFID will only cover the cost of one return flight to the UK for each breather break. If employees wish to spend a break at an alternative location they must cover any additional costs, above the equivalent of the return ticket to the UK, themselves.

Employees are not reimbursed for other expenses incurred during the breather break.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost of provision of Government cars to special advisers in his Department has been in the last 12 months. [251027]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development does not provide Government cars to special advisers.

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost of his Department's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each of the last five years. [251252]

Mr. Michael Foster: The cost of the Department for International Development's contracts with public relations consultancies over the last five years was £314,242.

These data have been extracted from readily available information and may not be comprehensive. To undertake an extensive interrogation of records over the last five years would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development with reference to the answer of 5 November 2008, Official Report, column 510W, on departmental training, what personal training courses at public expense other Ministers in his Department have undertaken since 1 January 2008. [251324]

Mr. Michael Foster: Other Ministers in the Department for International Development have taken the following personal training courses at public expense since 1 January 2008:

Public Communications.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which external organisations his Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in his Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252221]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) advises that fast stream staff undertake at least 15 days a year on learning and development activities. The specific training for each individual is determined between the line manager of the post and the individual. Records are not maintained centrally for each individual's learning and development, but normally some external training courses would form part of the learning and development. A wide variety of external providers are used. It regularly includes courses run by the National School of Government.

Approximately 100 sub-departments and overseas offices within DFID are responsible for identifying learning and development opportunities for each staff member, including external training courses. Information on the number of staff attending external training courses is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252271]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development has not used the Internet Advertising Bureau to provide any training courses in 2008.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251873]

Mr. Michael Foster: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 6W. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the ministerial code.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252019]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) employs a diverse work force and so allows employees to work a wide range of flexible working patterns to fulfil their contracted hours; this may include some evening work. However, employees who opt to work flexibly must still take a minimum lunch break of at least 30 minutes. This also applies to employees that opt to work standard hours instead of flexible hours.

DFID only permits their employees to work beyond their contracted hours in the evenings or at weekends to meet essential business needs. Where employees work overtime, it is our policy to allow them to opt for either payment or time off in lieu.

International Economic Relations: Developing Countries

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proposals his Department has put forward for the reform of international financial institutions to meet international development objectives; what recent discussions he has had with (a) the Prime Minister and (b) the Chancellor of the Exchequer on these proposals; and if he will make a statement. [251226]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Prime Minister, the Chancellor of the Exchequer and I have consistently called for reform of the international financial institutions, including the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund. The Government want to make these institutions more effective so that they are able to respond better to current and future global challenges. This will need to include addressing weaknesses in their legitimacy. At the October 2008 World Bank annual meetings I and other World Bank governors agreed a first package of measures to reform the Bank's governance, which included increased representation for African countries and opening up the appointment of the World Bank president. We also agreed that a second phase of reform would be taken forward to give poorer countries more say in the World Bank's decision making.

At the Washington summit on 15 November G20 leaders reaffirmed their commitment to reforming the World Bank and the IMF to increase their legitimacy and effectiveness. My Department is working with other G20 countries to identify specific actions to take forward this agenda. I have regular discussions with the Prime Minister, the Chancellor of the Exchequer and other members of the Cabinet about these and other issues that will be discussed at the London summit.

Peace

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent on (a) peace education, (b) mediation, (c) conflict prevention, (d) conflict resolution, (e) interfaith dialogue and (f) other peace development initiatives since January 2002; and if he will make a statement. [252108]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not disaggregate spend into the categories requested. DFID currently holds records against the following categories of expenditure on conflict:

Category	Total expenditure in financial years 2002-03 to 2007-08
Security system management and reform	69.4
Civilian peace-building, conflict prevention and resolution	213.6
Land mine clearance	65.2
Total	348.2

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Sri Lanka following the recent offensive by government troops on Tamil areas; and if he will make a statement. [253466]

Mr. Michael Foster: The worsening humanitarian plight of some 230,000 trapped civilians following the Sri Lankan government's recent offensive causes great concern. We deplore such incidents as the recent shelling of a hospital.

We constantly monitor the situation through our high commission and other sources, supplemented by field visits by Department for International Development humanitarian staff. We have recently programmed £2.5 million humanitarian funding through the UN, Red Cross and non-government organisations. We are sending another humanitarian mission in the next few weeks and have agreed a further £2.5 million humanitarian funding.

But the problem will not be resolved by funding alone. We are resolute in pressing for better humanitarian access for aid convoys and other relief within safe humanitarian space. The Foreign Secretary repeated this to President Rajapakse on 30 January.

Sudan: Politics and Government

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Darfur; and if he will make a statement. [250815]

Gillian Merron: I have been asked to reply.

The humanitarian situation in Darfur remains precarious. Although violence is not on the scale of 2003-04, insecurity continues to hamper the delivery of aid. In 2008, a further 310,000 civilians entered internally displaced persons' camps to bring the total to 2.7 million. 277 relief vehicles were hijacked, 192 compounds attacked and 11 humanitarian workers were killed.

Improving the humanitarian situation in Darfur remains a high priority for us. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch Brown, discussed Darfur with Djibril Bassolé, African Union (AU)/UN Chief Mediator for Darfur, in London on 15 December 2008, and we are in regular contact with his office. Our ambassador in Khartoum and her staff maintain close contact with all main political groups in Darfur, non-governmental organisations working in the region, and the AU/UN peacekeeping mission in Darfur (UNAMID), and visited all three states of Darfur in the last three months.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252016]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office do not record centrally days taken off in lieu granted to staff in (a) the Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times, outside contracted working hours.

VAT: Business

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what estimate his Department has made of the administrative cost to businesses in Northern Ireland of the recent temporary reduction in the rate at which value added tax is levied prior to that reduction taking place; [252309]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the administrative cost to businesses in Northern Ireland of a variation in the rate at which value added tax is levied. [252310]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

Estimated costs to business in the UK are published in the impact assessment of changes to the standard rate of VAT. This is available on the HM Treasury website. Reliable cost estimates cannot be produced on a regional basis.

SCOTLAND

Homecoming Scotland

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what role the Scotland Office is playing in relation to the Homecoming Scotland 2009 initiative. [253090]

Ann McKechin: I am fully supportive of the Year of Homecoming and will be taking appropriate opportunities to promote it throughout the year along with my other ministerial colleagues. I have already obtained the support of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in promoting the initiative.

TRANSPORT

Channel Tunnel: Tolls

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the train access charge regime for the Channel Tunnel Rail Link, with particular reference to his policy of encouraging cross-border rail/freight movements. [253229]

Paul Clark: The future charges for use of the Channel Tunnel Rail Link have been subject to recent consultation and HS1 Limited is discussing these charges with train operators and industry representatives as part of its consideration of that consultation. Further details can be found on the HS1 website at:

www.highspeed1.co.uk

The Government wishes to see charges set at a level which maximises use of the Channel Tunnel Rail Link and encourages competition, while ensuring the market makes the fullest contribution towards the costs of constructing the railway.

Departmental Conditions of Employment

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will ensure that no changes affecting the terms and conditions of staff will be made to the contractual parts of any staff handbooks within his Department without the consent of a recognised trade union. [253235]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport may make changes to the staff handbook following consultation or negotiation as appropriate with its recognised trade union.

Departmental Procurement

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reason the status of the tender notice entitled UK-London: Reward Strategy and Benefits Project detailed on his Department's Procurement Portal has changed to closed. [253234]

Mr. Hoon: The contract notice published on 11 November 2008 changed to a closed status when the 30 day deadline for submission of applications to participate passed.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Industrial Disputes

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he plans to take to recover funds due to the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency identified in the Central London employment tribunal case between Mr Geoff Topliss and NCP Services Ltd. [253474]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There are no outstanding funds to recover. DVLA has receipts and appropriate documentation to show that all revenue due has been received by the agency.

Driver Vehicle Licensing Agency: Personal Records

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to refuse paper requests to the Driver Vehicle Licensing Agency for the release of driver information unless such requests meet the requirements applicable to requests submitted electronically. [253231]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The procedures in place for the release of vehicle keeper details from DVLA's vehicle register are kept under review. An announcement will be made shortly on the additional measures DVLA intend to introduce for car park enforcement companies requesting vehicle keeper details manually.

Public Transport: Complaints

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will introduce an ombudsman system to deal with complaints concerning the transport system. [252903]

Mr. Hoon: I have no plans to put such a system in place. A range of bodies already exist to deal with transport-related complaints.

Railways: Catering

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is on the specification of restaurant car services in rail franchises let by his Department, with particular reference to franchises held by National Express. [253228]

Paul Clark: For the recently-let rail franchises, the policy of the Department for Transport has been not to specify restaurant car services. This policy was applied to franchises now held by National Express.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many civilians have been killed in military action in Helmand province since February 2006. [249207]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 27 October 2008, Official Report, columns 622-23W.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many incidents of theft of British military equipment supplies during transit from the port of disembarkation in Pakistan to the final destination in Afghanistan have been reported since 18 July 2008. [251985]

Mr. Hutton: Two incidents of theft of British military supplies during transit from the port of disembarkation in Pakistan to the final destination in Afghanistan have been reported to the Royal Military Police between 18 July 2008 and 26 January 2009 inclusive.

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers from the First Battalion The Rifles have been injured in Afghanistan since October 2008. [252119]

Mr. Hutton: Between 1 October 2008 and 24 January 2009 one soldier from 1st Battalion The Rifles was very seriously injured, and another Rifleman was seriously injured.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 23W, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations (1) how long the training will take; and what personnel will be involved in the training; [253215]

(2) where the training of personnel will take place; [253216]

(3) what aspects of the flying training will be conducted. [253217]

Mr. Hutton: The aspects of flying training to be conducted will be appropriate to the environmental and operational conditions in Afghanistan.

The training of RAF Merlin Force air and ground crew will take place in the UK (at RAF Benson, on Salisbury Plain and other UK training areas), with some elements likely to be overseas as part of a rolling programme prior to deployment.

Much of the theatre-specific preparation will need to take place during the four month period between completion of deployment to Iraq and commencement of deployment to Afghanistan; but some elements of training may commence earlier.

I am withholding further details as their disclosure would, or would likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many insurgents in Afghanistan were captured by British forces in each month in 2008; and how many (a) were subsequently released, (b) transferred to Afghan authorities and (c) remain in British custody. [253375]

Mr. Hutton: I have nothing to add to the answer that I gave to the hon. Member for Na h-Eileanan an Iar (Mr. MacNeil) on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 1016W.

Air Force: Manpower

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many multi-engine aircraft in service with the Royal Air Force have (a) navigators and (b) flight engineers as part of the crew. [252389]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: 59 aircraft of the RAF Multi-Engine fleet that are planned to be in service on 31 March 2009 have Weapons System Officers (Navigator) (WSO(Nav)) as part of the crew. These comprise the Hercules C130K, VC10, Sentry, Sentinel, Nimrod MR2 and Nimrod R1 aircraft.

63 aircraft of the RAF Multi-Engine fleet that are planned to be in service on 31 March 2009 have Air Engineers as part of the crew. These comprise the Hercules C130K, Tristar, VC10, Sentry, Nimrod MR2 and Nimrod R1 aircraft.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) navigators and (b) flight engineers are available to serve in multi-engine aircraft in service with the RAF. [252454]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Navigators form a sub-branch of the weapon system officer specialisation and flight engineers are more correctly known as air engineers. Currently there are 285 weapon system officer (navigators) and 175 air engineers available to serve in multi-engine aircraft[1]. These figures include personnel who are currently trained and qualified to serve in a multi-engine aircraft, those who occupy another type of flying appointment and those who occupy a non-flying post. Those in the last two categories would require refresher training before they would be available to serve in multi-engine aircraft.

[1] Figures have been rounded to the nearest five.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) endorsed number, (b) actual number and (c) location was of all UK personnel deployed on operations on 1 January 2009. [249735]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The endorsed force levels for UK military operations are set out in the following table by location.

Location	Endorsed number (at 1 January 2009)[1]
Afghanistan[2]	8,050
Southern Iraq	4,100
Baghdad[3]	250
At sea	1,050

Qatar	700
Cyprus	300
Kuwait	550
Kosovo	150

Bosnia	<50
Other[4]	100

[1] Rounded to 50

[2] On 15 December 2008, the Prime Minister announced a temporary increase in the number of British troops deployed to Afghanistan, from just over 8,050 to 8,300, Official Report, column 816. The endorsed figure for Operation Herrick 9 remains unaffected.

[3] Providing support to the Senior British Military Representative—Iraq.

[4] Small scale deployments in support of EU and UN missions, and headquarters liaison officers.

The precise number of personnel in each theatre at any one time fluctuates very significantly on a daily basis for a variety of reasons, including mid-tour rest and recuperation, temporary absence for training, evacuation for medical reasons, the roulement of forces, visits and a range of other factors. We do not therefore publish actual figures for personnel deployed in theatre.

Armed Forces: Females

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many women have been recruited into the General Duties (Pilot) branch of the Royal Air Force in the last 12 months. [250025]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In the 12 month period, ending on 31 October 2008, out of a total of just over 100 personnel recruited into the General Duties (Pilot) branch of the Royal Air Force, fewer than 10 were women.

This figure has been rounded up to the nearest 10 in accordance with the requirements of the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA) and the convention on presentation of national statistics.

Armed Forces: Housing

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent removing asbestos from (a) single living accommodation and (b) service families accommodation since 1997. [248658]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Occupants of service accommodation are made aware of the location of any asbestos known to be present in their accommodation and are given appropriate health and safety advice. Reports by occupants of suspected damage to any asbestos-carrying material are investigated, and, where required, action taken in accordance with the Control of Asbestos Regulations.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the manning (a) requirement and (b) level was in each unit of each service in the armed forces in each of the last five years. [252099]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information on strengths and requirements of the armed forces by service can be found in table 1 of Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 4—UK armed forces quarterly manning report. TSP 4 is published quarterly and, the most recent publication shows figures as at 1 October 2008, can be found at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/applications/newWeb/www/index.php?page=48&pubType=1&thiscontent=20&PublishTime=09:30:00&date=20081127&disText=01%20Oct%202008&from=listing&topDate=2008-11-27

Requirement is not split by unit for the three services. Strengths information by unit can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Pakistan

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel are based in Pakistan; and what their role is. [250843]

Mr. Hutton: There are currently 18 UK armed forces personnel based in Pakistan. UK personnel undertake a variety of roles, including training and liaison. In addition, some personnel undertake diplomatic duties and fill exchange posts.

Armed Forces: Training

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many individuals in each branch of the armed forces have failed to complete successfully basic training in each year since 2000. [246701]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of individuals in the armed forces that have failed to complete successfully basic training in each year since 2000 is not centrally held.

Information on outflow to civil life from the untrained strength of UK regular forces by sex and ethnic origin can be found in Table 7 of Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 4—UK armed forces quarterly manning report. TSP 4 is published quarterly and, the most recent publication shows figures for the 12 months to 30 September 2008, can be found at:

Outflow to civil life from the untrained strength of UK regular forces includes outflow from phase 1 (basic) and phase 2 training.

Outflow to civil life from the untrained strength of UK regular forces by branch information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Ridgback armoured vehicles have been shipped to (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq since 2001. [251647]

Mr. Quentin Davies: No Ridgback vehicles have yet been shipped to Iraq or Afghanistan.

Delivery to Afghanistan is due to begin later this year and there are no plans to deploy Ridgback to Iraq.

Army: Expenditure

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on (a) heavy infantry, (b) heavy artillery, (c) light infantry and (d) light artillery in each of the last 10 years. [252101]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Cyprus: Military Bases

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of land in the Sovereign Base Areas of Akrofiri and Dhekelia is given over the private ownership for the purposes of agriculture. [252912]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Sovereign Base Areas (SBA) of Akrotiri and Dhekelia cover an area of around 98 square miles. Approximately 60 per cent. of this land is privately owned. This land may be utilised by owners as they see fit within the applicable Law.

The functions of government relating to the administration and regulation of agricultural activities, as well as land registration are delegated to the Government of the Republic of Cyprus who would hold the data. The SBA Administration does not hold the information requested and it could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Defence: Expenditure

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 11 December 2008, Official Report, columns 65-7WS, on defence equipment, what assessment he has made of the savings from the equipment budget required to be made in the 2009 planning round; and which programmes are being examined for savings. [253459]

Mr. Hutton: As part of the Department's normal planning round we review the full scope of our future equipment programme, alongside other elements of the defence programme, so that judgments can be made on overall priorities and balance of investment to maximise defence capability within the available resources. In my written statement on 11 December 2008, Official Report, columns 65-7WS, I informed Parliament about the major decisions emerging from our examination of the equipment programme and indicated that any further significant changes would be announced following the conclusion of the planning round.

Defence: Military Aircraft

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the material carrying capacity is of the A400M. [250465]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The A400M aircraft has been specified to carry a payload of 32 tonnes. It is currently forecast to meet this requirement, and exceed it under certain scenarios.

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of staff in his Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to his Department in each year since 1997. [248244]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information is not held centrally in the format requested. However, records held centrally of civilian staff dismissed since April 2002 include no cases of dismissal specifically for losing memory sticks, laptop computers, desktop computers and mobile telephones belonging to the Department.

Departmental ICT

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many training exercises have been (a) cancelled and (b) delayed due to the recent computer virus problem affecting his Department; [253358]

(2) how many computers in his Department have been infected with the recently reported computer virus; [253359]

(3) what his estimate is of the cost to his Department of resolving the recent computer virus problem; [253360]

(4) what assessment he has made of the source of the recent computer virus problem which affected his Department; [253361]

(5) how many computers in (a) Iraq, (b) Afghanistan and (c) other UK military bases overseas have been infected with a computer virus in the last two months; and what the (i) name and (ii) location of the base is in each case. [253362]

Mr. Hutton: It would not be in the interests of the UK's national security for the Ministry of Defence to release information regarding the impact of any computer virus infection on its IT systems as this would enable individuals to deduce how successful these infections are against the network and so assist such persons in establishing the effectiveness of the UK's IT defences.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 7 October 2008, Official Report, column 608W, on departmental manpower, how many staff in his Department and its agencies are in the redeployment pool; how many of them were placed in the pool after returning from maternity leave; and how many of them have been in the pool for at least (a) six months and (b) 12 months. [250095]

Mr. Kevan Jones: As at 21 January 2009 there were 886 MOD staff in the Redeployment Pool.

The Department's automated records do not facilitate ready identification of the number of those in the pool who were placed there on their return from maternity leave. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

346 staff have been in the pool for at least six months and, of those, 214 have been in the pool for at least 12 months.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints about advertisements sponsored or funded by his Department were made to the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) in each year from 1997 to 2008; and how many of these were upheld by the ASA in each year. [246648]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information is not held by the MOD; however, the Advertising Standards Authority report that between January 1997 and December 2008 the following complaints were made about MOD sponsored advertisements:

Royal Navy: four complaints about four cases, none of which were upheld.

Army: 92 complaints about 76 cases, none of which were upheld.

RAF: seven complaints received about seven cases, one of which remains under investigation while the remaining six were not upheld.

These statistics do not include complaints about TV or Radio broadcasts made between 1997 and 2006 as this information is not centrally held.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246958]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The data requested are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However public appointments to the MOD's non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) are run through a visibly open, fair and rigorous recruitment and selection process under the rules of the Office of the Commissioner of Public Appointments (OCPA). Successful candidates have to declare their political activities. Information on MOD's public appointments can be found at:

www.mod.uk

In respect of information on MOD's special advisers, since 2003 their names, overall costs and the number in each pay band are published on an annual basis by the Cabinet Office.

Detainee Numbers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will update the figures given on detainee numbers as set out in his letter of 17 November 2008 to the right hon. Member for North East Hampshire; and if he will make a statement [253242]

Mr. Hutton: I will shortly be updating the House on this issue.

International Security Assistance Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with his NATO counterparts on sourcing the requirement for International Security Assistance Force's Operational Reserve Force; and if he will make a statement. [249743]

Mr. Hutton: I have had numerous discussions with my NATO counterparts on the subject of troops contributions. Through the force generation process, NATO is working to fill the Operational Reserve Force for ISAF. This requirement was identified on NATO's Combined Statement of Requirement in 2006. There are in-theatre reserves available.

Iraq

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the UK armed forces are working as part of NATO training forces in Iraq. [253206]

Mr. Hutton: Currently, there are 18 members of the UK armed forces working as part of the NATO Training Mission in Iraq.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what factors he will take into account when making decisions on the number of troops to be deployed in Iraq. [250903]

Mr. Hutton: As the Prime Minister set out on 18 December 2008, Official Report, columns 1233-1235, we will complete our remaining military tasks in Iraq by 31 May 2009 and move to a normal bilateral defence relationship. As part of the future relationship, the government of Iraq have indicated that they would like the UK to continue to provide military training and education. The precise scope of this training and education will inform decisions on the number of UK service personnel in Iraq after 31 July. Decisions will also be based on advice from our military commanders and conditions on the ground. On the basis of our discussions with the Iraqi government to date, I anticipate that this future activity would involve no more than around 400 UK service personnel, which military commanders judge should be sufficient to support the delivery of these tasks safely and effectively.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the withdrawal of British forces from Iraq by July 2009 on the airbridge; [251982]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of commercial (a) planes and (b) ships to be hired to assist with the withdrawal of British forces from Iraq; and what the cost to his Department is estimated to be. [251983]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Plans have not yet been finalised for the recovery of equipment and personnel from Iraq. Until such time, it is not possible to quantify the amount of lift that will be necessary to move all the items and personnel. It is intended, however, that the majority of the recovery will be conducted by surface means using the MOD RoRo resources as far as possible in conjunction with commercial liner services. As the requirement to sustain Iraq reduces, the requirement for the lift will diminish.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 35W, on Iraq: peace keeping operations, what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of co-operation between his Department and the Department for International Development on conflict prevention immediately prior to the invasion of Iraq. [253210]

Mr. Hutton: Prior to the invasion of Iraq, the Ministry of Defence and the Department for International Development (DfID) worked together on planning for Operation TELIC, including on humanitarian and reconstruction issues, and in other areas of stabilisation and conflict prevention. The House of Commons Defence Committee recognised in its report, 'Lessons of Iraq', published on 16 March 2004, that DfID was a 'key player' in planning for the post-conflict situation in Iraq. This close co-operation has continued ever since.

Military Aircraft

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any of the C17 aircraft operated by the armed forces have been fitted with titanium parts manufactured by Western Titanium. [251746]

Mr. Quentin Davies: RAF C-17 aircraft are fitted with titanium components manufactured by Western Titanium. There are no safety or airworthiness issues arising from the use of these components.

Military Aircraft: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average number of helicopters of each type available for training purposes was in each year since 2001. [251705]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Dedicated helicopter flying training for all services is carried out by Defence Helicopter Flying School (DHFS) at RAF Shawbury, with further training for Army personnel carried out by DHFS at Middle Wallop. The contract requires the delivery of flying hours, rather than a specific number of aircraft. It is up to the contractor to decide how many aircraft are required to deliver the required hours. The number of helicopters that the contractor has used to deliver the flying hours required in each year since 2001 under the DHFS contract is:

		2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Shawbury	Griffin	9	9	11	11	11	11	11	12
	Squirrel	28	28	28	28	27	27	25	25
Middle Wallop	Squirrel	10	10	10	10	10	10	10	10

Once initial training has been completed, all further training requirements are serviced by helicopters in the Forward Fleet. There are many categories of flying training which are carried out on Forward Fleet aircraft that are also used for Operational purposes. It is not therefore possible to identify aircraft used solely for training.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 37W, which provided the numbers of helicopters in the Forward Fleet.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average number of aircraft of each type available for training purposes was in each year since 2001. [251706]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Military Attachés

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many defence attachés work in UK embassies, high commissions and consulates overseas; and how many did so in 1998. [250842]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of defence attachés who work in embassies and high commissions is currently 105; the number in 1998 was 115. No defence attachés are employed in consulates.

Pirates

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what rules of engagement apply to members of the armed forces when engaging pirates; and if he will make a statement. [250676]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Royal Navy ships participating in counter-piracy operations are trained and provided with the required rules of engagement to counter the threats they may face. Under these guidelines HMS Cumberland successfully deterred an attack and rescued a pirated Yemeni vessel and crew last November.

I am withholding details of rules of engagement as their release would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of our armed forces.

Project on National Security Reform

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was given in grants to the Project on National Security Reform in each financial year since 1997-98. [249729]

Mr. Hutton: The Ministry of Defence has given no grants to the Project on National Security Reform.

Service Families

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what support his Department provides to service families remaining in the UK while service personnel are on overseas operations. [252616]

Mr. Kevan Jones: In addition to the existing, extensive welfare support provided by the Services, units receive a Families Welfare Grant to support the families of those who have deployed. Units can exercise considerable discretion in how this money is spent but typically it might be used to: pay for families briefings, to provide additional communications facilities such as internet access or to subsidise the cost of families outings. In acknowledgement of the demands placed upon our families we doubled this Grant in November last year so that each unit now receives £2.20 per week for each person deployed: for a typical battalion this amounts to about £35,000 over a six month deployment. Families also benefit from the email and telephone access, and free blueys and e-blueys provided to deployed personnel to help them keep in touch with their loved ones.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1742-43W, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, how he plans to inform the House of the implications of the Afghan review; and if he will make a statement. [246310]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 January 2009]: As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced to the House on 3 December 2008, Official Report, columns 28-29, a review of the Government's Afghanistan policy is under way, involving the Ministry of Defence, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Department for International Development, and reporting to the Prime Minister. Once completed, the findings and implications of the review will be announced to the House.

Antarctic

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many personnel there are on each of the four British research stations in the British Antarctic Territory. [247701]

Gillian Merron: The British Antarctic Survey (BAS) maintains three research stations in the British Antarctic Territory on behalf of the UK. Two operate year-round (Rothera, Adelaide Island and Halley, Coats Land) and the third is a summer-only base (Signy, South Orkney Islands). Numbers of personnel at each of the bases are as follows:

Rothera—between 80-120 in summer and 21 in winter

Halley—up to 70 (summer) and 16 (winter)

Signy—up to nine (summer only)

In addition, BAS also operates two year-round research stations in the UK Overseas Territory of South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands. These are at King Edward Point, South Georgia and Bird Island. Numbers of personnel at these bases are:

King Edward Point—up to 22 (summer) and 10 (winter)

Bird Island—up to 10 (summer) and four (winter).

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what research activity the UK is conducting in the British Antarctic Territory; and what the objectives of such research are. [247702]

Gillian Merron: The UK is committed to maintaining its leading role in Antarctic science and research and is conducting an extensive, multi-disciplinary programme of activities in the British Antarctic Territory and more widely within the Antarctic. These include areas such as climate change, sea level rise and the sustainable use of natural resources. The contribution of UK scientists, especially those at the British Antarctic Survey (a research institute of the Natural Environment Research Council), not only helps increase our understanding of the complex natural systems that are vital to the health of the planet but also underpins the UK's high profile within the Antarctic Treaty System.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what international laws govern drilling and mineral extraction rights in the British Antarctic Territory; and what reports he has received on attempted oil exploration or research in the Antarctic by other countries. [247703]

Gillian Merron: The Protocol on Environmental Protection to the Antarctic Treaty sets out a comprehensive regime for the protection of the Antarctic environment and prohibits any activity relating to mineral resources, other than scientific research. We have received no reports on attempted oil exploration or research in the Antarctic by other countries.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what areas in the British Antarctic Territories (a) are designated and (b) receive funding from his Department as sites of special scientific interest. [247704]

Gillian Merron: There are 70 Antarctic Specially Protected Areas (ASPAs) in the Antarctic of which 14 were proposed solely or jointly by the UK.

None of the ASP As for which the UK is responsible within the British Antarctic Territory receive funding, other than that needed to prepare and update management plans. Direct funding of the above ASP As is unnecessary as all such designated areas are given comprehensive protection via the Antarctic Treaty System and all states parties to the treaty are required to control access and entry strictly.

Antarctic: Research

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the sources of funding are for the UK's research stations in the British Antarctic Territory. [248361]

Gillian Merron: The British Antarctic Survey (BAS) maintains three research stations in the British Antarctic Territory on behalf of the UK. The core funding for maintaining these bases is provided by the Natural Environment Research Council (NERC).

Belize

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many ministerial or state visits to Belize there have been in each of the last 20 years; and what future ministerial or state visits are planned. [250740]

Gillian Merron: Her Majesty the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh last visited Belize in February 1994. HRH the Princess Royal subsequently visited in April 2001, and HRH the Duke of York in March 2002.

Ministerial visits to Belize, in the last 15 years, have included:

February 1998 Tony Lloyd, then Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Minister;

January 2000 Peter Kilfoyle, then Ministry of Defence Minister;

July 2000 John Battle, then FCO Minister

May 2002 Dr. Denis MacShane, then FCO Minister

January 2004 Bill Rammell, then FCO Minister;

April 2004 Meg Munn, then FCO Minister.

There are no current plans for FCO Ministers to visit Belize and it is not practice to announce Royal Visits until all parties concerned have agreed they can proceed, and all arrangements are in place.

Information about ministerial travel to Belize in years preceding 1994 is not available and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Brazil

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many times Ministers of the government of Brazil have visited the UK in an official capacity since 2001. [250120]

Gillian Merron: Foreign and Commonwealth office records show that visits by Brazilian Government Ministers to the UK since 2001 include those of President Luis Ignacio Lula da Silva, who made a state visit to the UK in 2006, and also visited in 2003, the Brazilian Foreign Minister, Secretary of the Treasury, and the Ministers for Agriculture, Development, Planning, Finance and Justice.

We do not hold comprehensive records on visits by Ministers of the Brazilian Government organised or facilitated by other Government Departments since 2001.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many times Ministers in his Department have made official visits to Brazil since 2001. [250121]

Gillian Merron: I visited Brazil in December 2008. Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers have made nine other official visits to Brazil since 2001. My right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett) visited Brazil in July 2006 when Foreign Secretary, and there have also been ministerial visits by my right hon. Friend the Member for Rotherham (Mr. MacShane), my noble Friend Lord Triesman, and my hon. Friends the Members for Pontypridd (Dr. Howells), Dudley, South (Ian Pearson) and Harlow (Bill Rammell).

British Council

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans there are for reductions in British Council (a) posts and (b) capital works on its estates, as referred to on page 28 of his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report; and which posts have been identified for closure. [246264]

David Miliband: The 'post reductions' referred to in the Department's Performance Report relate to jobs within the British Council's global support services. Decisions on particular jobs will be determined by a review of the British Council's support services, which will report in summer 2009. The review will consider how best to maximise efficiency and effectiveness from the Council's support services through the consolidation of these activities into a small number of global hubs. The British Council's capital expenditure related to its Global Estates will be reviewed within the same timescale.

British Overseas Territories

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment his Department has made of the merits of granting full independence to (a) the British Virgin Islands, (b) Bermuda, (c) the Turks and Caicos Islands, (d) Anguilla and (e) the Cayman Islands. [250424]

Gillian Merron: The 1999 White Paper on the Overseas Territories (Partnership for Progress and Prosperity) made clear that it is for the citizens of each territory to determine whether they wish to stay linked to Britain or not. Our policy remains to give every help and encouragement to those territories that wish to proceed to independence, where it is an option. Since the White Paper, no territory has opted for independence, we have therefore not made a recent assessment of the merits of granting independence to any overseas territory.

Burma

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government has taken through the United Nations on the arrests of democracy activists in Burma. [250799]

Bill Rammell: The UK has consistently supported firm action in all UN bodies on the human rights abuses perpetrated by the Burmese regime. The UK supported a resolution passed by the UN General Assembly on 21 November 2008 which called on Burma to release, without delay and conditions, opposition activists who have been arrested arbitrarily. It also condemned the ongoing, systematic violations of civil, political, economic and social rights of the people of Burma.

Our ambassador in Burma has made clear to Burmese Ministers that all political prisoners must be released in line with UN Security Council demands. We will continue to work to keep the issue of Burma on the agenda of the UN Security Council.

Consulates

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps the Government has taken to improve consular services for UK citizens abroad. [248108]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office continually seeks to improve on the service delivered to British Nationals overseas. Our overarching approach is set out in the Consular Strategy 2007-2010, a copy of which I will place in the Library of the House.

Examples of recent steps the FCO has taken to improve the service we offer includes: an increase of over 100 per cent. in the number of Missions which can take payment for services by credit card; passport applications and the majority of consular forms are now available on the internet; the public can register with our online crisis registration tool, LOCATE, supporting our consular response during a crisis; internet enabled computers have been installed in some consular waiting rooms; registered British nationals resident in a some countries can now receive SMS updates with important information; and we have modernised and improved on the training package for consular officials—including a requirement for staff to pass a customer care skills assessment.

We have improved and increased our monitoring of the service we provide to British nationals, and will use that information to identify how we can still further improve on the services we provide.

Convention on the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Resources

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when his Department will next lead the UK delegation to the meeting of the members of the Convention on the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources. [247705]

Bill Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office will next lead the UK delegation at the 28th annual meeting of the Commission for the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources, which will take place in Hobart, Australia from 26 October to 6 November 2009.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Armed Conflict

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will hold discussions with the government of Rwanda on its role in the conflict in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [250130]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister discussed the part Rwanda might play in resolving the conflict in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) with President Kagame in December 2008. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and my noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown, also discussed the issue with President Kagame during their visits to Kigali in November 2008. We continue to urge the Governments of the DRC and Rwanda to co-operate in efforts to settle the issues at the root of the conflict. I am encouraged by the progress they have made in recent months.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in his Department's buildings in the last 12 months. [252373]

Gillian Merron: No works or refurbishment has been undertaken on rooms allocated to Ministers in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, over the last 12 months.

Departmental Equality

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information his Department holds on the (a) sex, (b) ethnicity, (c) age, (d) disability, (e) sexual orientation and (f) religion or belief of its staff; and what assessment he has made of his Department's performance against its targets relating to diversity in its workforce. [246018]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) currently hold information on gender, ethnicity, age and disability. The following tables contain diversity information from 1 January 2009.

Age ranges	Number of staff
16-19	14
20-24	205
25-29	742
30-34	25
35-39	959
40-44	1,122
45-49	799
50-54	609
55-59	441
60-64	183
65 and over	13
Total	5,912

Gender
	Number
Male	3,485
Female	2,427

	British minority ethnic
Total number	529
Percentage of total	8.9

	Disability
Total number	205
Percentage of total	3.5

The figures for ethnicity and disability rely on declarations by staff, so will not include staff who have not yet entered diversity data or who have chosen not to. We do not seek information or keep data on sexual orientation or religious persuasion.

The FCO has recently formulated a new diversity and inclusion strategy, as required by the Cabinet Office. As part of this strategy, we will analyse our performance against targets for women, British minority ethnic staff and for staff with a declared disability. This information will be publicly available once the Cabinet Office has agreed the strategies for all Government Departments.

The figures above include staff serving in FCO Services, a trading fund of the FCO.

Embassies

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which British embassies have closed permanently in the last 10 years. [250841]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has permanently closed seven embassies since 1999. Details are as follows:

Financial year of closure	Country	Post name
2003-04	Mali	Bamako
2003-04	El Salvador	San Salvador
2003-04	Honduras	Tegucigalpa
2003-04	Nicaragua	Managua
2005-06	Madagascar	Antananarivo
2005-06	Paraguay	Asuncion
2006-07	East Timor	Dili

Operations were also suspended in our embassy in Abidjan (Cote d'Ivoire) in April 2005 due to the security situation, although we maintain one diplomatic representative there.

The FCO continuously reviews the deployment of its resources and aligns them flexibly in line with UK interests to the benefit of the British taxpayer.

Falkland Islands Dependencies

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government operates any scientific research stations in South Georgia and the Sandwich Islands. [250252]

Gillian Merron: The British Antarctic Survey (BAS) operates two year-round research stations at South Georgia. The station at King Edward Point is operated on behalf of the FCO and the Government of South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands and the station at Bird Island is operated to carry out core science for BAS.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to ensure that illegal, unregulated and unreported fishing around South Georgia and the Sandwich Islands is controlled and that fish stocks remain at sustainable levels in that area. [250283]

Gillian Merron: Fishery protection and management are the responsibility of the government of South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands which uses a range of measures including a strict licensing regime, fisheries protection vessels, at sea inspections, satellite-based vessel monitoring systems and the deployment of observers.

The Foreign Commonwealth Office represents UK interests at the Commission for the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources (CCAMLR). A key UK objective at CCAMLR is to defend the integrity and economic viability of the South Georgia fishery. This is achieved by obtaining consensus on total allowable catch (TAC) limits which are agreed on the basis of robust scientific evidence. The UK strives to ensure that CCAMLR adopts effective conservation measures to curb illegal, unregulated and unreported fishing across the Southern Ocean as a whole.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to ensure that the populations of (a) southern fur seals, (b) elephant seals, (c) albatrosses and (d) petrels are being protected in and around South Georgia and the Sandwich Islands. [250284]

Gillian Merron: The government of South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands (GSGSSI), the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the British Antarctic

Survey work collaboratively to protect wildlife on South Georgia. The Government works closely with the Commission of the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources (CCAMLR) and the international Agreement on the Conservation of Albatrosses and Petrels to conserve most of South Georgia's breeding populations. In addition the GSGSSI has a number of polices in place to protect life in both the marine and terrestrial environment, these include the designation of specially protected areas, specially protected species as well as prohibitions on disturbing, killing, capturing or exporting native fauna. These are set out in South Georgia's Plan for Progress—Managing the Environment 2006-2010.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department plans to provide funding to South Georgia and the Sandwich Islands to dismantle the former whaling stations in (a) Prince Olav Harbour, (b) Leith Harbour, (c) Stromness and (d) Husvik. [250285]

Gillian Merron: The FCO has no plans to provide funding to South Georgia and the Sandwich Islands to dismantle the former whaling stations. In 1991 the leases of the former whaling stations reverted to the Government of South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands (GSGSSI), therefore the responsibility to fund the dismantlement of the former whaling stations rests with the GSGSSI. The GSGSSI spent approximately £5 million to make the Grytviken whaling station safe for visitors. It is beyond the means of the GSGSSI to fund any further projects of this nature in the remaining stations. Visitors are prohibited from entering within 200 m of these stations for safety reasons.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's plans are for future provision of (a) medical care and (b) search and rescue facilities in South Georgia and the Sandwich Islands. [250286]

Gillian Merron: The Government of South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands (GSGSSI) funds the provision of a doctor at King Edward Point to support the local community and fishing industry. There are no search and rescue facilities or other emergency services on the Islands, nor are there any plans to develop such facilities.

In the event of a Search and Rescue incident the Commander of the British Forces in the South Atlantic Islands (CBFSAI) will coordinate any response using any appropriate assets that are available in the area at the time.

The GSGSSI has introduced measures to reduce the risk of major incidents by insisting visitors are supported by a dedicated vessel and by introducing restrictions on the passenger capacity of visiting vessels.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department is sponsoring schemes in South Georgia and the Sandwich Islands to promote biodiversity and conservation of endangered species in the area. [250287]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office, (FCO) the British Antarctic Survey (BAS) and the government of South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands (GSGSSI) work collaboratively to investigate and protect biodiversity and ensure the conservation of endangered species at South Georgia. The BAS have a long-term monitoring and survey programme which monitors seabird and seal population dynamics, feeding ecology and reproductive performance. The GSGSSI has strict procedures in place to prevent the introduction or transfer of alien species and in support of this the FCO is part-funding the development of a biosecurity store to be built at South Georgia to safeguard native species and control invasive species.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much revenue was generated in the South Georgia and Sandwich Islands from (a) sale of fishing licences, (b) harbour administration charges and (c) stamp sales in the year 2008. [250289]

Gillian Merron: The audited accounts for 2008 are not yet available. The provisional figure for revenue generated by the Government of South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands in 2008 from the sale of fishing licences was £4,410,384 (over 80 per cent. of which is spent on managing the fishery). The provisional figure for revenue generated by harbour administration charges and stamp sales was £153,159 and £108,019 respectively.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if his Department will bring forward proposals to improve transport facilities in South Georgia and the Sandwich Islands to encourage tourism to the islands. [250290]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has no plans to improve transport facilities in South Georgia. The principle objective of tourism management for South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands is to ensure the continued protection of the island's unique environment, including its flora, fauna and cultural heritage. While the numbers of tourists visiting South Georgia has increased in recent years, visitor landings are managed by the government of South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands so that authorised visitors may continue to have access to approved landing sites in a safe and regulated manner, whilst minimising any potential impacts on the island's unique heritage.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the objective is of the research which is being conducted by the British Antarctic Survey's scientific and support team in South Georgia and the Sandwich Islands. [250291]

Gillian Merron: British Antarctic Survey (BAS) scientists are funded by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Government of South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands to carry out a programme of applied fisheries research at the facility at King Edward Point in support of the sustainable management of fisheries around the island. The BAS scientific research at Bird Island is funded by the Natural Environment Research Council and focuses on seabird and seal population dynamics, feeding ecology and reproductive performance. This programme is aimed at providing robust scientific advice to the Commission for the Conservation of Antarctic Marine Living Resources for the management of Southern Ocean fisheries.

Holidays Abroad: Death

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British citizens died whilst on holiday abroad in each of the last five years. [248391]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Records held by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office do not distinguish whether a British National, who has died overseas, was on holiday or resident in country. For information relating to the number of British citizens who have died while abroad, I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1176W.

Ireland: Official Visits

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions in 2008 the President of the Irish Republic visited Great Britain; and which official UK representative met her on each visit. [248928]

Caroline Flint: President McAleese visited Great Britain on two occasions in 2008.

The first occasion was a visit to Liverpool in June to participate in the celebration of Liverpool's year as European Capital of Culture. In the course of the visit, the President was met by Dame Lorna Muirhead, Lord Lieutenant for Merseyside.

The second occasion was a visit to London in November, during which the President spoke at the London School of Economics and was guest of honour at the annual Queen's University Association dinner.

Middle East

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the policy of Palestinian leaders on recognition of the state of Israel as a Jewish state; what recent discussions he has had with Arab governments on the issue; and if he will make a statement. [244833]

Bill Rammell: We are in constant communication with Palestinian and Arab leaders to seek to advance the peace process and secure a two-state solution, including full recognition of Israel.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will refer the conflict in Gaza to the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court for investigation. [247791]

Bill Rammell: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary told the House on 19 January 2008, Official Report, column 501:

> "allegations must be closely and speedily investigated. Obviously, the three key parties to that investigation are the United Nations, the International Committee of the Red Cross and the Government of Israel, and we are in touch with all of them."

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have had with (i) Arab states and (ii) the government of Israel on the rights of Jewish refugees from Arab lands; what response was received from each; and if he will make a statement. [247990]

Bill Rammell: We have had no such discussions.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will instruct the United Kingdom ambassador to the United Nations to make representations against the reported use by Israel of depleted uranium shells and projectiles in the invasion of Gaza. [248769]

Bill Rammell: It is not clear whether Israeli forces have used depleted uranium munitions. We have made clear to the Israeli Government that they should do everything in their power to avoid innocent casualties.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Israeli government on the reported use of depleted uranium shells and projectiles in the invasion of Gaza. [248771]

Bill Rammell: It is not clear whether Israeli forces have used depleted uranium munitions. We made clear to the Israeli Government that they should do everything in their power to avoid innocent casualties.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with (a) his Israeli counterpart and (b) officials of the International Criminal Court on investigation of Israel's Gaza military operation. [249069]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 20 January 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has been in frequent contact with Foreign Minister Livni and Defence Minister Barak.

He has had no contact with officials from the International Criminal Court.

As the Foreign Secretary told the House on 19 January 2008, Official Report, column 501:

> "allegations must be closely and speedily investigated. Obviously, the three key parties to that investigation are the United Nations, the International Committee of the Red Cross and the Government of Israel, and we are in touch with all of them."

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the alleged hijacking of aid convoys by Hamas in Gaza; and if he will make a statement. [250220]

Bill Rammell: We are aware of reports that Hamas has been taking control of aid sent to Gaza from Arab countries.

We have repeatedly called publicly and privately for full and safe access for humanitarian agencies so that help can reach those in need. We urge all parties to respect their obligations, and to ensure the safe and unimpeded passage of humanitarian aid to Gaza.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the number of (a) women and (b) children who were (i) killed, (ii) seriously injured and (iii) slightly injured in Gaza as a result of being struck by rockets aimed at Israel in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [250228]

Bill Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold this information.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what account he (a) has taken and (b) plans to take of Article 13 of the Hamas charter in assessing Hamas's suitability as a partner for peace in the Middle East; what recent representations he has received on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [250229]

Bill Rammell: We have consistently made clear that to be a credible partner in peace Hamas need to accept the Quartet Principles of recognition of Israel, acceptance of previous agreement with Israel and rejection of violence.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the role of Iran in relation to the (a) funding, (b) training and (c) arming of (i) Hezbollah, (ii) Hamas and (iii) al-Qaeda; and if he will make a statement. [250230]

Bill Rammell: We have serious concerns about Iranian support for Hezbollah. Iran provides Hezbollah with significant financial resources, military equipment and training. Many of the most lethal and sophisticated weapons that Hezbollah used during the Israel/Lebanon conflict were of Iranian manufacture or procured from Iran. Such support is unacceptable and only serves to undermine regional security. Arms supplies to Hezbollah are contrary to the arms embargo established by UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1701.

We also have long-standing concerns about the support that Iran provides in the form of funding, arms and training to Palestinian Rejectionist Groups including Hamas, which are undermining peace in the middle east through violence. We hope that Iran will give political and diplomatic support to the Palestinian Authority in its attempts to build institutions and improve security.

We understand that Iran continues to hold some al-Qaeda (AQ) members in custody, but that members of AQ and affiliated groups have used, and possibly continue to use, Iran as a base, transit route and refuge. We have urged Iran to act against this and to co-operate fully with the rest of the international community against terrorism, as required by UNSCR 1373.

The UK would like to see Iran making a positive contribution to creating a secure, stable and prosperous middle east. But its current behaviour is a cause for serious concern for us and others. Iran needs to work with the international community and its regional neighbours to restore confidence in its intentions.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he plans to report the Israeli Government to the UN War Crimes Tribunal; and if he will make a statement. [250416]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary told the House on 19 January 2008, Official Report, column 501:

> "allegations must be closely and speedily investigated. Obviously, the three key parties to that investigation are the UN, the International Committee of the Red Cross and the Government of Israel, and we are in touch with all of them."

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) meetings, (b) telephone calls and (c) e-mails has he had with the Israeli ambassador since 27 December 2008. [250417]

Bill Rammell: I have met ambassador Prosor on several occasions during this period. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has been in direct regular communication with Foreign Minister Livni and Defence Minister Barak.

NATO

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the relevance of Article 5 of the North Atlantic Treaty to applicants for membership of NATO. [250872]

Caroline Flint: The North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) is a political and military alliance with a collective defence commitment enshrined in article 5 of its founding treaty, which extends to member countries only.

While the commitment under article 5 of the Washington treaty is unquestionably a significant attraction for nations aspiring to join the alliance, there are also real benefits to be derived for these aspirants and for wider Euro-Atlantic security from the process of democratic and defence reforms required in the preparation phase for NATO membership. These are clearly demonstrated (and assessed regularly) in the development of good governance, the rule of law and stability within all applicant countries.

Rashid Rauf

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any official in his Department had any contact with Mr. Rashid Rauf in (a) Pakistan and (b) Afghanistan during 2006. [245654]

Bill Rammell: No official in the Department had any such contact.

Russia: Detainees

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of progress on President Medvedev's commitment to end legal nihilism in the Russian legal system. [246836]

Caroline Flint: We welcome President Medvedev's focus on the need to strengthen the rule of law in Russia, including his focus on tackling corruption and promoting the independence of the judiciary.

It is a positive sign that President Medvedev signed a package of anti-corruption laws on 25 December 2008. However, the challenges are immense and the test will be in the implementation. We raised our concerns, most recently, at the UK/Russia bilateral human rights talks on 16 January 2009.

Self-Determination of States

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the merits of (a) the claim for independence of Kosovo from Serbia and (b) the claims of independence of South Ossetia and Abkhazia from Georgia; and if he will make a statement. [illegible]

Caroline Flint: Kosovo's independence was the culmination of a UN-led political process, envisaged in UN Security Council Resolution 1244 (99), to determine its final status. This process exhausted all avenues to negotiate a solution between the parties and in the UN Security Council. In declaring independence, Kosovo explicitly undertook to implement the UN Special Envoy's Comprehensive Settlement proposals, including the provisions on minority and community rights. It has adopted a constitution and legislative framework which give effect to this undertaking.

The UK recognised Kosovo on 18 February 2008. Kosovo has been recognised by a total of 54 states, has diplomatic missions accredited to 10 states and has applied for membership of the International Monetary Fund and other international organisations.

Russia recognised Abkhazia and South Ossetia immediately following Russia's military action against Georgia. This occurred without any process of negotiation to seek a durable solution. Russia's use of disproportionate force and its violation of Georgia's sovereignty and territorial integrity had no justification. Russia's actions were in defiance of successive UN Security Council Resolutions, most recently UNSCR 1808 (2008), which Russia had supported.

Russia's recognition of the separatist regions, and its use of disproportionate force to achieve its objectives undermine the principles of multilateralism and Russia's own reputation as a reliable member of the international community and the United Nations. Russia has isolated itself on this issue. Only Russia and Nicaragua have recognised these entities.

The general criteria that we apply for recognition of an independent state remain as described in the written answer dated 16 November 1989, Official Report, column 494, by then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (the hon. Tim Sainsbury). We consider that Kosovo has met these criteria, but that South Ossetia and Abkhazia have not.

Special Envoy for Conflict Resolution

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings the Prime Minister's Special Envoy for Conflict Resolution has had with (a) the United Nations, (b) the African Union and (c) the European Union since his appointment; and what issues were discussed. [illegible]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The right hon. Jack McConnell MSP, the Prime Minister's Special Representative on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms, has established a dialogue on multilateral approaches to post conflict stabilisation with the UN, the EU, the African Union and others.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of progress made by the technical ad hoc border committee in delineating the 1 January 1956 border in Sudan as mandated by the Comprehensive Peace Agreement. [249544]

Gillian Merron: The work of the Technical Ad hoc Border Committee is severely delayed and its report, which under the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA) was due by July 2005, has not yet been submitted to the presidency.

Defining and demarcating the North-South border remains one of the key obstacles to implementation of the CPA. We are fully engaged with both parties and international partners to secure full implementation of the CPA.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of progress in the work of the National Land Commission and the Southern Sudan Land Commission created by the Comprehensive Peace Agreement in Sudan. [249545]

Gillian Merron: The National Land Commission has not yet been established because the National Assembly in Khartoum has yet to pass the Land Bill. The Southern Sudan Land Commission (SSLC) has been established, but the Southern Sudan Legislative Assembly has not passed its own Land Bill, which is needed in addition to the national Bill, before the SSLC can exercise its functions in full.

We will continue to seek progress on land reform as part of our efforts to support full implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement.

Sudan: Press Freedom

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the government of Sudan to encourage it to respect freedom of expression and freedom of the press in line with Sudan's obligations under article 39 of its Interim National Constitution, Article 19 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and Article 9 of the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights. [249547]

Gillian Merron: We regularly raise with the Governments of Sudan (GoS) and South Sudan (GoSS) the need to fulfil obligations on human rights, including both freedom of expression and freedom of the press. The EU discussed these issues with the GoSS on 18 November 2008, and with the GoS on 3 December 2008.

Tibet: Missing Persons

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of the whereabouts of the Tibetan film maker Dhondup Wangchen; and what discussions he has had with his Chinese counterpart on the matter. [245247]

Bill Rammell: Non-governmental organisations have reported that Dhondup Wangchen was detained on 26 March 2008 after completing his documentary film 'Leaving Far Behind'. Dhondup was reportedly held in the Ershilipu Detention centre, in Xining (Qinghai Province) for three months. From there he was moved to the Guangsheng Hotel in Xining, where he was last seen around 12 July, 2008. We have no further information about Dhondup's whereabouts or whether any charges have been brought against him. We have not raised this specific case with the Chinese authorities.

Tony Blair

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the Government has contributed towards the salary of Tony Blair for his work for the Quartet in the Middle East. [248083]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 15 January 2009]: Mr. Blair does not draw a salary in his role as Quartet Representative. The Government do support the team for Mr. Blair through a £400,000 contribution to the UN Development Trust Fund, which supports the Quartet Representative's office in Jerusalem. The Government also provides four secondees and funding for a political analyst.

Turkey: Christianity

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations about reported attacks on the title and practice of the Christian Syriac Orthodox Church in Turkey to that country's government; and if he will make a statement. [246694]

Caroline Flint: We are aware of ongoing difficulties faced by all Christian groups in Turkey, including the Syriac Orthodox Church which faces particular difficulties as it is not recognised as a minority under the Lausanne Treaty (1923) and thus not formally recognised as such by the Turkish Government. As part of our ongoing bilateral dialogue we encourage Turkey to create an atmosphere of tolerance of religious difference and, where necessary, to make legislative changes to assist these groups.

We are particularly concerned about recent legal judgments relating to property claimed by the Syriac Orthodox Church in south-eastern Turkey, which are under appeal. EU representatives have attended court hearings and the EU has also raised these cases with the Turkish authorities.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps he has taken with international partners to seek to secure a settlement based on the rule of law and on democratic principles in Zimbabwe. [251857]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 29 January 2009]: We, with our international partners, are committed to supporting the establishment of a truly representative government that reflects the democratic will of the Zimbabwean people as expressed in the election of March 2008. Ministers are in regular contact with EU and UN counterparts to discuss the political and humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe. On 26 January, EU Foreign Ministers agreed to extend the list of individuals and entities subject to targeted measures. We have also been in regular contact with African leaders to encourage a sustainable resolution to the crisis.

TREASURY

Child Benefit

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average time taken to process a child benefit claim has been in each year since 1997. [253118]

Mr. Timms: For the periods 2007-08 and 2008-09 I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 22 October 2008, Official Report, column 356W.

In 2006-07, 68.3 per cent. of claims were processed in five working days and 94.9 per cent. in 36 working days.

For 2003-04 to 2005-06 the information requested can be found in the annual reports published on HM Revenue and Customs' website at www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/reports

For 1997-98 to 2002-03 child benefit was administered by the Department for Work and Pensions. The information requested for this period will have been published in the Department for Work and Pensions' departmental annual reports. HM Revenue and Customs no longer holds this information.

Child Tax Credit: EU Law

Mr. Gale: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what basis it was determined that child tax credit is not a family allowance for the purpose of Article 77 of EU Regulations 1408/71. [252781]

Mr. Timms: The purpose of the child tax credit is to support families in the UK. It is only given to families outside the UK in limited circumstances and to meet our obligations under EC Regulation 1408/71.

The term "family allowances" is defined in the regulation as benefits payable exclusively by reference to the number and, where appropriate, age of the children in the family. However, the child tax credit is based on the number of children and on annual household income. On that basis, HM Revenue and Customs has received legal advice that the child tax credit is not a "family allowance" and is therefore not payable under article 77 of the regulation.

Child Trust Funds

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what types of child trust funds each provider offers; and under what brand names each provider offers each type. [253376]

Ian Pearson: A table of the types of child trust fund offered by each provider can be found on the child trust fund website at the following address:

http://www.childtrustfund.gov.uk/templates/Page_1246.aspx

The names of the child trust funds offered by each provider can be found on the relevant provider websites links to which are available on the child trust fund website at the following address:

http://www.childtrustfund.gov.uk/templates/Page_1243.aspx

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which child trust fund (a) type and (b) provider has had (i) the largest return in percentage terms since being established and (ii) the largest increase in value in a single year; [253377]

(2) which child trust fund (a) type and (b) provider has had (i) the lowest return in percentage terms since being established and (ii) the lowest increase in value in a single year; [253378]

(3) what plans he has to assess the child trust funds available from each provider in respect of their comparative performance; and if he will publish the increase made in value by each fund in each year; [253379]

(4) how many and what proportion of child trust funds have been transferred under (a) section 7(a) and (b) section 7(b) of the Child Trust Fund Act 2004 in each year since their inception; and if he will make a statement. [253381]

Ian Pearson: HM Revenue and Customs does not hold this information.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of the economic downturn on the likely performance of child trust funds; and if he will make a statement. [253380]

Ian Pearson: Child trust funds are a long-term investment over an 18-year period, with the first accounts reaching maturity in 2020. Parents can choose which type of CTF account their child's money is invested in, and can transfer between account types at any time. Three types of child trust fund accounts are available. Stakeholder accounts and shares accounts invest in stocks and shares, while the savings account does not. Although shares can go down as well as up in value, particularly in the short-term, the historical evidence is that they tend to provide a better return than cash for long-term investments. Also, with CTF stakeholder accounts, the level of exposure to shares will decrease over time as money in the account is gradually moved into more cash-like investments after the child turns 13. This 'lifestyling' element will help to reduce risk before maturity.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what percentage of child trust funds opened under (a) section 5 and (b) section 6 of the Child Trust Fund Act 2004 in each year since their inception; and if he will make a statement. [253382]

Ian Pearson: This information is available in table 2 of the Child Trust Fund Statistical Report 2008 which can be found at the following address:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/ctf/statistical-report-2008.pdf

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the number and percentage of eligible children who have not had a child trust fund opened on their behalf in each year since their inception; and if he will make a statement. [253383]

Ian Pearson: Every eligible child has had a Child Trust Fund account opened for them. If the account opening voucher is not used by the child's parents then the Government set up an account on behalf of the child.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the total monetary value was of all child trust funds in each year since their inception; and how many such funds there were in each year; [253385]

(2) how many and what percentage of child trust funds have received contributions and subscriptions other than (a) those specified in sections 8 to 10 of the Child Trust Fund Act 2004 and (b) those resulting from the growth in value of the child trust fund. [253384]

Ian Pearson: This information is available in table 3 of each year's Child Trust Fund Statistical Report which can all be found at the following address:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/ctf/stats.htm

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 15 July 2008, Official Report, column 228W, on council tax: valuation, what payments from the public purse have been made to (a) CapGemini, (b) SAS and (c) Cole Layer Trumble/ Tyler Technologies for work on the council tax banding support tool. [252354]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 370W.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what use the Valuation Office Agency's automated valuation model makes of locality adjustment factors for council tax valuations in England. [252394]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my predecessor gave the hon. Member on 19 March 200., Official Report, column 1218W.

Deflation

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to reduce the risk of deflation in the economy. [251914]

Ian Pearson: The Bank of England's Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) has full operational independence in meeting the Government's inflation target. The remit of the MPC sets a symmetric inflation target.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in departmental buildings in the last 12 months. [252365]

Angela Eagle: Nothing.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of the IT systems in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are fully accredited to the Government's security standards. [245393]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury and the Treasury Group maintain a range of secure information systems on the Government's secure networks, and has always strived to ensure the that these systems are secure. Prior to June 2008, these were assured using a risk management approach in line with central Government guidance applicable at the time. Since the final report of the Cabinet Office's "Data Handling Procedures in Government", the Treasury has established a revised programme of assurance to ensure that all systems comply with the new accreditation standards going forward. In accordance with the recommendations of that review, progress will be reported in the Statement on Internal Control in the Treasury Group's consolidated resource accounts for 2008-09 and future years.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to advise staff of pension options available to them in relation to added years or additional voluntary contributions. [253274]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury has taken a dual approach to advise staff of pension options available. These are as follows: First, the provision of information regarding additional voluntary contributions and added year's are available on HM Treasury's intranet site; and secondly, the holding of pensions 'surgeries' at which options are outlined.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which external organisations his Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in his Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252231]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury does not distinguish between fast stream civil service staff and other colleagues who enter the organisation at the same grade. In the last three years, training courses have been provided to HM Treasury by the following external providers, of which fast stream civil service staff in post at HM Treasury, were eligible to attend:

PA Consulting
Dynamic Learning Solutions
National School of Government
Parity
Oxford Development Partnership
Bray Leino
Angel Scott Associates (now Global Economics)
Management Development Partnership
Birkbeck College
Oasis Consulting (now Senan Solutions)
Praesta
Oxford Group
Cedar Jarrolds

HM Treasury does not hold central training records on training that staff might provide to external organisations.

Departmental Video Recordings

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, columns 5150-51W, on the Valuation Office: video recordings, what training videos or digital equivalents for council tax valuation work his Department uses. [252353]

Mr. Timms: Training videos or digital equivalents are not used within the VOA's programmes of structured learning for council tax valuation work.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy where an answer refers to material published on his Department's website to ensure that (a) a copy will be made available to the hon. Member who tabled the question and (b) place a copy of the material will be placed in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [253019]

Angela Eagle: It has been the practice of successive Administrations to refer Members to publications and other source documents from which information they are seeking can be extracted.

EU Grants and Loans

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons his Department declined to accept an extension on spending deadlines for England for European structural funding in England; what estimate he has made of the amount of money under such structural funding provisions for England which was unspent at 31 December 2008; whether the extension will be accepted in relation to spending in (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [252941]

Ian Pearson: Responsibility for structural fund programmes, including eligibility extensions, lies with the appropriate Government Departments (DCLG, DEFRA, DWP) and devolved Administrations.

Government Departments: Energy Performance Certificates

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish the energy efficiency rating of each government building for which figures are available, based on its most recent energy display certificate. [252427]

Margaret Beckett: I have been asked to reply.

We have no plans to publish the energy efficiency ratings for each government building based on data held on the Energy Performance Certificate Register as this is prohibited by Energy Performance of Buildings Regulations.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many homes have qualified for zero-rated stamp duty land tax on zero-carbon homes to date. [252442]

Mr. Timms: The zero stamp duty land tax relief for new zero carbon homes was introduced in October 2007. I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ian Pearson) on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 909W.

Housing: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 7 May 2008, Official Report, columns 912-3W, on housing: valuation, what the definition of a live locality is. [252419]

Mr. Timms: A 'live' locality is one that is currently in use.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250135]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Hoon) on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W, about cars provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency.

Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 378W, on planning permission, what planning applications were made by his Department between 1997-98 and 2001-02; and for what purpose in each case. [252171]

Angela Eagle: I would refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 717W, to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude).

Public Sector: Pensions

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the circumstances and extent of the overpayment of public sector pensions by Xafinity Paymaster. [245208]

Mr. Byrne: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the written statement I gave to the House on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 111WS. This explained the circumstances in which pension overpayments occurred and indicated the estimated number and amount of the overpayments.

A number of different parties are involved in the process. Xafinity Paymaster administers pensions on behalf of the NHS and armed forces schemes. Cabinet Office, judicial and teachers' schemes use different administrators. The causes of the overpayments have been investigated by pension scheme administrators, Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and Department for Work and Pensions. From their investigations it is clear that there is no single cause. The National Audit Office will be carrying out a review of the end to end process in due course in order to pin-point accountabilities. The House will be updated further once this review has concluded.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will terminate the contract of Xafinity Paymaster in relation to the administration of public sector pensions; [245209]

(2) what steps are being taken to obtain repayment from Xafinity Paymaster in respect of the overpayment by them of public sector pensions. [245213]

Mr. Byrne: I have been asked to reply.

The written statement I gave to the House on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 111WS, explained the circumstances in which pension overpayments occurred. A number of different parties are involved in the process. Xafinity Paymaster pays pensions on behalf of the NHS and armed forces schemes. Cabinet Office, judicial and teachers' schemes use different pension administrators. I cannot comment on contractual issues which are delegated to individual Departments.

The causes of the overpayments have been investigated by pension scheme administrators, Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and Department for Work and Pensions. From their investigations it is clear that there is no single cause. The National Audit Office will be carrying out a review of the end to end process in due course in order to pin-point accountabilities. The House will be updated further once this review has concluded. Accountability for the overpayments, and any action that needs to be taken as a result, will not be clear until the NAO has completed its review.

Redundancy: Taxation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in what year the redundancy pay tax-free threshold was set at £30,000. [252437]

Mr. Timms: The £30,000 tax-free threshold has applied since 1988. The level of the threshold is kept under review, but evidence indicates that the current level exempts a large majority of redundancy payments from tax.

Revenue and Customs: Wales

Mark Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effect on HM Revenue and Customs expenditure of closing its office in Aberystwyth, identifying (a) costs and (b) savings separately; and if he will make a statement. [252862]

Mr. Timms: Normally HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) is unable to provide specific estate savings for a particular office for reasons of commercial sensitivity relating to the accommodation and facility contracts between HMRC and its PFI contractors. However, as HMRC's accommodation in Aberystwyth is not held under a PFI contract I can say that its vacation is estimated to contribute £83,000 to annual estate savings of about £4 million in Wales. This figure takes account of the need for continuing provision of face to face inquiry services.

Estate savings are however only part of the overall savings HMRC expects to achieve as a result of business efficiencies arising from restructuring, and have not been a primary factor in taking decisions on whether a particular office should be retained or vacated. The main consideration has been whether there is a business requirement to retain the office.

While HMRC recognises that there will be short-term costs associated with the closure of its office in Aberystwyth, reliable figures will only be established once solutions have been found for all staff and the accommodation has been vacated.

Stamp Duties

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) when he plans to reduce the stamp duty threshold to £125,000; [252195]

(2) what recent estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of the temporary increase in stamp duty thresholds; and how it will be financed. [252441]

Mr. Timms: The estimated cost of the stamp duty holiday was published at the pre-Budget report, which can be accessed here:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/prebud_pbr08_repindex.htm.

The funding of this is not hypothecated to a particular source of revenue. The holiday is due to end at midnight on 3 September 2009.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will bring forward proposals to reduce levels of stamp duty for individuals in shared purchaser arrangements when they are purchasing the share of a house not in their possession; [253166]

(2) if he will bring forward proposals to allow house purchasers to pay stamp duty only on the proportion of the house not in their ownership under shared purchaser arrangements. [253167]

Ian Pearson: Stamp duty, like all other taxes is kept under review. Details on the stamp duty treatment of shared ownership purchases can be found at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/so/shared-owner.htm

Taxation: Bingo

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will meet representatives of the bingo industry to discuss the levels of taxation upon their activities. [253927]

Angela Eagle: The Chancellor keeps all taxes under review and decisions about gambling taxation are made at Budget alongside all tax and spending decisions. The Government take all relevant factors into consideration when establishing and maintaining fair regimes for the gambling taxes. These include the state of the industry and wider conditions within the economy.

As part of the normal Budget process Ministers and officials have been in periodic contact with representatives of the bingo industry and will continue to meet them as part of the normal Budget process.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, columns 963W, on Valuation Office: handbooks, if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent editions of (a) Introduction to Inspections, (b) CT Referencers Manual, (c) Digital Mapping User Guide, (d) Rating Support Application Induction Workbook, (e) NDR Referencers Manual and (f) Digital Photography User Guide. [252206]

Mr. Timms: A copy of the Valuation Office Agency's Introduction to Inspections Workbook, CT Referencers Manual and NDR Referencers Manual will be placed in the Library.

The Digital Mapping User Guide, RSA Induction Workbook and Digital Photography User Guide are technical instructions on the use of Valuation Office Agency internal IT applications. It is not appropriate to publish information which might assist unauthorised access to VOA systems or databases.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) with reference to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 138W, on council tax: valuation, if he will place in the Library a copy of each of the user guides and manuals for (a) the digital mapping tool and (b) the locality delineation tool; [252352]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the user guide for the Valuation Office Agency's automated valuation model software and database. [252393]

Mr. Timms: No. These guidance manuals are technical instructions on the use of Valuation Office Agency internal IT applications. It is not appropriate to publish information which might assist unauthorised access to VOA systems or databases.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent advice given to Valuation Office Agency staff on health and safety in the field, including advice on the use of surveying equipment. [252434]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 22 March 2007, Official Report, column 122W. There has been no update to the health and safety information already placed in the Library.

In April 2008 the Valuation Office Agency published additional health and safety e-Learning. The syllabus, titled Health and Safety Site Inspections, includes four modules covering Health and Safety Site Visits, Hazards on Site, Personal Protective Equipment and Asbestos Awareness—A Practical Guide.

I am arranging for a viewable copy of the e-learning programme to be deposited in the Library of the House.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 17 March 2008, Official Report, column 989W, on the Valuation Office, at what intervals the Valuation Office Agency's automated valuation model is calibrated. [252488]

Mr. Timms: There are no set intervals for calibrating the models.

Valuation Office: Cole Layer Trumble

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 1218W, on Cole Layer Trumble, how much has been spent on payments to Cole Layer Trumble/Tyler Technologies funded via the public purse (a) directly from the Valuation Office Agency, (b) directly from HM Revenue and Customs and (c) indirectly via CapGemini under the ASPIRE contract since February 2007. [252162]

Mr. Timms: Unfortunately, the answer of 19 March 2008 was inaccurate in so far as the second payment quoted was made in the period from April 2007 to the end of February 2008 (not February 2007). Since February 2008, further payments to Cole Layer Trumble/Tyler Technologies have totalled £14,587. All figures exclude non-recoverable VAT.

Valuation Office: Contracts

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which organisations provided goods and services to the Valuation Office Agency in 2007-08; and what the address of each such organisation was. [252559]

Mr. Timms: A list of organisations, with addresses, which provided goods and services to the Valuation Office Agency, cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Valuation Office: Digital Technology

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, columns 150-51W, on the Valuation Office: cameras, for what work the 690 cameras purchased in 2007-08 were required. [252409]

Mr. Timms: Cameras are required to support property valuation work undertaken by the Valuation Office Agency.

Valuation Office: Geographic Information Systems

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 1226W, on Valuation Office: ICT, whether the Valuation Office Agency's Geographic Information System will assist with the utilisation of locality adjustment factors within the automated valuation model. [252161]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency's proposed geographic information system will be used to define and/or show on a map the localities to which dwellings are allocated for the purposes of automated valuation modelling. Adjustment factors are attributed to these localities in the modelling process.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1688-89W, on Valuation Office: Geographical Information Systems, how mapping data from Ordnance Survey will be integrated into the proposed Geographical Information System; and whether it will be used to assess the value significance of particular property attributes. [252408]

Mr. Timms: It is proposed that mapping data from Ordnance Survey will be loaded into the proprietary Geographic Information System (GIS) software. GIS will be one of a number of tools used by valuers to assist in assessing the impact of features that may affect the value of property.

Valuation Office: Land Registry

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1317W, on Valuation Office: Land Registry, whether the Valuation Office Agency uses the Land Registry Direct Service for (a) council tax valuation purposes and (b) populating the automated valuation model with property data. [252168]

Mr. Timms: The majority of data used by the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) for (a) council tax purposes and (b) populating the automated valuation models is drawn from stamp duty land tax information. The Land Registry Direct Service has not been used as a matter of course but is a further source of information; its availability to the VOA is identical to any other public or private body.

Valuation Office: Local Government

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of each edition of the Valuation Office Agency's IT Services Division Newsletter to Billing Authorities produced since May 2007. [252293]

Mr. Timms: There have been no Valuation Office Agency's IT Services Division Newsletters to Billing Authorities produced since May 2007.

Valuation Office: Parking

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether employees of the Valuation Office Agency whose office is located within the workplace parking charging zone being introduced by Nottingham City Council will be liable to pay the charge in whole or in part. [252194]

Mr. Timms: Nottingham city council has not yet agreed the Work Place Parking Levy Scheme. The Agency will examine the details of the scheme and determine the policy to be followed, should Nottingham city council proceed with the implementation of the proposed Work Place Parking Levy Scheme.

Valuation Office: Rightmove

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the (a) minimum and (b) maximum duration is of the renewed contract between the Valuation Office Agency, HM Revenue and Customs and Rightmove; and on what date the new contract was signed; [252198]

(2) with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 24 November 2008, Official Report, columns 964W, on Valuation Office: Rightmove, upon what terms the extension to the contract with

Rightmove was agreed; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the new contract, redacting commercially sensitive elements. [252207]

Mr. Timms: A redacted copy of the contract extension and variation to the original contract, both signed on 20 November 2008, will be placed in the Library of the House.

Valuation Office: Secondment

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff have been seconded (a) to and (b) from the Valuation Office Agency in the last 12 months; and what divisions of the Agency such staff were seconded (i) to and (ii) from. [252470]

Mr. Timms: There have been no secondments into or out of the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) in the last 12 months. There have been six loans—that is, short-term moves between Government Departments in total (a) to and (b) from the VOA in the last 12 months, as detailed:

(i) One to VOA Finance and Planning

(ii) One from VOA Human Resources

One from VOA Local Taxation

One from VOA Finance and Planning

One from VOA Rating

Valuation: Conferences

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the presentations and handouts produced by the (a) Director of Council Tax and (b) Head of AVM Development at the Valuation Office Agency at the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors' automated valuation models conference in November 2008. [252395]

Mr. Timms: A copy of these presentations, and an accompanying paper, has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the presentation on Revaluation 2010 given by the Valuation Office Agency at the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors' rating annual conference in June 2008. [252399]

Mr. Timms: A copy of this presentation, made by a representative of the Valuation Office Agency, has been placed in the Library.

VAT

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made on the effect on inflation of the reduction in value added tax to 15 per cent. [251915]

Mr. Timms: In pre-Budget report 2008 (Cm7484), it was assumed that the majority of the VAT rate cut will be passed through to consumer prices, but that prices will be reduced progressively rather then immediately. This is in line with international evidence.

The Office for National Statistics published statistics on UK inflation in December on 20 January 2009. Their First Release discusses the VAT reduction in the context of inflation estimation and can be found at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/pdfdir/cpi0109.pdf.

It concludes that the VAT reduction made the largest contribution to the sharp fall in inflation to 3.1 per cent.

VAT: Business

Lady Hermon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate his Department has made of the administrative cost to business of the recent temporary reduction in the rate of value added tax following the reduction coming into force; [252311]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the administrative cost to business of the recent temporary reduction in the rate of value added tax prior to that reduction coming into force; [252312]

(3) what estimate his Department has made of the administrative cost to business of a variation in the rate at which value added tax is levied. [252313]

Mr. Timms: Estimated costs to business in the UK are published in the impact assessment of changes to the standard rate of VAT. This is available on the HM Treasury website. Reliable cost estimates cannot be produced on a regional basis.

VAT: Energy

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of changes to value added tax revenues as a result of changes in domestic gas and electricity prices in the last 12 months. [252189]

Mr. Timms: No specific estimate has been made.

JUSTICE

Animal Welfare: Prosecutions

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions there were for offences relating to the torture of animals in each of the last five years. [252347]

Maria Eagle: Data showing the number of defendants proceeded against for offences relating to animal cruelty, in England and Wales from 2003 to 2007 (latest published) are contained in the following table. There is no specific offence for the torture of animals.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[251898]

Mr. Wills: Since May 2008, the Ministry of Justice has been working with skills sector councils to promote apprenticeships across a range of subjects to all MOJ employees. The number of people currently employed undertaking apprenticeships is 364. The following table gives a breakdown of these by subject:

Apprenticeship title	Number

Approved Premises

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) residential approved premises exclusively for (i) male and (ii) female offenders and bailees and (b) mixed-sex residential approved premises there are in (A) each of the English criminal justice regions and (B) Wales; in which town or locality each is sited; and how many residents there were in each on the last Friday of each of the last 24 months for which figures are available. [248519]

Mr. Hanson: A table which has been placed in the Library shows information for each criminal justice region: the names of the current approved premises (APs) and the town or city in which each is located; whether the AP is all-male, all-female or mixed-sex; the total number of APs of each type for each region; and the number of residents in each AP for each month between December 2006 and November 2008 (the most recent month for which complete figures are available). Numbers of residents in approved premises are recorded on the last day of each month, rather than on the last Friday of the month.

Approved premises provide for enhanced and effective supervision of certain offenders which would be much more difficult to achieve if such offenders were dispersed into less suitable accommodation in the community.

Bail Accommodation and Support Scheme

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) defendants and (b) offenders have been placed in ClearSprings accommodation since the start of the Bail Accommodation and Support Scheme. [252344]

Mr. Straw: The service commenced on 18 June 2007. Up to 26 January 2009, 1,292 defendants on bail and 1,048 offenders on home detention curfew had been placed in ClearSprings accommodation.

Bail Accommodation and Support Services: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) when he expects the second bail hostel planned for Milton Keynes to be operational; and what its capacity will be; [253164]

(2) what the capacity of the bail hostel in Milton Keynes is. [253165]

Mr. Hanson: I take the hon. Member to be referring to the accommodation and support service for bail and Home Detention Curfew provided to NOMS by ClearSprings. The service does not provide hostels. There is currently one property in Milton Keynes with three places. A second three bed roomed property is being sought. It is not possible to predict by when a property will be found and brought into use.

Debt Collection

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance under what title Her Majesty's Court Service has issued to bailiffs in the last 12 months; and when each was most recently updated. [252469]

Bridget Prentice: Her Majesty's Courts Service employs county court bailiffs and civilian enforcement officers as well as private enforcement agent organisations to execute warrants on behalf of Her Majesty's Courts Service in England and Wales.

Her Majesty's Courts Service regularly issues guidance and direction to its staff and enforcement agents on a variety of issues. This includes both operational and personal guidance. The guidance is issued from a number of sources within Her Majesty's Courts Service and the Ministry of Justice.

The cost associated with specifying what guidance and under what title has been issued to bailiffs in the last 12months would be disproportionate and my Department has therefore not been able to provide details.

Departmental ICT

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the (a) first estimate, (b) last estimate and (c) outturn cost was of each of the 30 largest IT contracts his Department has entered into with external suppliers since the Department was established. [250830]

Maria Eagle: The Department was created in May 2007 and most of the Department's IT contracts are legacy contracts from the former Department for Constitutional Affairs, Home Office and Office for Criminal Justice Reform.

Two contracts awarded since the Department was established are ongoing and there are no outturn costs to report. A small number of other IT contracts are managed at local business level and information on these is not held centrally.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East, of 13 October 2008, Official Report, columns 870-1W, on departmental manpower, how many (a) staff without posts and (b) staff classified as priority movers there are in his Department and its agencies; how many of the staff without posts were classified as such after returning from maternity leave; and how many of the staff without posts have been classified as such for at least (a) six months and (b) 12 months. [250089]

Mr. Wills: There are less than five people that are classified as staff without posts in the Department so this information is withheld on grounds of confidentiality.

There are 126 permanent staff classified as priority movers within the Ministry of Justice. The figure comprises both full-time and part-time staff. All are actively in employment. However, due to business reasons, for example, restructuring, relocation, closure of offices/courts, the end of projects/secondments etc, their substantive posts have come to or are potentially coming to an end.

There are no staff who after returning from maternity leave have been classified as without posts, nor are there any staff without posts who have been classified as such for at least six or 12 months. Of the 126 permanent staff that are currently classified as priority movers, less than 10 have been in this category for at least six months and less than 15 for at least 12 months.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff his Department employs. [252346]

Mr. Straw: On 31 December 2008, (the latest date for which figures are available) the Ministry of Justice employed 76,872 full-time equivalent staff.

Departmental Official Residences

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 17 November 2008, Official Report, column 19W, on departmental official residences, whether the council tax bills for (a) HM Courts Service and (b) HM Prison Service residential accommodation are paid from public funds; and what his Department's policy is on whether the proposed new charges for the collection of household waste will be funded by the public purse or personally by the occupying staff member. [252215]

Mr. Hanson: For Judges Lodgings the council tax bills for residential properties held by HM Courts Service (occupied by judges' lodgings managers and court keepers/custodians), are paid for by the individual resident staff who pay rental for their occupation. HMCS does not meet the cost from the public funds.

HM Courts Service has not yet decided on the policy that it will adopt to recover the proposed new charges in respect of the collection of household waste. Where charges may accrue in respect of household waste, HMCS may look to the individual to meet the cost (as in the case of recovering rent), but this would be considered against the actual amount due and the time and cost to recover same.

Staff that occupy National Offender Management Service provided residential accommodation (most commonly known as prison officer quarters) are liable for all local taxes. No consideration has been given to meeting any new local taxes from the public purse.

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Dundee East of 30 April 2008, Official Report, columns 511-14W, on departmental public participation, if he will place in the Library a copy of each of the non-confidential individual responses to the 2007 bailiff regulation document. [252355]

Bridget Prentice: 414 readable responses were received following the publication of the 2007 Bailiff regulation document. An analysis of these responses was undertaken and a report was published in March 2008. A copy of this report has been placed in the Library. It is our intention to place in the Library a copy of all 414 readable responses to this paper by the 16 February 2009.

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost of his Department's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each of the last five years. [251250]

Maria Eagle: Since its creation in May 2007 to 31 March 2008, the Ministry of Justice spend on Public Relations consultancies was £290,476. From April 2008 to date the Ministry of Justice has spent £87,797. Due to machinery of government changes it is not possible to identify comprehensive data for the earlier time periods prior to May 2007.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252263]

Mr. Wills: There was no expenditure by the Ministry of Justice on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008. No such training sessions were held for MOJ staff.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252017]

Mr. Malik: The majority of staff in the Ministry of Justice are covered by flexible working arrangements which, subject to working appropriate core hours, provide staff with a degree of flexibility while enabling the Ministry and its Agencies to provide an effective service for our customers.

Flexible working arrangements mean that staff who work in excess of their contracted hours, whether during lunch breaks, in evenings or at other times, gain credit on their flexi-hours. Those who accrue sufficient hours credit, may (subject to prior management approval) take the appropriate number of hours as 'flexi leave'.

This approach allows excess hours to be accrued and taken as leave at such times that both meet the needs of the business and support the work-life balance of our staff.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252018]

Mr. Malik: Time off in-lieu is available under locally agreed Flexible Working Hours arrangements. The number of hours worked and time taken off in lieu are recorded locally by managers can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Driving Offences

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were convicted of reckless driving offences during their first 12 months as licensed drivers in (a) Ribble Valley, (b) Lancashire and (c) the UK in each of the last five years. [253223]

Maria Eagle: Available information held by the Ministry of Justice on convictions at all courts for offences of dangerous and careless driving in Lancashire police force area and England and Wales for the years 2003 to 2007 (latest available) is provided in the following table.

from Information held centrally it is not possible to provide constituency level data.

Information on the number of findings of guilt during the first 12 months as a licensed driver are not held by the Ministry of Justice.

There is no specific offence for reckless driving, thus the number of findings of guilt at all courts for offences of dangerous and careless driving for Lancashire Police force area and England and Wales has been provided in lieu.

Data for 2008 should be available in the autumn of 2009.

Findings of guilt at all courts for offences of dangerous and careless driving, in Lancashire police force area, and England and Wales, 2003-07[1] [2]

		Number of offences
	Police force area
Findings of guilt	Lancashire	England and Wales
2003	918	38,478
2004	744	37,133
2005	696	35,[illegible]
2006	756	33,6[illegible]
2007	921	43,525

[1] It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Fraud: Elections

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 7 January 2008, Official Report, column 150W, on fraud: elections, what progress has been made on the Government's plans to bring forward further legislation to implement its policy on requiring valid signatures for the issue of ballot papers in polling stations. [252484]

Mr. Wills: The Government continue to consider how this measure could most effectively be implemented. We must ensure, however, that any approach to this issue is aligned with other reforms to the registration and electoral processes.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to increase the budget of the Information Commissioner to assist the processing of reports under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [251713]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice (MOJ) and the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) regularly review funding for the Office's freedom of information work.

In response to business cases made by the ICO, the MOJ has provided the ICO with additional grant in aid over and above its original baseline for this financial year and the previous three. Figures are set out in the following table.

The MOJ has made clear that additional funding must result in increased productivity and efficiency. The ICO has reviewed its internal processes and has adopted new procedures such as senior level triage of new cases as they are received to drive performance improvements. During the last completed quarter the ICO has closed 11 per cent. more cases than in the equivalent quarter in the last financial year.

In the current financial year, in addition to an extra £500,000 on top of the £5 million baseline, the MOJ has promoted a secondment scheme to assist the ICO with its freedom of information casework. Currently, six civil servants are seconded to the ICO, paid for by their home departments.

Discussions are continuing about funding for next year.

Grant in aid allocated to ICO for freedom of information work

Financial year	Amount
2008-09	£5,500,000 (included additional £500,000 on £5 million baseline complemented by MOJ promotion of a scheme to second civil servants to ICO at government departments' expense)
2007-08	£5,050,000 (included additional £350,000 on £4.7 million baseline in response to ICO bid for funding to meet legal costs for Information Tribunal cases)
2006-07	£5,550,000 (included additional £850,000 on £4.7 million baseline for clearing the backlog)
2005-06	£5,100,000 (included additional £100,000 on £5 million baseline for reorganising Information Commissioner's office)

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 7 January 2008, Official Report, column 151W, on Freedom of Information Act 2000, which (a) regional chambers and (b) proposed local authority leaders' boards will be subject to the provisions of the Act. [252152]

Mr. Wills: If approved by both Houses, provisions within the Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Bill (currently before the House) will disband regional chambers and replace them with local authority leaders' boards. There is currently no provision in the Bill to bring local authority leaders' board within the scope of the Freedom of Information Act. However, this matter will be given further consideration in due course.

Government Departments: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) with reference to the answer of 17 November 2008, Official Report, House of Lords, column 166WA, on Government departments: public relations, for what reasons his Department's communications staff were not used to mount the campaign to increase public awareness of the Mental Capacity Act; [248977]

(2) with reference to the answer to the right hon. Member for Devizes of 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1670-71W, on departmental public relations, which external public relations consultancies received a portion of the £290,476 referred to; how much each received; and for what purpose the payment was made in each case; [249204]

(3) with reference to the answer to the right hon. Member for Devizes of 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1670-1W, on departmental public relations, on which public relations consultancies the expenditure was incurred; how much was spent on each; and for what purpose. [252170]

Bridget Prentice: The campaign to increase public awareness of the Mental Capacity Act was devised by the Office of the Public Guardian (OPG) with advice and professional support from Ministry of Justice's

Communications Directorate. The campaign was national in scope but needed to be targeted to reach particular people and organisations for which the Mental Capacity Act would have an impact and provide benefits. An external agency was used as the resource did not exist in the OPG, and the MOJ Communications Directorate could not dedicate sufficient resource to run such a campaign. Procuring an external agency to deliver the time-limited campaign also meant that the OPG did not have to hire extra staff and so exceed headcount limits.

The £290,476 referred to in the answer to the right hon. and learned Member for Devizes (Mr. Ancram) in November 2008 is broken down as follows:

Four Communications and HBL Media	Human Rights campaign	45,728
Four Communications	City of London planning application	1,880
Amazon PR	Family Mediation helpline and Mental Capacity Act	58,400
Good Relations	CJS Speedy, Simple, Summary programme and Weekly media and public affairs reports	71,978
Leapfrog PR	Liverpool Community Justice Centre	29,616
Hopwood PR	Leicester Community Justice Centre	49,255
Red Consultancy	Community Sentencing	33,619

HM Prison Rye Hill

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps his Department has taken in response to the findings of HM Chief Inspector of Prisons in April 2005 that HM Prison Rye Hill was at that time an unsafe and unstable environment, both for prisoners and staff. [252130]

Mr. Malik: A Rectification Notice was issued against the contractor for Rye Hill, GSL, on 2 August 2007 to address shortcomings in performance across six key areas. Significant progress has been made by the contractor to remedy the failings identified by HM Chief Inspector of Prisons. The Rectification Notice was removed in November 2008. This followed a review meeting that considered the prison had improved its performance sufficiently to justify such action.

Housing: Sales

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many domestic dwellings have been sold at a value of between £125,000 and £175,000 according to records held by the Land Registry since the temporary increase in the stamp duty threshold. [252415]

Mr. Wills: The Land Registry's latest figures cover the period since the introduction of the temporary increase in the threshold for stamp duty, until the end of December 2008. There were 32,985 domestic dwellings sold at a value between £125,000 and £175,000 during this period.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many domestic property transactions there were according to Land Registry data in each local authority in England and Wales in each year since 1997-98. [252416]

Mr. Wills: The information requested has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Information Commissioner: Manpower

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the adequacy of staffing levels in the Information Commissioner's Office to deal with enquiries from the public and hon. Members effectively. [252856]

Mr. Straw: The Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) is funded by a combination of grant in aid from the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) to pay for its freedom of information activities and notification fees paid direct to the ICO by data controllers to fund its data protection work. The Information Commissioner is independent of Government.

The MOJ and the ICO regularly review the funding allocated to the Office. In response to business cases made by the ICO, the MOJ has provided the ICO with additional grant in aid above its original baseline for this financial year and the previous three for freedom of information work. Figures are set out in the following table.

The MOJ has made clear that additional funding must result in increased productivity and efficiency. The ICO has reviewed its internal processes and has adopted new procedures to drive performance improvements. During quarter three, the ICO closed 11 per cent. more cases than in the equivalent quarter in the last financial year.

In the current financial year, the MOJ additional grant amounted to £500,000, on top of its £5 million baseline. The MOJ has also promoted a secondment scheme to assist the ICO with its freedom of information casework. Currently, six civil servants are seconded to the ICO, paid for by their respective Government Departments.

Legislation is before Parliament to provide tiered notification fees for data protection payable to the ICO. This will increase the ICO's funding in line with the Information Commissioner's estimate of the cost of meeting both his existing and proposed new statutory data protection responsibilities.

Grant in aid allocated to ICO for freedom of information work

Financial year	Amount
2008-09	£5,500,000 (included additional £500,000 on £5 million baseline complemented by MOJ promotion of a scheme to second civil servants to ICO at Government Departments' expense)
2007-08	£5,050,000 (included additional £350,000 on £4.7 million baseline in response to ICO bid for funding to meet legal costs for Information Tribunal cases)
2006-07	£5,550,000 (included additional £850,000 on £4.7 million baseline for clearing the backlog)
2005-06	£5,100,000 (included additional £100,000 on £5 million baseline for reorganising Information Commissioner's office)

Legal Advice and Assistance: Travelling People

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much funding his Department has authorised the Legal Services Commission to provide for legal advice and representation for Travellers through the exceptional funding scheme in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09; and in respect of which planning inquiries such funding was drawn upon in each year. [252364]

Mr. Malik: The Ministry of Justice has authorised the Legal Services Commission (LSC) to grant funding, through the exceptional funding scheme, for gypsies and travellers to be represented at planning inquiries amounting to: £33,496.22 in the financial year 2007-08, and £13,958.69 (to date) in the financial year 2008-09. The final amounts paid may have varied slightly from the figures aforementioned as the LSC can adjust the grant if necessary (for example if the hearing is longer, or shorter, than expected).

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much funding the Legal Services Commission allocated to the Community Law Partnership to provide legal advice for Travellers in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [252397]

Mr. Malik: The Legal Services Commission (LSC) holds a contract with the Community Law Partnership to provide a helpline for Travellers to provide legal advice on a range of matters.

In 2007-08 the contract for this helpline was worth £56,540 excluding VAT. In 2008-09 the contract for this helpline was worth £61,680 excluding VAT. The Gypsy and Travellers' telephone helpline receives funding each year contingent upon the Community Law Partnership delivering their contracted 1,100 hours in 2007-08 and 1,200 hours in 2008-09.

The helpline forms a small part of the LSC's national telephone helpline, Community Legal Advice (0845 345 4 345).

The Community Law Partnership also has a contract with the LSC to deliver services in legal categories including housing, welfare benefits and community care law. That contract is for legal help and does not include representation in court. The LSC is unable to say how much of this funding has been provided to Travellers because it does not hold information to indicate whether clients follow any particular lifestyle.

Magistrates: Manpower

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many sitting magistrates there were in each of the last five years. [252505]

Mr. Straw: The following figures show numbers of active magistrates at each financial year ending 31 March:

	Number
2008	29,419
2007	29,816
2006	28,865
2005	28,300
2004	28,029

Offenders: Personal Records

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have a record held on the Government's Offender Index database. [253783]

Mr. Hanson: The Offenders Index holds data on court appearances in England and Wales since 1963. We cannot give a reliable figure for the total number of offenders included as we no longer use the database, except for analysis of selected cohorts. The Offenders Index was formerly used to provide estimates of reoffending rates, but since 2005, the Department has used data from the Police National Computer to provide its published figures on reoffending.

Operation Safeguard

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the maximum amount is that police forces may charge for the provision of meals to prisoners held overnight in police cells under Operation Safeguard. [252349]

Mr. Straw: Under an agreement between NOMS and ACPO, the police are able to charge up to £12 for the provision of meals for a 24 hour period or part 24 hour period (this may be exceeded under exceptional circumstances).

Parking: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the workplace parking charges being introduced by Nottingham City Council will be required to be paid in whole or in part by staff in (a) Land Registry and (b) Legal Services Commission offices located within the workplace parking charge zone. [252414]

Mr. Wills: Until a firm decision has been made as to whether the Workplace Parking Levy scheme in Nottingham is to be introduced and full details made available, neither Land Registry or the Legal Services Commission will be in a position to consider whether the parking charges introduced by the scheme will be passed on in full or in part to their staff at their Nottingham offices.

Police Custody

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many cases of prisoners being held in short-term police custody cells owing to insufficient prison capacity there have been in each of the last five years; [252284]

(2) on how many occasions Operation Safeguard cells were used in each of the last three years. [252826]

Mr. Straw: Operation Safeguard is the formal agreement between the National Offender Management Service and the Association of Chief Police Officers to hold prisoners in police cells at times of very high population pressure.

Operation Safeguard was activated between 12 October and 22 December 2006 and again from 16 January 2007 to 31 October 2008. The table covers these periods and gives the aggregate total of the number of prisoner nights in which a police cell was used during each year shown. It is not possible to ascertain how many individual prisoners these totals cover.

	Aggregate number of prisoner nights in police cells
2006	4,614
2007	66,711
2008	17,601

Prison Service: Manpower

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prison officers and (b) staff HM Prison Service employed in England and Wales in each of the last five years. [252507]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the number of prison officers and associated grades, and other staff within the Prison Service of England and Wales is contained in the following table. The figures include staff working in headquarters.

Prison Service Staffing (Public and Private Sectors) – 2004-08

As at 31 December each year	Officer and operational support grades	Other staff	Total SIP
2004	33,067	18,333	51,400
2005	33,963	18,069	52,032
2006	34,495	18,493	52,988
2007	35,749	19,227	54,976
2008	36,718	20,734	57,452

Notes:

1. Includes prison officers, senior officers, principal officers and operational support grades in public sector Prison Service and prison custody officers and Senior Prison Custody Officers within private establishments.
2. Figures are on a headcount basis.

Prisoners Release

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners have been released having served no more than a quarter of their sentence for offences of each type in each of the last three years. [251426]

Mr. Hanson: Prisoners may only be released into the community earlier than the half way point of their sentence under either the home detention curfew scheme (HDC) or the end of custody licence scheme (ECL).

The home detention curfew scheme enables suitable prisoners to be released subject to an electronically monitored curfew up to 135 days earlier than the half way point of their sentence. No prisoners are released on HDC unless they have served at least one quarter of their sentence subject to a minimum of 30 days in custody.

Under the end of custody licence scheme eligible prisoners may be released up to 18 days earlier than the half way point of their sentence subject to serving a minimum of seven days in custody after sentence. Some prisoners serving very short sentences of between 28 days and 72 days may therefore be released on licence under the ECL scheme on or before they have served one quarter of their sentence if they meet the eligibility criteria.

The following tables show the number of HDC and ECL releases by offence group. The HDC figures are published annually in Offender Management Caseload Statistics (most recently for 2007) and information on ECL releases is published monthly. All publications are available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www-justice.gov.uk/publications/statistics.htm.

It is not possible to provide the specific information requested on numbers of prisoners released after serving no more than a quarter of their sentence in custody without manual checking of individual records at disproportionate cost.

[1] Offence recorded on prison IT system. Investigations suggest that around 5 per cent. of offence types recorded on this system do not relate to the offence they were released on HDC for but relate to offences committed after release from prison and before the licence expiry date for their sentence.
[2] Includes the offence of bigamy.

Taken from Table 1 in OMCS 'ECL releases and recalls December 2008, England and Wales'

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners have been released on end-of-custody licence since 29 June 2007; how many of those were foreign nationals; and how many such prisoners have re-offended while on licence. [252285]

Mr. Straw: Between 29 June 2007 and 31 December 2008, the latest date for which information is available, there were 47,515 prisoners released under the end of custody licence scheme. Those foreign national prisoners who either have no lawful basis upon which to remain in the UK or will be subject to deportation at the end of their sentence are not eligible for release under the end of custody licence (ECL) scheme.

The Government have made it clear that they will seek to remove or deport those foreign nationals who commit crimes in the UK and meet the relevant criteria. Of the 47,515 prisoners who were released under the end of custody licence scheme, less than 6 per cent. of these were foreign national prisoners. Internal management information also shows that less than 1 per cent. of those foreign national prisoners who were released under the scheme were later convicted of a further offence during their period of end of custody licence.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisoners Transfers

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost of transferring prisoners (a) from one prison to another and (b) to and from court was in each of the last five years. [252157]

Mr. Hanson: Details of the costs of transferring prisoners to one prison from another in England and Wales using the inter prison transfer contract are held by financial year and are set out in the following table:

	Cost of inter prison transfers (£ million)
2003-04	5.64
2004-05	5.79
2005-06	5.97
2007-08	7.64

Since August 2004 the contracts for the escort of prisoners have included a separate payment for every prisoner journey undertaken. The payment covers vehicle and staff costs. Details of these payments for escorting prisoners to and from courts in England and Wales are available by calendar year from 2005 and are set out in the following table.

	Cost of escorting prisoners to and from courts (£ million)
2005	53.32
2006	55.99
2008	61.80

The figures include the cost of all prisoner journeys in the London and south east contract area as to separate the escort of prisoners from police stations to prisons from the invoiced total could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Incorrect figures for the cost of escorting prisoners to and from courts were previously given in answer to the hon. and learned Member for Harborough on 31 January 2008, Official Report, column 572W.

Prisoners: Training

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) which companies were contracted by his Department to provide training for (a) prisoners and (b) prison staff in each of the last five years; [251182]

(2) what his Department's expenditure on companies contracted to train (a) prisoners and (b) prison staff has been in each of the last five years. [251183]

Mr. Straw: Training for prisoners is largely undertaken in house through courses run by prison service [illegible]ructors. These courses enable prisoners to achieve vocational qualifications in areas including prison industries, catering, horticulture and gymnasium and are designed to assist prisoners gaining employment on release.

Training to support reducing reoffending and resettlement initiatives for prisoners are provided by the suppliers detailed as follows. The expenditure is included.

Prisons

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what progress his Department has made towards its objective of increasing the prison capacity in England and Wales to 86,000 by September 2009. [252343]

Mr. Hanson: We estimate that prison capacity in England and Wales will reach 86,000 places around November 2009.

We are expanding prison capacity by 20,000 places and aim to achieve an overall net capacity of just over 96,000 by 2014.

Reoffenders

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders placed on the end of custody licence scheme have been recalled to custody since the scheme's inception; and how many of the alleged further offences committed were (a) robbery, (b) burglary, (c) theft and handling, (d) fraud and forgery, (e) drug offences, (f) rape, (g) attempted rape and (h) other sexual offences. [252345]

Mr. Straw: 47,515 offenders have been placed on the end of custody licence scheme (ECL), of whom 1,594 (approximately 3 per cent.) have been recalled to custody from the start of the scheme on 29 June 2007 to 31 December 2008.

Independent of the number of recalls is the number of offenders notified to the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) as having allegedly re-offended during their period of ECL. NOMS may be notified of an alleged further offence for which it is not possible to recall the offender to custody because, for example, the ECL period has expired by the time the offender is charged with the offence.

Between 29 June 2007 and 31 December 2008, 712 offenders were notified to NOMS as alleged to have committed a total of 959 further offences while on the scheme. The following table shows the types of offences allegedly committed in the categories requested.

Alleged offence	Number of alleged offences
Robbery	39
Burglary	77
Theft and Handling	289
Fraud and Forgery	9
Drug Offences	25
Rape[1]	2
Attempted Rape	0
Other Sexual Offences[1]	5

[1] Of the seven alleged sexual offences listed in the table, one has resulted in a conviction; the remaining six cases have either been discontinued prior to trial or resulted in acquittal.

Special Educational Needs: Tribunals

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many appeals to the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal were made by a local authority children's services department on behalf of a looked-after child in 2007-08. [251770]

Bridget Prentice: The First-Tier Tribunal (Special Educational Needs and Disability), known as Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal (SENDIST) prior to 3 November 2008, does not retain any statistical information on how many appeals are made by Local Authority Children's Services Departments on behalf of looked-after children. This information could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

The tribunal keeps data on the total number of appeals, the type of appeal, the category of the special educational need, the outcome of the appeal and the length of time to reach a decision.

In 2007-08, SENDIST received a total of 3,396 appeals.

Television: Licensing

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people per 10,000 of the population in each region of the UK were prosecuted for non-payment of television licence fees in each of the last three years. [253086]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of persons per 10,000 of the population proceeded against for television licence evasion in England and Wales from 2005 to 2007 (latest available), broken down by region is in the following table. Information data held by the Ministry of Justice only cover England and Wales.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Valuation Office: Land Registry

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 7 January 2008, Official Report, columns 153W, on Land Registry Direct, what property data the Land Registry Direct Service provides to the Valuation Office Agency. [252150]

Mr. Wills: The Valuation Office Agency will be able to obtain the same information as any other users of Land Registry's services, whether they are in the public or private sector. As users of Land Registry Direct the Valuation Office Agency will have access to our register. The Land Register has been available for public inspection since December 1990 and Official Copies of registers, title plans and deeds and most documents referred to on the register can be obtained by post or electronically. The information included on a register is:

title number of property or land

the tenure (freehold or leasehold)

There are over 22 million titles registered with Land Registry covering England and Wales.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1317W, on the Valuation Office: Land Registry, how much the Valuation Office Agency paid the Land Registry for access to the Land Registry Direct Service in the latest year for which figures are available. [252165]

Mr. Wills: There is no charge to access Land Registry Direct. All registered users, whether public or private sector, hold a credit account and only pay for particulars that they download.

HEALTH

Asthma

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) children and (b) adults were admitted to hospital due to asthma in the last five years. [252155]

Ann Keen: The Department uses information from Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) for data of this kind. HES is the national statistical data warehouse for England of the care provided by national health service hospitals and for NHS hospital patients treated elsewhere. The data are freely available from:

www.hesonline.nhs.uk

For hospital admissions for asthma the HES data are not broken down by age, but they are broken down into age categories of 0-14 years old and 15 plus years old for finished episodes of asthma. Note that a patient may have more than one episode for each hospital admission, which explains why episode data exceed admission data in the following table. Data are currently only available for the five years previous to 2006-07, collected from April to April:

	Admissions	Episodes (ages 0-14)	Episodes (ages 15 plus)
2006-07	62,656	26,448	51,656
2005-06	59,072	22,542	51,698
2004-05	63,422	25,570	53,023
2003-04	56,698	22,125	47,992
2002-03	51,601	21,840	40,414

Breast Cancer: Screening

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the (a) current and (b) planned capacity in each of the next five years is for the number of breast screenings in each primary care trust; and if he will make a statement; [252381]

(2) what steps his Department has taken in preparation for the planned extension of breast screening; and if he will make a statement. [252411]

Ann Keen: Information on current and planned capacity for breast screening in each primary care trust (PCT) is not collected centrally. It is for PCTs, in partnership with strategic health authorities, local services and other local stakeholders, to determine how best to use their funds to meet the healthcare needs of their local populations. PCTs are required to provide breast screening services for their eligible populations. They are responsible for ensuring that breast screening services are delivered to national standards.

The NHS Breast Screening Programme is a huge success, saving an estimated 1,400 lives each year. It is now screening more women and detecting more cancers than ever before. In 2007-08, 1.71 million women were screened and 14,110 cancers were detected.

We are extending routine breast screening to women between the ages of 47 and 73 years, with a guarantee that women will have their first screening before the age of 50. As a result, over 400,000 more women will be screened each year. This extension is being managed by NHS Cancer Screening Programmes in partnership with local health services and will be piloted in six sites from January 2009. The pilots will meet strict quality and performance criteria and will act as a learning platform to enable remaining services to model their rollout plans. Full implementation of the breast screening extension across England is due by the end of 2012.

Cancer

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Government plans to spend to modernise health service equipment for cancer treatments over the next three years; and what types of equipment are planned to be replaced. [251456]

Ann Keen: As part of the Cancer Reform Strategy (CRS), £250 million capital funding has been made available over the next three years (2008-09 to 2010-11) to improve and modernise cancer equipment. This funding will be included in the total capital funding available to the national health service under the NHS capital planning process. Equipment which has reached the end of its useful life should be replaced under local capital investment strategies.

It will be for local determination to decide the level of funding required to meet the needs of their patients and to ensure local cancer services are delivered and equipment is maintained and replaced in accordance with commitments, standards and recommendations made in the CRS and other relevant guidance provided by professional bodies.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in his Department's buildings in the last 12 months. [252374]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has expended the sum of £13,352.62 on works and refurbishment to Ministers' offices within the last 12 month period.

The expenditure is broken down into:

Repairs to roof which caused water damage to Secretary of State's room	9,419.02
Redecoration following flood damage as above	3,936.60

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the initial estimated (a) cost and (b) delivery date was of each ICT project initiated by his Department in each year since 1997; what the (i) outturn cost and (ii) completion date was of each such project subsequently completed; which contractors were hired for each project; and how much has been paid to each contractor in respect of each project to date. [251382]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what scheduled capital expenditure in the NHS his Department is planning to delay. [253470]

Dawn Primarolo: There are no plans by the Department to delay any existing capital programmes or individual schemes.

General Dental Council

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the new General Dental Council to be in place. [252135]

Ann Keen: The General Dental Council (GDC) is working closely with the Department to deliver the new GDC in advance of the expiry of the terms of office of the current council, on 9 October 2009.

Health Professions

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) qualified nursing, (b) midwifery and (c) health visiting staff were (i) male and (ii) female in each year from 2006. [252703]

Ann Keen: The following table gives a breakdown by gender for qualified nursing, midwifery and health visiting staff from 2006.

			Registered midwife		Health visitor		Nurse
At 30 September each year	Total	Unknown gender	Male	Female	Male	Female	Male	Female
2006	374,538	21,354	176	22,937	176	11,507	37,890	280,498
2007	376,737	35,978	113	23,415	139	11,140	36,787	269,165

Hospitals: Retail Trade

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many complaints his Department has received on prices charged in retail outlets within NHS hospitals in each of the last 12 months; [253162]

(2) what recent discussions he has had on his Department's policy on lease of retail spaces in hospitals; and if he will make a statement; [253163]

(3) how many NHS hospitals receive (a) a percentage of retail outlet revenue and (b) a flat fee when leasing space within their buildings to retailers. [253170]

Dawn Primarolo: Under income generation powers hospitals are able to establish and operate retail outlets that complement and extend the range of services and facilities for patients and visitors, as well as providing additional income that is re-invested directly back into local healthcare services.

The specifics of any contract and the operation of the outlets are a matter for local national health service management. The Department does not hold any records of these contracts.

There have not been any recent ministerial discussions regarding policy on the leasing of retail space in hospitals.

Income generation guidance advises that prices must conform to Fair Trading, Enterprise and Competition legislation. The Department's records of correspondence show no instances of complaints relating to prices charged in NHS retail outlets in the last 12 months.

Medical Records

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made towards ensuring that GP care record systems will be compatible with the Summary Care Record. [252340]

Mr. Bradshaw: Three general practitioner (GP) care systems have successfully demonstrated compatibility and have been used in the creation of patient summary care records in the early adopter primary care trusts. It is anticipated that a fourth supplier will have achieved compatibility by April 2009. These four suppliers represent 95 per cent. of all GP care systems in use throughout England. Other suppliers are making progress towards compatibility, but no firm timelines exist for their systems to achieve compatibility at this stage.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what proportion of patients in each (a) acute trust, (b) primary care trust, (c) mental health trust and (d) GP practice have had their care records uploaded; [252341]

(2) how many and what proportion of (a) acute trusts, (b) primary care trusts, (c) mental health trusts and (d) GP practices in each region have deployed summary care records; and what the timetable for their full deployment is. [252342]

Mr. Bradshaw: A summary care record (SCR) early adopter programme has been established in a small number of primary care trusts (PCTs) to ensure lessons were learned prior to national implementation of the SCR. The number of patient records created and the number of general practitioner (GP) practices that have created summary care records, as at 27 January 2009, are in the following table.

In accordance with the NHS operating framework 2009-10, strategic health authorities will agree the timeline for implementing the SCR with PCTs as commissioners, and have been asked to plan for roll-out of the SCR based on a two-year window for the full deployment of SCR from the date on which all GP systems used in the PCT area are compliant with national programme for information technology systems and services.

PCT	General practices live with SCR	Number of SCRs created
Bolton	13	91,146
Bury	17	100,183
South Birmingham	3	21,001
Bradford	1	19,173

Other NHS organisations and services able to access the summary care record:

Royal Bolton Hospital, Accident and Emergency Service;

Bolton Out of Hours Service;

Bolton Walk in Centre, Lever Chambers Centre;

Bury Out of Hours Service;

Bury and Rochdale Doctors on Call BARDOC;

Fairfield General Hospital Bury, Accident and Emergency Department; and Pennine Care NHS Foundation Trust, Mental Health Services.

Medical Treatments: EU Law

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what information his Department has on progress made recently in implementing the Medicines Directive in (a) Jersey and (b) Guernsey; [252887]

(2) when he expects the Medicines (Human and Veterinary) (Bailiwick of Guernsey) Law, 2008 to come into force in Guernsey. [252888]

Dawn Primarolo: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has a meeting with the government of Jersey on 11 February 2009 to begin discussions on the implementation of the Medicines Directive 2001/83/EC. Guernsey's Medicines Law received Royal Assent on 10 December 2008 and now requires an ordinance by the states of Guernsey to bring it in to force. This is expected in spring 2009. The MHRA continues to assist the government of Guernsey in the development of the additional legislation required for implementation of the Medicines Directive.

Midwives: Insurance

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the likely effects on independent midwifery of the implementation of Article 5 of the draft European Directive on the application of patients' rights in cross-border healthcare, with specific reference to the provisions on professional liability insurance. [252133]

Dawn Primarolo: The draft directive on the application of patients' rights in cross-border healthcare is currently subject to negotiations as part of the European co-decision process.

The Government have already signalled their intention that independent midwives should have professional indemnity cover and are committed to supporting them to do so.

MRSA

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to reduce levels of MRSA infections in hospitals. [253127]

Ann Keen: The Department's strategy for reducing health care associated infections (HCAIs), including methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA), in the national health service (NHS) is set out in 'Clean, safe care', which has already been placed in the Library.

Infection control is one of the five top priorities in the NHS Operating Framework for 2008-09 and MRSA and Clostridium difficile targets to 2010-11 have been set under the Better Care for All Public Service Agreement. Clean, safe care outlines the comprehensive range of measures being employed, backed by £270 million additional investment per year by 2010-11 to tackle HCAIs and improve cleanliness.

Steps include screening all relevant elective admissions to hospitals for MRSA from April 2009, and all emergency admissions by 2010-11; a technology programme designed to accelerate the development and uptake of new technologies to improve infection control; the development of a new national standard for cleanliness in the NHS and a new national minimum standard for MRSA. The Department has re-launched its nationwide antibiotic awareness campaign, and will be launching a HCAI patient awareness campaign in the summer.

These measures should support the NHS to meet their legal requirements on infection control, as set out in the Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Healthcare Associated Infections, which has already been placed in the Library. All acute NHS trusts are inspected annually against the code of practice by the Healthcare Commission. From April 2009, the new Care Quality Commission will assess compliance against the code of practice and will have a broader range of powers to ensure high performance in infection control.

NHS: ICT

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff in his Department have been employed (a) on the Connecting for Health project and (b) in roles relating to press and public relations work on the project in each year since it was announced. [252332]

Mr. Bradshaw: Available information is in the following table. For 2003-05 it relates to the national programme for information technology (NPfIT) only. On 1 April 2005 the Department's NHS Connecting for Health agency came into being. NHS Connecting for Health is responsible for delivering NPfIT, and maintaining the critical business systems previously provided to the national health service by the former NHS Information Authority.

Notes:

1. Figures are for full-time equivalent staff. 'Other' includes contract and temporary staff, and secondees.
2. Because of variation in staff numbers to meet workloads over time, figures are quoted for dates for which information is readily available. Figures since February 2005 are quoted as at February for ease of year-on-year comparison.

NHS: Negligence

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total premium payable to the Clinical Negligence Scheme for Trusts has been in each financial year since 2000-01; and what estimate he has made of the amount of such premium payments in 2009-10. [251617]

Ann Keen [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA) collects contributions in the third quarter of the current financial year to cover the estimated costs to be incurred by the clinical negligence scheme for trusts in the following financial year. The information requested is in the following table and was provided by the NHSLA.

Financial year	Premium collected (£ million)
2000-01	49.7
2001-02	41.2
2002-03	221.2
2003-04	247.9
2004-05	406.8
2005-06	468.3
2006-07	457.6
2008-09	396.3

The premium to be collected for 2009-10 is £713.4 million. This is substantially higher than the previous year due to delayed settlement of over 100 high-value cases until a Court of Appeal ruling was made in the "Thompstone et al"[1] indexation cases, as well as other factors such as rising legal costs. We would expect this figure to fall back in 2010-11.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250145]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W. Additionally:

> The Department does not own any vehicles.
> Two private lease vehicles are used by departmental staff under an arrangement operated by HM Revenue and Customs. Capacity details for these vehicles is not available.
> The Department has an arrangement with Arval PHH for hire of vehicles. The contract specifies that no vehicle with an engine capacity greater than 1600 cc should be provided.
> The Department has a contract with Addison Lee for the provision of taxis. Typically, vehicles supplied are 1.9 litre diesel.

The Department also has an arrangement with Government Car and Despatch Agency, part of Department of Transport. They provide Toyota Prius vehicles as part of their 'Green Cars' Scheme.

Orthopaedics

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the timetable is for the application to orthopaedic hospitals of amendments to the HRG4 national tariff; [252136]

(2) whether he plans to provide transitional relief to specialist orthopaedic trusts whose income is adversely affected by changes to the national tariff HRG4; [252137]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effect on the finances of each specialist orthopaedic hospital of (a) changes to the HRG4 national tariff and (b) adjustments to the market forces factor. [252138]

Mr. Bradshaw: From 1 April 2009 the national tariff which is used by all providers of NHS services will be based, in part, on the clinical grouping methodology HRG4.

Interim impact analysis, using historical activity data, has been undertaken centrally at several stages of tariff calculation. This has included the impact associated with the new market forces factor (MFF). A more accurate analysis can be carried out locally using locally available data, when the final tariff has been published.

Once the new tariff is in use strategic health authorities, involving primary care trusts where appropriate, will have discretion to manage both the transition towards the full impact of the revised MFF and the financi[illegible] impact of the move to tariffs based on HRG4.

Prescriptions: ICT

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in the development of the electronic prescription service. [252339]

Mr. Bradshaw: Deployment of release 1 of the electronic prescription service (EPS) commenced in February 2005 when the software was delivered and is now largely complete. Currently, 86 per cent. of all general practitioner practice sites and 87 per cent. of pharmacies are technically enabled. On average, EPS is being used for around 30 per cent. of prescribed daily prescription messages.

The software for release 2 was delivered in August 2006 and final compliance preparations are under way by general practitioner and pharmacy information technology suppliers for the implementation of release 2. 17 initial implementer primary care trusts have been specified in Secretary of State Directions as those that may authorise the use of the EPS by their prescribers. Subject to the conclusion of ongoing compliance testing, deployment to an initial implementation site is expected to start shortly.

NHS Connecting for Health has engaged with clinicians and patient groups to help inform the development of communication and guidance materials that will support the initial implementation of release 2.

Stroke: East Midlands

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what strategy he is pursuing to ensure that the maximum number of patients in the Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust area have access to a computed axial topography scan within 24 hours of their stroke-related condition being diagnosed; and if he will make a statement. [250948]

Ann Keen: The new stroke strategy for England launched in December 2007, sets out the changes needed in the emergency management of strokes, and national support is available to drive improvements to acute care for both transient ischaemic attack (minor stroke) and stroke. All hospitals now provide computed tomography scanning and by far the majority also provide magnetic resonance imaging and carotid doppler.

We have made stroke a top priority for the national health service and this has been recognised in the recently issued NHS Operating Framework for 2009-10, where implementing the stroke strategy remains a Tier 1 Vital Sign: that is a 'must do' for the NHS.

Thalidomide Trust: Finance

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what financial assistance his Department has provided to the Thalidomide Trust since May 1997. [252872]

Ann Keen: The Department has not provided financial support to the Thalidomide Trust. Responsibility for providing compensation to victims rests with Messrs. Distillers, now part of Diageo plc, the company that marketed the drug in the United Kingdom. A private compensation settlement was agreed with Distillers in 1973, and Diageo continues to make annual payments to the Thalidomide Trust, the charitable trust established [illegible]dminister payments to victims.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he has taken to inform parents of changes to the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal system; and if he will make a statement. [252965]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

On 3 November 2008, the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal (SENDIST) became part of the First-tier Tribunal (Special Educational Needs and Disability—SEND). It sits within the Health, Education and Social Care Chamber.

In preparation for the move into the new tribunals structure there has been a two-part consultation process on the changes for those jurisdictions, including SENDIST: "Transforming Tribunals" discussed the proposals for a new tribunals structure and ran from 28 November 2007 to 22 February 2008; and, the "Health, Education and Social Care Chamber Rules" were consulted upon from 29 May until 11 July 2008.

Information on draft practice directions was available on the SENDIST website in July 2008, and the draft practice directions themselves were also sent out to a wide range of service user groups, including parents, parent representative groups and local education authorities, in early October.

Two newsletters were also issued to the service user groups, the first in July and the second in October 2008. Both contained detailed information on changes to processes and the latter addressed specific issues of concern raised by users.

There has also been a service user group made up of representatives from a range of voluntary groups and local education authorities working with the judiciary to ensure the rules, practice direction and case management system were fit for purpose.

Since November 2008, SEND judiciary and members of the user service group have provided free training on the rules, practice directions and case management system for 840 user and user representatives; a further 130 are booked for training in February 2009.

In addition, application forms for appeals and claims under the new system are available on the SEND website together with guidance on how to appeal and other relevant information. A clear link has been added to the site's front page to direct users to this information. Further briefing notes on particular issues, for example, the assessment of children under rule 15 (4) ("provision to have a child assessed"), have been produced and issued to users.

The tribunal has also provided a final list of appeal numbers for cases that will be dealt with under the SENDIST regulation, and how onward appeals from the First-Tier Tribunal's decisions will be dealt with under the new rules.

Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal: Children in Care

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many cases of looked-after children were considered by the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal system in the last year for which figures are available. [251771]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The First-Tier Tribunal (Special Educational Needs and Disability), known as Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal (SENDIST) prior to 3 November 2008, does not retain any statistical information on how many appeals relate to looked-after children. This information could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

The tribunal keeps data on the total number of appeals, the type of appeal, the category of the special educational need, the outcome of the appeal and the length of time to reach a decision.

In 2007-08, SENDIST received a total of 3,396 appeals.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many civil servants in his Department have been (a) disciplined and (b) dismissed for breaches of the Civil Service Code in each of the last three years. [241407]

Mr. Watson: The Civil Service Code sets out the standards of behaviour expected of all civil servants and forms part of the Civil Service Management Code and other conduct rules.

Between 2006-08 16 Cabinet Office employees have either been disciplined or dismissed.

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the (a) highest, (b) lowest and (c) average pro-rata compensation of board members of non-departmental public bodies associated with the Cabinet Office was in each of the last five years; [251208]

(2) what the (a) highest, (b) lowest and (c) average salary of board members of non-departmental public bodies associated with the Cabinet Office was in each of the last five years. [251209]

Mr. Watson: Information on 2005-06 and 2006-07 is published in the Cabinet Office Public Appointments Plans for 2006 and 2007, available at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/reports/public_bodies.aspx

Copies are also available in the Libraries of the House.

Details of remuneration before 2005-06 are not held centrally and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Information on 2007-08 will be published in due course.

Government Departments: Information Officers

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many civil servants in Government departments and agencies have a title of head of messaging according to records held by (a) Government Communications and (b) the Central Office of Information. [250325]

Mr. Watson: Government Communication does not hold information on job titles of civil servants. COI do not have any record of civil servants bearing this job title.

Members Interests

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent version of the model declaration letter provided for Ministers to declare their interests. [249959]

Mr. Byrne: A list of Ministers' interests will be published shortly. It will include details of the categories of information required to be provided.

Public Service Forum

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) who the members of the Public Service Forum are; [250327]

(2) on what dates the Public Service Forum has met; and what the criteria for determining its membership are. [250509]

Mr. Watson: The Public Services Forum (PSF) was formed in 2003 to improve dialogue between Government, public service employers and trade unions. It has met three times a year until 2008 when this was increased to four times a year.

There is no fixed 'membership' of the PSF; the ministerial chair invites employers and trade union representatives in roughly equal numbers to engage in dialogue with the Government on public service work force issues. Representatives are sent from the CBI, Business Services Association, Association of Chief Executives of Voluntary Organisations and the National Council of Voluntary Organisations are also invited to attend some meetings.

Public Services Forum Task Group

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 17 March 2008, Official Report, column 870W, on Warwick Task Force Group contact, what the names are of the members of the Public Services Forum Task Group; and if he will place in the Library copies of the minutes of Group meetings held in the last 12 months. [249957]

Mr. Watson: The Public Services Forum Task Group was chaired by an official nominated by the Cabinet Office and attended by a further three civil servants from relevant Departments, four representatives from the CBI, private and third sector umbrella organisations and four Trades Union Congress representatives.

The group developed the Joint Statement on Access to Skills, Trade Unions and Advice in Government Contracting, which came into effect on 15 July 2008. A copy of the Joint Statement has been placed in the Library of the House.

Trade Unions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Chichester of 25 February 2008, Official Report, column 1185W, on trade unions, whether recognised trades' unions are allocated departmental office space in which to conduct trades' union work; [249939]

(2) with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Chichester of 27 February 2008, Official Report, column 1619W, on trades' unions, what the Cabinet Office policy is on granting (a) paid and (b) unpaid time off for trades' union representatives to undertake (i) trades' union duties and (ii) political campaigning. [249940]

Mr. Watson: Cabinet Office has a partnership agreement with our Departmental Trade Union Side—Public and Commercial Services Union, First Division Association and Prospect. The agreement provides the trade unions' representatives with appropriate resources, including office working space, in order to fulfil their responsibilities.

Cabinet Office trade unions' representatives can apply to their managers for special leave to fulfil their responsibilities.

Unemployment

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of working age households in each parliamentary constituency in which no-one was in work in each month of the last two years. [252909]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question on the number and proportion of working age households in each parliamentary constituency in which no-one was in work in each month of the last two years. (252909)

The available information is provided in the table, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House.

Monthly estimates are not available and the information requested has been answered using annual estimates derived from the Annual Population Survey (APS) household dataset for the years 2006 and 2007. Estimates for 2008 will not be available until summer 2009.

Figures for households are based on working age households. A working-age household is a household that includes at least one person of working-age, that is a woman aged 16 to 59 or a man aged 16 to 64.

It is vital to note that as with any sample survey, estimates from the APS are subject to a margin of uncertainty as different samples give different results. Estimates that are deemed unreliable for practical purposes are presented in italics. These estimates are based on small sample sizes and are subject to large variability. Estimates that are reliable are presented in bold.

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what percentage of children in each parliamentary constituency lived in (a) households claiming out-of-work benefits and (b) workless households in each month of the last two years. [252914]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question on how many and what percentage of children in each parliamentary constituency lived in (a) households claiming out-of-work benefits and (b) workless households in each month of the last two years. (252914)

The available information for part (b) is provided in the table, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House.

Monthly estimates are not available and the information requested has been answered using annual estimates derived from the Annual Population Survey (APS) household dataset for the years 2006 and 2007. Estimates for 2008 will not be available until summer 2009.

Figures for children in households are based on children aged under 16 years old living in working age households. A working-age household is a household that includes at least one person of working-age, that is a woman aged 16 to 59 or a man aged 16 to 64.

It is vital to note that as with any sample survey, estimates from the APS are subject to a margin of uncertainty as different samples give different results. Estimates that are deemed unreliable for practical purposes are presented in italics. These estimates are based on small sample sizes and are subject to large variability. Estimates that are reliable are presented in bold.

The Department for Work and Pensions has provided the answer to (a) on how many and what percentage of children lived in families claiming out-of-work benefits in each year since 2004, broken down by parliamentary constituency (226150), and I refer you to the answer given on 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 702W.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Cemeteries: Complaints

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many complaints the Local Government Ombudsman has received relating to the administration of cemeteries in the last 24 months; and how many were upheld in whole or in part. [252466]

John Healey: During the two-year period January 2007 to December 2008, the Local Government Ombudsman received 73 complaints related to cemeteries and crematoria. Of these, five were outside their jurisdiction and 21 were premature and so were referred back to the council. Of the 47 cases that were investigated, six are still waiting a decision. Of the 41 cases determined, there were no formal findings of maladministration, although local settlements were reached in six cases, which can be regarded as an acceptance of fault by the Council.

Community Centres: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 18 March 2008, Official Report, column 962W, on community centres: valuation, how many properties there were under the category of hall and premises on the 1995 Rating Lists for England in each Government Office region in 1998 or in the most recent period for which figures are available. [252201]

John Healey: As at 1 April 1998, there were 15,851 properties described as hall and premises in the 1995 Rating Lists for England.

Government region	Number of hall and premises as at 1 April 1998
East Midlands	1,724
East of England	2,575
London	1017
North East	550
North West	1,159
South East	3,002

Council Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the speech made by the Minister for Local Government to the Local Government Association on 2 July 2008, what the timetable for the review of the enforcement of council tax is; what the terms of reference of the review are; and what plans she has to introduce proposals to amend legislation in this regard. [251968]

John Healey: I announced on 2 July 2008 that I am working with the Ministry of Justice to look at new ways to collect and enforce council tax, in particular by allowing councils to transfer council tax debts from magistrates to county courts. Any necessary legislation will be introduced as parliamentary time allows.

Annex D of the Council Tax Collection Good Practice Report of 2004, summarises good collection practice for council tax. The report is published on Communities and Local Government website at:

www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/ctax/goodprac.pdf

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of new homes built in each year since 1990 have been in each council tax band. [253240]

John Healey: The following table sets out the percentage of new homes in each council tax band by the year they first appeared in a council tax valuation list in England. As valuation lists were not compiled until 1 April 1993, no figures are available before that date.

Council Tax: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has for the electronic sharing of council tax information across public sector bodies. [252495]

John Healey: The administration of council tax is a matter for local authorities, the Valuation Office Agency, the courts and the Valuation Tribunal Service. My Department currently has no plans to seek changes to the legislative framework within which they operate so far as the electronic sharing of council tax information is concerned.

Council Tax: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 31 January 2008, Official Report, column 575W, on council tax: empty property, if she will place in the Library a copy of the final report by Roger Tym and Partners. [251934]

John Healey: I have today placed in the House Library a copy of the report, "Application of Discretionary Council Tax Powers for Empty Homes", by Roger Tym Partners in Association with Three Dragons. The report is also available on Communities and Local Government's website at:

www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/counciltaxemptyhomes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what arrangements are in place to compensate local authorities which report a reduction in their council tax base because of an increase in numbers of empty residential properties. [252502]

John Healey: The distribution of Formula Grant takes into account the relative needs and relative resources of each authority, relative to all other authorities providing the same services. There is also a central allocation and the floor damping mechanism.

The relative resources component reflects the authority's potential to raise income through council tax. For multi-year settlements, this is measured by projections of the council tax base.

The council tax base is the number of Band D equivalent properties. The number of dwellings in each band is calculated by taking the number of dwellings on the valuation list and adjusting for various exemptions and discounts.

For the 2008-09 to 2010-11 settlement, the projections of the tax base were calculated using the tax base as at 8 October 2007 and then applying the average annual increase between October 2005 and October 2007.

The number of dwellings that receive a discount because they are classed as long-term empty dwellings is taken into account in the calculation of the tax base.

Council Tax: Floods

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, with reference to the Answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 484*W*, on council tax: floods, which local authorities have exercised their powers to grant council tax discounts to owners of uninhabitable properties. [252428]

John Healey: Pursuant to my answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 481W,on council tax: floods, I am aware that the following local authorities have exercised their power under Section 13 A of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 to grant discounts to owners of properties which were still uninhabitable due to the June and July 2007 floods after the 12-month exemption period, under Class A, has lapsed.

Bassetlaw District Council
Cheltenham Borough Council
Cotswold District Council
Doncaster Metropolitan Borough Council
East Riding of Yorkshire Council
Forest of Dean District Council
Gloucester City Council
Herefordshire Council
Kingston upon Hull City Council
Kirklees Metropolitan Borough Council
Malvern Hills District Council
Newark and Sherwood District Council
North Lincolnshire Council
North Wiltshire District Council
Rotherham Metropolitan Borough Council
Stratford-upon-Avon District Council
Swindon Borough Council
Tewkesbury Borough Council
Vale of White Horse District Council
City of Wakefield Metropolitan District Council
West Berkshire Council

West Oxfordshire District Council
Wokingham Borough Council
Wychavon District council
Wyre Forest District Council

Some other local authorities affected by the floods may have exercised their power to grant discretionary discounts: the Department does not have information about them.

Council Tax: Pensions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to right hon. Friend the Member for Tonbridge and Malling of 18 December 2008, Official Report, columns 1045-6W, on council tax: pensions, what the (a) monetary value and (b) proportion was of local authority revenue expenditure that comprised employer's contributions to pension funds and other retirement benefits in each year since 1996-97. [251887]

John Healey: Information on employers' contributions to pension funds and other retirement benefits for local authorities in England for 2007-08 can be obtained from the Local Authority Revenue Expenditure and Financing England 2007-08 Final Outturn statistical release published on CLG's website at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.Uk/finance/stats/natstats.htm#rev

Data for earlier years, where available, can be obtained from annual editions of Local Government Financial Statistics England.

Council Tax: Students

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what arrangements are in place for her Department to review (a) provision for student discounts on council tax and (b) the manner in which local authorities with student populations are compensated in respect of the discount. [252299]

John Healey: Communities and Local Government keeps the legislative framework governing council tax under continual review, including the provisions for student discount disregards and exemptions.

The distribution of Formula Grant takes into account the relative needs and relative resources of each authority, relative to all other authorities providing the same services. There is also a central allocation and the floor damping mechanism.

The relative resources component reflects the authority's potential to raise income through council tax. For multi-year settlements, this is measured by projections of the council tax base.

The council tax base is the number of Band D equivalent properties. The number of dwellings in each band is calculated by taking the number of dwellings on the valuation list and adjusting for various exemptions and discounts.

For the 2008-09 to 2010-11 settlement, the projections of the tax base were calculated using the tax base as at the 8 October 2007 and then applying the average annual increase between October 2005 and October 2007.

The projections of council tax base used in the calculation of the 2008-09 to 2010-11 settlements also reflect an adjustment for student exemptions. This adjustment uses the average of student council tax exemption numbers from counts as at 31 May 2007 and 8 October 2007, rather than using a count solely as at 8 October 2007.

We are continuing to discuss with local government how to best reflect student exemptions in these projections for the next three-year settlement.

Council Tax: Tax Allowances

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 13 May 2008, Official Report, columns 1441-2W, on council tax: tax allowances, what types of local council tax discount were awarded in 2008; and which authorities were awarding each type of discount as at 8 October 2007. [252420]

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 298W, on council tax: valuation, which local authorities provide (a) commencement notices, (b) completion notices and (c) plans to the Valuation Office Agency for council tax valuation purposes. [252172]

John Healey: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) her Department's executive agencies, (b) the non-departmental public bodies sponsored by her Department and (c) the Government Offices for the Regions offset their air travel via the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund. [252178]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government's executive agencies, non-departmental public bodies and the Government offices for the regions do not offset their air travel via the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund.

The only air travel emissions offset via the Fund are from the central Department's operations.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much capital expenditure has been brought forward in response to the economic downturn by her Department, its agencies and non-departmental public bodies to (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; from which years such expenditure has been brought forward; and if she will make a statement. [251403]

Margaret Beckett: On 2 September 2008 we announced a £1 billion market rescue package to increase confidence, stability and fairness in the housing market. On 24 November we brought forward additional capital spending as part of the 2008 pre-Budget report fiscal stimulus. Considering together the September housing announcement and the pre-Budget report, we are making £350 million, £1,275 million and £55 million of capital available for expenditure in years 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 respectively. In addition, £95 million has been made available for 2009-10 and 2010-11 to support reforms to Support for Mortgage Interest announced in the September 2008 housing package. £25 million of the total £1,775 million package has been brought forward from 2009-10 and £1,750 million from 2010-11.

This includes the additional flexibility offered by the Government, at the pre-Budget-report, to the regional development agencies to bring forward £100 million of capital expenditure from financial year 2010-11 to 2009-10. Communities and Local Government and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform are currently working closely with the regional development agencies to take this forward.

It also includes the flexibility offered by the Government to local authorities in England to bring forward up to £175 million of planned major housing repairs expenditure from 2010-11 to 2009-10. Communities and Local Government will invite local authorities in England to bring forward up to this amount to enable councils to invest in a way which will maximise investment in the housing stock in 2009-10.

Departmental Publicity

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much expenditure her Department incurred under general ledger account number 40001 (advertising) in the last year for which audited figures are available. [251792]

Mr. Khan: The Department's finance system records a total expenditure of £511,458.93 under General Ledger Account Number 40001 (advertising) for the financial year 2007-08.

Departmental Standards

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many of its nine public service agreement targets from the Comprehensive Spending Review her Department has met. [251825]

John Healey: We set out the latest reporting on our SR04 Public Service Agreements in Annex A of our Autumn Performance Report, published on 28 November 2008:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/autumnperformance2008.

Deprivation Indicators

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government further to the answer of 20 November 2008, Official Report, column 760W, on deprivation indicators, which lower layer super output areas (LSOAs) fell within the 15 per cent. most deprived wards on the Index of Multiple Deprivation in each of the principal seaside towns in England in (a) 2004 and (b) 2007 for each field of the Index, listed (i) alphabetically by name of the town and (ii) by most to last deprived LSOA. [253556]

John Healey: I have placed in the Library of the House a table that lists the Lower Super Output Area (LSOA) in principal seaside towns which fall within the 15 per cent. most deprived on the Index of Multiple Deprivation for 2004 and 2007, for each domain of the index. This table lists all the LSOAs within the bottom 15 per cent. of the indices within local authority districts which are, or include, seaside towns. This table also identifies the ward in which each LSOA is located.

Energy Performance Certificates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 19 May 2008, Official Report, column 41W, on energy performance certificates, how many of the home condition reports were produced with the assistance of funding provided by her Department. [252753]

Margaret Beckett: Our records show that 1487 HIPs with HCRs were subsidised as part of the first phase of the Home Information Pack area trials.

European Regional Development Fund

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 315W, on the European Regional Development Fund, what further fines or financial corrections for programme irregularities her Department (a) is expected to receive and (b) has budgeted for. [252173]

John Healey: The European Commission is considering the imposition of two financial corrections in respect of ERDF programmes that operated in the late 1990s. Details are given in the Communities and Local Government Resource Accounts 2007-08 (HC791) published in July 2008.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 316W, on the European Regional Development Fund, for what reason each financial correction has been imposed; and what each of the programme irregularities was, further to the contingent liabilities referred to in her Department's accounts. [252743]

John Healey: The financial corrections imposed in 2007-08 related to the Commission's view on information and audit in relation to two English programmes.

The Commission has not yet notified the Department of its final findings arising from audits of English programmes. Therefore it is not yet known what irregularities, if any, will need to be covered by the contingent liabilities referred to in CLG's accounts.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what consultations she had with (a) local authorities, (b) regional development agencies and (c) other stakeholders prior to the decision not to agree to an extension in respect of unspent Objective 1 and 2 European Regional Development Fund monies for England; and if she will make a statement; [253083]

(2) what assessment she made of the merits of accepting the European Commission's proposed extension to the deadline for disbursement of unused monies from the 2000 to 2006 European Regional Development Fund Objectives 1 and 2 in respect of England; and if she will make a statement. [253084]

John Healey: Government took into account views from the regions, including on the extent to which any additional resources resulting from programme extension could be used given the lack of flexibility in the EC's offer of extension, and decided that there was insufficient benefit to justify changing existing spending plans.

Fleishman-Hillard

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what payments English Partnerships (a) has made and (b) is contracted to make to Fleishman-Hillard; and for what purposes. [252642]

Margaret Beckett: English Partnerships made one payment to Fleishman-Hillard of £3,500 plus VAT in June 2008. This was in relation to public affairs work on the Blackwall Reach project, commissioned by English Partnerships' Thames Gateway Team. Fleishman-Hillard were just one of a number of companies on the English Partnerships Public Relations Panel. Members of this panel are selected through a competitive tender process. There are currently no further contractual payments due.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what monitoring her Department undertakes on the number and type of house sales involving home information packs. [251809]

Margaret Beckett: The Department does not monitor the sales of residential homes. However, we estimate that over 1.2 million home information packs have been produced since their introduction on 1 August 2007.

Homes and Communities Agency: Eco-Towns

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much of its growth budget the Homes and Communities Agency has allocated for expenditure related to eco-towns. [251725]

Margaret Beckett: No allocations from the Growth Fund have been made by the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) towards eco-towns as responsibility for eco-towns currently rests with Communities and Local Government. After decisions have been taken on which eco-town locations are going forward, we see the HCA being able to take a leadership role in helping to deliver some of the eco-towns and playing a major role in supporting local authorities on delivery.

Housing Revenue Accounts

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to announce (a) the results of the Housing Revenue Account Subsidy Review and (b) the Government response to the Taylor Review; and if she will make a statement. [253239]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Review of Council Housing Finance and Rents Policy, which is considering the future of the Housing Revenue Account Subsidy System and related issues, will report to the Chief Secretary and Communities and Local Government Ministers in the spring. The Government expects this will be followed by the issue of a consultation paper later in the year.

The Government expects to make their formal response to the Taylor Review shortly.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 20 November 2008, Official Report, column 767W, on housing: low incomes, which 134 local authorities provided information via the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister; and whether authorities were required to provide the information. Housing: Sales

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 8 December 2008, Official Report, column 24WS, on home buying and selling, whether changes were made to the text of the written statement published on her Department's website after its initial publication online. [252191]

Margaret Beckett: No changes were made.

Housing: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 15 October 2008, Official Report, column 1322W, on housing: valuation, whether a material change to a domestic dwelling because of a new state of disrepair may result in a change to the potential valuation of a dwelling for business rates (a) prior to and (b) during the 2010 revaluation. [251969]

John Healey: Domestic dwellings are not liable for business rates. A composite dwelling forms part of a domestic and non-domestic occupation, but the domestic dwelling value apportionment is banded for council tax, while the non-domestic element will appear in a rating list. All domestic dwellings, whether composite or not, are subject to the assumption they are in reasonable repair, thus a state of disrepair to the dwelling would not affect the band. This will apply to situations (a) and (b).

Lighting

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on night time street lighting and efficiency savings. [251787]

John Healey: No guidance has been issued to local authorities by the Department that specifically deals with the achievement of efficiency gains by switching off street lights at night. The Department has issued general guidance to councils on the measurement of efficiencies; the current version of this guidance is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/reportingvfmguide

Local Government

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) remit and (b) specification is of her Department's research project into unitary and pathfinder councils; and which body is undertaking the research. [252192]

John Healey: The Department has commissioned an evaluation of unitary and pathfinder local authorities being implemented following an invitation to local authorities to make proposals for their area alongside the October 2006 Local Government White Paper Strong and Prosperous Communities (Cm6939-1). An overview of the evaluation brief has been placed in the Library of the House. Following a competitive tender, a consortium comprising PricewaterhouseCoopers, the Office for Public Management and Cardiff Business School is undertaking the first stage of the evaluation.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effects of the Central-Local Concordat on local government since its introduction. [252461]

John Healey: Since the concordat was signed in December 2007, significant progress has been made, including:

the signing of 150 local area agreements across all of England in June 2008, which means that councils and their partners can concentrate their efforts on the specific needs of the local people they serve; reducing the national indicators to a single set of 189 covering all the priority outcomes for which local authorities and their partners will be responsible for to Government. Each local area agreement has up to 35 of these agreed as priorities. This will reduce the reporting burden on local government; implementing, as approved by Parliament, the proposals from local government for nine unitary councils which will be fully up and running from 1 April 2009;

the passing of the Sustainable Communities Act in October 2007 as a way of empowering councils and citizens to shape their communities in the way that best suits their needs;

the devolution of parish governance arrangements in February this year and proposals for devolving certain byelaw powers; greater financial flexibility in relation to providing for local decision-making on spending priorities and funding which demonstrate the Government's commitment to providing local government with additional freedom and flexibility to use the funding they have in the most appropriate way to fit their local circumstances. This has been achieved through:

the first ever three-year finance settlement which has given local government the flexibility to make longer-term plans and investments funded through an extra £8.9 billion for local government over the CSR07 period. We have announced three year individual allocations by both number and value for all specific grants where it is possible to announce them in advance;

a major change in the controls on capital spending through the introduction of the Prudential Borrowing regime which empowers councils to make the best decisions for their areas on the level of borrowing they think is affordable to support spending on capital projects;

by 2010-11, moving £5.7 billion into general grants which are not ring-fenced, to allow councils to spend money on the issues that matter most too local people; reducing the overall amount of ring-fenced funding (excluding schools) over from 11.2 per cent. in 2008-09 to 8.0 per cent. in 2010-11;

reducing the number of specific revenue grants from 83 separate specific revenue grants that were provided in 2007-08, to 47 in 2009-10, which lifts the bureaucratic burden on councils; the introduction of the Business Rates Supplement Bill.

Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which provisions of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 have not yet been brought into force. [252467]

John Healey: Following Commencement Order No 8 which was made on 3 December 2008, the vast majority of provisions within the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 have now been commenced. These include the successful negotiations of all 150 local area agreements (LAAs) which were signed-off on 30 June 2008 and the implementation of nine new unitary councils, approved by Parliament, which is on track for 1 April 2009.

There are three areas which have taken longer to implement than the estimated timetable set out in the November 2007 Implementation Plan. These are:

Community Governance (parishes reform)—including new arrangements for appointing parish councillors. We are aiming to bring the appointment of councillors' regulations into effect in the spring.

Devolution of byelaw powers - originally listed for implementation from April 2008, the Department intends to have the provision for devolving byelaws, both in terms of local authorities being able to make certain byelaws without their needing to be confirmed by the Secretary of State, and to enforce new byelaws through Fixed Penalty Notices, in force by April 2009.

Overview and Scrutiny arrangements, incorporating the Councillor Call for Action (CCfA) powers. The Department is committed to implementing these new arrangements in an integrated package by April 2009.

A final version of the White Paper Implementation Plan will be published in the spring.

Local Government Delivery Council

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the membership of the Local Government Delivery Council is; and when the Council was established. [251815]

John Healey: The Local Government Delivery Council was established in September 2007. Its members are set out in the relevant section of the website of the Improvement and Development Agency at

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) budget and (b) remit of the Local Government Delivery Council is. [251817]

John Healey: The Local Government Delivery Council has been supported through the Improvement and Development Agency since it was established in September 2007. Its objectives are set out in the relevant section of the website of that Agency at www.idea.gov.uk/idk/core/

Local Government Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what government funding is related to local authority achievement of local area agreement targets. [252297]

John Healey: Performance Reward Grant is paid based upon performance against Local Area Agreement targets. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 265*W* - 269*W* and also to my announcement to the House in February 2008 of least £340m to continue this financial incentive for LAAs agreed in 2008.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether any local authority which has increased council tax revenue through reviewing or reducing the number of households entitled to council tax discounts or exemptions has sought her Department's agreement to count that increased revenue as an annual efficiency saving. [252298]

John Healey: Our guidance to councils states that efficiency savings are realised where > "an organisation is able to: reduce inputs for the same or improved outputs; reduce unit costs to meet increased demand; or optimise use of assets to improve outputs from them."

It also states that

> "new sources of income or increases in the level of existing charges should not be counted."

Local Government Finance: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local authorities will be compensated under the new burdens principle for costs arising from the introduction of the Carbon Reduction Commitment. [251777]

John Healey: The Carbon Reduction Commitment is not a new burden. The Government have determined that there are no net additional costs to local authorities.

Local Government: Bank Services

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what advice (a) her Department and (b) the Audit Commission has given to local authorities on depositing funds with financial institutions outside (i) the United Kingdom and (ii) the European Union. [251813]

John Healey: Neither the Department nor the Audit Commission provide advice to local authorities about the financial institutions in which they should deposit funds.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects local authorities to recover funds which they had deposited in Icelandic banks; and what proportion of those funds she expects will be recovered. [253571]

John Healey: The Government's priority has been to do everything that we can to help local authorities, along with other creditors, to get back the money which they had deposited in the banks. HM Treasury is continuing to work closely with the Icelandic authorities to ensure fair treatment for all UK depositors and creditors. The Local Government Association are co-ordinating activity on behalf of local authorities, and local authorities are representing themselves at creditors' meetings.

Local Government: Data Protection

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what restrictions there are on the sharing of (a) electoral roll and (b) council tax data between departments within a local authority. [252745]

John Healey: Regulation 107 of the Representation of the People Regulations 2001 places restrictions on use of the electoral register by the local authority. In summary no councillor or employee of the council may > supply a copy of the full register to any person other than to another councillor of or employee of the same local authority; > disclose any information contained in it that is not included in the edited register; or > make use of any such information.

It is a matter for local authorities to decide whether to share council tax data between departments within their organisation.

Local Government: Pensions

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the administration costs of each individual scheme within the Local Government Pension Scheme were in the last year for which figures are available. [251829]

John Healey: Details of the administration costs of each of the 89 individual pension funds within the Local Government Pension Scheme in 2007-08, the latest year for which figures are available, are shown in the following table. The information is taken from annual returns submitted to the Department by scheme administering authorities in England and Wales.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 343W, on local government: pensions, if she will place in the Library a copy of the report on the 2007 valuation exercise produced by each local authority pension fund. [252169]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 25 July 2008, Official Report, column 349W.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate of the unfunded liability in present value terms of the Local Government Pension Scheme was made in each valuation held since 1997. [252386]

John Healey: The funding position of the 89 pension fund authorities in England and Wales is determined by actuaries appointed to carry out each authority's triennial valuation. There have been three valuations since 1997 in 2001, 2004 and 2007.

Details of funding levels at each valuation are not held centrally but a summary of the 2004 and 2007 exercises undertaken by the Society of County Treasurers can be found at:

http://www.cipfa.org.uk/panels/pensions/download/2007_LGPS_Valuation_Survey_Results.pdf.

Local Government: Public Participation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 21 February 2008, Official Report, column 912W, on surveys, whether a report on the Place Survey pilots has been published; and if she will place in the Library a copy of the conclusions of the evaluation of the pilots. [251773]

John Healey: Two final reports, which summarise the results of two separate pilot phases, were delivered by the external authors in December 2008. I expect to publish these reports in due course on the Communities and Local Government website and will place copies in the Library of the House.

Local Government: Reorganisation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many charters conferring the status of a borough have been granted by Her Majesty the Queen through the Privy Council Office since May 1997; and in which local authority areas such charters have been granted. [251775]

John Healey: Eight Charters have been granted since May 1997 conferring borough status to the districts of Brighton and Hove, Medway, North Lincolnshire, Telford and Wrekin, Wokingham, Cheshire West and Chester, West Lancashire and Cheshire East.

Local Government: Shrewsbury

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information her Department holds on the political affiliation of each member of the interim authority established to run Shrewsbury Town Council between March 2009 and June 2009. [251026]

John Healey: This information is not held by the Department.

Local Government: Statistics

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many items of data local authorities are required to collect for the purposes of (a) compilation of the national indicator set and (b) data returns to her Department outside the national indicator set. [252290]

John Healey: The data items required to underpin the national indicator set are either collected by individual Whitehall Departments or input directly into the Data Interchange Hub by local authorities. The NIS hand book, available at http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/finalnationalindicators gives details of the data required for each indicator.

Regarding data returns outside of the national indicator set, work is underway within the Department to categorise all data collections and implement a 30 per cent. reduction in data collected by May 2010. This in line with the commitment made in the Local Government White Paper to limit data collection to that which is necessary for reasons such as financial management and policy development. Until this work is further advanced, the number of data returns which local authorities are required to continue to collect could be established only at disproportionate cost.

The Department has recently published an update to its simplification plan, which is available at http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/corporate/pdf/1094604.pdf.

This contains a list of data which the Department has already stopped collecting for local authorities and also sets out other activity underway to reduce the burden of data collection.

Local Government: Termination of Employment

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has provided to local authorities on severance packages given to local government officials who are sacked for not properly fulfilling their duties. [252497]

John Healey: The Department issues no guidance on staff severance arrangements. Decisions to terminate a local authority employment, for any reason, are a matter for the local authority involved.

Microgeneration: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what methodology the Valuation Office Agency uses to calculate the value of microgeneration equipment within (a) a domestic and (b) a non-domestic dwelling. [252462]

John Healey: The basis of valuation for domestic dwellings is market value. For a new dwelling, the degree to which such fixed equipment would affect a band would be an estimation as to what effect, if any, such equipment would have on the market value, and hence banding, of the dwelling. No improvement will affect a valuation band on an existing dwelling unless:

(i) there is a subsequent sale, and

(ii) any such measurable increase is significant enough to move the value to a higher band.

There is, strictly, no such thing as a non-domestic dwelling in local taxation.

The same principles, however, would apply to the domestic part of a composite dwelling (a part domestic/part non domestic property), where the microgeneration equipment was provided for the domestic portion.

Non-domestic Rates

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much additional revenue the higher multiplier on large and medium-sized businesses raised in England in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [252175]

John Healey: The following table gives details of the amount (in £ million) that local authorities in England reported they raised from the higher national non-domestic rates multiplier.

	£ million
2005-06	306
2006-07	311
2007-08	133

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether an impact assessment has been undertaken of the effect on local businesses of the change in the rate of national non-domestic rates effective from April 2009. [252463]

John Healey: BERR guidance

on impact assessments states that they are not required where a predetermined formula, such as the rate of inflation, changes the rate of a tax.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate has been made of the change in revenue accruing from supplementary business rates as a result of the 2010 rates revaluation. [252494]

John Healey: No estimate has yet been made of the change in revenue accruing from business rate supplements as a result of the 2010 rates revaluation.

Non-Domestic Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the reasons were for the time taken in (a) publishing and (b) laying before Parliament regulations on (i) empty property and (ii) small business rate relief. [251736]

John Healey: The proposed changes to empty property rates and small business rates relief announced at the pre-Budget report are due to be implemented from 1 April 2009.

Non-Domestic Rates: Business

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the effects of the economic downturn on local authority revenues from business rates. [251732]

John Healey: Local authority revenues are unaffected by the amount of income from business rates which fluctuates from year to year. The distributable amount of business rates is one component of Formula Grant. The Government have announced totals for Formula Grant for 2008-09 to 2010-11. Within the total Formula Grant for each year, the amount of Revenue Support Grant varies to compensate for fluctuations in the distributable amount. The Government have delivered the first three year settlement for individual local authorities providing the predictability and stability which allow them to deliver effective services and to plan to deliver continued efficiency gains to help residents and local businesses in the current economic climate.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in what way the Local Authority Business Growth Incentive Scheme is being built systematically into the business rates system. [253650]

John Healey: The Local Authority Business Growth Incentives (LABGI) scheme has operated for three years, taking increases in business rateable value as a proxy for economic growth. The Government have recently consulted on proposals for a revised LABGI scheme for 2009-10 and 2010-11, which will take increases in business rate yield as the proxy. We intend to see the LABGI principle mainstreamed as part of the local government finance system. It will be subject to review and consultation, and to decisions made during future spending reviews.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable for publication of the new rateable values for each local business based on the 2010 rating list arising from the 2010 business rates revaluation is; and in which month she expects new bills be sent to local firms. [253651]

John Healey: Valuation officers in England and Wales will publish a copy of the new rating lists that they propose to compile (known as the draft rating lists) on 30 September 2009. The lists proper (known as the compiled rating lists) will be published and will come into effect on 1 April 2010.

Distribution of rates bills is a matter for local authorities. Regulations require that the bill is served by 1 April of the year due, or as soon as is practical after.

Non-Domestic Rates: Empty Property

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assumptions on the number of non-domestic properties affected by recent changes to empty property business rate relief were made for the purposes of the most recent impact assessment made of those changes. [251730]

John Healey: VOA records show that 70 per cent. of all properties are under the £15,000 exemption threshold announced at the pre-Budget report and if these are unoccupied in 2009-10 they will not pay empty property rates. We have assumed that there will be no significant increase in the number of claimants of empty property relief and that the distribution of empty properties below the rateable value threshold of £15,000 will follow that of all non-domestic properties. We have based our costs of the amendment on the rateable value below this threshold.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many non-domestic dwellings are liable for empty property business rates. [252626]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to answer given by the Minister with responsibility for Housing, my hon. Friend the Member for Hartlepool (Mr. Iain Wright) to the hon. Member for Brent, East (Sarah Teather) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1493W.

Non-domestic Rates: Inflation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assessment she has made of the effect on business rate revenue should the retail price index measurement of the rate of inflation fall below zero; [252329]

(2) what effect negative retail price index inflation would have on the business rates multiplier for the relevant year. [252388]

John Healey: No such assessment has been made. The impact of the retail price index on business rates is determined by a formula in the Local Government Finance Act 1988, schedule 7, which outlines how to calculate the business rate multipliers using the RPI figure.

Non-domestic Rates: Licensed Premises

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether a licensed premises is eligible for exemption from empty property business rates in circumstances where the licence has been suspended by a local authority for up to three months, but where occupation of the premises has not been prevented. [252287]

John Healey: Empty property rates apply where a property is unoccupied and those properties that are not liable for empty property rates are set out in section 4 of the Non-Domestic Rating (Unoccupied Property) (England) Regulations 2008.

Non-Domestic Rates: Ports

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will publish the new business rate valuation lists for British ports. [251827]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) on 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1283W.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the merits of applying transitional relief to lower retrospective increases in business rates levied on businesses in the registered ports. [253244]

John Healey: The current transitional relief scheme allows properties which first came on to the rating list on 1 April 2005 as a consequence of an existing property being split (as is the case with the property in ports) to be allocated a certified rateable value for 31 March 2005 (see regulation 17 of the Non-Domestic Rating (Chargeable Amounts) (England) Regulations 2004.

The purpose of the certified value is to ascertain whether the increase in the rateable value of property which has been split or merged from the 2000 to the 2005 rating lists results in an increase in rates in respect of that property and therefore to ascertain whether there should be an entitlement to transitional relief.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the statement of the Minister for Local Government of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 600, (1) whether changes to the ratings system of businesses in the registered ports will be revenue-neutral; [253471]

(2) what the estimated increase in net revenue in business rates from the changes to rateable values made over the 2005 to 2009 period is; and whether the revenue was taken into account in the business rate revenue estimates prepared for the pre-Budget report 2008. [253472]

John Healey: The purpose of the review is not to raise revenue but to ensure that all rateable property pays its fair amount of rates, from the point the property should be rated, and with all businesses being treated equally.

Individual changes in rateable values of the ports and businesses within the ports are variable; some have increased while others have decreased. I am unable to be specific about the effect on revenue, as calculation of bills and any reliefs that may be due, are matter for individual billing authorities. However, the estimated cost of the Schedule of payments policy allowing certain backdated liabilities to be spread over eight years was set out in the pre-Budget report.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the statement of the Minister for Local Government of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 600, whether the £9 million increase in net rateable value was set as an international objective of the change in the way in which rates on businesses in the registered ports are calculated. [253473]

John Healey: No. The intention was to ensure that all rateable property pays its fair amount of rates, from the point the property should be rated, and with all businesses being treated equally.

Non-Domestic Rates: Public Houses

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 10 January 2008, Official Report, column 773W, on public houses: non-domestic rates, whether (a) darts boards and (b) pool tables will be taken into account when valuing licensed premises as part of the 2010 business rates revaluation. [251864]

John Healey: The Valuation Office Agency's Rating manual, Volume 5, Section 825 sets out the basis of valuation for licensed premises. This is available on their website at:

www.voa.gov.uk

Non-Domestic Rates: Small Businesses

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many non-domestic dwellings are (a) eligible for and (b) claiming small businesses rate relief. [252625]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Rutland and Melton (Alan Duncan) on 29 April 2008, Official Report, column 319W.

Non-domestic Rates: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's documents for the 2010 rates and revaluation (a) Urinal Cost Guidance and (b) Pop-up Urinals—Cost Guidance. [252188]

John Healey: The Valuation Office Agency's operational instructions on the 2010 rating revaluation relating to urinals are available in the Rating Manual Volume 5 Sec 625 Practice Note 1:2010 which is published on its website:

www.voa.gov.uk

Parish Councils: Council Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 353-54W, on parish councils: council tax, what estimate her Department has made of the average band D parish council precept for 2008-09. [252147]

John Healey: No estimate has yet been made of the average Band D parish council precept for 2008-09. A figure will be published in Local Government Financial Statistics England No 19 that is to be published later in the year.

Planning Permission

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in which month she expects the Infrastructure Planning Commission to start considering planning applications. [251729]

John Healey: Our expectation is that the Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC) will be ready to begin receiving applications in spring 2010. When applications are made is a matter for the project promoters.

Regional Assemblies: Finance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) budget and (b) administrative costs were of each regional government office in each of the last five years; and what estimate she has made of the administrative cost of each in 2008-09. [252570]

Mr. Khan: The budget/administration cost figures for the Government offices for financial years 2003-04 to 2007-08 are as shown in the following table.

GO	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08

Regional Planning and Development

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's timetable is for the implementation of conclusions arising from the consultation on the Sub-National Review. [252624]

John Healey: Provisions to implement reforms relating to regional strategies, local authority economic assessments and sub-regional governance arrangements are included in the Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Bill, which is currently before Parliament.

As the Government's response to the consultation stated, the Government have concluded that legislation is not needed to the deliver the spirit of the reforms relating to delegation of regional development agency functions to local authorities. Guidance on a new investment planning approach involving RDAs, local authorities and other delivery partners will be published in summer 2009.

European Charter of Regional Democracy

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what response the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe has made to the Recommendation by the Congress of Local and Regional Authorities in Europe on the draft European Charter of Regional Democracy; and what assessment she has made of the content of the Recommendation. [252291]

John Healey: Whilst the official level Steering Committee has now advised, with the support of the UK delegation to that Committee, that no further CoE resources should be used to pursue a legally binding convention on regional democracy, I understand that the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe has not yet responded to the Congress on their Recommendation. Whilst recognising the value that regions can have for democracy, the Government has consistently opposed a prescriptive legally binding charter of regional self-government on the grounds that democratic regional institutions are not a pre-requisite for a modern democracy and it is for each state to decide, having regard to what its people want, whether to adopt any regional governance structures.

Reposessions: Mortgages

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications were received for the Mortgage Rescue Scheme in December 2008, broken down by individual Fast Tracker Authority. [253317]

Margaret Beckett: The Government's Mortgage Rescue Scheme was "fast tracked" by 76 local authorities on a voluntary basis from 1 December 2008.

An informal telephone survey of approximately half the "fast track" local authorities was conducted by officials at Communities and Local Government on 5 January 2009. This showed that up to 200 approaches had been made, resulting in approximately 80 cases meeting the eligibility criteria. We are putting in place formal monitoring arrangements from early February.

We continue to work closely with all participating local authorities following the Mortgage Rescue scheme's official launch on 16 January 2009.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Hammersmith and Fulham of 4 September 2006, Official Report, column 1681W, on Valuation Office Agency, which property attribute variables may be used in billing authorities. [252209]

John Healey: All variables which are based on property attributes, used in modelling in the Valuation Office Agency's Automated Valuation Model, may be used in billing authority areas.

Valuation Office: Databases

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) domestic and (b) composite properties in England have an entry on the Valuation Office Agency's automated valuation model database; and how many have one or more digital photographs associated with an entry on the Agency's databases. [252294]

John Healey: The Valuation Office Agency's Automated Valuation Model is not in itself a database. The Agency's central database stores the data that feed into its automated valuation modelling.

The number of domestic properties in England with a live council tax band was 22,354,681 as at 30 November 2008. Of these, 832,982 had one or more digital photographs associated with them. The number of composite properties in England with a live council tax band was 284,843 as at 30 November 2008. Of these, 13,190 had one or more digital photographs associated with them.

Valuation Office: Legal Costs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what legal costs were incurred by (a) the Valuation Tribunal and (b) the Valuation Office Agency in relation to the legal action on the rating of coffee shops within bookshops which concluded in September 2008. [252202]

John Healey: In the valuation tribunal appeal concluded in September 2008 on the rating of coffee shops within bookshops the Valuation Office Agency incurred legal costs of £600 plus VAT; the Hertfordshire Valuation Tribunal incurred no legal costs.

Valuation Office: Rightmove

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Valuation Office Agency utilises property data from estate agent industry organisations other than Rightmove.co.uk plc. [252464]

John Healey: The Valuation Office Agency makes use of freely available and publicly published information from the estate agent industry to support its current work and reduce the burden on taxpayers.

Waste Management: South East

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding the Regional Improvement and Efficiency Partnership for the South East has given to the Waste Improvement Network. [252306]

John Healey: The budget for the Waste Improvement Network for 2008/9 is £90,000 of which DEFRA contributes £45,000 and the Regional Improvement and Efficiency Partnership for the South East contributes the remaining £45,000. This is an annual cost for the service and contributions are expected to remain around the same for 2009/10 and 2010/11.

OLYMPICS

CompeteFor

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister for the Olympics which companies tendered for the CompeteFor website contract. [251302]

Tessa Jowell: The London Development Agency (LDA) commissioned specialist support to identify the most appropriate sourcing strategy for the electronic brokerage service which is now known as CompeteFor. The Office of Government Commerce's Catalist framework was used to ensure an efficient procurement process.

CompeteFor, primarily a web portal, would also contain substantial e-transactional and customer relationship management elements. Seven suppliers met all three of these requirements, these were:

Deloitte MCS
Electronic Data Systems Ltd
Fujitsu Services
Hedra
LogicaCMG
Parity Solutions
Serco Ltd.

Both Hedra and Parity Solutions were later ruled out. Of the five remaining bidders four expressed an interest in bidding and tenders were received from Deloitte and Serco.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether the procurement process for the CompeteFor website contract took place in accordance with the European Union's competitive dialogue procurement procedure. [251303]

Tessa Jowell: The procurement was undertaken through a mini-competition using the Office of Government Commerce's (OGC) Catalist framework. This was undertaken in accordance with the OGC's guidance and in line with European Union requirements; however, the approach did not use the competitive dialogue procedure. The competitive dialogue process is normally used when a specification may be unclear, and ongoing engagement is needed with potential suppliers. In this instance a specification was sufficiently developed and so a competitive dialogue was unnecessary.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether the CompeteFor website will continue to operate after all the contracts for the London 2012 Olympics have been awarded; and if she will make a statement. [251739]

Tessa Jowell: The Government have accepted the recommendation made in Anne Glover's report, published alongside the pre-Budget report 2008, that there should be a single, free, and easy to search online portal for Government procurement. The Department for Business is looking at what companies want from a single portal and whether this matches the CompeteFor specification. This will influence the future of CompeteFor beyond 2012.

Departmental Press Officers

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many press and communications officers are employed by (a) her Department and (b) the Olympic Delivery Authority. [250431]

Tessa Jowell: The information is as follows:

(a) The Government Olympic Executive has responsibility for ensuring the London 2012 games are delivered, established a communications team in June 2008. Currently four full-time officers are employed.

In addition, the Minister's press support is provided by the DCMS communications department where three press officers are employed to work on the Olympics desk.

(b) As answered in October 2008, the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) communications team employs 25 members of staff. This consists of permanent staff, fixed term contract staff and secondments.

The ODA communications team are responsible for all elements of communication and stakeholder engagement activities across the entire ODA programme. These activities include:

Dealing with public inquiries about the ODA's work;

Engagement with the local people in the five boroughs in and around the Olympic Park, including reactive and proactive community relations work;

Stakeholder engagement with external groups for example the design, transport, construction, political and sporting communities;

Statutory consultation for planning applications;

Communication with a wide range of national, international, specialist, trade, regional and local media;

Filming and photography of the work on the Olympic Park; including internet and new media.

Of the aforementioned, there are four press officers and one head of media dealing specifically with the press.

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what the cost of her Office's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each year since its establishment. [251536]

Tessa Jowell: The Government Olympic Executive Communication function began in June 2008. Since this date, it has spent £1,175.00 on contracts with public relations consultancies.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Alan Simpson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her assessment is of the extent to which Aggregate Industries Ltd is meeting the contractually stipulated target of delivering 99 per cent. of aggregate materials to the Olympic Park by sustainable means. [250419]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The Olympic Delivery Authority's target that at least 50 per cent. of all materials, by weight, be transported to the Olympic Park by non-road methods is being exceeded. Aggregate Industries Ltd is currently achieving a performance level of 84 per cent. against that target.

Aggregate Industries' own target is that 99 per cent. of materials be transported by non-road methods.

Olympic Games 2012: Contracts

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether companies tendering for contracts at the Olympic site are required to have business continuity plans in place as part of their tenders. [250569]

Tessa Jowell: Companies tendering for contracts on the Olympic Park site are required to have business continuity plans in place, the details of which are reviewed during the procurement process.

Olympic Games 2012: Finance

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what assessment she has made of the likely effects of recent sterling exchange rates on budgetary provision for the London 2012 Olympics. [250905]

Tessa Jowell: The Government's assessment is that current sterling exchange rates will not have significant effects on budgetary provision for the 2012 Olympics. The Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) receives its revenues, and makes its payments, in sterling. It is the responsibility of the ODA tier one contractors to manage exchange risks as defined by their contractual arrangements with the ODA. The ODA is reviewing the current exchange rate fluctuations with its Delivery Partner and the tier one contractors to assess the level of impact on future procurement. To date, no call has been made on the contingency in relation to exchange rate fluctuations. The contingency (within the £9.325 billion funding package) does, however, include provision for identified risks with the potential to impact on projects across the ODA programme such as exchange rate fluctuations.

The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) is due some revenues in both US dollars and euros. As a result, LOCOG has taken steps to effectively minimise exposure to exchange rate shifts and it is expected that recent movements in both currencies against sterling will have no significant impact on LOCOG's revenues. As the majority of LOCOG's costs are sterling-based, it is expected that recent movements in both currencies against sterling will have no significant impact on LOCOG's costs.

Olympic Games 2012: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her latest assessment is of the legacy which will accrue to Peterborough constituency as a result of the 2012 London Olympic Games; and if she will make a statement. [250947]

Tessa Jowell: We are fully committed to ensuring a lasting legacy from the London 2012 Games which spreads to all communities in the UK.

At a regional level this work is being taken forward by the Nations and Regions Group (NRG) who are working hard to ensure the benefits of 2012 reach across the UK. The east of England representative is Councillor Stephen Castle who also chairs Nations and Regions East (NRE). NRE is the partnership, which includes representation from both Peterborough city council and Cambridge county council, set up to provide strategic direction and support to county level working groups to take forward relevant and appropriate activity to maximise the benefits of 2012.

The east of England launched its regional plan to maximise the benefits of the Games on 13 November 2007. This can be found on the east of England regional development website:

http://www.eeda.org.uk/1607.asp

I am delighted to say that progress on legacy in the east of England and Peterborough is already being made. For example, of the 48 local authorities in the east of England, 26 are offering free swimming to both those aged 16 or under and 60 or over (including Peterborough). 65 facilities from the east of England, including Grange Farm Equestrian Centre in Peterborough are included in the official London 2012 Pre-Games Training Camp Guide; 22 events took place in the region during the Cultural Olympiad 'Open Weekend' and 60 special 'handover flags' were raised.

Furthermore, 353 schools and colleges covering 220,507 students in the east of England have registered on 'Get Set', the London 2012 education programme launched in September last year. Get Set provides a whole range of flexible, interactive learning resources and is designed to give expression to Olympic and Paralympic values.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

10 Downing Street: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what advice English Heritage has provided in connection with the work in 10 Downing Street associated with Westminster city council planning application reference 08/00696/1884. [252478]

Barbara Follett: Westminster City Council planning application reference PT/08/00696/1884 refers to an application dated 10 January 2008 for listed building consent to refurbish ground floor lavatories off the Inner Lobby of 10 Downing Street. English Heritage was notified on 29 January 2008 of the application and replied to Westminster on 7 February 2008 with a 'non-intervention' letter. This authorised the city council to determine the application for listed building consent as it saw fit.

Creativity and Business International Network

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what (a) meetings, (b) events and (c) other activities are planned for the Creativity and Business International Network between now and October 2009. [250246]

Andy Burnham: The Department's outturn expenditure on administration for 2008-09 is estimated to be £56.029 million according to the management accounts produced to 31 October 2008.

Barbara Follett: The Department's accounting system does not separately record information on expenditure on ministerial hospitality and this could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

All expenditure on hospitality is made in accordance with published departmental guidance, based on the principles set out in Managing Public Money.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what guests attended the dinner hosted by his Department at the Walker Art Gallery in Liverpool on 20 November 2008. [250250]

Andy Burnham: The following table shows Ofcom's estimate of the number of households that will be able to receive the full six multiplex Freeview service of approximately 40 channels following digital switchover.

Digital Switchover: Wales

Alun Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1085W, on Digital Switchover: South Wales, (1) whether the Core Receiver Requirements set in November 2008 in respect of audio description will apply to all equipment supplied through the Helpscheme for digital changeover in South Wales; [252947]

(2) whether the Core Receiver Requirements set in November 2008 in respect of audio description will apply to all equipment supplied through the Helpscheme for digital changeover in Mid and West Wales; [252948]

(3) whether the Core Receiver Requirements set in November 2008 in respect of audio description will apply to all equipment supplied through the Helpscheme for digital changeover in North Wales. [252951]

Andy Burnham: As detailed within the Scheme Agreement (Chapter 3, 20 (3)), the Core Receiver Requirements in respect of audio description only apply to Most Cost Effective Offer equipment in North Wales, South Wales and Mid and West Wales.

Hotels: Regulation

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the size of the regulatory burden for (a) bed and breakfast establishments and (b) hotels; and if he will make a statement. [250493]

Barbara Follett: Visit Britain (VB) have advised that during the British Tourism framework review, they received a number of submissions from stakeholders in the tourism sector about the burden of regulation. The cost is not quantified, and, indeed, individual regulations are rarely mentioned other than the 'overall' effect. However, there has been a clear sense of concern among accommodation providers about fire risk assessments introduced by the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG).

The former Minister for Tourism, my right hon. Friend the Member for Barking (Margaret Hodge), met with the then Fire Minister, Parmjit Dhanda and one of VB's quality managers to press the case for clearer interpretation of rules across fire authorities and it was agreed that DCLG would look at it again and issue new guidance.

DCLG have provided a new guidance briefing for accommodation providers. VB is delivering these with its magazine, "Quality Edge", which was circulated on Monday 19 January to businesses that are quality assessed by VB.

ICT: Training

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made on increasing levels of digital literacy. [250640]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The Government and a number of other bodies have undertaken work on various aspects of digital and media literacy. In the Communications Act 2003, we gave Ofcom a statutory duty to work with others to promote media literacy in the UK. My Department works closely with Ofcom on its media literacy priorities and contributes annual funding to Ofcom's work in this area, which includes the periodic audit of changes in media literacy skills across the UK. Their audit has demonstrated that progress has been made, but we recognise that there is more work to be done.

The new BBC Charter and Agreement also places a specific duty on the BBC Trust to promote media literacy. Furthermore, a wide range of activity is being undertaken by both education providers and industry—such as the Media Literacy Task Force—aimed at increasing levels of media literacy.

In addition, the Government have set out a range of cross-departmental strategies that will further enhance media literacy. The Prime Minister has appointed my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales as Minister for Digital Inclusion and he has recently consulted on a Digital Inclusion Action Plan, aimed at improving access and skills to encourage the best use of digital technologies, building on the success of the 6,000 UK online centres in England. Furthermore, as one of the key recommendations from the Byron Review on internet safety, we have established the UK Council for Child Internet Safety which is developing a strategy including education and awareness for parents, carers and children.

The interim Digital Britain report (Cm 7548) identifies the skills and literacy challenges to a fully digital Britain. We have therefore asked Ofcom to make an assessment of its current responsibilities in relation to media literacy and, working with the BBC and others, to recommend a new definition and ambition for a National Media Literacy Plan as a contribution to the final Digital Britain Report in the summer.

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost of his Department's contracts with press monitoring services was in each of the last five years. [251214]

Andy Burnham: The Department has a press cuttings contract with EDS Media that began in April 2008. The cost to-date is £36,283.33.

The Department pays an annual subscription charge to the Media Monitoring Unit (this is part of the Central Office of Information, previously part of the Cabinet Office). This includes a number of media monitoring services—the cost of press monitoring is not charged separately.

National Lottery: Complaints

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many disputes between a National Lottery player and a retailer referred to (a) Camelot and (b) the Lottery Commission were resolved in favour of (i) the player and (ii) the retailer in each of the last three years. [253085]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The Department does not hold information on disputes between National Lottery players and retailers. The National Lottery Commission (NLC) have advised that neither Camelot nor the NLC record the requested information in the requested format.

Public Bodies: Assets

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what (a) buildings and (b) land is owned by (i) Arts Council England, (ii) the Big Lottery Fund, (iii) the Heritage Lottery Fund, (iv) UK Sport and (v) the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council; and what recent estimate has been made of the value of those assets. [249813]

Barbara Follett: The information as follows has been provided by the bodies in question.

Arts Council England

Buildings owned:

21 Bond Street, Dewsbury

Land owned:

Arts Council England own the freehold on a section of land in the London South Bank area covering the area of the South Bank Centre and British Film Institute, and an area covering the Royal National Theatre. All the land is passed back to the South Bank Centre, British Film Institute or Royal National Theatre at no cost to them and the leases run for 150 years.

Value:

£600,000 open market value of Bond Street, Dewsbury, established by a valuation at 31 March 2005. It is Arts Council England accounting policy to refresh the valuation of this freehold property once every five years.

As the land on the South Bank is leased for 150 years, it has no bankable value.

The Big Lottery Fund, Heritage Lottery Fund, Museums, Libraries and Archives Council and UK Sport do not own any land or buildings.

Public Libraries: Standards

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how long each local authority took to replenish to Public Library Service Standard 10 its library lending stock on open access or available on loan in each of the last three years. [251741]

Barbara Follett: The information requested is not collated centrally. The appendix to Public Library Statistics, a report published annually by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA), shows the time taken by each local authority to replenish its lending stock. It may therefore be possible to calculate how long each local authority took to replenish to Public Library Service Standard 10 its library lending stock by comparing issues of the report for the period in question. The House of Commons Library holds copies.

Public Libraries: Statistics

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to his answer of 21 January, Official Report, column 1456W, what statistical information his Department gathers relating to library services. [252956]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport gathers statistical information relating to library services through its Taking Part survey. This is a continuous household survey providing national data on participation in culture, leisure and sport by adults aged 16 and over.

In relation to libraries, Taking Part asks respondents whether they have visited one in the past 12 months and, if so, how often. It also asks about their experiences during their last visit; their satisfaction with the library's services, and whether they would repeat the visit. The survey also tries to find out why respondents have not visited a library. The latest available data for libraries, which includes demographic breakdowns of attendance, can be found at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/5396.aspx

In April 2008, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport added questions to Sport England's Active People survey to collect data for participation in cultural activities for the purposes of the National Indicator Set. Respondents are asked whether they had used a public library service in the past 12 months. Baseline estimates of attendance for all upper-tier local authorities can be found at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/research_and_statistics/5607.aspx

South Bank Centre: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding (a) his Department and (b) Arts Council England provided to the South Bank Centre in each of the last five years; and how much came from (i) Exchequer funding and (ii) the National Lottery in each such year. [249415]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport's funding to the South Bank Centre is made through Arts Council England according to the arm's length principle. Arts Council England distributes the Department's funding for the arts. Arts Council England has advised that it has provided funding for the South Bank Centre as set out in the following table.

Swimming: Elderly People

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1073W, on swimming, which local authorities made representations on plans for free swimming for those over the age of 60; and if he will place in the Library a copy of each such representation. [252208]

Andy Burnham: Local authority responses are still being collated ahead of the launch of the Free Swimming programme on 1 April 2009. To date we have received approximately forty representations from local authorities on plans for free swimming for those over the age of sixty. We are taking account of these representations and are in continuing discussion with authorities in the run-up to the start of the scheme. At this stage I have no plans to put in the Library copies of local authority correspondence regarding the Free Swimming programme.

Swimming: Young People

Dan Norris: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of local authorities he expects will take part in the initiative to provide free swimming for under 16 year olds. [251837]

Andy Burnham: Of the 354 local authorities 211 (59.6 per cent.) have signed up to offer free swimming to under 16-year-olds. I am arranging for a list of participating authorities to be deposited in the Library of the House.

Tourism: Finance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what budget his Department provided for Visit Britain in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008; what budget he proposes for Visit Britain in (i) 2009, (ii) 2010, (iii) 2011 and (iv) 2012; and what estimate he has made of the proportion of such funding spent on promoting the UK as a tourist destination (A) within the UK and (B) overseas in each year. Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office currently has 12 staff completing apprenticeships, and 33 staff have already completed. The Department will offer 16 new places to staff each year.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251446]

Paul Goggins: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

With respect to correspondence from members of the public, this information could not be provided within disproportionate costs limits but the Northern Ireland Office aim to respond to all written correspondence within 15 working days. The Department publishes statistics annually on 'answering letters quickly and clearly' in the departmental report, copies of which are available in the Library of the House.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which ICT projects initiated by his Department were abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred on each project; who the contractors were; what the date of (a) commencement and (b) abandonment was in each case; and if he will make a statement. [251134]

Paul Goggins: There has been one ICT project abandoned by the Northern Ireland Office before completion since 1997. The Product Logging ICT Project was cancelled by the Forensic Science Agency at a cost of £8,500. The contractors were ICS Computing. The project commenced in June 2006 and was abandoned in November 2006.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 17 December 2008, Official Report, column 773W, on departmental ICT, what his most recent estimate of the (a) cost and (b) completion date of each of the projects referred to is; and if he will make a statement. [251242]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is provided in the following table.

Mr. Woodward: Staff within the Northern Ireland Office have not undertaken any digital media courses provided by the Intranet Advertising Bureau in 2008.

Given the volume of legal representation involved throughout the lifespan of the inquiry, information on hours worked is not readily available, particularly where final settlements were negotiated. A comprehensive and accurate breakdown of the number of hours worked by each legal representative would require a manual trawl of thousands of claims, and could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 886W, on the Saville Inquiry, what the reasons are for increases in expenditure on legal fees. [243243]

Mr. Woodward: The figure for expenditure on legal fees provided in my answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 886W, included payments to lawyers working for the inquiry and to lawyers representing interested parties and witnesses before the inquiry (including those funded by the Ministry of Defence).

I would expect some further increase in this figure as the final few settlements are reached in respect of fees for work already carried out. The vast majority of such fees have already been settled, but there remain a small number to be resolved. There will also be a continuing need for some legal work, particularly by lawyers working for the inquiry on preparation of its report.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what reasons Lord Saville has given for his discussions to set the date for delivery to him of the report of the Saville Inquiry in autumn 2009. [243377]

Mr. Woodward: In Lord Saville's letter to me of 4 November 2008, notifying me of the delay in submission of his report, he gave me the following explanation:

> "Since I last wrote to you, my colleagues and I have continued our work on the report, but I regret to say that it is now clear that the indication that I then gave of the time that was likely to be required for its completion was a substantial underestimate. As you know, we have always found it difficult, given the scale and complexity of the material with which we are dealing, to predict accurately how long it will take us to complete our task. We are however most anxious to ensure that any further estimate is realistic, and with that in mind we now think it right to say that we expect to deliver the completed report to you in the autumn of next year."

Copies of this letter were placed in the Libraries of both Houses last year.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the Answer of 18 November 2008, Official Report, column 261W, on the Saville Inquiry, what the basis is for the estimate that the final cost of the inquiry will be £191 million. [243444]

Mr. Woodward: The estimate provided in my answer of 18 November 2008, Official Report, column 261W, that the final cost of the inquiry would be approximately £191 million was based on the inquiry's own estimate of the remaining costs (including an estimate provided by the Ministry of Defence for the remaining costs falling to that Department). That estimate has now been reduced to approximately £190 million.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answer of 18 November 2008, Official Report, column 261W, on the Saville Inquiry, what the reasons are for the differences between the estimated final cost of the Inquiry and the original estimated cost. [243445]

Mr. Woodward: In a statement to this House on 29 January 1998, the then Prime Minister set out his intention to establish the inquiry into Bloody Sunday and said:

> "It is not possible to say now exactly how long the Inquiry will take but it should be allowed the time necessary to cover all the evidence now available thoroughly and completely."

At this early stage, there was limited information on which to base projections of the likely total cost. The inquiry initially anticipated that its work would last about two years and £11 million was allocated for this in the Government spending review. However the unprecedented scale of the inquiry was not predicted, in terms of number of witnesses identified and available to give oral evidence, the number of legal challenges, and the ensuing increase in legal costs.

At this late stage in the inquiry's lifespan, future spend is for the most part limited to running costs and the final total is therefore easier to predict with more certainty.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answers of 17 November 2008, Official Report, column 3W and 18 November 2008, Official Report, column 261W, on the Saville Inquiry, what the evidential basis is for the statements that (a) the final cost of the Inquiry will not exceed £191 million and (b) the Inquiry's final report will be delivered by autumn 2009. [244058]

Mr. Woodward: The estimate of £191 million provided in my answer of 18 November 2008, Official Report, column 261W, for final cost of the inquiry was based on the inquiry's own estimate of its remaining costs and an estimate provided by the Ministry of Defence for the remaining costs falling to that Department. That estimate has now reduced to approximately £190 million.

Lord Saville notified me in a letter dated 4 November 2008 that he expected to deliver the report in autumn 2009.

SCOTLAND

Banks

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the future of the banking industry in Scotland. [253173]

Ann McKechin: My right hon. Friend is in regular contact with the Chancellor and discusses a variety of issues. The Scottish banking sector has benefited from the significant intervention by this Government to stabilise the market.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many staff in his Department were disciplined for (a) bullying and (b) harassment of colleagues in each of the last three years. [254076]

Ann McKechin: There have been no complaints of bullying or harassment in the Scotland Office during the period requested.

PRIME MINISTER

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Prime Minister how many civil servants in his Office have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for (i) losing and (ii) deliberately disclosing (A) data stored on departmental equipment and (B) confidential information in each year since 1997. [242913]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office (Mr. Watson) on 15 January 2009, Official Report, columns 867-68W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Iran

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many young people in Iran the British Council have helped to learn (a) English or (b) about the UK. [249292]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The British Council does not work directly with young people in Iran. However, by working with leaders in the field of education, the British Council has helped young Iranians develop both a more international outlook and connections with the UK that lead to better understanding of our country and culture.

In 2007-08:

8824 people participated in a range of British Council educational and cultural programmes;

2000 students from Iran studied in further and higher education in the UK;

17,406 educational enquiries were answered by the British Council in Tehran;

78,000 people visited the British Council website www.britishcouncil.org/iran.

Rashid Rauf

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any official in his Department was given notice by any representative of (a) the Pakistan government and (b) the US administration of the US air strike on the village of Ali Khel on or before 22 November 2008. [245651]

Bill Rammell: It is the long-standing policy of the Government not to comment on operational intelligence matters.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he was first informed of the suspected death of Mr. Rashid Rauf following the US air strike on the village of Ali Khel on 22 November 2008. [245658]

Bill Rammell: We first learned of his suspected death from media reporting coming out of Pakistan.

Ukraine: Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the government of Ukraine on (a) levels of anti-Semitism and (b) anti-Semitic (i) organisations and (ii) publications in Ukraine since July 2008; and if he will make a statement. [247759]

Caroline Flint: Our embassy in Kiev regularly raise issues relating to anti-Semitism with the Ukrainian authorities and remains in close contact with local human rights organisations and representatives of the Jewish community. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the International Commission Combating Anti-Semitism are co-hosting a high level meeting in the UK on the 16 and 17 February 2009 to which we are inviting a broad range of countries, including Ukraine. We continue to work with our EU partners to keep these issues under close review.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Carbon Emissions: Aviation

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the cumulative effect on UK carbon dioxide emissions of returning to 2005 levels of emissions from aviation between now and 2050, as a proportion of total UK carbon dioxide emissions. [250713]

Joan Ruddock: The Government have asked the Committee on Climate Change to advise by December 2009 on the basis for measurement of the Government's target to reduce UK aviation emissions in 2050 below 2005 levels.

Once aviation joins the EU Emissions Trading Scheme (EU ETS) in 2012, carbon dioxide emissions from all flights departing and arriving at airports in the EU will be capped at 97 per cent. of average 2004-06 levels, with the cap tightening to 95 per cent. of average 2004-06 levels from 2013 onwards. Any aviation emissions above this cap will need to be matched by airlines securing reductions from other sectors within the EU ETS. 95 per cent. of UK aviation emissions in the 2004-06 period is estimated to be 35.6 million tonnes.

At present there is no clear relationship between international aviation emissions and the UK's greenhouse gas inventory, as there is no internationally-agreed methodology for assigning emissions from international aviation to individual countries. The UK continues to press internationally for agreement on measures to address aviation emissions.

Carbon Emissions: Subsidies

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what each of the offsetting projects is that EEA Fund Management subsidises as part of the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund; and what the location of each project is. [250507]

Joan Ruddock: The following projects are currently part of the approved pool of projects from which EEA Fund Management will deliver Certified Emission Reduction credits to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund:

Horizonte Wind Power Generation Project

Average annual emission reductions: 6,227 t CO_2e

Location: Brazil

The Horizonte project became operational and started generating electricity in 2004. The wind farm consists of eight turbines of 600 kW each for a total generation capacity of 4.8 MW. The project will reduce greenhouse gas emissions by substitution of energy from fossil fuel power plants as it generates electricity with clean wind energy. Energy from the plant is sold to the Brazilian South-Southeast-Midwest Grid.

Sri Balaji 6 MW Non-Conventional Renewable Sources Biomass Power Project

Average annual emission reductions: 28,590 t CO_2e

Location: India

The project installed a 6 MW biomass-fired power plant that utilises surplus biomass waste residues usually burnt in the local area. The electricity generated by the project is sold to the grid, reducing reliance on fossil fuel power generation as well as creating benefits and job opportunities to the local community. The project reduces local pollution by avoiding uncontrolled burning of waste in the fields.

Cucaú Bagasse Cogeneration Project (CBCP)

Average annual emission reductions: 2,082 t CO_2e

Location: Brazil

This project increases the energy efficiency of bagasse cogeneration at Cucaú sugar mill through the installation of more efficient boilers. The project also allows the mill to increase the steam efficiency in the sugar and alcohol production processes. Cucaú is thus able to generate surplus steam and use it exclusively for electricity production. This electricity is then sold into the national grid, avoiding the dispatch of the same amount of energy generated from fossil fuel-fired thermal plants.

6 MW renewable energy project for a grid system by Gayatri Agro Industrial Power Ltd., India

Average annual emission reductions: 23,738 t CO_2e

Location: India

The project activity will utilise surplus biomass residues such as rice husk, paddy straw, castor stems, pulse stalks and other renewable woody biomass (Juliflora) materials to generate electricity for a grid system owned by the state owned power utility, Central Power Distribution Company Ltd.

6 MW renewable energy project for a grid system by Sri Indra Power Energies Ltd., India

Average annual emission reductions: 29,100t CO_2e

Location: India

The project activity utilises surplus biomass residues to generate electricity for a grid system owned by the state power utility, Karnataka Power Transmission Corporation Ltd.

Gansu Zhouqu Shimenping 15 MW Hydropower Station Project

Average annual emission reductions: 66,8171 CO_2e

Location: China

The Gansu Zhouqu Shimenping Project is a small hydropower plant using water from the Bailong River in Zhouqu County in China. This project generates clean electricity, reducing reliance on fossil fuel power generation as well as creating job opportunities to the local community.

Further details of these projects can be found on the website of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change which 20 firms of solicitors are handling the most unresolved claims under the coal health compensation scheme; and how many unresolved cases each such firm is handling. [252852]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 29 January 2009]: The following tables shows the 20 claimants' representatives handling the most unresolved claims for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) and vibration white finger (VWF) under the coal health compensation schemes.

The table also indicates the number of claims that may potentially be 'struck out' under the COPD scheme. These are claims which are denied or withdrawn, or have failed a hard cut-off.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the amount to be paid by his Department to solicitors in costs under the coal health compensation scheme in the next 12 months. [252853]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 29 January 2009]: The Department estimates that the sum to be paid to claimants' solicitors under the coal health compensation scheme for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease is £1,047.2 million, of which £28 million is due to be paid in 2009.

The estimate for the vibration white finger scheme is £192.43 million, of which £6 million is due to be paid in 2009.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many unresolved surface worker coal health claims for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease there are relating to men who are (a) still alive and (b) dead. [252140]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 28 January 2009]: As at 26 January 2009, 5,842 of the 591,767 claims registered under the British Coal Respiratory Disease Litigation (BCRDL), have been identified by claimant representatives as being from those who worked on the surface in coal preparation plants. 2,334 of these claims are from living miners; the remaining 3,508 are from families of deceased miners. Resolution of the issue of liability for these cases is subject to the outcome of the trial of a sample of four cases, due to be heard in November 2009. From these cases, we aim to identify generic issues that allow the issue of British Coal's liability to compensate to be resolved one way or the other.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department and its predecessors have paid Nabarro Nathanson in fees for cases relating to industrial disease claims in the mining industry since 1995. [252143]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 28 January 2009]: From April 1999 to October 2008, BERR and its predecessors spent £28.7 million plus VAT in relation to Nabarro's fees across all mining-related industrial disease claims. But note this excludes all counsel costs, expert fees, cost draftsman's fees and foreign lawyer's fees.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change on behalf of how many individual miners Beresfords Solicitors have submitted claims under the coal health compensation scheme. [252883]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Government records show the total number of miners represented by Beresfords Solicitors under the coal health compensation schemes is 85,382 claims.

Industrial Injuries

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will estimate the number of miners who developed beat knee while working in the mining industry. [252141]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 28 January 2009]: It is not possible for the Department to estimate the number of miners who developed beat knee. However, the Department received nearly 15,000 claims for beat knee as a result of litigation which was not pursued beyond 2005. The Department currently faces litigation for osteoarthritis of the knee and meniscal damage but not for beat knee which is a separate condition.

International Renewable Energy Agency

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change for what reasons the Government has not supported the proposal for an International Renewable Energy Agency; what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the work of the International Energy Agency in the area of renewable energy; and if he will make a statement. [252132]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: We have fully supported the proposal for an International Renewable Energy Agency (IRENA). During 2008, we participated in the process for establishing the IRENA and we have also participated at the Founding conference on 26 January and the first session of the Preparatory Commission of IRENA on 27 January 2009.

To achieve our climate change and energy goals, we need to accelerate rapidly the deployment of renewable sources of energy and have greater co-ordination. IRENA has the potential to make a significant contribution to this work.

We have been very keen on joining and have been in close contact with the German Government on the details of the new organisation. For example, we have been talking to Germany about how IRENA can contribute to the roll-out and deployment of renewables and how we can help to get other countries such as Canada, China, Japan, India and the US to join. We are also talking about how we can make sure that IRENA works closely with, and avoids overlap and duplication with, other international bodies and organisations, such as the International Energy Agency (IEA) and the renewable energy and energy efficiency partnership (REEEP), of which the UK is already a member.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to reply to the letter to him dated 3 November 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr. D.J. Fraser. [246529]

Joan Ruddock: I apologise for the delay in responding. This was due to departmental reorganisation. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change replied on 20 January.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to reply to the letter of 27 October 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mrs. Doreen Henley, transferred to him by the Prime Minister. [247852]

Joan Ruddock: I apologise for the delay in responding. This was due to departmental reorganisation. The Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, my right hon. Friend the Member for Doncaster, North (Edward Miliband), replied on 28 January.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to reply to the letter of 3 November 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton, with regard to Mr D J Fraser. [250870]

Joan Ruddock: I replied to my right hon. Friend on 17 January. My officials have been in contact with my right hon. Friend's office which has confirmed the response has been received.

Warm Homes Act 2000

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of paragraphs 34 and 35 of the adjudication of the High Court on 17 October 2008 in respect of a case brought by Help the Aged and Friends of the Earth on enforcements of the Warm Homes and Energy Conservation Act 2000, in terms of the duty placed upon the responsible Secretary of State under section 3 of the Act. [245457]

Joan Ruddock: Paragraphs 34 and 35 of the judgment refer to section 3 of the Warm Homes and Energy Conservation Act 2000. Provisions like that section are commonly included in Bills, and therefore in Acts of Parliament, without any intention that they should have a substantive legal effect. The explanation for their inclusion relates to the procedure of the House of Commons where a provision of a Bill introduced in that House may give rise to public expenditure. This is not a matter that is specific to the Warm Homes and Energy Conservation Act 2000, but raises wider issues relating to parliamentary procedure and Bill drafting practice generally. The Government are considering those issues in the light of the judgment.

TREASURY

Banks

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what meetings (a) he, (b) Ministers in his Department, (c) special advisers and (d) officials in his Department have had with each UK bank since September 2008; what was discussed; who was present at each meeting; what agreements have been reached between his Department and each bank at each such meeting; and if he will make a statement. [252995]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Banks: Iceland

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Financial Services Authority was first informed of risks associated with investing in Icelandic banks. [252483]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 1083W.

Debts

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much household debt there was in the UK in December 2008. [253087]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 2 February 2009]: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 3 February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how much household debt there was in the UK in December 2008. (253087)

The most recent data available are for the end of September 2008, when total financial liabilities were £1,568 billion. (Strictly, these figures include non-profit institutions serving households, for example, charities, trade unions and churches, as well as households proper. But their liabilities are small in relation to the total.)

Data for the end of December 2008 will be included in the next Quarterly National Accounts release, due on 27th March 2009.

Departmental Correspondence

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many letters he has received on the subject of his Department's package of assistance for banks. [253155]

Angela Eagle: This information is not held and could only be provided at disproportionate costs.

Equitable Life

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what timetable he has agreed with Sir John Chadwick for presentation of (a) an interim report and (b) a final report of his investigation into the scope of compensation for Equitable Life policy holders; when he expects the first payments to policy holders to be made; and if he will make a statement. [253446]

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the statement of 15 January 2009, Official Report, columns 377-80, on Equitable Life, what timetable he has set for Sir John Chadwick to provide his advice to his Department; and if he will make a statement. [253460]

Ian Pearson: The Government have asked Sir John Chadwick to advise as quickly as he is able, including providing interim updates.

Housing: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many localities there are in each billing authority area in England. [252422]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

I have placed in the Library of the House a table detailing the number of localities delineated by the Valuation Office Agency, by billing authority area in England.

Northern Rock: Mortgages

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what information (a) his Department and (b) the Financial Services Authority holds on the number of people who have a mortgage with Northern Rock at its standard variable rate. [252413]

Ian Pearson: The Financial Services Authority (FSA) is operationally independent from the Government and such questions should be addressed directly to the FSA. In respect of information held by the Treasury, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to the hon. Member for Carmarthen and Dinefwr (Adam Price) on 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 728W.

Public Sector: Procurement

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether a public authority advertising a contract in the Official Journal of the European Union may specify that preference will be given to a bidder who can demonstrate delivery of a local multiplier effect in the local economy; and if he will make a statement. [254181]

Angela Eagle: Advertisements placed in the Official Journal of the European Union must be compliant with our EU and other international obligations. These are in place to open up markets and to prevent discrimination across the Community. Any contract notice which states a local preference would not be consistent with those legal obligations.

Royal Bank of Scotland

Rob Marris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many meetings Ministers in his Department held with (a) staff and (b) directors of the Royal Bank of Scotland in (i) each month in 2008 and (ii) January 2009. [253091]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Taxation: Self-Assessment

Mr. Binley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward proposals to reduce HM Revenue and Customs' 6.5 per cent. interest charge for late returned self-assessment tax returns. [254001]

Mr. Timms: Interest is not charged on late returned self-assessment returns, but rather on any tax shown as due on a return and unpaid at the due date.

HM Revenue and Customs recalculates its interest rates following any change in the Bank of England base rate in line with procedures laid down in legislation. The legislation sets out how the rates for various taxes and duties should be calculated and when they apply from. In accordance with the legislation the rate of interest charged on underpaid income tax is currently 3.5 per cent. This rate has applied since 27 January 2009.

Thoresen Review

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consideration his Department has given to the findings of the Thoresen Review of Generic Financial Advice. [253298]

Ian Pearson: The Government accepted the Thoresen Review's central recommendation to pilot the Money Guidance service through a large-scale regional pathfinder on 3 March 2008, alongside publication of the Thoresen Review's final report. As announced at PBR 2008, the £12 million pathfinder, jointly funded by HM Treasury and the Financial Services Authority, is on track to launch this spring in the North East and North West of England. The pathfinder will inform Government decisions on roll-out of a national Money Guidance service.

Valuation Office: Electronic Equipment

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Weybridge of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1889W, on departmental electronic equipment, to what use the Valuation Office Agency has put the (a) flat screen televisions and (b) stereo equipment it purchased in the years concerned. [252403]

Mr. Timms: The information is as follows:

(a) 14 flat-screen televisions are used for video-conferencing, one to relay information messages to staff, one to show 24-hour news programmes to visitors, one for PowerPoint and other computer-based presentations in the boardroom and one for development of staff training material.

(b) The stereo equipment is used for audio presentations in VOA offices.

Valuation Office: South East

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 6 November 2008, Official Report, column 682W, on housing: valuation, if he will rank each individual locality reference in each valuation area in the South East according to value significance. [252213]

Mr. Timms: A list of locality reference numbers, ranked in order of value significance by valuation area within the Valuation Office Agency's South East Group, has been placed in the Library. The list is based on data extracted between 9 and 10 September 2008.

Information that identifies the extent and location of each locality, relative to the list of numbers that ranks each individual locality, is commercially confidential.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent steps the Government have taken to increase the uptake of tax credits by those entitled to them. [253248]

Mr. Timms: Paragraph 5.40, Chapter 5 in the pre-Budget report 2008 set out the steps the Government are taking to increase the uptake of tax credits, which includes HMRC working in partnership with other organisations to promote working tax credit in innovative ways. Since then coverage through partnership marketing has increased from 500,000 employees at 40 organisations to 660,000 employees at 44 organisations.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many bankruptcy orders have been issued in respect to the recovery of tax credit overpayments (a) in each year since 2003-04 and (b) in each month in 2008-09 for which information is available; and what the average level of overpayment was. [249235]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. HMRC's policy is to attempt to make personal contact in all cases before legal proceedings are commenced including at least one visit to the last known address of the claimant.

HM Revenue and Customs will only initiate insolvency action through the courts as a last resort and it would be unusual to commence insolvency proceedings solely in respect of tax credit debts.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Manpower

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time staff posts (i) have been and (ii) are planned to be ended in each division as part of the restructuring in his Department referred to in his Department's Annual Report 2008, chapter 10, point 10.16; and what reduction in expenditure is expected to arise from this restructuring. [246921]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Details of headcount reductions at the Department for International Development (DFID) since 2004 are available in the 2008 Annual Report, Chapter 10, point 10.23. This is available in the Library of the House and on the DFID website:

www.dfid.gov.uk.

For the 2008-09 to 2010-11 period there are no headcount targets.

Workforce planning and staff needs by division are continually under review.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his latest estimate is of his Department's underspend for the financial year 2008-09. [253976]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) estimates that it will spend its budget in full for the financial year 2008-09.

Developing Countries: Private Sector

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with CDC on its role in private sector investment in developing countries during the global economic downturn; and if he will make a statement. [252400]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Officials at the Department for International Development (DFID) have had discussions on the financial crisis with CDC in the context of the company's new investment policy announced in November 2008. This policy will focus CDC further on poorer countries that still have substantial need for investment capital during the crisis. A copy of the policy has been placed in the Library of the House.

With access to private credit in developing countries reducing as a result of the economic downturn, capital flows from development finance institutions such as CDC must be maintained or increased. Access to these funds will encourage private sector investment and the jobs that that helps to protect and create.

CDC therefore has an important counter-cyclical role to play in continuing to make commitments to funds which focus on its target geographies in low income countries and sub-Saharan Africa in particular.

However, CDC on its own can have only a small impact. A coordinated response is necessary and we are also encouraging CDC to coordinate closely with other Development Finance Institutions such as the IFC which is preparing a package of facilities and initiatives in response to the global financial crisis.

International Conferences

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department will attend the forthcoming Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative Global Conference on establishing resource transparency; what his Department's objectives for the conference are; and if he will make a statement.[1] [252866]

Mr. Michael Foster: The UK Government have been a leading supporter of the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI). DFID has committed £10.043 million to EITI and has so far provided £5.077 million of this since November 2002. Increasing transparency and knowledge of revenues from the extractive sectors empowers citizens to hold governments to account, so that mismanagement of funds away from sustainable development purposes becomes more difficult. In line with the EITI Global Conference's objectives, we will work with other stakeholders to take stock of EITI's progress; to address the challenges which EITI faces; and to consider the next steps for taking forward the initiative.

The composition of the UK's delegation to the EITI Global Conference is yet to be finalised.

Palestinians: International Assistance

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent assessment is of the humanitarian situation in Gaza; what continued financial contribution the UK plans to make; and if he will urge the international community to make a substantial contribution to deal with the humanitarian situation in the region. [253933]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) is extremely concerned by the humanitarian situation in Gaza. The United Nations estimates that over 90 per cent. of Gaza's population is at least partly dependent on food aid and one fifth of people have no access to running water. Access through crossings between Gaza and Israel remains severely restricted although some deliveries of emergency food aid, medicines and medical supplies have been allowed in but is not adequate to fully meet the needs of the population. The UK continues to urge Israel to immediately allow full and unhindered access for humanitarian agencies so supplies can get in.

The UK Government have made an additional pledge of up to £26.8 million to help meet immediate humanitarian needs in Gaza. Of this over £12 million has already been allocated. For the remaining funds, we are prioritising support to those agencies well placed to respond to immediate humanitarian assistance and protection needs. The UK will continue to meet needs through our five year £100 million commitment to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency. We also provide funding through the European Community's Humanitarian Aid Office (ECHO) which has allocated €3 million for urgent humanitarian relief work in Gaza, of which the UK contributes about 16 per cent. (€482,000).

We are in contact with other Governments on ensuring that the contributions made by the international community are adequate to meet humanitarian needs in Gaza. The continued restrictions on access into Gaza for humanitarian supplies are a serious problem that must be dealt with so that humanitarian assistance can reach those who need it.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid he has made available to the population of Gaza in the last two years. [248169]

[1] [Official Report, 12 February 2009, Vol. 487, c. 17MC.]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In 2007-08 the Department for International Development provided £63.6 million to the Occupied Palestinian Territories (OPTs). This included £15.6 million to United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) for Palestinian refugees in the region; £3 million to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) for humanitarian assistance in Gaza, and £35.5 million to the PA which helped it provide essential public services in both Gaza and the West Bank.

In 2008-09 the UK has already provided £19 million to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency to help Palestinian refugees in the region, including the 70 per cent. of Gazans who are refugees. We have also given £23.5 million to the Palestinian Authority for delivery of public services in Gaza and the west bank.

As announced on 18 January 2009, the UK has pledged an additional £20 million to help meet needs in Gaza, bringing the total UK response to the humanitarian crisis in Gaza to nearly £27 million since the conflict started.

I also refer my hon. Friend to the answer provided to the hon. Member for East Antrim (Sammy Wilson) on 28 January 2009, Official Report, column 613-14W.

Zimbabwe: Overseas Aid

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department plans to take to provide assistance to the people of Zimbabwe in the next 12 months. [253099]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development's (DFID) programme in Zimbabwe is focused on providing immediate humanitarian support and broader livelihoods assistance to meet the essential needs of the people of Zimbabwe. This year we have provided: £9 million to the World Food programme for food aid; £10 million to support the growing season; and £9 million to HIV/AIDS prevention and treatment. We also recently made £10 million available to tackle the cholera outbreak and support life-saving essential health systems. The UK is one of the largest donors giving £45 million last year in aid. We anticipate a total spend of £47 million this financial year across these areas of life-saving need. Our aid is channelled through the UN and NGOs and not the Government of Zimbabwe.

We anticipate the need for sustained large-scale humanitarian support from the international community for the foreseeable future and we are monitoring the situation very closely. However, a sustainable and credible political solution is required to really address Zimbabwe's problems. In principle, we are ready to support economic and social recovery in Zimbabwe but the nature of our support will be contingent on a new administration's commitment to change, including: commitment to macroeconomic stabilisation; restoration of the rule of law; commitment to democracy and respect for human rights and full humanitarian access.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Redundancy

Mr. Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent assessment he has made of the capacity of his Department's local offices to assist people made redundant. [253034]

Mr. McNulty: Jobcentre Plus is well prepared: it is increasing its staffing levels and ensuring it has the office and infrastructure capacity it needs to respond to the current economic situation.

For those under threat of redundancy, we are doubling the resources available to the Jobcentre Plus rapid response teams who offer immediate advice to affected employers and individuals to help them with their next steps.

Bereavement Benefits

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the target processing period is for applications for bereavement benefit. [249683]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 20 January 2009]: There is no national target for the processing of applications for bereavement benefits although we aim to deliver bereavement allowance within 15 days and bereavement payment within 10 days.

Payment of bereavement benefits has now been centralised nationally into two benefit delivery centres at Arbroath and Dover in order to improve the service to our customers. Between April and December 2008 new bereavement allowance claims were processed in just over 15 days on average and new bereavement payment claims in just over nine days on average.

Children: Maintenance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many parents with care were owed Child Support Agency maintenance arrears in each month since May 1997; [242094]

(2) what the average amount of Child Support Agency maintenance arrears owed to parents with care was per case in each month since May 1997; [242095]

(3) what the average amount of child maintenance arrears outstanding was on all Child Support Agency cases with maintenance outstanding in each month since May 1997. [242192]

Kitty Ussher: The administration of the child maintenance system is a matter for the Commissioner of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many parents with care were owed Child Support Agency maintenance arrears in each month since May 1997 [242094];

What the average amount of Child Support Agency maintenance arrears owed to parents with care was per case in each month since May 1997 [242095]; and

What the average amount of child maintenance arrears outstanding was on all Child Support Agency cases with maintenance outstanding in each month since May 1997. [242192]

The analysis required to respond to your questions is only available on information held from March 2007. Such information as is currently available is provided in the attached table.

It should be noted that the majority of child maintenance cases will have some debt. In particular all new cases will accrue debt unless the non-resident parent provides support while the liability is being assessed. In addition around a third of non-resident parents fail to regularly pay the maintenance they should and this debt will continue to accrue. Therefore where there are maintenance arrears the average amount owed to parents with care is around £2,600, although in fact around a quarter of all cases with arrears owe less than £170 or less than two monthly maintenance payments.

In the twelve months to September 2008 the Agency collected £1,088 million in child maintenance, of which £149 million was arrears. In the month of September 2008 alone, the Agency collected or arranged £98.7 million in maintenance of which £14.6 million was arrears. This is the highest level of maintenance and arrears collected or arranged by the Agency in one month ever.

The Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act strengthens the range of enforcement and debt management powers available to the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. These will be used to enable the Commission to more effectively recover outstanding debt.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Open cases with outstanding maintenance arrears from March 2007 to September 2008. This includes those cases without outstanding arrears at September 2008.

[3] Includes total debt on open cases including those without a current liability which is owed by non resident parents to the parent with care and/or Secretary of State. This excludes debt where money is owed to the non-resident parent.

The Agency cannot comment on individual cases and this extends to an individual not being able to identify themselves in public statistics. As data disclosure exemptions prevent the supply of information on an individual case being published in the public domain, information is provided in the attached table on the average debt owed by non-resident parents, taken from the top five per cent of cases in each month from March 2007. This includes a small enough percentage of cases to accurately represent the highest debt cases but a high enough number of cases not to disclose an individuals details.

Information is not available on the largest amount of arrears requested to be settled in full as this is not routinely recorded by the Agency.

Crisis Loans

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many people were subject to (a) a county court claim by his Department and (b) a county court judgement as a result of such a claim for defaulting on repayments of a (i) crisis loan and (ii) budget loan in each year since 1997; [249339]

(2) how many people have had items repossessed following default on repayments of (a) a crisis loan and (b) a budgeting loan in each year since 1997; [249341]

(3) in how many instances bailiffs have been used to recover repayments of (a) a crisis loan and (b) a budgeting loan in each year since 1997; [249343]

(4) how many bankruptcy orders have been issued following default on repayments of a (a) crisis loan and (b) budgeting loan in each year since 1997. [249345]

Kitty Ussher: Where a person is in receipt of benefit, recovery is by means of deductions from benefit only.

Court action is only taken against those no longer receiving benefits. Such action is taken only should a voluntary arrangement not be possible, or if there is a default on that arrangement. The Department does not seek repossession of items in default cases, neither does the Department take bankruptcy action.

The information relating to the number of occasions bailiffs have been used is not available.

The number of people subject to a county court claim by the Department for Work and Pensions for defaulting on Social Fund repayments is set out as follows. The information cannot be separated between Budgeting Loans and Crisis Loans. No action has been taken to enforce recovery of outstanding loans through the courts since 2005-06.

Number of court claims in social fund cases

	Number
1997-98	14,417
1998-99	12,005
1999-2000	15,619
2000-01	10,688
2001-02	7,861
2002-03	5,878
2003-04	6,009
2004-05	3,792
2005-06	1,076

Note:
Data prior to 2003-04 has been supplied by the courts.

As part of the Department's programme to bring increased focus to the management and recovery of debt generally, the decision was made to transfer the management and recovery of social fund off-benefit cases to the Department's specialist Debt Management unit. This commenced in 2005. Referring the outstanding social fund loans to Debt Management has enabled the use of their specialist skills in pursuing recovery from customers who are no longer in receipt of benefit.

This transfer of cases to Debt Management has already resulted in significant recoveries on loans from those no longer in receipt of benefit, without a need to refer for court enforcement.

Housing Benefit

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken to process a housing benefit claim was in each year since 1997. [253119]

Kitty Ussher: The available information is in the table:

Average days to process housing benefit claims—2001-02 to 2007-08

	Average days
2001-02	59
2002-03	53

2006-07	33

Notes:
1. Housing benefit claim processing times are measured in calendar days from the day a claim is received to the date a decision is made.
2. Claim processing performance data is supplied to DWP by local authorities and is un-audited.
3. Not all local authorities provide all four quarters worth of data. Where a local authority has not provided data in a particular quarter, the data they have provided is multiplied to cover the appropriate period; this is then used to calculate the national average.

6. Percentages of pensioner population at constituency level have been calculated based on the ONS mid year population estimates (2006) at constituency level which are experimental data and therefore not part of the National Statistics. Recovery from Estates Debt Management Unit

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was recovered by his Department's Recovery from Estates Debt Management Unit in each year since 1997 for which information is available; and what the cost of running the Unit was in each such year. [249375]

Kitty Ussher: Recovery from Estates (RFE) is responsible for the recovery of overpaid benefit from the estates of deceased customers in England and Wales. This involves:

checking records of deceased customers against probate records and taking action to recover money incorrectly paid; and recovering any overpayments that were outstanding on the death of a customer.

RFE do not recover:

Overpayments made after death;

Official error overpayments

RFE recovery data is only available from 2003, costing data from 2005.

Social Security Benefits: Disabled People

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what support is available through the benefits system to parents with disabled children between the ages of 16 and 18 to help them with childcare costs. [249346]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Jobcentre Plus pays childcare costs within the limits set under the child care element of the working tax credit, on behalf of parents who are claiming out of work benefits who have a disabled child.

For children in receipt of disability living allowance or who are registered blind, child care costs can be paid up to, but not including, the first Tuesday in the September following the child's 16th birthday.

Parents are eligible to claim the cost of registered child care when they are undertaking certain activities in connection with their search for work or when they are attending work focused training. To qualify for child care payments, all activities must be approved by a Jobcentre Plus adviser.

Parents can claim tax credit for a child who lives with them, up to 31 August after the 16th birthday. Child care costs can be claimed through the child care element for a disabled child until the last day in which 1 September falls, following the child's 16th birthday. The age limit is otherwise the child's 15th birthday.

The Aiming High for Disabled Children review found that more needed to be done to co-ordinate services for disabled young people in transition to adult life, and to ensure young people and families can access high quality information at key points. To address this the Government announced £19 million over the period 2008 to 2011 to develop a 'Transition Support Programme' for young disabled people, which will seek to raise the standards of transition support and provision and achieve greater consistency in all local areas.

Social Security Benefits: Overpayments

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many people were subject to (a) a county court claim by his Department and (b) a county court judgement as a result of such a claim for repayments of overpayments of (i) jobseeker's allowance, (ii) income support, (iii) incapacity benefit, (iv) carers allowance, (v) attendance allowance, (vi) pension credit and (vii) the state pension in each year since 1997; [249340]

(2) how many people have had items repossessed following default on repayments of overpayments of (a) jobseeker's allowance, (b) income support, (c) incapacity benefit, (d) carers allowance, (e) attendance allowance, (f) pension credit and (g) the state pension in each year since 1997; [249342]

(3) how many instances bailiffs have been used to recover repayments of overpayments of (a) jobseeker's allowance, (b) income support, (c) incapacity benefit, (d) carers allowance, (e) attendance allowance, (f) pension credit and (g) the state pension in each year since 1997; [249344]

(4) how many bankruptcy orders have been issued against individuals following their default on repayments of overpayments of (a) jobseeker's allowance, (b) income support, (c) incapacity benefit, (d) carers allowance, (e) attendance allowance, (f) pension credit and (g) the state pension in each year since 1997 for which information is available; [249373]

(5) in how many cases his Department has pursued repayment of overpayments of benefit following the death of a claimant through a county court claim in each of the last five years, broken down by benefit type. [249365]

Kitty Ussher: In cases where there is an overpayment of benefit outstanding, court action is only taken against those no longer receiving benefits. Such action is taken only should a voluntary arrangement not be possible, or if there is a default on that arrangement. The Department does not seek repossession of items in default cases, neither does the Department take bankruptcy action.

The information relating to the number of occasions bailiffs have been used is not available.

There are two types of actions the Department takes in county courts, depending on whether or not recovery is sought from an estate of a deceased customer.

1. Where recovery is sought from the person overpaid:

> The action the Department takes in county courts to recover overpayments of benefit is to seek an Order for Recovery of Money Awarded by a Tribunal. This does not result in a county court judgment.
> Between 2005 and 2008, no civil action in county courts was initiated by the Department in cases of this type. During this period, resources were concentrated on establishing the newly created Debt Management unit, with new processes, a new structure and new IT. This succeeded in increasing the total amount recovered from £180 million in 2005 to 2006, to just under £272 million in 2007 to 2008.
> Some limited court action was taken by the Department's private sector partners during this period. They obtained charging orders in nine high value overpayment cases.
> The Department recommenced county court action in overpayment cases from January 2008, and during 2008 1,700 orders were sought from the court. Information relating to the breakdown between benefits is not available.
> Information for the period prior to 2005 is not available.

2. Where recovery is sought from an estate of a deceased customer:

> In cases where there is an overpayment outstanding at a customer's death, or where an overpayment is identified after death based on information that comes to light after death, such as undeclared occupational pensions or under declared savings, recovery is sought from the estate. In certain cases, where repayment is not made, the Department may take the executor to the county court on the basis of maladministration of the estate. Such actions can result in county court judgments.
> The Department does not take action through the court to pursue recovery of overpayments arising as a result of a payment made directly into a bank account after death.

Details of the number of cases where county court action has been taken are in the table. We are not able to say how many resulted in county court judgments, or say which benefits they related to.

Information prior to April 2005 is not available.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the monetary value was of repayments of overpayments requested by his Department following the death of a claimant in circumstances where such repayments were not mandatory under social security legislation and where the family members of the deceased claimants challenged the requests and did not subsequently make the repayments in each of the last five years, broken down by benefit type; [249353]

(2) what the monetary value was of repayments of overpayments of benefits requested by his Department following the death of a claimant, where such repayments were not mandatory under social security legislation in each of the last five years, broken down by benefit type; [249354]

(3) in how many cases overpayments of benefit have been reclaimed following the death of a claimant where such repayments were not mandatory under social security legislation in each of the last five years, broken down by benefit type; [249376]

(4) in how many cases his Department has not pursued requests for repayment of overpayments following the death of a claimant in circumstances where the repayment was challenged by family members and where the repayment was not mandatory under social security legislation in each of the last five years; [249377]

(5) in how many cases where his Department requested repayment of overpayments following the death of a claimant where such repayments were not mandatory under social security legislation, such requests were not challenged by family members in each of the last five years. [249378]

Kitty Ussher: Unfortunately, through no fault of any individual, overpayments of benefit can arise following the death of a benefit recipient. Such overpayments normally arise as a result of the Department being notified of the death too late to stop an automated payment being made into the deceased's account.

We are doing all we can to improve the current process. We now receive electronic notifications of death from the Office for National Statistics on a daily basis. This will assist in enabling a prompt cessation of payments following death and reduce the number of these overpayments occurring.

The Department has a duty to seek recovery of all overpaid funds where it is reasonable and cost effective to do so. However, we seek to do this as sensitively as possible, taking account of the fact that this will be a stressful time, particularly if the person contacted is a close friend or family member. Overpayments are written off if the deceased has no estate or there are insufficient funds in the estate.

The Department does not have records to answer all the questions in the format asked. However, we do have data on the value and volume of cases of overpayments where recovery has been made, and data on those that have been written off. The details are in the following tables.

Direct payments after death—debts written off. These data are only available from 2006, and by benefit only from 2007.

State Retirement Pensions

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what account is taken in calculating pensions of working years additional to those required for a full state pension if they occurred prior to an individual reaching retirement age. [253734]

Ms Rosie Winterton: People attaining state pension age after 5 April 2010 will only need 30 qualifying years of national insurance contributions to gain a full basic state pension. People will continue to build up entitlement to the additional state pension on class 1 contributions paid beyond those years required for entitlement to a full basic pension.

In addition, as now, national insurance contributions will provide entitlement not just to state pension but to a range of contributory benefits. Contributions will continue to pay for benefits when people are sick or unemployed and bereavement benefits.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the number of households in (a) Eastbourne, (b) East Sussex and (c) the UK in which more than one individual receives the winter fuel allowance. [248817]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The following table shows the total number of individuals who received a winter fuel payment and those who received a shared payment. Figures are for winter 2006-07, the latest year for which figures are available.

	Total number of payments	Shared payments
Eastbourne parliamentary constituency	28,280	13,360
East Sussex local authority	135,350	67,260
GB	11,702,900	5,485,450

Notes:
1. A shared payment is made if there is more than one person entitled in a household. If however, an entitled person is receiving pension credit, income-based jobseeker's allowance or income support then their payment is not shared. In these cases that person receives a full payment.
2. Figures are rounded to the nearest ten.
3. Parliamentary constituencies and counties are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.
Source:
Information directorate 100 per cent data.

We expect that similar numbers of individuals will receive shared winter fuel payments in 2008-09.

Winter Fuel Payments: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the number of households in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in which more than one individual receives the winter fuel allowance. [249037]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The following table shows the total number of individuals who received a winter fuel payment and those who received a shared payment. Figures are for winter 2006-07, the latest year for which figures are available.

	Total number of payments	Shared payments
Hemel Hempstead parliamentary constituency	17,960	8,840
Hertfordshire local authority	203,490	103,300

Notes:
1. A shared payment is made if there is more than one person entitled in a household. If however, an entitled person is receiving pension credit, income-based jobseeker's allowance or income support then their payment is not shared. In these cases that person receives a full payment.
2. Figures rounded to the nearest 10.
3. Parliamentary constituencies and local authorities are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant ONS postcode directory.

We expect that similar numbers of households will receive winter fuel payments in 2008-09.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people (a) were prosecuted, (b) were cautioned and (c) received a penalty notice for disorder for (i) purchasing and (ii) selling alcohol under age in 2007. [248644]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts, issued with a caution, or penalty notice for disorder for selected alcohol offences, in England and Wales for 2007 are given in tables 1 and 2.

Table 1: Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts, and issued with a caution or a Penalty Notice for Disorder (PND) for purchasing, or attempting to purchase, alcohol by a person under 18[1], England and Wales, 2007[2]

	Number
Total proceeded against[3]	10
Total cautions issued[4]	31
Total PNDs issued	158

[1] Data includes the following offence descriptions and corresponding statutes:
Person under 18 buying or attempting to buy or consuming intoxicating liquor in Licensed premises—Licensing Act 1964 SS. 169C(1) and E) as added by Licensing (Young Persons) Act 2000 S.1, Licensing (Occasional Permissions) Act 1983 S.3 Sch. Para. 4(2)
Purchase of alcohol by an individual under 18—Licensing Act 2003 S.149 (1)&(7)(a)
Buy or attempting to buy alcohol by person under 18—Licensing Act 2003 S.149(1)

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] The 'Total proceeded against' statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[4] From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals. Cautions statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been cautioned for two or more offences at the same time the principal offence is the more serious offence.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Hampshire

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many anti-social behaviour orders were (a) issued and (b) breached in (i) Southampton, (ii) Test Valley borough and (iii) the ceremonial county of Hampshire in each of the last three years. [251098]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Centrally collected data on the number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) issued and breached are currently available up to 31 December 2006 and are not compiled below CJS area level.

The number of ASBOs issued at all courts in the Hampshire Criminal Justice System (CJS) area in 2004 was 100 and the number proven in court to have been breached for the first time during 2004 was 46. Equivalent data for 2005 and 2006 are: 112 issued, 56 breached and 66 issued, 67 breached respectively.

ASBOs became available from April 1999. Many ASBOs which are breached in a particular year will have been issued in a previous year.

Antisocial Behaviour: Crime Prevention

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the anti-social behaviour units within police authorities. [251346]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Each local area is responsible for setting up and managing its own multi-agency team to tackle antisocial behaviour (ASB). In doing so, it establishes its own priorities according to local needs. In some areas the lead agency is the police while in others it is the local authority. But all local agencies need to work together if anti-social-behaviour is to be tackled effectively and the police service has a key role to play.

The Government have provided practitioners with a toolkit of enforcement and support tools to tackle antisocial behaviour which they operate according to local priorities. And we know that they are using them. The latest Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) survey of tools and powers shows that between October 2003 and September 2007, CDRPs have:

Issued more than 30,000 Acceptable Behaviour Contracts.

Issued over 1,100 crack house closures.

Issued more than 2,000 parenting orders and 8,600 contracts

Made 12,675 antisocial behaviour orders (between October 2003 and December 2006; court data)

Three independent reports including the Home Affairs Select Committee report (2005), the Audit Commission report (May 2006) and the NAO report (December 2006) confirmed that our approach to tackling antisocial behaviour is working.

Perceptions of levels of antisocial behaviour have fallen—16per cent. of people felt that levels of antisocial behaviour were high in 2006-07 compared to 21 per cent. in 2002-03.

Asylum

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) Iraqi and (b) Syrian refugees were included in the resettlement quota agreed with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees for (i) 2008 and (ii) 2009; and how many candidates had been identified at the latest date for which figures are available. [252450]

Meg Hillier: Under the UK's agreement with UNHCR for the Gateway Protection programme, 500 Iraqi refugees will be resettled during the financial year 2008-09 and 500 during financial year 2009-10.

500 Iraqi refugees have been identified for resettlement under Gateway during 2008-09. No Iraqi refugees have been yet been identified for resettlement under Gateway during 2009-10.

The UK has no plans to resettle Syrian nationals under the resettlement quotas in either of the financial years 2008-09 or 2009-10.

Borders: Personal Records

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of travellers through UK ports and airports she estimates will be covered by the e-Borders scheme by August 2012. [251685]

Mr. Woolas: e-Borders will capture 95 per cent. of passenger and crew movements in and out of the UK by December 2010, with further development of that capability throughout 2011-12 until full operating capability is reached in 2014.

Burglary: Merseyside

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of property crime was attributable to the misuse of class A drugs in Merseyside in each year since 1997. [251345]

Mr. Alan Campbell: No annual estimates are made of the levels of property crime attributable to the misuse of class A drugs in Merseyside.

Research evidence does indicate that a large proportion of acquisitive crime is related to drug use. Published research shows that arrestees who regularly use heroin or crack cocaine are far more likely to have committed acquisitive crimes in the last 12 months than those who do not.

Table 5.4 Home Office Statistical Bulletin 12/07.

The estimated number of problem drug users (heroin and/or crack cocaine) for areas in Merseyside is in the range of:

	Number
Liverpool	5,675-7,541
Knowsley	1,351-1,858
Sefton	1,683-2,650
St. Helens	1,253-1,677
Wirral	3,179-4,439

Notes:

1. 'Property crime' comprises the following main offence groups: burglary; offences against vehicles; other theft offences; fraud and forgery; criminal damage.
2. Figures in table 2 are not directly comparable with that in table 1 as the offence coverage was extended and counting rules revised from 1998-99.
3. The data in table 3 takes account of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard (NCRS) in April 2002. These figures are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.

Civil Servants: Secondment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which external organisations her Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in her Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252233]

Mr. Woolas: The majority of training that fast stream civil service staff received is provided by the National School of Government. Detailed information on this, and the extent to which we have participated in provision of training for external organisations, is no[illegible]ld centrally and could be provided only at disproporti[illegible]st.

Crime Prevention

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department has taken to seek to achieve reductions in levels of (a) burglary, (b) vehicle crime and (c) violent crime since 2004. [251343]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government's Crime Strategy "Cutting Crime: A New Partnership 2008-11" published in 2007 outlines a refreshed approach to tackling crime which ensures that crime and disorder reduction partnerships (CDRPs)/community safety partnerships (CSPs), including the police, identify and tackle issues of local concern. This approach was further strengthened by the CDRP/CSP reform programme which requires these local partnerships to identify crime types and give sufficient weight to tackling them.

The Government have exceeded their PSA target 1 "To reduce crime by 15 per cent. and further in high crime areas by 2007-08" as measured by the British crime survey with a reduction of 18 per cent. from the 2002-03 baseline year.

With regards to the specific categories of crime:

(a) Burglary

We have taken forward work on priority concerns including work with prolific and other priority offenders; developing partnerships between the police and local authorities to improve the security of homes and businesses; and raising awareness of security measures through campaigns such as the "Let's Keep Crime Down". The Home Secretary is also planning to chair a summit meeting of national organisations on 4 February 2009 to take forward new measures and support people in hard times.

(b) Vehicle crime

Along with domestic burglary, vehicle crime has been included within the definition of serious acquisitive crime, as part of our new set of PSAs and is included under national indicator 16 in the national indicator set for local area agreements and in PSA23 strand 2. ACPO's Vehicle Crime Intelligence Service has worked with police and other practitioners to address vehicle crime. Recorded crime statistics for offences against vehicles have fallen 39 per cent. since 2002-03 (which is the baseline year) compared with 2007-08.

(c) Violent crime

The Government's approach to tackling violent crime is outlined in the publication "An Action Plan for Tackling Violence" which details the Home Office's priorities with respect to serious violence including work on guns, gangs, knives, domestic and sexual violence. We have also taken forward the Tackling Violent Crime Programme, the Tackling Gangs Action Programme and the Tackling Knives Action Programme. New measures to tackle violent crime have also been enacted in the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act and the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006.

Departmental Data Protection

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many electronic and computer files her Department and its agencies lost in transit in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [243125]

Mr. Woolas: Incidents of personal data losses are recorded centrally but the numbers of electronic and computer files contained within lost data is not recorded. To answer this question would fall into the disproportionate cost threshold.

The Home Office has publicised details of personal data related incidents notified to the Information Commissioner's Office in 2007-08 in its Resource Accounts published in August 2008. In the first half of 2008-09 a notification was made to the Information Commissioner regarding the PA Consulting data loss incident.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which ICT projects her Department initiated and abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred in each project; who the contractors for each were; on what date each was (a) commenced and (b) abandoned; and if she will make a statement. [251395]

Mr. Woolas: No ICT projects initiated in this Department have been abandoned by this Department before completion since 1997.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the policy of her Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if she will make a statement. [252023]

Mr. Woolas: Flexible working hours (FWH) or flexitime schemes operate widely in the Home Office where the nature of the work allows for it. The schemes give members of staff flexibility over the pattern of their working day. Most Home Office staff take advantage of these schemes which enable them to vary their lunch break.

The requirements of the Working Time Regulations in relation to excess hours worked should ensure that staff take at least the minimum lunch break each day and do not regularly work long hours.

Where members of staff who do not use flexible working schemes work outside of their normal contractual hours they may also take any excess hours worked as time off in lieu, or, where it is applicable and appropriate, and dependent on their grade, authorised overtime may be payable or a discretionary payment made.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252024]

Mr. Woolas: Responsibility for granting days off in lieu is delegated to local line management and information on the total number of days in lieu taken by staff in the Home Office and its agencies and NDPBs is therefore not held centrally. For this reason this information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Driving Under Influence

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many breath tests were taken in each year since 1997; and how many accidents were caused by drunk drivers in each police authority in each of those years. [251340]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested on breath tests conducted, broken down by police force area for the years 1997 to 2006 (latest available) are provided in the following table.

Data for 2007 are due to be published in spring 2009.

The Department for Transport publishes estimates on the number of drink-drive accidents where one or more of the motor vehicle drivers or riders involved were over the legal limit. These estimates are calculated on a national basis. Police force area estimates are not available.

The estimates are published as an article 3, entitled "Drinking and driving" in "Road Casualties Great Britain - Annual report 2007". Copies of the report have been deposited in the Library of the House and is also available at the following web address:

[1] Following a comparison between the number of positive breath tests reported by each police force in 2006 and the number of court proceedings for drink-driving related offences, it became clear that there was under-reporting in a number of forces. As a result Essex, Humberside, Lancashire, Norfolk, Northumbria, Staffordshire, Dyfed-Powys, Gwent and South Wales court proceedings figures have been substituted for the positive breath test figures. Similar adjustments were also made to various forces data between 1998 and 2005.

[2] Figures may not add up to total for England and Wales due to rounding.

Entry Clearances: Costs

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of processing visa applications has been in each of the last five years. [252308]

Mr. Woolas: The total costs attributed to the UK's visa processing operation in each of the last five financial years was as follows:

2003-04	120,876,425
2004-05	140,121,081
2005-06	187,549,885
2006-07	201,743,883
2007-08	310,116,581

Entry Clearances: Fees and Charges

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department and its agencies have received in fees for visa applications in each of the last five years. [252318]

Mr. Woolas: The total amount received in fees for visa applications in each of the last five financial years was as follows:

2003-04	111,922,616
2004-05	127,382,801
2005-06	163,361,565
2006-07	190,499,306
2007-08	273,577,329

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department and its agencies have received in fees for unsuccessful visa applications in each of the last five years. [252319]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency International Group does not hold accurate information to answer this question. In order to provide an answer, the amounts would have to be estimated and this could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The visa refusal rate is approximately 20 per cent. globally, though this is spread across the various categories of visa, with different fees attaching to each.

Freedom of Information

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much on average it has cost her Department to manage a request made under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 since 2006. [251760]

Mr. Woolas: The average cost of managing Freedom of Information requests is not routinely calculated by the Home Office and the information requested can only be provided at disproportionate cost.

An assessment of the cost of Freedom of Information within Government can be found in Frontier Economics 2006 report "Independent Review of the Freedom of Information Act". A copy of this report is available in the House of Commons Library.

Genetics: Databases

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 136-8W, on genetics: databases, how many and what proportion of DNA samples have been removed from the national DNA database and destroyed following a request to do so from the person from whom the DNA was taken in each month since January 2008, broken down by police authority area; and if she will make a statement. [251168]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Between 1 January 2008 and 31 December 2008, 272 subject profile records were deleted from the NDNAD under the Exceptional Case Procedure (i.e. following a request to the chief officer of the responsible force from the person concerned). This covers records loaded by England and Wales forces only.

The following tables show the number of records deleted from the NDNAD under the exceptional case procedure for each month from January 2008 to December 2008, broken down by police force area. The total number of profiles held on the NDNAD for England and Wales forces at the end of 2007 and 2008 is also shown.

As an estimated 13.3 per cent. of profiles are replicates, the number of individuals on the NDNAD is approximately 13.3 per cent. less than the number of subject profiles. The presence of these replicate profiles on the NDNAD does not impact on the effectiveness and integrity of the database.

Immobilisation of Vehicles: Regulation

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made by the Security Industry Authority on its feasibility study of options for the regulation of vehicle immobilisation companies operating on private property. [252982]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I refer my hon. Friend to my answer of 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 1489W, to the hon. Member for Manchester, Withington (Mr. Leech).

Internet: Standards

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans there are to introduce a content filtering scheme for the internet. [241568]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 9 December 2008]: The Home Office and OFCOM have developed a Kitemark in partnership with BSI, which will set a standard for filtering software which is aimed at protecting children online.

The Home Office is currently working with industry with regards to the implementation of the Kitemark. The Home Office looks forward to industry putting forward their products for testing the Kitemark.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answers of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 2253W, to questions 226398 and 226400 on entry clearances: biometrics, when she plans to write to the hon. Member for Beaconsfield. [241491]

Mr. Woolas: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary wrote to the hon. Member for Beaconsfield on 19 January 2009.

Offences Against Children: Internet

Dan Norris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps the Government have taken in co-operation with its international counterparts to encourage the closure of overseas-hosted websites which contain images of child abuse. [251831]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The UK is firmly behind efforts to spread the use of blocking internationally, but that it is only one in a whole range of tactics that need to be deployed to tackle the issue of child sexual abuse where technology is a factor. There is a range of activity that either the UK leads, or is part of, across a spectrum of international political and law enforcement arenas which all work towards: the identification and safeguarding of victims of sexual abuse; locating and apprehending the perpetrators behind their abuse; and tackling those who profit from the sale or distribution of the images from that abuse.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to ensure that 100 per cent. of internet service providers demonstrate their use of filters against child pornography; what timetable she has set for achieving this objective; and if she will make a statement. [250875]

Mr. Alan Campbell: In 2006 the Government stated that they wished to see 100 per cent. of consumer broadband connections covered by blocking, which include child pornography, by the end of 2007. Currently in the UK 95 per cent. of consumer broadband connections are covered by blocking. The Government are currently looking at ways to progress the final 5 per cent.

Sex Offender Register

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals there were on the Sex Offender Register in each of the last five years. [252350]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The number of registered sex offenders in each of the last five years is represented in the following table, as reported in the annual MAPPA reports.

	Number of registered sex offenders
2003-04	24,572
2004-05	28,994
2005-06	29,983
2006-07	30,416
2007-08	31,392

Speed Limits

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what devices are used by police forces to measure the speed of motor vehicles. [253003]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The enforcement of the law on speeding and the use of devices to assist such enforcement is an operational matter for the police. The Home Secretary type approves certain speed measurement devices that have satisfied rigorous scientific and operational tests to prove their accuracy and reliability.

Evidence from such devices is then admissible in court without the need for corroboration. Information on devices that are currently type approved is given on the HO police website:

> http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and which police forces use hidden speed enforcement cameras; and how many are planning to use such cameras in the next two years. [253006]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Enforcement of the law on speeding and how speed cameras are used to assist with this is an operational matter for the police. They will decide what methods are most appropriate and effective in different circumstances to deter this dangerous and criminal behaviour and detect those who engage in it.

UK Border Agency

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how the efficiency of caseworkers in the UK Border Agency in terms of numbers of cases dealt with is monitored. [252120]

Mr. Woolas: As part of developing the annual business plans, performance targets and budgets are set as a joint process taking account of staff productivity. Performance and staffing are then monitored throughout the year as part of normal management reviews from team to board level.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time equivalent caseworkers there are in the UK Border Agency. [252121]

Mr. Woolas: The number of full-time equivalent caseworkers in the UK Border Agency is as follows:

> 7770 full-time equivalents engaged in core casework processes. These are defined as operational staff involved in making decisions on migration, visa, asylum or criminal case applications.
> 4600 full-time equivalents engaged in processes that support the decision making. These are staff undertaking tasks allied to the core casework process, for example: call centres, processing payments, registering applications, customer services, MP's correspondence, Freedom of Information Requests, enforcing decisions. These are teams that operate around registering and concluding aspects of dealing with applications.

These figures include posts abroad in International Group, previously known as UK Visa and then part of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individual cases are with caseworkers at the UK Border Agency. [252122]

Mr. Woolas: We do not routinely collect this information in this way for all cases across all workstreams, we have therefore been unable to produce the answer at present. I will write to my hon. Friend and place a copy in the Library of the House.

UK Border Agency: Correspondence

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects a reply to be sent to the letter of 23 October 2008 to the UK Border Agency on behalf of Rizwan Aslam (Home Office Reference Number A1264393). [249920]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency responded to the letter from my right hon. Friend on 27 January 2009.

Vetting

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average time taken by the Criminal Records Bureau to process an application for clearance is; and if she will make a statement. [252689]

Meg Hillier: I refer the hon. Member to my written answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 317-18W.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Baby P

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families who the members were of the panel for the serious case review for the child known as Baby P. [248755]

Beverley Hughes: The membership of this serious case review panel is available on Haringey council's website.

Care Proceedings

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many applications for care proceedings have been made since 1 November 2008; and how many were made in the equivalent period 12 months earlier. [252643]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The number of public law care and supervision applications under section 31 of the Children Act 1989 in November and December 2008 and November and December 2007 are given in the table. Public law cases are those brought by local authorities or an authorised person (currently only the NSPCC). Figures relate to the number of children that are subject to each application, are for England and Wales, and have been rounded to the nearest 10. Please note that 2008 figures are provisional.

Comparisons between short time periods (one or two months) as presented in the following table should be made with caution as these figures are subject to more volatility than those covering longer time periods.

Number of Public Law Care and Supervision applications under section 31 of the Children Act 1989—England and Wales, County Courts and Family Proceedings Courts

	Family proceedings courts[1]	County courts[2]	Total
November and December 2007	1,790	380	2,170
November and December 2008	2,360	390	2,750

[1] There have been data quality issues with figures for Family Proceedings Courts. A new method of collection was introduced in April 2007 which has improved the coverage and completeness of data.

[2] Research undertaken on behalf of Ministry of Justice has identified that some cases that have transferred from the Family Proceedings Court to the County Court have been incorrectly recorded as new applications in the County Court thus inflating the reported number of new applications through double counting (see Masson et al 2008).

Beverley Hughes: Information showing the number of children in care in each local authority that have had more than (a) three, (b) five, (c) 10, (d) 20 and (e) 30 foster placements in England during the year ending 31 March 2008 is shown in the following table.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many childcare settings have closed in each quarter of the last five years. [249773]

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the oral answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, columns 10-11, on child abuse, what steps his Department is taking to encourage parents and others who provide childcare to use non-physical means of modifying a child's behaviour. [253615]

Beverley Hughes: Our approach is to provide parents with positive support and guidance to help them manage their children's behaviour more effectively. This includes making parenting classes more widely available to help give parents the confidence to use other, better means of disciplining their children than physical punishment. This approach works with parents and not against them. We are pleased that parents' attitudes towards smacking have been changing over time; this was the finding of the parental survey conducted in 2007 as part of the review of section 58 of the Children Act 2004.

Physical punishment is banned in schools and in registered childcare settings, including daycare and childminding. It is also banned in children's homes and local authority foster care.

Children: Internet

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps his Department has taken to encourage internet service providers to practise greater self-regulation in the area of pro-anorexia or pro-bulimia websites; [246090]

(2) what recent steps his Department has taken to promote awareness among parents of the dangers of pro-anorexia and pro-bulimia websites; [246091]

(3) what recent meetings his Department has had with internet service providers regarding websites which are pro-anorexia or pro-bulimia. [246092]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 12 January 2009]: We take the issue of safety on the internet very seriously. That is why we asked Dr. Tanya Byron to lead an independent review on potential risks online and in video games—and we have fully accepted all her recommendations, including those on the needs for vulnerable groups. These include:

encouraging content hosts and search providers work with the relevant charities to make sure that advertisements with links to support services are displayed whenever users discuss or search for information about harmful behaviours; encouraging content hosts to work with charities to improve moderation practices around discussions about harmful behaviours; and targeted communications to raise awareness of internet content issues amongst those who work with vulnerable children and young people.

The UK Council for Child Internet Safety, a multi stakeholder forum, was launched in September 2008 to implement the Byron recommendations. Its work will lead to the publication of a Child Internet Safety Strategy later this year that will contain specific measures to make the internet a safer place.

We are also working with the Department of Health to implement the recommendations of the report of the independent review of Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services, 'Children and Young People in Mind', published on 18 November. We have set up a National Advisory Council for children's mental health and psychological wellbeing to advise us on implementing the recommendations of the independent review of CAMHS final report and hold us to account on progress. Better access to specialist services for children, young people and families is a priority area for the implementation of the CAMHS review's recommendations.

In addition, the Department of Health announced in October 2008 a £170 million expansion of psychological therapies to provide better support for people with common mental health problems such as eating disorders.

Children's Centres

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the viability of children's centres in circumstances where local authorities comply with guidance issued by his Department that such centres become financially self-sustaining by 2011. [251043]

Beverley Hughes: There is no requirement that Sure Start Children's Centres become self-sustaining by 2011. Integrated early learning and day care, which is a key part of the offer in children's centres in the most disadvantaged areas and optional elsewhere, is the only service which is intended to become self-sustaining. The Department's Phase 3 Sure Start Children's Centres planning and delivery guidance states that this is to run on business lines once it is established. Local authorities are accountable, through their sufficiency duties, to ensure there is appropriate provision to meet local needs.

Education: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average (a) primary and (b) secondary school per pupil funding is in each local authority area in 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [249932]

Jim Knight: The per pupil revenue funding figures for each local authority for 2008-09 are shown in the following table. Since 2006-07, the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) is the main source of school funding. As the DSG is distributed through a single guaranteed unit of funding per pupil and is distributed from central government to local government, a primary/secondary split on a central to local government basis is not available. The following figures are for all funded pupils aged three-19 and are provided in cash terms:

English Language: Pre-School Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children. Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the standard of English spoken by staff in childcare settings. [251335]

Beverley Hughes: No recent assessment has been made. The framework for the early years foundation Stage (EYFS) introduced in September 2008 requires staff to have the right language skills to support children from birth to five to develop communication skills in English and to help ensure that their welfare needs are protected. The requirements for providers working with older children set proportions for the number of staff required to hold level 2 and 3 qualifications in an area of work relevant to child care (and the common core skills for the voluntary part of the Childcare Register). As part of the requirements candidates need to demonstrate competence in English. Ofsted inspects providers against these requirements. The requirements on settings are designed to help ensure effective standards of communication in settings and to enable parents to choose providers who also speak their home language.

GCE A-level: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of free school meals pupils were entered for A-levels in 2008. [251311]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The available information on pupils entered for GCE/VCE A/AS-level identified by eligibility for free school meals is contained within table 13 in the "Attainment by Pupil Characteristics, in England 2007/08" SFR published in November 2008.

This shows that the number of pupils aged 16-18 in maintained schools who were entered for GCE/VCE A/AS-levels in 2008 was 147,394. Of these, 5,049 pupils were eligible for free school meals, a proportion of 3.4 per cent. A further 0.6 per cent. were unclassified.

These figures do not cover pupils in sixth form colleges.

GCSE: Disadvantaged

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families at how many maintained, mainstream schools (a) 75 per cent. or more and (b) 90 per cent. or more of pupils eligible to receive free school meals did not attain any GCSE grades higher than a D in the latest year for which figures are available. [243851]

Jim Knight: In 35 maintained mainstream schools 75 per cent. or more of the pupils eligible to receive free school meals did not attain any GCSE and equivalents grades higher than a D in 2006/07.

In three schools 90 per cent. or more of the pupils eligible to receive free school meals did not attain any GCSE and equivalents grades higher than a D in 2006/07.

Of the 76,568 pupils eligible for FSM attending maintained secondary schools who took any GCSE and equivalents in 2006/07, 30,881 (40.3 per cent.) achieved the equivalent of at least one pass at grade D.

These figures relate to GCSE and equivalent and based on pupils at the end of KS4 in all maintained schools.

Only schools with 10 or more pupils are included in the answer.

Information and Communications Technology

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made towards the targets for e-inclusion set by the Riga Ministerial Declaration in June 2006. [248740]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have been asked to reply.

The Riga Declaration set the target that, to convincingly address e-Inclusion, the differences in Internet usage between current average use by the EU population and use by older people, people with disabilities, women, lower education groups, unemployed and "less-developed" regions should be reduced to a half from 2005 to 2010.

The European Commission is monitoring progress against the targets for all EU member states, publishing the first baseline analysis based on 2006 data 'Measuring progress in e-Inclusion—Riga Dashboard' in 2007 which can be found on the internet at http://ec.europa.eu/information_society/activities/einclusion/docs/i2010_initiative/rigadashboard.doc

Member states are due to make their first progress report to the European Commissions High Level adhoc e-Inclusion Group by summer 2009.

The following table from recently published independent UK research as a proxy suggests progress in the UK on inclusion as follows:

Proxy data based in Oxford Internet Institute surveys

		Percentage

Languages: Teachers

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teachers with a language specialism in Mandarin Chinese qualified in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [249231]

Jim Knight: Data relating to the language specialisms of Initial Teacher Training (ITT) trainees are not collected centrally.

In 2006/07 there were three postgraduate ITT trainees who had an undergraduate degree in Chinese Studies.

There are currently no ITT courses which specialise in Mandarin only.

Nurseries: Vacancies

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many full-time vacancies there were in local authority maintained nurseries in each year since 1997; and what the rate of such full-time vacancies was in each of those years. [253623]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers survey collects information on the number of childcare places in maintained nursery schools in England. The following data in table 1 are from the 2007 and 2006 Childcare and Early Years Providers surveys. The information is not available for years preceding 2006. Table 1 shows the number and proportion of vacancies of childcare places in nursery schools in 2007 and 2006.

Table 1: Number and proportion of vacancies in nursery schools

	Nursery schools

Offences Against Children: Databases

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many notifications to List 99 there were in each of the last five years. [250607]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The number of notifications to List 99 in each of the last five years is as follows:

	Notifications
2004	1,362
2005	2,092
2006	2,784
2007	4,265

When employers in the education sector have ceased to use the services of a person because they consider that person is unsuitable to work with children, or they would have ceased to use the person's services where the person has left their employment, they are required to refer information to the Department. The police also refer to the Department cautions and convictions for those who have been working in educational establishments in accordance with Home Office Circular 6/2006 (The Notifiable Occupations Scheme).

In addition, regulations which came into force on 28 February 2007 extended the range of offences which result in automatic inclusion on List 99. These amended regulations include cautions as well as convictions for sexual offences against children and other very serious offences against adults, regardless of whether the individuals concerned have ever been in employment in the education and children's work force. The Department is notified of relevant offences by the police. The vast majority of the increase in the total number of notifications is as a result of the implementation of these regulations.

Pupil Exclusions: Primary Education

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children between the ages of four and 11 years were (a) suspended and (b) suspended more than once from school in (i) West Chelmsford constituency, (ii) Essex and (iii) England in each of the last five years. [249980]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 22 January 2009]: Information on fixed period exclusions was collected for the first time in the school year 2003/04. However these data are not sufficiently reliable to provide the requested information.

In 2005-06 the method of data collection changed and information was collected from secondary schools only. We have consequently provided information for the school years 2004/05 and 2006/07, the only years for which comparable figures are available.

Special Educational Needs

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many maintained special schools there were in each local authority in each year since 1997. [250184]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested has been placed in the Libraries.

Special Educational Needs: Pupil Exclusions

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils with special educational needs were given a fixed-period exclusion from a pupil referral unit in the last year for which figures are available. [251082]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information on exclusions from pupil referral units is no longer collected.

Special Educational Needs: Tribunals

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Justice on the provision of information to parents about changes to the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal system. [253981]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Officials at the Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Tribunals Service at the Ministry of Justice have had discussions throughout the process of the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal (SENDIST) becoming part of the Health, Education and Social Care Chamber of the First-tier Tribunal. On 8 December 2008 the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families held a meeting with the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) and a parents' group at which an official from the Tribunals Service/Ministry of Justice was present. The Department, through the Children, Young People and Families Grant programme, is funding the Independent Panel for Special Education Advice over 2009-10 and 2010-11 to expand the availability of its advice to parents, including advice on the new tribunal system.

Young People: Unemployment

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans his Department has to prevent 17 to 19-year-olds becoming unemployed during the current economic downturn. [252901]

Jim Knight: The current economic situation means that it is imperative to ensure young people gain the skills and qualifications they need to succeed in employment.

Local Connexions services have a key role in supporting all young people aged 13-19. They rigorously track young people's activities so that they can provide targeted support to those young people who are in danger of becoming unemployed and those not currently in education, employment or training. They also provide tailored information, advice and guidance, supporting these young people to reengage in learning or work as early as possible.

In 2008, we extended the September Guarantee to 17-year-olds for the first time. The guarantee aims to provide all 17-year-olds with a suitable offer of a place in learning by the end of September. Almost 80 per cent. of those young people who had been engaged on a short course, or who were NEET, received an offer under the guarantee last year. The guarantee will help to ensure that all young people aged 17 have a suitable learning place by the end of September and prevent them from becoming unemployed.

Funding for apprenticeships across all ages is planned to increase by almost a quarter between 2007-08 and 2010-11, to over £1.1 billion. In addition we have recently announced our intention to invest an extra £140 million to deliver an additional 35,000 apprentices in both the public and private sectors in order to strengthen the country's competitiveness and match young people's demand. We have also introduced a number of flexibilities to help apprentices who face redundancy. As part of this work apprentices who are made redundant within the final six months of their apprenticeship will now be able to finish their training and gain a qualification.

We have been working closely with colleagues in the Department for Work and Pensions to increase the level of support available to 18-year-olds who are unemployed. From April 2009, 18-year-old jobseekers who have spent a 26 week period NEET will receive mandatory early entry to intensive jobsearch support to enable them to enter sustainable employment faster. This system has been in place on a voluntary basis since April 2008.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agricultural Waste Licences

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the charging of fees for agricultural waste licences; and what the evidential basis for that policy is. [251281]

Jane Kennedy: In England and Wales, the recovery or disposal of agricultural waste does not generally require an environmental permit but benefits from one of a number of exemptions. Farmers have to register the exemptions with the Environment Agency. At present there is no charge for this.

DEFRA is currently undertaking a review of all permit exemptions, including those that apply to agricultural waste, and in the consultation document on that review it is proposed to introduce a charge for the registration of exemptions of £50 every three years. The Department is currently considering the responses to the consultation, on this point and others, and no decisions have yet been reached.

Where permits are required, they are subject to application fees and annual charges set out within a scheme that is consulted upon annually by the Environment Agency and approved by the Secretary of State. Fees and charges seek to recover the costs of regulation in accordance with the polluter pays principle and Treasury rules.

Animal Welfare

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to establish an arm's length body responsible for animal health; and if he will make a statement. [250840]

Jane Kennedy: The establishment of a new independent arm's length body responsible for animal health is being considered as part of the wider responsibility and cost sharing agenda for animal health. We plan to consult on specific proposals for implementing responsibility and cost sharing for animal health shortly.

Animal Welfare: Codes of Practice

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the responses to the consultation on codes of practice for the welfare of (a) dogs and (b) cats; and when he expects to publish his conclusions on the consultation. [251075]

Jane Kennedy: The responses to the consultation on the codes of practice for the welfare of cats and dogs have enabled my Department to make a number of changes to the codes which I consider will make them more useful to owners and keepers.

All of the responses together with accompanying analyses will be made available to the public shortly.

Bees

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effect of circadian disruption on bee populations in England. [252772]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 29 January 2009]: DEFRA has not made any assessment of the effects of circadian disruption on bee populations in England.

Birds: Nature Conservation

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department plans to take during the 2009 breeding season to monitor the effects on wild birds of the recent changes to Schedule 4 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981. [252763]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Joint Nature Conservation Committee (JNCC) and the Statutory Nature Conservation Agencies support a range of bird surveillance and monitoring schemes in the United Kingdom, usually in partnership with specialist non-government organisations. Surveillance schemes may include annual or periodic assessment of population size and distribution, and allow trends in both to be derived. Schemes are tailored to provide comprehensive coverage of common and rare species in both breeding and non-breeding seasons.

In addition to the monitoring of wild birds, Animal Health's Wildlife and Registration Service, which is the regulatory authority for bird registration, has a compliance monitoring plan in place to reduce the potential for criminality relating to the bird registration scheme. The Animal Health team work closely with the National Wildlife Unit and other UK Law Enforcement Agencies and have a jointly agreed set of national priorities which they work to. Any future change in priorities with regard to bird of prey issues, including taking from the wild and persecution, would be considered and work aligned to this. This will enable more consistency and coordination between Animal Health and enforcement agencies.

Bluetongue Disease: Vaccination

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of vaccinations against bluetongue disease among (a) sheep and (b) cattle. [250723]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 January 2009]: Responsibility for licensing veterinary medicines in the UK, including Bluetongue vaccine, rests with the Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD). In licensing a product, the VMD assesses data on safety, quality and efficacy on all species for which the vaccine is intended (in this case cattle and sheep), and establishes whether the advantages and efficacy of the product outweigh any risks in deciding whether to issue a Marketing Authorisation. Once a product has been marketed the VMD monitors its safety and efficacy through reports of suspected adverse reactions, and through on-going data requirements from the authorisation holder.

Sales data from the supply chain suggest enough vaccine was sold in 2008 in the South and East of England, where Bluetongue serotype 8 was circulating in 2007, to vaccinate over 90 per cent. of the susceptible animal population. Experts at the Institute for Animal Health advise that this level of vaccination in previously affected counties was effective in controlling BTV-8 and its possible spread to the rest, of the country. No circulating disease was detected in 2008.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the effects of bovine tuberculosis on (a) monetary value and (b) tonnage of meat exports from England in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [251237]

Jane Kennedy: The Government have made no estimate of the effects of Bovine TB (bTB) on monetary value or meat exports from England.

The risk of contracting bTB from eating meat is very small. M. bovis, the bacterium that causes bTB, is killed by cooking meat properly. Additionally, the Meat Hygiene Service inspects carcasses and their associated offal at slaughter; those with signs of generalised infection are fully condemned and declared unfit for human consumption.

Carbon Emissions

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to which international agreements to monitor and reduce carbon dioxide emissions from underground fires and forest fires the UK is party. [250368]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

Anthropogenic emissions are covered under the current provisions of the United Nations framework convention on climate change (UNFCCC) and the Kyoto protocol. Emissions from forest fires on managed land are estimated in accordance with intergovernmental panel on climate change (IPCC) guidelines and the IPCC good practice guidelines. No agreed international methodologies exist for peat fires and underground coal seams and as a consequence, any emissions from these sources may not be reported by countries.

Civil Proceedings

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1594W, on civil proceedings, how many of the proceedings naming his Department as a defending party which are currently (a) under appeal and (b) ongoing or unresolved relate to the review of a Ministerial decision; and what the (i) title of claim, (ii) grounds for claim and (iii) value of claim is in each such case. [242364]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The number of such cases under appeal and ongoing or unresolved that relate to the political review of a ministerial decision is 25. These are:

[240900]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The monetary value of each settlement made in 2008 as a result of legal proceedings naming the Department/Secretary of State as a defending party where no legal proceedings are ongoing, and the title of each such case, is as follows:

Brian John Lodey v. Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, £63,000.

For each of the five years before 2008, the resources needed to obtain the information would be disproportionate and over the £750 threshold.

Departmental Marketing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been spent by his Department on advertising in the last 12 months. [243897]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The following figures show how much DEFRA has spent through COI on campaign advertising in the last 12 months.

ACT ON CO_2 advertising

From January 2008 - March 2008 the ACT ON CO_2 spend was approximately £685,000 (press and online advertising).

From April 2008 to December 2008 the ACT ON CO_2 spend was approximately £6,700,000 (TV, press, radio and digital advertising).

Other DEFRA advertising

Spend on non-ACT ON CO_2 advertising over the last 12 months comes to £137,100:

Cattle disposal: £9,000

Recruitment advertising: £381,019.29

Statutory advertising: £70,851.76.

All figures include fees and are exclusive of VAT.

As a number of DEFRA's recruitment adverts are placed through the Cabinet Office framework as part of a whole advertising campaign (campaigns can include the preparation of application packs, advertisements, sifting and assessments) it is not possible to split out the advertising element at a proportionate cost.

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost to his Department of validation of invoices was by (a) (i) Mr. De Kock and (ii) Davis Langdon Everest before the Invoicing Panel was established and (b) the Invoicing Panel. [252102]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Huw Irranca-Davies: Estimated total expenditure for financial years 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 for public surveys (qualitative and quantitative research) commissioned by the Communications Directorate in DEFRA is as follows:

[252225]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Department has used the following external organisations to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years:

7 City

London School of Economics
Management Development Partnership
Mayfair Tutors
MDG Languages

Jane Kennedy: The number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts under the Animal Welfare Act for the offence "Removing or causing or permitting or failing to prevent removal of dog's tail other than for medical treatment" in England and Wales in 2007 are as follows:

	2007
	Proceeded against	Found guilty
Total	3	3

Source:
Office for Criminal Justice reform - Evidence and Analysis Unit

These data are provided on the principal offence basis.

Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Dogs: Electric Shock Equipment

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent progress has been made on the research commissioned by his Department into the use of electronic pet training aids for dogs; when he expects the research to be completed; and if he will make a statement. [251076]

Jane Kennedy: The research into electronic training aids funded by DEFRA is progressing well and in accordance with the agreed milestones. There are no results available for dissemination at this time as the research is still under way. The project is due to be completed in 2010.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will consider the merits of the effects of imposing restrictions on the advertising of electric shock training devices. [251077]

Jane Kennedy: The Government have no plans at present to restrict or ban the advertising, sale or use of electronic training aids for animals. We are waiting for the results of DEFRA-funded research before making any decision as to whether to restrict or ban the use of such devices.

Floods

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, columns 29-30W, on floods, whether the Environment Agency's new flood vulnerability database is accessible to the public. [252492]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency's Receptors Vulnerable to Flooding database is not accessible to the public. The database contains information which is sensitive and as such is classified as 'Restricted' under the Government's protective marking scheme. Some of the information is also owned by third parties.

Food Supply

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many times officials from his Department have met representatives from the National Farmers Union to discuss food security in the last 24 months. [251946]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 27 January 2009]: Officials meet representatives from the National Farmers' Union frequently, both individually and in the context of discussions with other stakeholders, and at national and local levels. These discussions sometimes focus specifically on food security, such as the workshops held in September and November 2008, based on the discussion paper "Ensuring the UK's Food Security in a Changing World", published in July last year. However, the issue of food security is also addressed in the context of broader discussions about the Department's strategic objectives, such as achieving a sustainable, secure and healthy food supply and a thriving farming and food sector. It is therefore not possible to provide a specific number of occasions when the topic has been discussed.

Forestry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund provides support for schemes which protect forests or peat lands from deforestation or destruction. [252632]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF) will take delivery of carbon credits sourced from a variety of projects accredited under the UN supervised Clean Development Mechanism. However, none of the projects drawn upon by the current GCOF scheme relate to the conservation of forests or peat lands.

Forestry: Accidents

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many accidents involving members of the public foraging for wood from forests under the regulation of the Forestry Commission have been recorded in the last 36 months. [252639]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Forestry Commission in England records and investigates all serious accidents on the public forest estate that are reported to them by members of the public. There have been a number of accidents as a result of slips and trips and these are given in the following table. None of these are recorded as having been in connection with the collection of firewood.

Slip/trip accidents

Genetically Modified Organisms: Animal Feed

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 17 December 2008, Official Report, column 804W, on genetically-modified organisms, what information he has received concerning animal deaths in connection with the consumption of the foliage of genetically-modified Bt cotton plants (a) in the UK and (b) elsewhere; and if he will make a statement. [250197]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA officials have read a number of published articles about the claim that animal deaths in India have arisen from the consumption of GM cotton plants, as part of its general monitoring of GM crop-related issues.

Horses

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 886W, on horse passports, what his latest estimate is of the number of equidae in England; and what assessment he has made of the efficacy of horse passports against the objectives set for the scheme. [250187]

Jane Kennedy: There is no figure available for the number of equidae in England. However, estimates of the horse population in Great Britain range from 1.0 to 1.35 million. Horse passports are an EU requirement introduced to prevent contaminated meat from entering the human food chain. Passports are also intended to reduce fraud and aid disease control and surveillance. The Meat Hygiene Service play an important role in ensuring that the horse is correctly identified and its passport is in order before horses are accepted for slaughter for human consumption. Samples are taken from a small number of horses entering the food chain as part of the UK statutory surveillance programme checking the appropriate use of veterinary medicinal products. In cases of non-compliance the Veterinary Medicines Directorate, which operates this programme, requires an investigation to be carried out which involves checking the details on the passport of the animal.

Incinerators: Hazardous Substances

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 1052W, on incinerators: hazardous substances, which regional offices of the Environment Agency hold reports on the composition of the bottom ash of incinerators; and to which operating incinerators such reports relate. [250766]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 28 January 2009]: The following table shows the Environment Agency offices that hold public registers for the municipal solid waste incinerators, including the two main hazardous waste incinerators, operating in England and Wales.

Anglian Northern Area Office, Lincoln Office, Waterside House, Waterside North, Lincoln LN2 5HA	Grimsby (Newlincs)

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many times the permitted level of harmful substances in incinerator bottom ash has been exceeded in the last five years. [250767]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 28 January 2009]: Information in the form requested is not readily available and could be compiled only at disproportionate cost. Monitoring data relating to installations permitted under the Environmental Permitting Regulations (England and Wales) 2007 (formerly the Integrated Pollution Prevention and Control Regulations) may be obtained via the public register section of the Environment Agency's website.

Livestock: Registration

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to require livestock keepers to enter into a compulsory registration scheme; and if he will make a statement. [250839]

Jane Kennedy: A compulsory annual fee based registration scheme of livestock keepers is being considered as part of the wider responsibility and cost sharing agenda for animal health. The purpose of the scheme would be to raise contributions from industry towards the control and eradications of exotic diseases. We plan to consult on specific proposals for implementing responsibility and cost sharing for animal health shortly.

Marine and Coastal Access Bill

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received from the Northern Ireland Executive in relation to the Marine and Coastal Access Bill; what discussions he has had with the Minister for the Department of the Environment in relation to the Bill; and if he will make a statement. [252443]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Northern Ireland Ministers have worked with other UK Ministers throughout the development of the proposals in the Marine and Coastal Access Bill, most recently through the Joint Ministerial Committee (JMC) which held its plenary meeting in June 2008 when the draft Bill was discussed.

Northern Ireland is fully committed to the policy aims underpinning the draft UK Bill in order to introduce a new framework for the marine environment based on sustainable development principles, which will work towards delivering clean, healthy, safe, productive and biologically diverse oceans and seas. Ministers have also taken part in discussions on the Legislative Consent Motion needed from the Northern Ireland Assembly on certain measures in the Bill.

The JMC announced on 27 November 2008 that the UK Government and devolved Administrations, including Northern Ireland, had reached agreement on a UK-wide approach to marine planning. This provides a coherent legislative framework with greater clarity and certainty for all those seeking to enjoy, or make a living from, the UK's waters.

In addition, the UK Government and Northern Ireland Executive work together as part of the British-Irish Council Environment Group which discussed marine issues at its last meeting in February 2008. Officials from the UK Government and the devolved Administrations continue to work together on the UK Bill and the expected Northern Ireland Assembly Bill.

Marine Management Organisation: Location

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what the reasons are for the time taken to announce the location of the Maritime Management Organisation Headquarters; and if he will make a statement; [253737]

(2) when he expects to make an announcement on the location of the Marine Management organisation headquarters; and if he will make a statement. [253738]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The location decision is an important one which will be announced when all of the information and evidence has been considered carefully, in order to ensure that it is the right decision and the best home for the MMO. A statement will be made to the House of Commons announcing the decision.

Milk: Prices

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many times officials from his Department have met representatives from the UK dairy industry to discuss (a) milk pricing and (b) milk production in the last 24 months. [251947]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 27 January 2009]: DEFRA officials meet representatives from the UK dairy industry on a regular basis to discuss a wide range of issues relating to the sector. However, discussions do not cover milk pricing. The setting of milk prices is a commercial matter to be resolved by private negotiation which must take place within the parameters set by competition law.

Nitrates: EU Law

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to assist farmers to meet the requirements of the EU Nitrates Directive; and what recent representations he has received on the effects of implementation of the Directive on farming. [250904]

Jane Kennedy: We received over 600 responses to the consultation on proposals to revise the Nitrates Regulations. Since the consultation closed in December, representations have continued to be received from the farming sector. The proposals were also the subject of an inquiry by the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee.

I recognise that some farmers in nitrate vulnerable zones will face costs when implementing the new rules established by the Nitrate Pollution Prevention Regulations 2008. By way of mitigation, we are applying to the European Commission for a derogation from one of the most costly new rules, the livestock manure N farm limit. If this application is successful, costs to eligible dairy farmers would be significantly reduced.

In addition, a package of advice and support, including a technical helpline, comprehensive guidance material, information events and practical workshops, is currently being rolled out nationally.

There are a number of existing potential sources of financial support available to farmers which could be used to help with implementation of the Action Programme measures. For example, funding through the Rural Development Programme for England—which is being administered by the Regional Development Agencies—could be used to support on-farm capital investments for modernising farm holdings, structures and equipment in a manner that will improve the management of manure and nutrients including, for example, the development of anaerobic digestion facilities.

Furthermore, slurry storage facilities are eligible for plant and machinery allowances such as the new annual investment allowance, capped at £50,000 per year. Slurry pits also qualify for allowances in their own right under the Capital Allowances Act 2001.

For farmers who have land in a priority catchment, the England Catchment Sensitive Farming Delivery Initiative is operating a capital grant scheme under which part-funding may be available for items such as roofs for slurry stores and for improving yard drainage (clean and foul water separation).

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250147]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W.

Pets: Primates

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 17 December 2008, Official Report, column 808W, on primates, who he has appointed to (a) advise on and (b) draft the code of practice on the private keeping of primates; and which bodies he has consulted. [250837]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has assembled a working group to draft the code of practice on the private keeping of non-human primates. The working group is representative of and will consult with others who are either private keepers or have other relevant expertise.

The RSPCA, zoo veterinarians, veterinarian bodies, a leading primate rescue centre and a number of independent experts are involved in taking this work forward.

Recycling: Batteries

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to promote community battery recycling schemes. [251035]

Jane Kennedy: The Waste and Resources Action programme (WRAP) has worked in partnership with a range of local authorities and not-for-profit organisations to pilot portable waste battery collection trials in the UK. Trials include establishing 'drop off' points in shops and in public buildings such as libraries and sports centres, as well as other methods of collection such as at the kerbside.

WRAP'S report on the results from the trials is available at:

http://www.wrap.org.uk/downloads/Batteries report_final.84146d7e.6153.pdf

We are currently consulting on regulations to implement the EU Batteries Directive.

The directive requires greatly increased collection, treatment and recycling of batteries over the next few years. The UK regulations will require all shops that sell a significant quantity of batteries to collect batteries returned by members of the public. In addition batteries producers will need to set up other collections to meet their targets under the directive. In doing so we expect that producers will draw on the information in the WRAP report on the effectiveness of community recycling schemes and other ways of collecting waste batteries.

Rivers: Dredging

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what dredging has taken place of the River Avon between Tewkesbury and Eckington in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [253561]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency has not carried out dredging on the River Avon between Tewkesbury and Eckington in the last five years. The Environment Agency routinely considers dredging and vegetation management in watercourses to reduce flood risk. The Environment Agency prioritises this according to risk and carries out such work where it is technically sound, economically viable, environmentally acceptable and sustainable.

On a larger river like the River Avon, the erosion, transportation and deposition of material within the river channel is a natural process. Dredging the river has historically been carried out in localised areas by the Lower Avon Navigation Trust to allow boats to travel safely along the river.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what dredging of the River Severn between Gloucester and Tewkesbury has taken place over the last five years; what the Environment Agency's policy is on the dredging of rivers; and if he will make a statement. [253558]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency has not carried out dredging on the River Severn between Gloucester and Tewkesbury in the last five years. The Environment Agency routinely considers dredging and vegetation management in watercourses to reduce flood risk. The Environment Agency prioritises this according to risk and carries out such work where it is technically sound, economically viable, environmentally acceptable and sustainable.

On a larger river like the River Severn, the erosion, transportation and deposition of material within the river channel is a natural process. Dredging the river has historically been carried out in localised areas by British Waterways to allow boats to travel safely along the river.

Rivers: Licensing

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been collected in licence fees from users of (a) the River Avon and (b) the River Severn in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [253560]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We do not have this information for the River Avon which is managed by an independent statutory navigation authority. British Waterways is the navigation authority for the River Severn from Gloucester to Stourport (there is no navigation authority upstream of Stourport and ownership is shared between local authorities and private landowners).

The licence fees for that part of the river Severn under British Waterways' jurisdiction are set out as follows:

	Value of licences sold (£)	Number of licences	Number of boats
2004-05	101,106	494	493
2005-06	103,583	523	506
2006-07	103,691	488	467
2007-08	112,961p	515	487

Rivers: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which Government department and Minister has overall responsibility for ensuring that the (a) River Severn and (b) River Avon remain navigable; and if he will make a statement. [253559]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA sponsors British Waterways which is the navigation authority responsible for ensuring that the stretch of the River Severn between Gloucester and Stourport remains navigable. There is no navigation authority north of Stourport.

The Lower Avon Navigation Trust together with the Upper Avon Navigation Trust are responsible for the management of the River Avon. Both are independent statutory navigation authorities.

Rural Areas: Planning

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which measures outlined in Articles 20 to 65, Title IV of Council Regulation (EC) No. 1698/2005 on support for rural developments by the European Agricultural Fund for Rural Development have been adopted as measures within the Rural Development Programme for England 2007 to 2013; for what reasons those measures not included in the Programme were omitted; and if he will make a statement. [253685]

Huw Irranca-Davies: All of the measures outlined in Articles 20 to 65, Title IV of the Council Regulation (EC) No. 1698/2005 on support for rural developments by the European Agricultural Fund for Rural Development which are applicable in the UK have been adopted as measures within the Rural Development Programme for England 2007 to 2013, with the exception of those listed in the following table. This table provides an explanation for why they have not been adopted. These omissions were agreed following full public consultation and discussion with affected parties.

Measure	Explanation
Article 20 (a) (ii) setting up young farmers actions	In 2004, ADAS reported to DEFRA on entry to and exit from farming. In 2000, 5.2 per cent. of 'agricultural' holders were under 35 years old compared to 7.4 per cent. in 1990. Between 1999 and 2004, the entry rate was 2 per cent. of farming population and the exit rate 18 per cent., mainly because of a decline in the total number of farmers and farm businesses. The report identified no evidence of major barriers to entry that justified policy intervention and no evidence of significant market failure in the processes of entry to and exit from farming. The research found that entry and exit decisions are rational and driven by strong market forces and personal motivations and that financial inducement to affect the rate of entry or exit would be expensive and ineffectual. Any use of financial incentives to facilitate entry to and exit from farming risks "deadweight" i.e. that many would enter farming in any case—the majority of those entering farming do so through the family farm. The most common reason given for the low rate of entry to farming was the expectation of relatively low incomes. This cannot be addressed through a start up grant as envisaged in the Rural Development Regulation but rather by developing a competitive, viable and sustainable farming sector. DEFRA is supporting the industry-led initiative 'Fresh Start' which encourages new entrants into farming whilst at the same time stimulating existing farmers to think how they will respond to CAP reform, such as expanding their business, diversifying or even retiring. Such choices create opportunities for new entrants.
Article 20 (a) (iii) early retirement of farmers and farm workers	As above.
Article 20 (b) (vi) restoring agricultural production potential damaged by natural disasters and introducing appropriate prevention	In England, the principal risk to agricultural production potential from natural disasters is through flooding. Determining the exact nature of support required in the event of large-scale flooding is impracticable now. We would prefer to apply for an 'emergency' modification to the Programme to activate this measure if and when a catastrophe occurs and if it is considered that Programme funds are the best way of providing support to those affected. This will enable support offered to be closely matched to the needs arising from that particular disaster.
Article 20 (c) (i) helping farmers to adapt to demanding standards based on Community legislation	This measure would not add value in the England context, because farmers are expected to observe community standards as a condition of receiving direct payments under Pillar 1 of the Common Agricultural Policy i.e. the Single Payment Scheme.
Article 20 (c) (ii) supporting farmers who participate in food quality schemes	Farmers who participate in food quality schemes generally do so either with a view to obtaining a price premium (in which case their participation is rewarded through the market) or because they need to do so in order to sell to a specific market (which is often the case with baseline assurance schemes). This is demonstrated by the fact that in England and the UK there is already a high level of membership of assurance schemes. Given this there would be relatively little public benefit (additionality) in adopting this measure in England.
Article 20 (c) (iii) supporting producer groups for information and promotion activities for products under food quality schemes	As above.
Article 36 (a) (i) natural handicap payments to farmers in mountain areas	There are no areas in England that qualify for this measure.
Article 36 (a) (iii) Natura 2000 payments and payments linked to Directive 2000/60/EC (the Water Framework Directive)	It is not proposed to provide compensation to farmers for costs incurred and income foregone resulting from restrictions on the use of land under Natura 2000 or under Directive 2000/60/EC. Such compensation fails to deliver added value because such restrictions arise from a clearly defined legal obligation. Instead, the need to comply with these restrictions is built into the cross-compliance conditions that apply to all receiving Single Payment Scheme payments and/or Rural Development Programme funding. It is proposed to use the agri-environment measure, delivered through Environmental Stewardship, to help farmers in England meet the cost of any positive management needed to restore Natura 2000 sites to, or maintain them in, favourable condition. This course of action is justified for the following reasons: The requirement in the Habitats Directive to maintain the Natura 2000 network in favourable conservation status is delivered in England by including Natura 2000 sites in the network of Sites of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI). The domestic legislation governing SSSIs (the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 as substituted by Schedule 9 of Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000) requires their managers to abide by standards and procedures aimed at avoiding damage and ensuring prior notification of major changes in land management. However, the same legislation requires a voluntary approach to be taken to ensuring the positive management of these sites wherever possible. The voluntary approach has been taken because of the difficulty of imposing complex positive management, which arises because the co-operation of the land manager is extremely important to the success of such management. Reserve powers to require specific positive management are available, but are very seldom used. In the over whelming majority of cases, land managers agree to undertake the necessary positive management on a voluntary basis. Under the SSSI system, land managers are provided with information on the positive management needed to ensure that their sites are restored to or maintained in favourable condition. The nature and intensity of this management varies considerably between and even within individual sites. For this reason a flat rate payment per hectare is not appropriate.

Measure	Explanation
	Evidence that no compensation is offered to land managers for the designation of their land as part of the Natura 2000 network comes from the structure of Environmental Stewardship, the delivery mechanism for the agri-environment measure in England. While Natura 2000 sites may well be among the areas targeted by the scheme, it makes no distinction in terms of the options and payment rates between land that is designated as Natura 2000 and land that is not. It is also worth noting that under this UK legislation SSSIs that are part of the Natura 2000 network are treated in exactly the same way as those that are not. Land within a Natura 2000 site is not therefore subject to any additional land management restrictions compared to non-Natura 2000 land that is designated as SSSI. There are additional safeguards in relation to development proposals, but these are outside the scope of Article 38 of the Council Regulation. Therefore, through a combination of legislative requirements and payments for positive management using the agri-environment Measure, all the requirements for Natura 2000 sites are met without the need for compensation payments.
Article 36 (a) (v) animal welfare payments	Animal welfare in England is regularly monitored and often exceeds standards. For example, State Veterinary Service inspections carried out in 2005 demonstrated that for randomly inspected farms (programmed and elective visits) nearly 80 per cent. comply with both legislation and voluntary codes of practice. As the European Commission noted in 2002, "research has shown that both farm animal welfare and product quality improves when the people who care for, transport and handle the animals are well-trained, have a positive attitude towards their jobs and the animals, treat the animals with care, and are attentive to their needs. It is therefore important to educate and inform these professionals". It is felt that this strikes the right note and properly records the importance of extending good animal health and welfare beyond the farm gate. Ongoing payments for animal welfare (normally for between five and seven years under the Regulation) would not be the most effective way of delivering animal health and welfare outcomes in England, and in particular would represent a significant diversion of funds away from other priorities. However, it will be possible to obtain support for knowledge transfer based training and skills in relation to animal health and welfare under other parts of the programme.
Article 36 (b) (ii) First establishment of agro-forestry systems on agricultural land	The Government recognise the value of agro-forestry systems, especially in traditional parkland. Small scale planting and maintenance of trees within parkland will be included as eligible activities under agri-environment payments. At present we do not perceive a need to support the creation of new parkland on a large scale, but it is possible that during the course of the programming period we will wish to revisit our decision not to use this particular measure. However, given the limited funds likely to be available for Axis 2 forestry measures in England, for the moment we wish to concentrate such support on the targeted creation of new woodland and the improved maintenance of existing woodland.
Article 36 (b) (iv) Natura 2000 payments	It is not proposed to provide compensation to farmers or foresters for costs incurred and income foregone resulting from restrictions on the use of land under Natura 2000. Such compensation fails to deliver added value because such restrictions arise from a clearly defined legal obligation. It is proposed to use the Forest Environment Measure delivered through the English Woodland Grant Scheme (EWGS), to help forest holders in England meet the cost of any positive management needed to restore Natura 2000 sites to, or maintain them in, favourable condition. This course of action is justified for the following reasons: The requirements in the Habitats Directive to maintain the Natura 2000 network in favourable conservation status is delivered in England by including Natura 2000 sites in the network of Sites of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI). The domestic legislation governing SSSIs (the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 as substituted by Schedule 9 of Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000) requires their managers to abide by standards and procedures aimed at avoiding damage and ensuring prior notification of major changes in land management. However, the same legislation requires a voluntary approach to be taken to ensuring the positive management of these sites wherever possible. The voluntary approach has been taken because of the difficulty of imposing complex positive management, which arises because the co-operation of the land manager is extremely important to the success of such management. Reserve powers to require specific positive management are available, but are very seldom used. In the overwhelming majority of cases, land managers agree to undertake the necessary positive management on a voluntary basis, so compensation is not appropriate. It is also worth noting that under this UK legislation SSSIs that are part of the Natura 2000 network are treated in exactly the same way as those that are not. Land within a Natura 2000 site is not therefore subject to any additional land management restrictions compared to non-Natura 2000 land that is designated as SSSI. There are additional safeguards in relation to development proposals, but these are outside the scope of Article 38 of the Council Regulation. Under the SSSI system, woodland managers are provided with information on the positive management needed to ensure that their sites are restored to or maintained in favourable condition. The nature and intensity of this management varies considerably between and even within individual sites. For this reason a flat rate payment per hectare is not appropriate. Evidence that no compensation is offered to land managers for the designation of their land as part of the Natura 2000 network comes from the structure of the England Woodland Grant Scheme (EWGS), the delivery mechanism for the forest-environment measure in England. While Natura 2000 sites may well be among the areas targeted by the scheme, it does not prevent payments for woodland that is not designated.
Article 36 (b) (vi) restoring forestry potential and introducing prevention actions	This measure is primarily intended to provide support for forests and wooded areas damaged by fire. Under the European Forest Fire Information System (EFFIS), all areas of England are classed as low or very low fire risk, in all seasons. In addition, the largest woodlands in England that are at greatest risk are publicly owned. However, the measure does refer to other natural disasters and while we do not immediately feel a need to implement this measure we recognise that we may need to do so if a natural disaster occurs. The most likely examples are catastrophic storm damage, devastating drought or the threat of a disease or pest epidemic. Determining the exact nature of support required in such circumstances is impracticable now. It is preferable that an application for an 'emergency' modification to the Programme to activate this measure will be made if and when a catastrophe occurs. This will enable support offered to be closely matched to the needs arising from that particular disaster.

Rural Enterprise Scheme

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much Government funding was allocated to the Rural Enterprise Scheme in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [252710]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Rural Enterprise scheme (RES) formed part of the now closed England Rural Development programme 2000-06 (ERDP). RES closed for new applications on 30 June 2006. Funding spent on RES projects in financial years 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 was as follows:

	£ million
2005-06	30.8
2006-07	29.5
2007-08	7.8

The ERDP was succeeded by the Rural Development programme for England 2007-13 (RDPE). A number of the RDPE socio-economic measures are similar to the activity funded under the Rural Enterprise scheme. These measures are delivered by the Regional Development Agencies and have been available since 1 January 2008. The budget allocated for these measures in 2008-09 is £89.5 million.

Set-aside Schemes

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the likely effects of the abolition of set-aside on farmland bird numbers. [252599]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 29 January 2009]: An assessment of the likely effects of the abolition of set-aside on farmland bird numbers formed a key part of the work commissioned by Sir Don Curry's High Level Group on set-aside, the final report of which was published on 22 July 2008. A copy can be found on the DEFRA website at:

www.defra.gov.uk/farm/policy/sustain/deliverygroup/index.htm.

Sight Impaired

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidelines his Department follows in respect of making printed materials and forms accessible to people suffering red/green colour blindness. [245715]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA procures virtually all its design and print services via Communisis—a private sector print management company. It is their standard practice to avoid red/green, yellow/blue text/background combinations.

The Code of Good Agricultural Practice

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost to his Department was of producing and distributing The Code of Good Agricultural Practice. [250278]

Jane Kennedy: A number of technical specialists from DEFRA and its agencies contributed to the content of the new Code of Good Agricultural Practice. The publication updates the previously published codes of practice for water, soil and air which have been periodically updated for the past 20 years. Therefore, the total cost of producing the new Code of Good Agricultural Practice is not readily available.

DEFRA has not yet incurred any costs for printing and distributing the Code of Good Agricultural Practice. The publication is available for download, free from DEFRA's website. Hard copies are currently being printed and are available to order free of charge from The Stationary Office.

Veterinary Services

Dr. Palmer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many marketing authorisations are extant for veterinary vaccines in the UK; and how many authorisations have been granted variations by the Veterinary Medicines Agency allowing holders of authorisations to waive the use of animals for target animal batch safety testing under European Medicines Agency guidance in the last five years. [252991]

Jane Kennedy: There are 317 extant marketing authorisations for veterinary vaccines in the UK. Details of these vaccines are available on the Veterinary Medicines Directorate's (VMD) website:

www.vmd.gov.uk.

In the last five years the VMD has granted 15 variations allowing marketing authorisation holders to waive the use of animals for target animal batch safety testing.

Waste Disposal: EC Law

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what process of consultation he plans to undertake to inform the implementation of the Waste Framework Directive. [250768]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 28 January 2009]: EU member states are required to bring the revised Waste Framework Directive into force by 12 December 2010. DEFRA proposes to inform the directive's transposition in England by means of a two-stage consultation process. Stage 1 will consult on issues of policy and strategy and stage 2 on the transposing legislation. On the basis of our provisional timetable, stage 1 will be published in spring 2009 and stage 2 by the end of 2009. Both consultations will be for 12-week periods and will be carried out in line with the principles in the Government's "Code of Practice on Consultation" (July 2008).

As waste policy is a devolved matter, transposition and implementation of the directive in other parts of the United Kingdom and the associated consultation process is the responsibility of the relevant devolved Administration.

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the application of Article 3 (1) (b) (i) of the 2006 Waste Directive. [251152]

Jane Kennedy: Our measures to provide for the recovery of waste in England are set out in the Waste Strategy for England 2007.

Since 2006 we have made significant progress. Recycling and composting of household waste was at 34 per cent. in 2007-08. The recycling of packaging has increased to around 59 per cent. Less waste is being landfilled, with a decrease from 65 million tonnes in 2006 to 62 million tonnes in 2007. Total municipal waste collected is also decreasing, down by 2.3 per cent. between 2006-07 and 2007-08.

A revised EU Waste Framework Directive has recently been adopted (Directive 2008/98/EC) and member states are required to bring its provisions into effect by 12 December 2010.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been spent to date on (a) research, (b) preparation and (c) planning for the new charges for the collection of household waste. [251622]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 27 January 2009]: There are no new charges for the collection of household waste.

Powers provided by the Climate Change Act would allow up to five local authorities to pilot incentive schemes which help to reduce the levels of waste produced and to enhance the success of recycling programmes. These powers were requested by local authorities. However, no local authority has brought forward a proposal to use the powers.

In preparing for the clauses in the Climate Change Act, DEFRA's research costs were £41,614.83. DEFRA also purchased data, used to inform the impact assessment, on the distributional impacts of waste charging in Flanders, at a cost of £2,166.40.

Other costs are salary costs which are part of the Department's normal budget.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what information his Department holds on the number of apprenticeships which have been interrupted by redundancy in the current economic situation; and what steps he is taking to (a) reduce that number and (b) mitigate the effects of redundancy on individual apprentices. [247754]

Mr. Simon: We do not currently hold data centrally about the total number of apprentices made redundant. Working with ConstructionSkills and the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) we have established a matching service to help apprentices in the construction sector at risk of redundancy to find alternative employment and to complete their apprenticeship. More generally, providers and the LSC have procedures to advise and relocate apprentices, in cases where providers or employers fail, to help ensure that they are able to continue in work and complete their apprenticeship. The £140 million package announced by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister last week for an additional 35,000 apprenticeship places will help fund new provision in both the public sector and private sector, and will extend the opportunities available to people facing redundancy. This package will further boost the number of people starting an apprenticeship which has increased from 65,000 in 1996/97 to 225,000 last year and further improve the completion rate which rose to an all-time high of 64 per cent. in 2007/08.

We do have some information on redundancies in the construction sector where 295 redundant apprentices have been subsequently re-employed. We are continuing to help 1,040 redundant apprentices in the construction sector. We also estimate that around 150 apprentices were employed by Woolworths. We are working to establish how many of these apprentices have been found alternative employment.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in his Department's buildings in the last 12 months. [252375]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills has spent a total of £2,110 on works and refurbishments for Ministers' offices in the last 12 months.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many full-time equivalent staff in his Department assist special advisers; and what the cost of employing such staff has been since his Department was established. [242452]

Mr. Simon: Three civil servants support the Secretary of State's special advisers. They provide support of a non-political nature in accordance with the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers.

Individual civil servants' salary details are not disclosed in order to protect the privacy of the individuals concerned.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1406W, on departmental training, what personal training courses at public expense other Ministers in his Department have undertaken since 1 January 2008. [251329]

Mr. Simon: Ministers in the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills have taken the following personal training courses at public expense since 1 January 2008:

Foreign language lessons;

Cabinet Committees;

European Union;

Media Training.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which external organisations his Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in his Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252222]

Mr. Simon: The Department was created on 28 June 2007. The names of external organisations engaged to provide training for the staff in the fast stream are listed in the following table:

	Organisations
2007[1]	National School for Government
2008	National School for Government
	Stanton Marris Associates
	Westminster Explained
	Parity Training Ltd
	PTS Consortium

[1] From 28 June 2007

The number of civil servants who have participated in training for external organisations since the Department's creation is not collected centrally and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills with reference to the answer of 15 September 2008, Official Report, column 2047W, on economic and monetary union, whether the review and update of his Department's euro changeover plan has been completed; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent version. [250037]

Mr. Simon: The Department has relied on the euro changeover plans of the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and the Department for Children, Schools and Families until now. These arrangements will remain in place until 31 March 2010, when the Department will transfer to a new shared service operator.

As part of the Department's work to establish and agree the delivery of corporate systems with a new shared service operator this issue will be addressed. A copy of the completed document will be placed in the Library when this work is completed.

The National Weights and Measures Laboratory provided information to the former Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) in October 2004 and this formed part of their euro preparations. A more detailed plan was performed in March 2000 which formed part of HM Treasury euro changeover plan.

The UK Intellectual Property Office last updated its euro conversion plan in September 2004 and it formed part of the former DTI overall plan. The plan has not been published, given the time that has lapsed, while the principles are still relevant the legislation, IT systems and costs referred to are significantly out of date and publication would be of little value.

Higher Education: Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made since December 2008 of incidents of intimidation of Jewish and Israeli students on university campuses; and if he will make a statement. [252967]

Mr. Lammy: This Government deplores acts of racial or religious intolerance and we are committed to tackling anti-Semitism and any form of racial intolerance. Higher education institutions have the primary responsibility for ensuring that their students are not subject to threatening or abusive behaviour on campus and addressing any complaints received. The Department does not collect this type of data.

We are committed to encouraging higher education institutions to ensure that discrimination has no place in any of their policies or practices and to act swiftly when incidents or complaints are brought to their attention. The Department is setting up a dedicated sub-group to the Cross-Government Working Group against anti-Semitism to facilitate discussions between the Jewish community and higher education stakeholders.

Higher Education: Business

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many students whose places were co-funded with employers have been admitted to English universities in each of the past three years. [252849]

Mr. Lammy: The development and delivery of higher education (HE) courses designed and co-funded with employers is achieving good sustained growth in employer-based student places, as well as introducing the principle of employer demand-led funding. To date, employer co-funded projects have delivered some 989 places in 2006/07 and 3,840 places in 2007/08. The latest period for which we have confirmed data tells us growth is continuing against our target of 5,000 new co-funded places for this academic year (2008/09), with around 10,700 places allocated.

Legal Opinion

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the cost was of external legal services provided to his Department in each of the last five years. [251351]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) was created by machinery of government changes at the end of June 2007. Information on legal costs before that date is available from the predecessor departments of DIUS—the Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

In 2007-08 the Department spent £344,000 on external legal services.

London Metropolitan University

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what information his Department holds on the financial performance of the London Metropolitan University; and if he will make a statement. [252617]

Mr. Lammy: Like other universities, London Metropolitan university receives grant from the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) under a financial memorandum which sets out how it should properly account for its public funding. It is for the Funding Council to keep the financial health of the institutions it funds under review to protect the public interest, including ensuring that public funds are properly spent. Following the discovery that the university had received grant based on incorrect returns, discussions about the way forward are continuing between HEFCE and London Metropolitan university.

Students: Loans

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what his most recent estimate of the amount of overpayments made in repayments of student loans is. [252591]

Mr. Lammy: As of 31 March 2008, 89,971 borrowers with income-contingent student loans had overpaid a total amount of £47,913,611 since the scheme began. This represents an average of £533 per borrower. These amounts were refunded with interest by the Student Loans Company (SLC) when borrowers' accounts were reconciled following the end of each financial year.

The SLC is putting a number of measures in place to help customers avoid overpayment. Later this year, all borrowers who are reaching the end of repayment will be given the option to make final repayments outside the tax system, via direct debit, to ensure they do not overpay. SLC have also introduced new guidance and tools, including an online calculator, to help customers work out their loan balance, and therefore when they are likely to pay their loan in full.

Vocational Training: Finance

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether his Department has undertaken research into the efficacy of Government funding to businesses to move staff on to part-time working and providing training part-time. [248848]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills has not conducted research specifically on the issue of Government funding to businesses to move on to part-time working and provide training part-time.

The Government recognises the importance of part-time study in higher-education. We were the first to introduce statutory financial support for part-time students. For 2008/09 the maximum course grant is £255 and maximum fee grant is £1,180.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Members: Allowances

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Leader of the House whether hon. Members whose constituency offices are located within the Nottingham City Council workplace parking charging zone will be able to claim the costs of workplace parking charges from their allowances. [253770]

Chris Bryant: No such scheme as yet exists.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Business: Industrial Health and Safety

Mr. Olner: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate his Department has made of the average annual cost to small and medium-sized enterprises of applying for and proving competence in multiple health and safety pre-qualification questionnaires. [248900]

Mr. Brady: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the financial and administrative effects on small and medium-sized enterprises of applying for and proving competence in multiple health and safety pre-qualification questionnaires. [251052]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The Glover report, 'Accelerating the SME Economic Engine', published on the HMT website in November 2008, made 12 recommendations to improve SME access to public procurement including:

> "Procurers should ensure that, where they rely on a particular accreditation scheme or standard as part of the process of prequalification or contract award, that they take a flexible approach. Businesses should be given the opportunity to provide evidence that they can meet the contract requirements by reference to other similar equivalent accreditations or standards they may already hold—especially where these have been recognised or required by other public sector procurers."

Government are currently implementing these recommendations.

Small Businesses

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many small businesses have ceased trading permanently in each quarter of the last five years. [250971]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning how many small businesses have ceased trading permanently in each quarter of the last five years (250971).

Quarterly statistics on businesses that have ceased trading are not available. Annual estimates on births, deaths and survivals of businesses are available from the ONS Business Demography publication. The table below contains the latest annual estimates.

	Business deaths (Thousand)
2003	232
2004	244
2005	228
2006[1]	209
2007[1]	228

[1] The figures for 2006 and 2007 are provisional.

The latest two years are considered provisional to allow for the possibility of closed businesses reactivating.

For 2007 separate statistics are available for businesses with 0-4, 5-9, 10-19 and 20 or more employment. For the full dataset see:

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Department of Resources: Contracts

Graham Stringer: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many contracts of employment for staff working for hon. and right hon. Members lodged with the Department of Resources that Department has been unable to locate in the last 12 months. [253984]

Nick Harvey: There are some 2,700 staff employed by hon. Members using standard contracts. About 70 new staff are appointed each month. The Green Book requires Members to lodge contracts and job descriptions with the Department of Resources. Following a recommendation by the National Audit Office, the Department carried out an exercise in 2007 to establish how many contracts were not held as required by the Green Book. At that time 371 were not held. A similar exercise in 2008 found that 218 were not held. No information is available on how many of these had been lodged but mislaid. The Department has taken action to request that copies of the contracts be deposited in accordance with the decision made by the Members Estimate Committee on 20 October 2008.

Members: Allowances

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, columns 542-43W, on Members: allowances, (1) what timetable was given to the contractor brought in to assist with the process of publishing the details of hon. Members' expenses; and whether there are penalties in the contract for any delays that occur; [254039]

(2) when the process of scanning and redacting receipts for hon. Members' expenses will be completed and passed to hon. Members for checking. [254040]

Nick Harvey: The process of scanning and redacting claims, receipts etc has been undertaken in two stages. The first stage included the scanning of all relevant documentation and the initial editing and was concluded in October 2008 within agreed deadlines. The second stage has involved further editing to take account of privacy and security concerns apparent on completion of stage 1. This work is currently in hand and will be completed in March within agreed time frames. There have been no delays in the fulfilment of the contract. On completion of the scanning and editing work, hon. Members will need to check the records relating to them, and further editing may then be required. A date for sending out this information has not yet been set, but Members will receive advance notification of what they will need to do and how to raise matters of concern.

Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will list the external public relations consultants or contractors who are employed or commissioned by the House of Commons Commission; and what payments have been made to Ms Sheree Dodd in relation to the provision of public relations in the last three years. [250527]

Nick Harvey: Sheree Dodd was contracted through the Central Office of Information in February 2008 to provide media advice to the House of Commons Commission. Payments for her services from 26 February 2008 to date, including a COI administration charge, have totalled £41,986.05. In addition, Colman Getty is being paid in connection with public relations for Big Ben's 150th anniversary.

HEALTH

Ambulance Services: Standards

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he has any plans (a) to assess and (b) publish the performance of ambulance trusts at district-by-district level; and if he will make a statement. [253904]

Mr. Bradshaw: Emergency ambulance response time data are collected centrally by the Department of Health at ambulance trust level. The Department currently has no plans to change the level at which this data are collected. It is a matter for the local national health service to ensure there is appropriate provision of emergency services that are responsive to people's needs.

Asthma: Greater London

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the rates of asthma in (a) children aged four years and under, (b) children aged five to 14 years and (c) adults in each London borough per 1,000 population; and if he will make a statement. [253212]

Ann Keen [holding answer 2 February 2009]: Data are not collected in the format requested. Data are collected on the number of people in each practice on the asthma disease register by primary care trust (PCT), and by prevalence. The national Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF) records the number of people recorded on practice registers; the number of patients on the clinical registers can be used to calculate measures of disease prevalence, expressing the number of patients on each register as a percentage of the number of patients on practices lists. 2007-08 data are contained in 'PCT level QOF tables'.

The following table shows the number of people recorded on asthma registers in 2007-08 from the QOF.

Notes:

1. QOF is the national Quality and Outcomes Framework, introduced as part of the new General Medical Services contract on 1 April 2004.
2. Participation by practices in the QOF is voluntary, though participation rates are very high, with most Personal Medical Services practices also taking part.
3. The published QOF information was derived from the Quality Management Analysis System (QMAS), a national system developed by NHS Connecting for Health.
4. QMAS uses data from general practices to calculate individual practices' QOF achievement. QMAS is a national IT system developed by NHS Connecting for Health to support the QOF.
5. The system calculates practice achievement against national targets. It gives general practices, PCTs and strategic health authorities (SHAs) objective evidence and feedback on the quality of care delivered to patients.
6. The QMAS captures the number of patients on the various disease registers for each practice. The number of patients on the clinical registers can be used to calculate measures of disease prevalence, expressing the number of patients on each register as a percentage of the number of patients on practices' lists.
7. Unadjusted prevalence = (number on disease register/list size) *100. These are raw data.
8. QOF data are collected annually.

Care Homes: Standards

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidelines his Department has issued to local authorities on incentives to care homes to achieve three stars under the Commission for Social Care Inspection's rating scheme; [252701]

(2) how many local authorities provide special payments to care homes which achieve three stars under the Commission for Social Care Inspection's rating scheme. [252702]

Phil Hope: The Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) introduced its star rating system in May 2008 to enable commissioners and users of services and the public to see whether CSCI judges a care service to be excellent, good, adequate or poor. Star ratings are based on the results of CSCI inspections of services against the relevant regulations and national minimum standards.

The Department has not issued guidance to local authorities on incentives to care homes to achieve higher quality ratings. However, we expect local authorities to commission high quality services and would, therefore, anticipate that care homes which are rated as good or excellent will be more likely to attract local authorities' business.

Fees paid by local authorities for care are for local negotiation. Information on whether councils make special payments to care homes which are awarded three stars by CSCI is not collected centrally.

Diabetes: Children

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government is taking to assist those with childhood diabetes in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) the Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [252555]

Ann Keen: Our document "Making Every Young Person with Diabetes Matter", published in April 2007, drew attention to differences in the management of diabetes in children and young people—which is complex and significantly different from adult care. A copy of the document has already been placed in the Library.

It stated that all children and young people with diabetes should have access to a Children and Young Person Specialist Diabetes (CYPSD) team with appropriate training and competencies; routine care, continuing care and annual assessment; and access to routine and integrated psychological support.

A Children and Young People Diabetes Implementation Support Group has been set up to take forward work on the report's recommendations. The group is chaired by the National Clinical Director for Children, Dr. Sheila Shribman, and includes representation from Diabetes UK, Royal Colleges, young people with diabetes, parents and representatives from organisations with an interest in this area, including the Healthcare Commission.

One of the obligations of the group is to raise the profile of quality care for children and young people with diabetes across the country.

It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) and trusts to take forward implementation locally. One example of this is Middlesbrough PCT which has in place a multi-disciplinary team currently providing a service for some 140 children with diabetes. The PCT is developing closer ties with partners in education to develop protocols for use in schools.

Diazepam

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to control the illegal re-sale of diazepam; and if he will make a statement. [245280]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been asked to reply.

As a Class C drug under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 the illegal re-sale of diazepam is controlled; its illegal supply is a serious criminal matter.

Police must prioritise resources towards tackling crime, including drugs crime with a focus on those offences which cause the most harm. As such, operational activity may focus on Class A and B drugs, particularly the supply of drugs such as cocaine and heroin.

Where there is an identified need for a local response to a priority problem—such as the supply of diazepam in clubs, partner agencies, including the police, can be tasked through existing Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships to work towards achieving a joined-up solution.

This may include enforcement, treatment, improved communication or a range of other options depending on what is needed within the community concerned.

Health Services: Foreigners

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his policy is on the sale of donated organs to non-UK citizens who have transplant operations in NHS hospitals. [252554]

Dawn Primarolo: Section 32 of the Human Tissue Act 2004 makes it illegal to deal commercially in human material for transplantation.

Heart Diseases

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department plans to take to replace the National Service Framework for Coronary Heart Disease; and if he will make a statement. [252577]

Ann Keen: Although the Coronary Heart Disease National Service Framework (CHD NSF), launched in March 2000, was a 10-year plan of action, heart services must continue to develop after March 2010. The Department is currently considering how it might best support the national health service to build on the considerable success of the CHD NSF.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which of the targets set under the National Service Framework for Coronary Heart Disease have not yet been met. [252586]

Ann Keen: The National Service Framework (NSF) for Coronary Heart Disease (CHD), a copy of which has already been placed in the Library, does not contain any specific targets but it does recommend 12 Standards of care for CHD. The national health service (NHS) has made good progress in all areas but further improvements are needed in the management of heart failure and cardiac rehabilitation. NHS Improvement is taking forward national priority projects in these areas to support the NHS.

The publication of the NSF CHD led to this public service agreement target—to improve the health of the population by substantially reducing the mortality rates by 2010, (from the Our Healthier Nation baseline 1995-97) from heart disease and stroke related diseases by at least 40 per cent. in people under 75.

This target was met five years ahead of schedule. Death rates from cardiovascular disease for people under age 75 are down by 44 per cent. from 1995-97 baseline, saving nearly 33,000 lives in 2007, compared to 1996.

Heart Diseases: Medical Treatments

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, columns 402-3W, on heart diseases: medical treatments, at which hospitals the treatment is available. [253489]

Ann Keen [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The Department does not collect this information centrally.

We are aware of hospitals in England that have provided this treatment but we do not hold a definitive list. Hospitals include King's College Hospital NHS Foundation Trust, Guy's and St Thomas' Hospital NHS Trust, Royal Brompton and Harefield NHS Trust, London Chest Hospital, University Hospitals Bristol NHS Foundation Trust, Leeds General Infirmary (Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust), University Hospitals of Leicester, South Manchester University Hospitals NHS Trust and Queen Elizabeth Hospital (University Hospitals Birmingham NHS Foundation Trust).

Hospital Beds

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many beds are available for (a) men and (b) women in (i) maximum security health services and (ii) medium secure mental health facilities; what proportion are occupied; and what the average occupancy in each category was in each of the last three years. [252573]

Phil Hope: Data on bed availability in medium secure units are not collected centrally.

The number of beds currently available in high secure services for men and women are shown in the following table:

Beds currently available

	Number
Male mental illness and personality disorder	673
Learning disability	48
Female mental illness and personality disorder	50
Dangerous Serious Personality Disorder	108

Data are not held centrally on average occupancy of beds rates in each category for each of the last three years. Data available are contained in the following tables:

Current occupancy rates at 30 September 2008

	Percentage
Male mental illness and personality disorder	90.6
Learning disability	89.6
Female mental illness and personality disorder	88
Dangerous Serious Personality Disorder	85.1
Overall occupancy rate	90.4

Note:
This excludes patients on trial leave i.e. patients who are staying in medium security as part of their progression plan.

	Beds	Occupancy rates (percentage)
September 2007	790	93.2
September 2006	870	90.2
December 2005	899	92.1

Measles

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the reasons for the increase in the number of confirmed cases of measles in children aged under 18 years in (a) London and (b) England since 1997. [252938]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department consider that the rise in the number of confirmed cases of measles in children under 18 years of age in both London and the rest of England is a result of a decade of relatively low measles, mumps and rubella vaccination uptake. The potential exposure of a large number of unprotected children to the measles virus means that there is a real risk of a large measles epidemic.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department is taking to reduce differences between the regions in the number of confirmed cases of measles recorded each year; [252939]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to reduce the number of cases of measles in those under 18. [252940]

Dawn Primarolo: The way to reduce the number of confirmed cases of measles recorded each year is to increase the number of children vaccinated with the measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccine.

Childhood immunisation is a 'tier 2 Vital Sign' which means it is a NHS priority. As such, primary care trusts (PCTs) must set targets to improve vaccination uptake and agree these with their strategic health authorities (SHAs). The SHAs, with the help of the Department, monitor the PCTs against these targets.

In addition to the routine MMR vaccination programme, on 6 August the Department launched a MMR vaccine catchup campaign. The aim of the campaign is to immunise all children between one and 18 years of age who are unvaccinated or only partially vaccinated with MMR vaccine. The Department has secured additional MMR vaccine that is supplied free of charge to all PCTs. Over £5 million has been transferred to PCTs to help support this programme.

Recently the Department sent all general practitioners (GPs) surgeries new measles leaflets and posters and updated its immunisation website to launch the MMR campaign with a new measles landing page including press lines and questions and answers for PCTs to use.

PCTs have also received multiple alerts through various Departmental communications including the PCT Chief Executives bulletin 'the week', 'GP bulletin', 'Vaccine Update' newsletter and the Chief Medical Officer's Winter Update newsletter.

A public relations campaign is planned to start in late February to support the MMR vaccination.

We also underlined our commitment to immunisation by stating that immunisation is a 'right' in the NHS constitution.

Medical Treatments Abroad

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in respect of how many overseas organisations with contracts to provide services to NHS patients his Department has been informed that they have been indicted for defrauding taxpayers, patients or clinicians in their own country. [253795]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is not aware of any overseas organisations that have contracts to provide services to national health service patients which have been indicted for defrauding taxpayers, patients or clinicians in their own country. This is because the Department does not centrally collect details of arrangements entered into by local NHS organisations with overseas organisations.

In terms of central procurements, while the Department's commercial directorate has contracted with the United Kingdom subsidiaries of a number of overseas health care organisations, it is not aware of any instances where these UK suppliers have been indicted for fraud.

In purchasing goods and services for the NHS, the Department is subject to all European Union (EU) public procurement regulations. The regulations require that as part of due diligence, all participating organisations must complete a pre-qualification questionnaire to ensure that they are suitable to play a role in the NHS. Under the EU procurement guidelines, public bodies are required to exclude a company that has been convicted of a criminal offence or grave professional misconduct in relation to the conduct of their business. The various offences leading to mandatory exclusion are listed in regulation 23 of the Public Contracts Regulations 2006. The mandatory exclusion does not relate to parent companies.

MMR Vaccine

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information campaigns have been undertaken by his Department to encourage uptake of the measles, mumps and rubella vaccine in each of the last five years; what expenditure his Department has incurred on such campaigns in each year; and what targets he has set for the uptake of the vaccine in the next 12 months. [252949]

Dawn Primarolo: As with all vaccines, clear factual information on the measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) vaccine is available from our information resources, such as leaflets, factsheets and the immunisation website, and through health professions working in primary care.

In 2004 the Department collaborated with NHS London on their 'MMR capital catch-up' campaign. In August 2008 the Department issued guidance to primary care trusts (PCTs) on what actions should be taken to improve MMR uptake in their area. This initiative was supported by an information leaflet and surgery poster and on-line with a question and answer, 'Big facts' sheet and a measles infection timeline. The Department's cost for the provision of information materials was £10,000 and £8,000 respectively.

Childhood immunisation is a 'tier 2 Vital Sign' which means it is an NHS priority. As such, PCTs must set targets to improve vaccination uptake and agree these with their strategic health authorities (SHAs). The SHAs, with the help of the Department, monitor the PCTs against these targets.

NHS Direct

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average (a) cost and (b) duration of a call to NHS Direct was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [253721]

Mr. Bradshaw: The average cost of a call to NHS Direct's 0845 46 47 line was £25.53 for 2007-08. This does not include other calls to services provided to national and local commissioners, e.g. calls to the appointments line (formerly the choose and book appointments line) and locally commissioned services.

The average duration of a call to NHS Direct is 528 seconds (8 minutes 48 seconds) for the calendar year January-December 2008. This includes all calls to the 0845 46 47 line and other calls to services provided to national and local commissioners, including calls to the appointments line and locally commissioned services. The time quoted is the duration of time that a frontline staff member speaks to a patient for each call and this includes:

calls warm transferred directly from a health adviser to a nurse; calls placed on a queue for a nurse or health information advisor (although time spent on the queue is not included); calls answered and completed by a nurse; and calls fully handled by a health adviser.

R. Channing Wheeler

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when Mr. R. Channing Wheeler (a) commenced and (b) finished working in his Department. [253793]

Mr. Bradshaw: Mr. Chan Wheeler joined the Department on 18 June 2007 and left its employ on 15 July 2008.

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department paid to Mr. R. Channing Wheeler in remuneration and expenses for his work in his Department. [253794]

Mr. Bradshaw: The remuneration package for Mr. Chan Wheeler for the financial year 2007-08 is recorded in the Department's Remuneration Report, part of the resource accounts 2007-08 which was laid before Parliament (HC 1042) and is available in the Library.

The remuneration for Mr. Wheeler for his period of employment with the Department which falls in the financial year 2008-09 will be recorded similarly in the resource accounts 2008-09 which will be laid before Parliament later this year.

Watford Hospital

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made with the proposed private finance initiative redevelopment of Watford General Hospital; and if he will make a statement. [253805]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not held centrally. However, further details can be obtained from the East of England Strategic Health Authority.

Since May 1997, 132 hospital schemes worth over £17.3 billion have been approved to proceed—121 via the private finance initiative and 11 through public capital. 49 of those hospitals are already built and operational with a further 19 which have reached financial close and are now under construction.

The target of 100 new hospital schemes by 2010 as detailed in the NHS Plan is on course to be achieved.

Wheelchairs: Waiting Lists

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how long on average wheelchair users wait to obtain a chair with different specifications in (a) West Hertfordshire Hospital Trust, (b) Hemel Hempstead and (c) Hertfordshire in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [252935]

Phil Hope: Information about waiting times for wheelchair users is not held centrally. The collation of wheelchair information that may assist commissioning decisions is for local determination.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Compensation

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 328W, of the 38 personnel who were very seriously injured in Afghanistan in 2006 and 2007 and whose claim for compensation had been registered by 13 November 2008, what the (a) 10th, (b) 25th, (c) 50th, (d) 75th and (e) 90th percentiles were for the amount awarded in respect of the claims that were settled by 13 January 2009; and how many of the claims had been determined by 13 January 2009. [249588]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Unfortunately Defence Analytical Services and Advice are currently unable to provide information on compensation amounts paid out to personnel that were very seriously injured in Afghanistan during 2006 and 2007. However, I will write to the hon. Member when the information is available.

Of the 38 personnel who were very seriously injured in Afghanistan in 2006 and 2007, and whose claim for compensation had been registered by 13 November 2008, all have had their claims determined as at 13 January 2009.

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, columns 327-8W, of the 42 personnel who were seriously injured in Afghanistan in 2006 and 2007 and whose claim for compensation had been registered by 13 November 2008, what the (a) 10th, (b) 25th, (c) 50th, (d) 75th and (e) 90th percentiles were for the amount awarded in respect of the claims that were settled by 13 January 2009; and how many of the claims had been determined by 13 January 2009. [249581]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Unfortunately Defence Analytical Services and Advice are currently unable to provide information on compensation amounts paid out to personnel that were seriously injured in Afghanistan during 2006 and 2007. However, we will write to the hon. Member when the information is available.

Of the 42 personnel who were seriously injured in Afghanistan in 2006 and 2007, and whose claim for compensation had been registered by 13 November 2008, 40 have had their claims determined as at 13 January 2009.

Armed Forces: Scotland

Mr. Ingram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made in discussions with the Scottish Executive on the repatriation of members of the armed forces killed in action abroad and whose families wish an inquest to take place in Scotland under the fatal accident inquiry system; and if he will make a statement. [250664]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The then Defence Secretary wrote to Kenny MacAskill MSP, Cabinet Secretary for Justice and Communications, on 27 March 2008 seeking a way forward to enable investigations to take place in Scotland into service deaths overseas. We received a response on 19 November. I wrote to Mr. MacAskill on 15 January with proposals for resolving this issue quickly. I have received a constructive reply and I hope we will now be able to find a way forward without further delay.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles: Operating Costs

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost per track/road mile, excluding crew costs, of operating the (a) Warrior, (b) Bulldog and (c) Mastiff armoured vehicles. [252863]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The estimated cost per track kilometre, excluding crew and fuel costs, for financial year 2009-10 is as follows:

	£ per kilometre
Warrior	104.50
Bulldog	43.38

These costs include first and second line repair costs of equipment in the Field Army, together with equipment support costs.

Information on operating costs for wheeled vehicles is not held in a format that would enable an estimate per kilometre to be made, therefore no costs are available for Mastiff.

Cyprus: Military Bases

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence since the creation of the Sovereign Base Areas of Akrotiri and Dhekelia, how many Cypriot civilians have been forcibly resettled in the region. [252904]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No Cypriot civilians have ever been forcibly resettled in the sovereign base areas.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps have been taken to protect the infrastructure in the Sovereign Base Areas of Akrotiri and Dhekelia against risks of (a) earthquakes and (b) adverse weather conditions. [252905]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since 1992, all new buildings in the sovereign base areas (SBA) have been required to comply with the Seismic Code for Reinforced Concrete Structures in Cyprus and the European Community regulations covering buildings in areas vulnerable to the risk of earthquakes.

Responsibility for buildings and civil infrastructure outside the SBA military camps is delegated to the Republic of Cyprus (RoC). As such, all SBA villages are included in the RoC's earthquake and disaster plan. Officials from the SBA meet twice a year with the RoC to discuss contingency plans and the provision of support in the event of a disaster.

Officials from the SBA also participate twice a year in European Community civil protection exercises. These are hosted by the RoC and are aimed at both improving co-ordination between the relevant agencies, and ensuring the suitability of contingency plans in response to natural disasters and emergency situations on the island of Cyprus.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the Royal Navy maintains a permanent presence in the Mediterranean. [252906]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Royal Navy's permanent presence in the Mediterranean consists of the squadrons based in Gibraltar and Cyprus who operate two Maritime Patrol Vessels each. In addition, the Royal Navy routinely undertakes maritime security operations and NATO taskings in the region.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his plans are for the future of the medical facilities of Princess Mary's RAF Hospital at Akrotiri. [252907]

Mr. Kevan Jones: A project is currently under way to consider the future provision of secondary health care in Cyprus. A range of options is being considered. None have yet been ruled out. Final implementation is expected to take in the region of two years.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Cypriot civilians inhabiting the Sovereign Base Areas of Akrotiri and Dhekelia. [252910]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The civilian population of the sovereign base areas (SBA) is determined by census undertaken by the Republic of Cyprus. The last census, conducted in 2001, confirmed the following figures:

Cypriot civilians in Akrotiri: 4,329

Cypriot civilians in Dhekelia: 2,642

The Republic of Cyprus is due to conduct its next census in 2011.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how often he has met the Foreign Secretary in the last 12 months to discuss events in the Sovereign Base Areas of Akrotiri and Dhekelia. [252913]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In the last 12 months, the Secretary of State for Defence has not met the Foreign Secretary specifically to discuss the sovereign base areas; although they have met regularly, discussing a wide range of topics including exchanges on Cyprus.

Both MOD and FCO maintain a keen interest in the sovereign base areas, which receive regular visits by Ministers. I visited both Akrotiri and Dhekelia in December 2008; the former Under-Secretary of State my hon. Friend the Member for Halton (Derek Twigg) visited in May 2008 and the former Secretary of State my right hon. Friend the Member for Kilmarnock and Loudoun (Des Browne) visited in April 2007.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252266]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Information held centrally by the Ministry of Defence indicates that MOD had no direct contracts with the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008. Defence agencies, top level budget areas, trading funds, joint headquarters, single service commands and individual military units may have placed locally arranged, low value contract, with the Internet Advertising Bureau. Details of these are not be held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

EU Common Foreign and Security Policy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what European Security and Defence Policy missions are in the pre-operational planning stage. [253364]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: None.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department plans to increase the number of its (a) military personnel and (b) civilian staff attached to the (i) European Union military staff and (ii) European Defence Agency. [253365]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We have no plans at present, but would consider opportunities as they arise and if and when resources are available.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost to his Department was of providing (a) military personnel and (b) civilian staff attached to the (i) European Union military staff, (ii) European Defence Agency, (iii) European Union Military Committee and (iv) other EU institutions in 2008. [253367]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The total cost to the Department of the military personnel and MOD civilian staff attached to the European Union Military Staff, European Union Military Committee and other EU institutions was £1.9 million in 2008.

Military personnel and MOD civilian staff attached to the European Defence Agency (EDA) are paid directly by the EDA from its functioning budget, which covers all of the operating costs of the Agency. The UK's contribution to the EDA's functioning budget was €4.1 million (£3.94 million) in 2008.

EU Rapid Reaction Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 39W, on the Small Scale Focused Intervention Force, what the difference in capability between the Small Scale Focused Intervention Force and the Small Scale Contingent Battle Group is. [253370]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Small Scale Contingent Battle Group can undertake the same range of tasks as the Small Scale Focused Intervention Force that it replaced.

The unit currently undertaking this role, 3rd Battalion The Parachute Regiment, also provides an enhanced capability for the Small Scale Contingent Battle Group to undertake air assault operations.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 20 October 2004, Official Report, column 712W, on the Helsinki Headline Goal, what the expected maximum percentage is of troops offered by the UK under the Helsinki Headline Goal which will be infantry. [253387]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my predecessor on 20 October 2004, Official Report, column 712W, to the hon. Member for Congleton (Ann Winterton).

Falkland Islands

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent in total by his Department on operations in the Falkland Islands in each of the last five years. [253218]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 2 February 2009]: In each of the last five years the costs to the Chief of Joint Operations, who is responsible for maintaining UK forces in the Falkland Islands, are as follows:

Financial year	Cost (£ million)
2003-04	110.6
2004-05	113.1
2005-06	143.3
2006-07	65.0
2007-08	67.4

The reason for the much lower figures in the most recent years is because, as a consequence of a change in MOD accounting policy, the Chief of Joint Operations is no longer responsible for reporting fixed asset depreciation costs and the cost of capital on fixed assets.

Future Rapid Effect System

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's expenditure to date has been on each variant on the Future Rapid Effect System programme; and if he will make a statement. [253341]

Mr. Quentin Davies: As at the end of December 2008, expenditure on the FRES programme, inclusive of VAT was as follows:

	£ million
Utility vehicle (UV)	133
Specialist vehicles (SV)	25
Total spend	158

Injured Personnel

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what funding his Department makes available to service personnel injured on operations. [252612]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 2 February 2009]: Service personnel injured due to service on or after 6 April 2005, including those injured due to service while on operations, receive compensation under the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme (AFCS). This provides both a tax-free lump sum payment of up to £570,000 that can be paid during service, and for the more seriously injured a Guaranteed Income Payment (GIP), which is tax-free, index-linked and payable from discharge for the rest of their life. The total compensation received can therefore exceed £1 million.

The War Pension Scheme (WPS) provides compensation and a range of allowances to service personnel disabled as a result of their service, up to and including 5 April 2005, payable after discharge. These include a basic war disablement pension based on the degree of disablement, supplementary allowances and allowances for dependents.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 35W, on Iraq: peacekeeping operations, what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of co-operation between his Department and the Department for International Development during Operation Telic One. [253818]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 2 February 2009, Official Report, column 876W.

Legal Opinion

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost was of external legal services provided to his Department in each of the last five years. [251349]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Specific data on the expenditure by the MOD on external legal fees in each of the last five years are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Merlin Helicopters

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of Merlin helicopters have been fit for service in each year since 2003. [253219]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding answer 2 February 2009]: I will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Minesweepers: Research

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department receives information on the work and research of the US Joint Improvised Explosive Device Defeat Organisation; and if he will make a statement. [252874]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The MOD regularly exchanges information on work and research with its allies to the mutual benefit of all parties. As part of continuing successful coalition operations, MOD discusses such topics with the US.

Morocco: Joint Exercises

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 13 November 2008, Official Report, column 1301W, on Morocco: armed forces, for what reason a news article of 24 October 2008 on his Department's website on training and adventure states that a joint exercise had taken place partly in the Atlas Mountains and partly in the Western Sahara. [253796]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Defence intranet site and the MOD internet site contained an article which reported British forces and the Royal Gibraltar Regiment training in Morocco. More specifically it referred to training in the Western Sahara. This article was ambiguous: all training was conducted within Morocco, including areas in the western Sahara desert, not in Western Sahara. The article has been amended to remove this ambiguity. It remains the case that British armed forces do not conduct military activity in Western Sahara, the status of which has yet to be determined by the UN.

Netherlands: Military Exercises

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many joint training exercises involving the UK and the Netherlands were conducted in support of the UK/Netherlands Amphibious Landing Force in 2008; and how many are planned for 2009. [253366]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There have been three joint training exercises in support of the UK/Netherlands amphibious landing force in 2008. There is one joint training exercise planned for 2009.

Personal Protective Equipment

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps are being taken to improve the standard of personal protective equipment issued to service personnel. [252614]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The need to improve personal protection in response to developing threats is continually assessed. Further improvements to body armour and helmets are being developed and are planned to be introduced later this year. In the longer term, the Personal Equipment and Common Operational Clothing (PECOC) programme, which is currently in its assessment phase, will deliver further upgrades to items of personal protective equipment.

Service Personnel: Fitness for Duty

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence How many (a) officers and (b) personnel in other ranks in each regular infantry and Royal Marine battalion were unfit for duty at the latest date for which figures are available. [253658]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 2 February 2009]: Unfit for duty has been interpreted as medically unfit to perform any duty. Personnel unfit for duty in their primary role but who can perform a role in an alternative capacity are not included in the following tables.

The figures given include personnel filling all roles within each battalion, not just infantrymen. Separate figures for officers and soldiers are not held centrally.

As at 1 December 2008, the figures requested for the infantry were:

Div	Unit	Number of personnel unfit for duty
Guards	1 Grenadier Gds	5
	1 Coldstream Gds	0
	1 Scots Guards	5

In addition, there are three incremental guards companies that are primarily for public duties but can also be used to augment the other guards battalions as required:

Unit	Number of personnel unfit for duty
N Coy Grenadier Gds	0
7 Coy Coldstream Gds	0
F Coy Scots Gds	0

As at 29 January 2009, the figures for the Royal Marines Commando Units were:

Unit	Number of personnel unit for duty
40 Cdo RM	0
42 Cdo RM	0
45 Cdo RM	3

Somalia: Piracy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many force generation conferences have there been for Operation Atalanta; and how many are planned. [253357]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There has been one force generation conference for Operation Atalanta. Any future force generation conferences will be called as required but none are currently planned.

Unmanned Air Vehicles

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many non-UK owned or operated unmanned aerial vehicles transited through UK airspace in 2008. [252110]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There were no non-UK owned or operated unmanned aerial vehicle transits through UK airspace in 2008.

TRANSPORT

Aircraft and Shipping: Safety

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many safety inspections have been carried out on (a) aircraft at airports and (b) ships in port in each of the last 12 months. [252444]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) carried out 594 inspections of foreign aircraft at UK airports in 2008. These inspections are carried out on behalf of the Department for Transport and form part of the European Safety Assessment of Foreign Aircraft programme. The number of inspections conducted each month was:

	Number of SAFA inspections January to December 2008
January	28
February	71
March	10
April	55
May	80
June	53
July	68
August	56
September	44
October	74
November	36
December	19
Total	594

The CAA's Airworthiness Division also carried out approximately 900 safety inspections on UK registered aircraft during 2008. These inspections were carried out at maintenance organisations as well as at airports and formed part of a pre-planned monitoring programme that is applied to each UK aircraft owner or operator. The inspections varied in depth and scope between a simple 'in service' ramp inspection through to a more in depth inspection during maintenance.

In addition, the CAA's Flight Operations Division has a system of planned audits of UK commercial operators which includes inspections of aeroplanes at airports. There were approximately 129 such inspections evenly spread throughout 2008. A further 20 inspections were specifically conducted on UK cargo aircraft.

Details of these inspections are not recorded centrally and therefore providing either an exact number of inspections or the months in which they took place would incur disproportionate cost.

The Maritime and Coastguard Agency carries out inspections to check safety standards and living conditions on UK and dependent territory ships, as well as port state control inspections for foreign ships visiting UK ports. Over the last 12 months we have carried out the following number of targeted inspections and port state control inspections.

2008	Number of targeted inspections on UK and dependent territory Ships (inspected in the UK)	Port state control inspections for foreign ships visiting UK ports
January	36	174
February	15	172
March	22	134
April	19	153
May	19	132
June	26	142
July	16	112
August	19	134
September	18	175
October	17	182
November	11	149

Airports

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects the National Policy Statement on airports to be published (a) in draft and (b) in its final form. [251812]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have yet to take decisions on the timetable for preparing a national policy statement (NPS) on airports, but it is expected to be published in draft by 2011. The draft NPS will then be subject to public consultation and parliamentary scrutiny as set out in the Planning Act 2008 before it can be formally designated.

Aviation: EU Action

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions (a) have taken place and (b) are planned to take place within the EU on widening the responsibility of the European Aviation Safety Agency; whether any discussions (i) have taken place and (ii) are planned to take place in the EU on Annex II to EC Regulation 216/2008; and if he will make a statement. [253492]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In June 2008 the European Commission published a regulatory proposal to extend the European Aviation Safety Agency's competence to cover the safety of aerodromes, air navigation service providers and air traffic management.

Negotiations on the proposal began in the technical working group of the council in July 2008 and are ongoing. The proposal was discussed at the Transport Council in December where Ministers agreed a partial general approach on articles concerning air navigation services, air traffic management and the proposal's application to the military.

We understand that EASA, as part of a review into the regulation of light aircraft, may recommend future changes to Annex II.

Aviation: Risk Assessment

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what risk registers (a) are in use and (b) have been in use in the last two years in relation to projects within his Department's Aviation Directorate; and if he will make a statement. [253211]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The Department's aviation directorate regularly uses risk registers to monitor all of its strategic projects. The directorate also uses risk registers to monitor non-strategic projects and business as usual activities relating to regulatory issues, airport capacity and operations, aviation and the environment, and aviation safety.

Aviation: Type Approval

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the Civil Aviation Authority first received an application for the ELA O-7 gyroplane to be approved for use in UK airspace; what the reasons for the time taken to consider the application are; and if he will make a statement. [253645]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The CAA received an application for the validation of the Spanish certification of the ELA 07 gyroplane in April 2006. As part of the certification process the CAA had consulted the Spanish authorities on the differences between the Spanish and UK airworthiness codes for gyroplanes. Significant differences between the codes were identified. As a result, the CAA have been involved in discussions with the Spanish authorities and ELA, the manufacturer of the gyroplane, with a view to agreeing and approving the modification necessary to meet the UK requirements. The CAA last met with the Spanish authorities and the manufacturer in October 2008. All of the follow up action from that meeting rests with ELA. ELA has requested the CAA not to do any additional work on the validation until ELA and the Spanish authorities have agreed the way forward.

Coaches: Disabled

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department is taking to increase the accessibility of national and international coach travel to people with a disability. [252761]

Paul Clark: The Public Service Vehicle Accessibility Regulations apply to all buses and coaches with more than 22 passenger seats operating to a published timetable. The Regulations require all buses to comply from the year 2015 to 2017 (depending on the type of bus) and 2020 for coaches used on scheduled services.

The European Commission have recently made proposals, relating to bus and coach passenger rights. The Department for Transport will be considering this in due course.

Crossrail Line

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment has been made of the risk of contamination from (a) bubonic plague, (b) anthrax and (c) other biological agents as a consequence of the possible disturbance of burial grounds during the construction of the Crossrail project. [252334]

Paul Clark: Crossrail, in common with all other major projects, has been the subject of a comprehensive environmental impact assessment. A significant part of this was the investigation of archaeological remains, including burial grounds, along the route. This investigation was carried out by the Museum of London Archaeological Services. Although there are a number of burial grounds on the route, this is not generally an issue where the running tunnels are at some depth underground. There are issues, however, at the stations where excavation must of necessity be carried out from ground level.

Only one site was identified where this issue may arise. This is at the eastern end of the Farringdon station adjacent to the eastern end of the Smithfield meat market. A trial pit will be excavated as soon as Crossrail has obtained possession of the site, and the appropriate testing will be carried out. The techniques for dealing with these matters are well understood by archaeologists and the necessary specialist advice will be taken.

This matter was discussed at some length in the House of Lords Select Committee on the Crossrail Bill and subsequently with Lord James of Blackheath who was a member of the Committee. In the event that any contaminated remains are found these will be dealt with in the appropriate manner as set out in guidance from Government, English Heritage and the ecclesiastical authorities.

Cycling: Accidents

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effects on the (a) rate and (b) severity of cyclist casualties of legal requirements for cyclists to wear helmets. [253180]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The evidence indicates that cycle helmets provide protective benefits in the event of a collision and therefore prevent and reduce injuries. Research suggests that between one third and one half of pedal cycle casualties attending hospital sustained an injury to the head or face. (See DfT Road Safety Research Report Number.30.)

However, we do not know how many head injuries may have been prevented or reduced had the cyclist been wearing a helmet, since we do not know what level of protection is offered in different types of accidents.

The Department has recently commissioned a new research project-looking at a range of road safety and cycling issues. This is now under way and is being undertaken by a consortium led by TRL and including MVA, ITS Leeds, Simon Christmas Ltd, SHM and Arup. It will examine the following topics:

Road user safety and cycling data

Cycling infrastructure

Attitudes and behaviours of cyclists and other road users

Bicycle helmets, including an updated evaluation of their effectiveness.

The research project as a whole is likely to be three years in duration, but we are aiming to complete the review of cycle helmet effectiveness by the end of 2009.

Dartford-Thurrock Crossing: Tolls

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Dartford River Crossing DART tags have been issued (a) in total and (b) to businesses since 1 November 2008. [253130]

Paul Clark: The number of Dart-Tags issued between 1 November 2008 and 26 January 2009 was 25,022, including tags for use in the local resident discount scheme. There are no records on the division of tags between personal and business users.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in his Department's buildings in the last 12 months. [252377]

Mr. Hoon: The spend on Ministers' offices in the last 12 months was £17,332. Most of this was spent on installing energy efficient lighting mechanisms and will be offset by lower running costs.

Departmental Consultants

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost of his Department' contracts with management consultants was in each of the last five years. [251366]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, columns 386-87W, given to the hon. Member for Eddisbury (Mr. O'Brien).

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which ICT projects initiated by his Department were abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred on each project; who the contractors were; what the date of (a) commencement and (b) abandonment was in each case; and if he will make a statement. [251136]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport does not hold centrally collected records on all ICT projects carried out by the central Department and its seven executive agencies. Available information shows that the following ICT projects were abandoned before completion since the Department was formed in 2002.

Project	Start date	End date	Supplier	Cost (£)
Central DFT
Integration of an Electronic document and records management system	June 2003	October 2004	BT	854,000
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency
Tracking Vehicles Through The Trade (TV3T)	June 2005	June 2007	IBM	7,900,000
Electronic Licensing for Fleets (ELF)	December 2006	June 2007	IBM	270,000
Highways Agency
Correspondence document management system	September 2000	August 2003	Admiral	228,000
Driving Standards Agency
Self Service Kiosks in Practical Test Centres	September 2007	March 2008	In-house	0
ADLI phase 4	April 2005	May 2006	Capita	37,000

None of the other four executive agencies had ICT projects abandoned before completion.

Departmental Internet

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what websites his Department has operated other than its main departmental website over the last five years; and what the operating budget for those websites was; [251355]

(2) what websites his Department operates apart from its main departmental website; and what the operating budget for each of those websites is in 2008-09. [251356]

Mr. Hoon: Tables have been placed in the Libraries of the House showing websites operated over the last five years and their operating costs. Total operating costs are not yet available for the current financial year.

Where annual operating costs are not available this is due to a number of reasons; either the site has only recently been available and costs are only applicable for the current financial year; the costs are part of a much larger contract and cannot be itemised; or the costs cannot be calculated without incurring disproportionate costs. Figures provided do not include staff costs.

The Department for Transport intends to measure website costs in line with the proposed guidance issued by the Central Office of Information, 'Measuring website costs (TG128)', starting from the financial year 2009-10.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department is taking to advise staff of pension options available to them in relation to added years or additional voluntary contributions. [253264]

Mr. Hoon: Information is made available to staff on added pension, additional voluntary contributions, and stakeholder pensions by the following means:

(a) all new staff are provided with a scheme booklet on pension choices when they join the Department;

(b) all staff in the scheme are provided with an annual pension statement which details the current and projected value and provides information about ways of boosting their pension;

(c) the Department's intranet and staff handbook provide information about the pension scheme and a link to the scheme website where more information is available;

(d) the Department's pension team provides a pensions helpline for all pension enquiries including information about ways of boosting pension.

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost of his Department's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each of the last five years. [251249]

Mr. Hoon: The Department was formed in May 2002 and figures for the 2002-03 financial year could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The cost of public relations consultancies for the last five complete financial years is as follows:

					£000
	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer of 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 835W, on departmental training, what personal training courses at public expense other Ministers in his Department have undertaken since 1 January 2008. [251319]

Mr. Hoon: Other Ministers in the Department for Transport have taken the following training courses at public expense since 1 January 2008: induction and action learning set.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which external organisations his Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in his Department have participated in the provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252220]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252011]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport and its agencies operate a flexible working system where staff participating may accrue a credit balance of more than their conditioned hours. Time off in lieu can be granted by line managers to staff who have accrued additional hours.

Line managers may formally agree in advance that staff carry out essential work outside contracted hours attracting time off in lieu or overtime.

All working arrangements must comply with the working time regulations, such as taking appropriate minimum break during the working day.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252012]

Mr. Hoon: This information is not available.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249134]

Mr. Hoon: Separate records of these occasions are not kept and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Driver Vehicle Licensing Agency

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency has a statutory duty to issue an acknowledgement letter following receipt of a statutory off road notification or notice of a change of owner; and if he will make a statement. [253563]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) is under no statutory obligation to issue acknowledgement letters. However, the DVLA is committed to sending all customers an acknowledgement letter. Upon receipt of a statutory off road notification (SORN) or disposal notification, an acknowledgement is automatically generated and sent to the keeper of the vehicle.

Driving Tests

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people (a) took and (b) passed their driving test in (i) Ribble Valley, (ii) Lancashire and (iii) the UK in each of the last five years. [253226]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 2 February 2009]: There are no driving test centres within the Ribble Valley.

Driving Under Influence

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much the Government spent on campaigns against drink-driving in the last year for which figures are available. [251744]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Directly attributable marketing expenditure on the "THINK! Don't Drink And Drive" campaign was £3.6 million in the 2007-08 financial year. Nearly £3 million of this was on advertising across a wide range of media in June and December to coincide with police enforcement campaigns.

Driving: Licensing

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he has taken to ensure that people are aware that photocard driving licences need to be renewed every 10 years. [252875]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Photocard licence holders are sent a personalised renewal reminder two months in advance of the date of expiry of their photograph.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on regular health checks for holders of driving licences; and if he will make a statement. [253608]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have had no such discussions.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on what date the euro changeover plan of (a) his Department and (b) each of its agencies was last updated; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent version of each plan. [250595]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport and its agencies last updated their euro changeover plans in September 2006. A number of technological and structural changes have taken place since then and would need to be revisited before the plans could be published. The costs of updating the plans for publication would be disproportionate. The Department and its agencies will however review their plans at a later date.

Freight

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) volume and (b) weight of freight was transported within the UK by (i) road, (ii) rail, (iii) inland water, (iv) coastal water and (v) pipeline in each year since 2001. [253310]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Domestic freight transport by mode is available in table 4.1 in the publication "Transport Statistics Great Britain 2008 Edition". This is available on the DfT website at the following link:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/tsgb/2008edition/

Government Car and Despatch Agency: Disciplinary Proceedings

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many times a written warning has been issued to a member of staff of the Government Car and Dispatch Agency following misuse of the Government procurement card since January 2006. [252677]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 29 January 2009]: Two formal written warnings have so far been issued by the Government Car and Despatch Agency to two of its employees about their misuse of the Government Procurement Card.

Heathrow Airport

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the Statement of 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 358, on transport infrastructure, when he plans to lift the cap of 125,000 on the number of additional flights permitted at Heathrow Airport. [250701]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have made it clear that our support for a third runway is subject to an aggregate limit of 605,000 annual movements, to be reviewed in 2020. That review will take account of a number of factors, as set out in the "Adding Capacity at Heathrow—Decisions following consultation" document which can be found on the Department's website. It follows that, until that review, it is not possible to anticipate whether of not the cap might be lifted or the timing of any decision to lift the cap, subject to planning approval.

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which models of plane will qualify to use the green landing slots at Heathrow Airport. [252658]

Jim Fitzpatrick: As stated in the document "Adding Capacity at Heathrow - Decisions Following Consultation" the Department intends to consult on the green slots approach to additional capacity at Heathrow. Details of how 'green slots' will work will be developed in the consultation process which is expected to begin later in 2009. It is the Government's intention that green slots will incentivise the use of the most modern aircraft available at the time.

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of additional passengers using Heathrow Airport each year which would result from an increase of 125,000 in the number of flight movements from the airport each year. [252659]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The "UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts 2009", page 131, shows the forecast passenger demand for Heathrow under several scenarios, including a third runway with an additional 125,000 air transport movements (ATMs) per year. This is available at the following link:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/atf/co2forecasts09/

The number of additional passengers in 2030, compared to a base case of no third runway at Heathrow and Stansted second runway in 2015, is 28 million.

Forecasts of additional passengers from the opening of a third runway in 2015 up to 2030 are detailed in the following table.

	Additional passengers (Million)
2015	0
2020	17
2025	23
2030	28

Note:
This assumes that Stansted second runway (2015 opening) in the base case.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) meetings and (b) correspondence on Heathrow expansion (i) he, (ii) other Ministers in his Department and (iii) officials in his Department, have had in an official capacity with representatives from (A) BAA, (B) trades unions, (C) airlines using Heathrow, (D) other corporate bodies and (E) residents from communities affected by Heathrow expansion, since 3 October 2008; when each meeting took place; who attended each meeting; and what the subject of each meeting was. [252709]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 29 January 2009]: Since October 2008, Ministers and officials have not met BAA, trade unions, airlines using Heathrow, corporate stakeholders or residents around Heathrow to discuss Heathrow airport development issues.

The Department has received a high number of letters about Heathrow airport from local residents during this period and two from the Chief Executive of BAA. The first one on 28 November 2008 concerned the monitoring of the environmental impacts of expansion of Heathrow airport, the second one, dated 16 January 2009, related to the Secretary of State's decisions on Heathrow which he announced to Parliament on 15 January 2009.

Heathrow Airport: Finance

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) whether the Government plans to provide guarantees in relation to the financing of construction of a third runway at Heathrow; [252158]

(2) what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of construction of a third runway at Heathrow. [252159]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 28 January 2009]: The Government will not be providing guarantees for the financing of the construction of a third runway at Heathrow. The financing of new infrastructure at Heathrow airport is a matter for the airport operator, subject to economic regulation.

Heathrow is a designated airport for the purposes of price control. These controls are set by the independent regulator the Civil Aviation Authority. Part IV of the 1986 Airports Act requires the CAA, when setting price controls, to (among other things)

> 'encourage investment in new facilities at airports in time to satisfy anticipated demands by the users of such airports.'

Heathrow Airport: National Policy Statements

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he plans to publish a national policy statement on expansion of Heathrow Airport. [252657]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have stated our intention to publish a national policy statement on airports based on the Air Transport White Paper, which satisfies the requirements set out in the Planning Act.

Heathrow Airport: Planning Permission

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether a planning application for a third runway at Heathrow would fall to be decided by the Infrastructure Planning Commission. [252656]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The decision to submit a planning application for a third runway at Heathrow and the timing of such an application are matters for the airport operator. The Government envisage that the Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC) will be established and able to start giving advice to potential applicants this autumn and ready to begin receiving applications from spring 2010. Whether or not the IPC would act as the decision maker on such an application is also dependent on the availability of a designated national policy statement on airports, which is planned for publication in draft by 2011.

Humber Bridge: Tolls

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much revenue has been generated by tolls on the Humber Bridge in each year since its opening; and if he will make a statement. [251842]

Paul Clark: The following table sets out the revenue generated by tolls on the Humber Bridge each year since its opening in 1982.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will estimate the number of people exempt from Humber Bridge tolls; and if he will make a statement. [252052]

Paul Clark: There are 11,500 individuals registered for exemption from tolls at the Humber Bridge.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will consider the merits of holding an inquiry into the application to revise tolls charged at the south bank of the River Humber; and if he will make a statement. [253767]

Paul Clark: The inquiry will open at 10 am on 3 March 2009 at the Willerby Manor hotel, Hull. The location is a matter for the Humber Bridge Board.

Local Government: Transport

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to encourage local authorities to include plans to improve urban design and regeneration in their next local transport plans. [253192]

Paul Clark: A consultation on the draft Local Transport Plan (LTP) guidance for 2011 onwards was published on 18 December 2008. The guidance sets out the importance of the Department for Transport's strategy, 'Delivering a Sustainable Transport System' (DaSTS), in providing a framework for LTPs. Good urban design and regeneration are important elements in addressing the goals set out in DaSTS, particularly those on Quality of Life and Equality of Opportunity, respectively. We would expect local authorities appropriately to address these issues in their local transport plans.

On urban design, local authorities have been directed towards key policy documents and best practice in the Policy and Best Practice Handbook, published alongside the consultation.

On regeneration, the Department continues to work closely with colleagues in the Department for Communities and Local Government to align local transport planning with the emerging regeneration framework.

LTP guidance is out for consultation until 9 April 2009. The Department would welcome any comments to consider for full guidance, which we expect to publish in summer 2009.

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost of his Department's contracts with press monitoring services was in each of the last five years. [251264]

Mr. Hoon: The following table lists organisations that provided media monitoring services to the Department for Transport in each of the last three financial years and the cost. Comparable information for 2003-04 and 2004/05 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

			£000

Merseyrail: Park and Ride

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many park and ride spaces serving the Merseyrail network there were in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [253188]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold this information. Full details of station parking facilities are on the Merseyrail website at:

http://www.merseyrail.org or are available from Merseyrail, Rail House, Lord Nelson Street, Liverpool L1 1JF.

Merseytravel is undertaking improvements to and expansion of park and ride services across Merseyside as part of its local transport plan.

Motor Vehicles: Insurance

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what requirement there is for insurance of vehicles in storage or under repair and declared under statutory off-road notifications regulations. [253478]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 2 February 2009]: Current legislation requires compulsory motor insurance against third party risk for the use of a vehicle on a road or other public place. There is no statutory requirement to insure vehicles in private storage or under repair and declared under statutory off-road notification (SORN).

We are consulting on proposals for a "Continuous Insurance Enforcement" scheme. Under the proposed scheme it would be an offence to keep a vehicle which has no valid insurance unless there is in place a valid SORN declaration. Those potentially uninsured will be identified by frequent comparison of the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's vehicle register and the motor insurance industry's database.

Newhaven Marine Railway Station

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on what date the last passenger train departed Newhaven Harbour Marine station. [249334]

Paul Clark: A passenger train service is still operating from Newhaven Marine station, but due to safety concerns at the station information is available advising passengers that they may call Southern's customer service team to arrange a replacement taxi or they may wish to walk the three minutes north to Newhaven Harbour station to catch alternative services.

Parking: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what restrictions exist on how local authorities may spend money raised from (a) on-street parking charges and (b) parking fines. [252955]

Paul Clark: Income from on-street parking charges and all penalty charges must only be used in accordance with section 55 (as amended) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act (RTRA) 1984.

Pedestrian Crossings

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what changes have been made to the guidance issued by his Department to local highways authorities on the design of pedestrian crossings since 2005. [253774]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport have not published any new or updated guidance on pedestrian crossings since 2005.

Guidance on the design of stand-alone pedestrian crossings (zebras, pelicans and puffins) is given in Local Transport Note (LTN) 1/95 "The Assessment of Pedestrian Crossings", and LTN 2/95 "The Design of Pedestrian Crossings". These are available free from the DFT website at www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/tpm/ltnotes/.

Guidance on the design of pedestrian facilities at traffic signal junctions is given in Traffic Advisory Leaflet 5/05 "Pedestrian Facilities at Signal-Controlled Junctions", published in 2005. This is also available free on the DFT website at:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/tpm/tal/.

Public Transport

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress he is making on increasing integration of public transport (a) timetables and (b) ticketing. [253185]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport is working with the industry to increase integration across different modes of public transport.

The Department's online journey planner, Transport Direct:

www.transportdirect.info provides comprehensive travel information and integrated journey plans for both public transport and car.

National Rail Enquiries also have a lead role in providing comprehensive timetabling information. They are currently updating their data to assist the public in planning their journey to and from the station, including adding timetable information for other modes of transport.

Station Travel Plans aim to provide the best access options to the station. The 24 pilot schemes currently running will consider rescheduling timetables to ensure better integration of public transport services.

The Department is also working with the industry to support this and other initiatives in integration across different modes of public transport.

Work is under way on an integrated ticketing strategy for England. This will cover buses, trains, coaches, taxis and parking and the intention is to publish a consultation paper in the late spring. Officials are currently meeting informally with key stakeholders to inform development of the consultation paper. However, there are a considerable number of integrated tickets already available. These include multi-modal tickets such as Travelcards in London, the, 'Kangaroo Ticket' in Nottingham and 'PlusBus', which provides a simple add-on bus option to rail tickets at either or both ends of a journey.

Railway Stations: Closures

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many manned railway stations have been permanently closed in each of the last five years. [251780]

Paul Clark: The following stations in England have closed in each of the last five years (closures in Scotland and Wales are a devolved matter):

	Station
2004	None
2005	Etruria
2006	Garston
	Silvertown
	North Woolwich
	West Ham, Canning Town, Custom House and Stratford Low Level[1]
2007	King's Cross Thameslink
2008	None

[1] National Rail platforms closed as part of the new DLR line from Stratford International to Canning Town.

Railway Stations: Merseyside

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps are being taken to improve standards of (a) seating, (b) shelter and (c) passenger facilities at rail stations in Merseyside. [253169]

Paul Clark: Stations in Merseyside are eligible for funding from the national stations improvement programme (NSIP) and the access for all programme. In particular, the national stations improvement programme can be used to provide improved seating, shelters and passenger facilities. On 23 January the Minister of State opened the newly refurbished Sandhills station, which benefited from funding under the access for all programme.

Railways: Fares

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will bring forward proposals to require the Association of Train Operating Companies to introduce railcards for persons over 25 years of age for train journeys (a) commencing and (b) ending outside South East England; and if he will make a statement. [252000]

Paul Clark: The Government have no present proposals to require the Association of Train Operating Companies to introduce any additional railcards on the National Rail network.

Railways: Finance

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding his Department has allocated for new railway infrastructure in each year since 1997 and in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [253313]

Paul Clark: Network Rail is responsible for investing in the majority of new railway infrastructure in the United Kingdom. The company is funded through a combination of direct grants from Government and track access charges levied on train operators.

Details of Government expenditure on the railway as a whole, as well as investment in rail by the rail industry are set out in "National Rail Trends", which is published by the Office of Rail Regulation. Copies of "National Rail Trends" are available in the Library of the House and on the ORR's website at:

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk

Details of the Government's plans for future investment in the railway years are set out in the White Paper "Delivering a Sustainable Railway", which was published and announced to Parliament on 24 July 2007. This can be found on the Department for Transport website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/about/strategy/whitepapers/whitepapercm7176/hitepapersustainablerailway1.pdf

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to establish a regional rail budget to allow local transport authorities to (a) re-open closed rail stations and (b) open new rail stations. [253605]

Paul Clark: There are no proposals to establish a regional rail budget. Regions can consider investment in rail schemes alongside other transport schemes when determining priorities in the use of their regional funding allocation (RFA).

Railways: Merseyside

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the average level of ridership on rail services in Merseyside in each of the last two years. [253190]

Paul Clark: Statistics on rail passenger numbers are published by the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) in the National Rail Trends Yearbook, which is available in the House Library, or from the ORR website:

www.rail-reg.gov.uk

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of trains in Merseyside ran no more than five minutes late in the last 12 months. [253191]

Paul Clark: In the last 12 months, 94.7 per cent. of trains operated by Merseyrail were no more than five minutes late at their destination.

Other companies provide train services in this area, but the Department for Transport does not hold information specific to Merseyside for these operators.

Railways: Standards

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his most recent assessment is of the performance of train operating companies against their targets; and if will make a statement. [253186]

Paul Clark: The public performance measure of rail punctuality has risen to 90.8 per cent. in January 2009, up 1.6 per cent. in only a year. Performance is now at its best since this measure was introduced in 2000-01.

Train operators' franchise agreements contain minimum performance standards, and actual results compared with these are monitored on a regular basis.

Railways: Yorkshire and the Humber

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which train service on the (a) Trans-Pennine and (b) Northern network was the most overcrowded in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [252689]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold this information.

Roads: Accidents

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance his Department has issued on the procedure to be followed by (a) police forces in England and Wales and (b) prosecutors in England and Wales in seeking to obtain access to data stored on vehicle data recording devices when investigating the causes of road traffic collisions; and if he will make a statement. [253093]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has issued no guidance concerning access to data stored in vehicle data recording devices whether for accident investigation or any other purpose.

The fitting and use of electronic data recorders was the subject of debate during the passage of the Road Safety Bill.

Calls for data recorders were not adopted into the Road Safety Bill. It was noted that the subject was under discussion in the international arena and Government believed that this was the most appropriate forum for discussions about this technology.

Transport: Crosby

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much his Department has spent on improving the transport infrastructure in Crosby since 2003; [253181]

(2) what (a) grants and (b) other assistance his Department has provided for the improvement of transport infrastructure in Crosby since 2003. [253187]

Paul Clark: Allocations provided by the Department for Transport to the Metropolitan borough of Sefton, which covers the Crosby constituency, since 2003 are shown in the following table. This funding is not ring-fenced and local authorities have discretion to spend their allocations in line with their priorities.

Sefton

2008-09	2.840	1.914	1.051	5.805

2003-04	3.550	4.549	1.686	9.785

[1] Other funding covers revenue detrunking and bridge strengthening on the primary route network.

Sefton also benefits from funding support provided to the Merseyside Passenger Transport Authority. Revenue expenditure on transport is generally supported through the Department for Communities and Local Government's formula grant.

The Department spends funds on the strategic road network through the Highways Agency (HA). The HA's reporting systems do not record actual expenditure for local authority areas; expenditure is recorded by project and activity. Estimates are compiled for regional expenditure to supplement data reported in the Department's annual report.

Likewise, funding for other transport projects in England, such as rail projects, is not generally available on the basis of local authority boundaries.

Transport: Luton

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department and its predecessors have spent on (a) transport and (b) transport infrastructure in the Luton Borough Council area in each year since 1997. [252645]

Paul Clark: In addition to funds for specific major schemes, the Department for Transport allocates integrated transport block and highways maintenance funding to local transport authorities for general capital investment in transport. This funding is not ring-fenced and local authorities have discretion to spend their allocations in line with their priorities. Allocations provided to Luton borough council since 1997 are shown in the following table.

£ million

1998-99	1.449		—	0.500	1.949
1997-98	3.152		—	2.300	5.452

Revenue expenditure on transport is generally supported through the Department for Communities and Local Government's formula grant.

The Department spends funds on the strategic road network through the Highways Agency (HA). The HA's reporting systems do not record actual expenditure for local authority areas; expenditure is recorded by project and activity. Estimates are compiled for regional expenditure to supplement data reported in the Department's annual report.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Compulsory Purchase

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for the Vale of Clwyd of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 360W, on compulsory purchase, (1) how many compulsory purchase orders have been submitted for land for traveller sites since 2006, according to the casework management database; and how many have been (a) upheld and (b) rejected; [251903]

(2) how many years' data are held on the casework management database on compulsory purchase orders; and whether it contains data in respect of the whole of England. [251904]

Mr. Iain Wright: The casework management database contains basic information from 2004-05 about Housing and Planning CPOs for England submitted to Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for confirmation such as the number of cases dealt with, the number opposed or unopposed, the number confirmed or refused and the CPO power used. It holds similar data about CPOs made by regional development agencies and the former English Partnerships. However, the database is not able to identify whether a CPO had been made for the purposes of acquiring land for a travellers' site.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what categories of records (a) her Department, (b) the Planning Inspectorate and (c) Government regional offices hold on compulsory purchases of land since 2006. [251910]

Mr. Iain Wright: For compulsory purchase orders submitted for confirmation to the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government since 2006, the Department holds correspondence on some cases that were dealt with by the Government offices for the regions (GORs). The Planning Inspectorate holds basic information on CPOs for casework management purposes along with electronic copies of Inspectors' reports. The GORs have retained their casework files or electronic records.

Council Housing: Sales

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many completed Social HomeBuy transactions there had been at the latest date for which figures are available. [252305]

Mr. Iain Wright: Social HomeBuy is a voluntary demand-led scheme introduced in April 2006. The scheme enables tenants of participating local authorities and housing associations to buy a minimum 25 per cent. share up to 100 per cent. in their rented home at a discount. Up to the end of December 2008, over 290 households have taken up this opportunity to access home ownership and stay in their communities, including those tenants who did not previously have an opportunity to purchase their current home.

Social HomeBuy is one of a suite of options designed to help people to buy a home. Since 1997 the Government have helped more than 110,000 households into home ownership through shared ownership and shared equity schemes, with social tenants having first priority.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of households to be assisted under the Rent to HomeBuy scheme in each year; and how much funding has been allocated to the scheme in 2008-09. [252458]

Mr. Iain Wright: Rent to HomeBuy is a demand-led scheme aimed at addressing current market conditions. The Government have not set any specific targets for the number of households to be assisted or any limit on the number of homes that will be funded. Our aspiration is to help 75,000 households into low cost home ownership by 2010-11, including through Rent to HomeBuy.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes have been sold under each HomeBuy scheme in each month since their commencement. [252503]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Ludlow (Mr. Dunne) today to PQs 251709, 251710, 251711 and 251712, which provides some of the information requested. Also, in response to the hon. Member's question which was answered on 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1270W, tables have been deposited in the Library of the House which show completions by month and location local authority for each HomeBuy scheme in 2006-07 and 2007-08 through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing programme.

Demolition

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government under what circumstances planning permission is required to demolish a building. [252288]

Mr. Iain Wright: The demolition of buildings constituting development is permitted development under Part 31 of Schedule 2 to the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, so planning permission is not generally required. Permitted development rights do not apply where a building has become unsafe or otherwise uninhabitable by deliberate action or neglect by the owner, so planning permission is necessary in such circumstances. Where the demolition of a building is required as part of a redevelopment for which planning permission is sought, details of the demolition should be included in the planning application, and any planning permission granted for the development should include permission to demolish the building. The demolition of listed buildings, buildings in conservation areas, and buildings designated as scheduled monuments, is not classed as development but is subject to consent under separate consent regimes.

Departmental Accountancy

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons there is an entry for Overtime Ministers in her Department's Chart of Accounts 2008-09. [251790]

Mr. Khan: The account was created when the accounting system was implemented, but it is not in use.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in departmental buildings in the last 12 months. [252368]

Mr. Khan: Expenditure from 1 January 2008 to date has been £7,257.60. During this period further works to the value of £7,705.52 have been undertaken, for which we await invoices.

Departmental Expenditure Limit

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the written ministerial statement of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 52-7WS, on the departmental expenditure limit (2008-09), to what types of data transfer the transfer of £1 million from the local government online programme to the Department for Work and Pensions is related. [252148]

Mr. Khan: The £1 million was transferred from the local government online programme to support the roll-out of the Government Connect Secure Extranet (GCSx), as part of a financial arrangement between CLG and DWP, following the transfer of the Government Connect programme to DWP in April 2008.

GCSx is intended to provide the technical platform to enable the transfer of secure interactions such as housing and council tax benefit processing between local authorities and central Government Departments.

Departmental Information Officers

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 29 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1139-40W, on departmental information officers, if she will place in the Library a copy of each of the media summaries produced by her Department from the last week for which copies are available. [252799]

Mr. Khan: The media summaries referred to in the previous answer to the parliamentary question by the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) comprise short, informal notes of relevant press coverage of the day, which are designed for internal departmental purposes and circulated by e-mail only. There are therefore no plans to place copies in the Library.

Departmental Manpower

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her plans are for the number of staff employed by her Department in the next three years. [251793]

Mr. Khan: Our overall administration budget, from which most but not all of our staff are funded, is falling by 5 per cent. real year on year. We aim to maximise the efficiency with which we deploy our resources, and in doing so we would expect some reduction in staff numbers in the years ahead.

Departmental Mass Media

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 29 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1139-40W, on departmental information officers, which external newspaper cutting and broadcast monitoring services her Department subscribes to; and at what cost in the last 12 months. [252801]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for South-West Surrey (Mr. Hunt) on 29 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1140-41W.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether staff in her Department's division handling eco-towns have received bonus payments in the last 24 months. [252785]

Mr. Khan: Given the small number of staff in the division running the eco-towns programme, it would be a breach of confidentiality and therefore inappropriate to give details.

Derelict Land

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hectares of derelict land and buildings there were in each Government Office region according to the National Land Use database in the most recent year for which figures are available. [251911]

Mr. Iain Wright: The amount of derelict land and buildings in each region in England for 2007 can be found in table 14.1.2 of the publication "Previously-developed land that may be available for Development: England 2007".

Disabled Facilities Grants: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many payments her Department made to Castle Point borough council under the Disabled Facilities Grant scheme in each of the last five years; and how much was spent on such payments in each of those years. [251057]

Mr. Iain Wright: Disabled Facilities Grant (DFG) is a mandatory grant used to provide adaptations to the homes of disabled people. Local authorities in England report their annual Disabled Facilities Grant number of recipients to Communities and Local Government through the Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA). Information for 2003-04 to 2007-08 is provided in the following table. The following table sets out the numbers and Government allocation of disabled facilities grant for Castle Point borough council:

	Number of grant recipients	£
2003-04	36	90,000
2004-05	31	90,000
2005-06	55	89,000
2006-07	51	140,000
2007-08	40	136,000

Eco-Towns

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Mid-Worcestershire, of 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 948W, on eco-towns, which Minister took the decision to make the payment to Shelter to fund the document on eco-towns. [252715]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 20 November 2008, Official Report, column 760W.

Energy Performance Certificates

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether a property with a power shower is capable of achieving Level 6 of the Code for Sustainable Homes. [252301]

Mr. Iain Wright: It is possible to have a power shower in a code level 6 home. The Code for Sustainable Homes is outcome based; it does not specify particular technologies or solutions. A code level 6 home must achieve a projected average water consumption of 80 litres per person per day, which is assessed through the code water calculator methodology. This approach allows greater flexibility for the designer as it enables them to decide which fixtures and solutions to use to achieve this target in each location.

Fire Services: First Aid

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many fire authorities participate in co-responding schemes enabling firefighters to administer first aid emergency treatment. [253748]

Mr. Khan: At the end of 2007, the latest period for which we have verified figures, there were 18 fire and rescue services in England running co-responding schemes.

Green Belt

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1267-8W, on greenbelt, if she will publish the attached table referred to. [252166]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table has been provided.

Land changing to developed use[1] within designated 1997 Green Belt, by Region, 1996 to 2003

[1] Includes sites changing from one developed use to another, as well as those changing from undeveloped to developed uses.

[2] Estimates from 1999 are considered to be not robust, hence absolute numbers are not provided.

Notes:

1. The data in the table above are based on records received from Ordnance Survey up to June 2007.
2. There is a time-lag between land use change occurring and it being recorded, because some changes can take a few years to be recorded, therefore data are constantly being updated. Please see LUCS Guidance 3.2 for more information.
3. This table shows sites that are within land designated as Green Belt in 1997 irrespective of whether or not the land was designated as Green Belt at the time of change.

Green Belt: Planning Permission

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1144W, on green belt: planning permission, what the (a) location, (b) local authority and (c) type of development was of each of the 15 planning applications that have been called in and then approved since 2002 which involve green belt development. [252795]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table sets out the location, local authority and development type of each of the 15 planning applications that have been called in and approved since 1 April 2002 which involve green belt development. Since the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles), 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1144W, there has been one further such application and details of this are also set out in the table.

Home Responsibility Payment

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent steps the Government has taken to raise awareness of the home responsibility payment. [251025]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I have been asked to reply.

Home Responsibilities Protection (HRP), introduced in 1978, is not a payment but a scheme to protect the future state pension entitlement of parents and other carers who are not in paid employment or who do not earn enough to gain a qualifying year for state pension through national insurance contributions. It works by taking away years of caring responsibilities from the number of qualifying years needed for a full basic state pension. Since 2002, it has also given entitlement to additional state pension in some circumstances.

Over 99 per cent. of people become eligible for Home Responsibilities Protection automatically through the award of child benefit for a child under 16. Most people who satisfy the conditions for receiving HRP as a carer for a disabled person also satisfy the conditions for carer's allowance as these are very similar. Since recipients of carer's allowance are credited with national insurance contributions, they do not normally need HRP.

There is publicity about HRP in a variety of leaflets concerning pensions and carers available in Jobcentre Plus offices, from the Pension, Disability and Carers Service and other outlets and on Government websites to alert the remaining carers to the need to make an application. Deficiency Notices issued by HMRC following the end of a tax year in which people have not gained a qualifying year for pension purposes also give advice about HRP and credits. There was an extensive national publicity campaign in early 2006 to make carers aware that they might need to apply for HRP in order to gain additional state pension.

The Pensions Act 2007 introduced a comprehensive package of reforms to help more carers build better pensions. These include the replacement of HRP with a system of weekly national insurance credits for parents and carers which will build up entitlement to basic and additional state pension and will extend pension protection to persons undertaking lower levels of caring. We are working to ensure that people are aware of the whole package of state pension reforms we will introduce from 2010. We want to reach all those who may be entitled to the new credits whether they have been in contact with the benefit system or not and will continue to work with interested parties to determine how best we deliver it.

Homes and Communities Agency

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the policy of the Homes and Communities Agency is on the circumstances in which it will use its powers to act as a local planning authority. [252180]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) currently only has delegated planning powers in relation to development control in the Milton Keynes Urban Development Area (UDA). These powers were inherited from English Partnerships and were originally granted in order to provide a coordinated approach to the planning and delivery of growth and investment in the Milton Keynes UDA.

Housing Revenue Accounts

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the expected (a) level of Housing Revenue Account Subsidy and (b) number of households in social housing is in each local authority area in England for (i) 2008-09 and (ii) 2009-10. [253237]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table gives figures for the level of Housing Revenue Account Subsidy for each local authority in England in 2008-09.

Subsidy figures for 2009-10 are not available at present as we are still to receive 2009-10 claim forms from local authorities.

We do not collect information by household for social housing in local authority areas for Housing Revenue Account Subsidy purposes. The table includes the number of dwellings for each local authority on 1 April 2007.

Housing: Construction

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to improve accessibility to plots of land for use by self-builders. [252933]

Mr. Iain Wright: Applications for self-build development will be considered by the local planning authority in line with the policies in their local development framework. There are no plans to issue further policy or guidance. In order to provide information about what surplus public sector sites are available for development the Homes and Communities Agency is proposing to establish a small sites programme whereby developers and self-builders will be made aware about the release of former public sector sites on to the market. This programme is not yet fully developed but in advance of this details for some small sites to be auctioned in mid February by the Homes and Communities Agency will be released on their website shortly. Details of small sites recently taken to the market by the Homes and Communities Agency's predecessor, English Partnership, can be accessed through this web address:

http://www.englishpartnerships.co.uk/smallsites.htm

Housing: Sales

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 592W, on housing sales, what the terms of reference of the working group on condition information are; and what the group's membership is. [251885]

Mr. Iain Wright: The membership and terms of reference of the working group are still being finalised. I will place a copy of this information in the House once this work is complete.

Land Use: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information her Department holds on discussions (1) which have taken place between (a) officers, (b) Members and (c) actual or potential developers under the auspices of Castle Point Borough Council and Essex County Council in respect of the building of (i) a new link road for Cornelius Vermuyden School and (ii) other development of land west of the school; and if she will make a statement; [250950]

(2) between (a) officers, (b) Members and (c) actual potential developers under the auspices of Castle Point Borough Council and Essex County Council on planning developments on Castle View School playing fields; and if she will make a statement. [250951]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Secretary of State Communities and Local Government, holds no information on discussions which have taken place between (a) officer, (b) Members and (c) actual or potential developers under the auspices of Castle Point borough council and Essex county council on planning developments on Castle View school playing fields.

The Secretary of State is however aware of a petition dated 7 October 2008 submitted by the hon. Gentleman, requesting that the House of Commons urge the Government to press Castle Point borough councillors to vote against the plan to sell off a Canvey Island school playing field for development.

Local Government: Private Finance Initiative

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities have applied for PFI contracts in each of the last five years; and what the value of each of these contracts was. [253241]

Mr. Khan: Central Government support has been agreed for the following number of local authority PFI projects (including under Building Schools for the Future contracts) in each of the last five years:

	Number
2004-05	29
2005-06	15
2006-07	16
2007-08	28
2008-09	18

Records of project capital values supported by central government in the form of PFI credits are updated regularly. These are available on the CLG website at:

www.local.communities.gov.uk/pfi/lapfilist.xls

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what cars of what engine cubic capacity are (a) owned and (b) leased by her Department. [250029]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W, regarding cars provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency.

The Department itself does not own or lease any cars. When cars are needed for official purposes they are hired from the Department's approved supplier or from the Government Car and Dispatch Agency.

Ordnance Survey: Datasets

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what datasets Ordnance Survey collates on (a) access and (b) proximity to public transport. [252304]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ordnance Survey datasets are primarily topographic in nature, as they record the location of the physical features of the natural and man-made environment. Depending upon the scale and specification of the dataset, they contain details of the topographic alignment of roads, railways, tramways, canals and navigable waterways which may be used by public transport, together with the position of features such as coach, bus and railway stations, airport complexes, and on large scale mapping bus shelters.

Ordnance Survey does not explicitly hold, maintain or provide datasets relating to qualitative information on public transport routes or access to public transport, though some information of this nature may be inferred from the topographic data.

Ordnance Survey: Photography

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Ordnance Survey uses (a) aerial and (b) satellite photography to develop its (i) 1:10,000 raster, (ii) 1:50,000 raster, (iii) 1:25,000 raster, (iv) Boundary Line, (v) Code Point with Polygons, (vi) Master Map Topography Layer and (vii) Address Layer 2 products. [252295]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ordnance Survey uses aerial imagery to assist in revising the topographic geometry contained within the National Topographic Database (NGD), at nominal scales of 1:1250 in urban areas, 1:2500 in rural areas and 1:10,000 in mountain and moorland areas. NGD feeds the OS MasterMap® Topography Layer dataset, while revision of raster data at scales of 1:10,000, 1:25,000 and 1:50,000 is derived from NGD in whole or part. Boundary-Line™, Code-Point® with polygons and OS MasterMap® Address Layer 2 do not involve information derived from Aerial imagery.

Ordnance Survey has not used satellite imagery imagery.

Planning Permission

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1152W, on planning permission, what changes to her Department's policy on call-ins are under consideration for inclusion in the new Direction. [252788]

Mr. Iain Wright: A consultation on the review of call-in directions was carried out between 7 January 2008 and 31 March 2008. This set out proposals aimed at reducing the number of planning applications automatically referred to Government for consideration of whether they should be 'called in' for ministerial decision by consolidating the existing directions into one new direction, with some changes to reflect current policy, specifically:

Deleting the requirement to refer cases of over 150 houses;

Deleting the requirement to refer cases of local authorities developing their own land, or being the applicant for development;

Deleting the requirement to refer cases which would significantly prejudice the implementation of the development plan's policies and proposals;

Retaining the requirement to refer applications involving more than 5,000 square metres of gross retail, leisure, office or mixed commercial floor space but only for proposals on sites in edge or out of centre locations and which are not in accordance with an up to date development plan document; and extending this requirement to include some proposals for increases of existing floor space of over 2,500 square metres, where the total would then exceed 5,000 square metres;

Introducing a new requirement to refer proposals which may have a significant adverse impact on the outstanding universal value and significance of a World Heritage Site or its setting;

All other requirements remain unchanged.

Further details of the Government's proposals can be found in the consultation document which is available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/callindirections.

Copies of the consultation document have been placed in the Library of the House. The Government are in the process of analysing the responses received to the consultation with a view to publishing a new direction in the spring.

Planning Permission: Appeals

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 30 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1287-8W, on planning permission, what guidance has been given to the Planning Inspectorate on how a planning appeal should be considered if a materially relevant Planning Policy Statement or Planning Policy Guidance note has changed in the period after the original planning application was considered by the local planning authority, with particular reference to whether the previous Planning Policy Statement or Guidance or the new version should be applied when assessing the merits of the appeal; and whether the same principles will apply to national policy statements which are revised. [252740]

Mr. Iain Wright: No such guidance has been issued.

In relation to an appeal under section 78 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, the Secretary of State has a power under Section 79(1) of the same Act to deal with an application as if it had been made to her in the first instance, which means that she can take account of any new policy which has come into force since the local planning authority made its decision. An appeal will be determined on the basis of policy which exists at the time the appeal is being determined.

Planning Permission: Caravan Sites

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful appeals against refusal of planning permission for unauthorised traveller sites were considered by (i) the Secretary of State and (ii) the Planning Inspectorate in each year since 1997; [251866]

(2) with reference to the answer to Lord Avebury of 25 November 2008, Official Report, House of Lords, column WA284, on Gypsies and Travellers, how many appeals against refusal of planning permission for authorised traveller sites (a) she and (b) the Planning Inspectorate considered in each year since 1997 for which figures are available; and how many were (i) refused and (ii) upheld. [251935]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information in relation to planning appeals against refusal of planning permission for authorised or unauthorised traveller sites is not held centrally and could only be collated at disproportionate cost.

Data are available on numbers of planning appeals determined by the Secretary of State and the Inspectorate relating to both Gypsies and Travellers with effect from 2002 to 2008 and their outcome. This is shown in calendar years in the following table. Detailed data on Gypsies and Travellers are only available from 2002 with data for Secretary of State appeals only available from 1 April 2002.

Planning Permission: Hammersmith and Fulham

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what grounds she called in the planning application for the G Gate Hotel in Olympia in the London borough of Hammersmith and Fulham. [252723]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Secretary of State's reasons for calling in the application are set out in paragraph 4 of her call-in letter of 23 October 2008, a copy of which has been deposited in the Libraries of the House and on the Government Office for London's website.

Planning: Mining

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to introduce a requirement for a 500 metre buffer zone around opencast mines through the Minerals Planning Guidance. [253279]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's White Paper on Energy "Meeting the Energy Challenge" (2007) indicates that making best use of UK Energy resources, including coal reserves, where it is economically viable and environmentally acceptable to do so, contributes to the Government's goal of security of energy supplies. Planning Policy for coal extraction in England (whether open cast or deep mine) is set out in Minerals Policy Guidance Note 3 "Coal Mining and Colliery Spoil Disposal" (MPG3) published in 1999. Consistent with the broader policy in the White Paper, this sets a presumption against such development unless the proposal meets specific tests in terms of environmental acceptability or the provision of local and community benefits which clearly outweigh the likely impacts. The Government believe that these tests are sufficient to ensure that the environmental effects of opencast coal mining are properly considered in the planning process. There is no current intention to review policy in MPG3.

The full text of MPG3 is set out on my Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/mineralsplanningguidance2

Planning: Terrorism

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 1 February 2008, Official Report, column 696W, on planning, what guidance her Department has published on planning policy and counter-terrorism. [252499]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government has not yet published any guidance on planning policy and counter-terrorism. However, we are developing joint guidance in partnership with the Home Office and working with other key stakeholders to produce a supplement to the existing guidance "Safer Places: The Planning System and Crime Prevention", which will cover counter-terrorism issues. We expect to publish this document for public consultation later this year.

Regional Planning and Development: South East

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for a partial review of the South East Regional Spatial Strategy. [252744]

Mr. Khan: The South East England regional assembly are currently undertaking two partial reviews of the regional spatial strategy. The first is in relation to the apportionment of primary land-won aggregates. And the second in relation to providing place to live for Gypsies, Travellers and Travelling Show People in the south east.

Both of these are due to be submitted to the Secretary of State for public examination later this year.

Regional Planning and Development: Yorkshire and the Humber

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities in Yorkshire (a) have and (b) have not received funding from Growth Area Fund programmes; and how much each local authority has received in each wave of the programme. [253172]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are two Growth Points in Yorkshire that are eligible to receive funding from the Growth Fund:

The Doncaster and South Yorkshire Growth Point includes the authorities of Barnsley, Doncaster, Rotherham and Sheffield. They have been allocated £250,000 in 2008-09, £3,784,791 in 2009-10 and £5,933,131 in 2010-11.

The Leeds City Region Growth Point includes the authorities of Barnsley, Calderdale and Wakefield. They have been allocated £200,000 in 2008-09, £2,476,060 in 2009-10 and £3,881,723 in 2010-11. The authority partnership is co-ordinated by Leeds as the convener of the Leeds City Region.

Barnsley is represented in both Growth Points, as 50 per cent. of the proposed growth will lie in each area.

As funding from the Growth Fund is unringfenced, it is paid to the Growth Point's nominated lead authority for the payment of grant. It is for the Growth Point authorities to prioritise how the funding is divided at the local level.

East Riding, Kingston upon Hull, Craven, Hambleton, Harrogate, North Yorkshire, Richmondshire, Ryedale, Scarborough, Selby, York, Bradford and Kirklees are not part of a Growth Point and so not eligible for this funding.

Regional Spatial Strategies

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what timetable she has set for the agreement of each regional spatial strategy. [251859]

Mr. Iain Wright: The regional spatial strategies for the following regions are expected to be issued by the Secretary of State as follows:

Spring 2009: East Midlands
Spring 2009: South East
Summer 2009: South West
Spring 2010: West Midlands (phase 2)
Autumn 2011: West Midlands (phase 3)

Four RSSs have already been issued by the Secretary of State and phase 1 of the West Midlands RSS as follows:

15 January 2008: West Midlands (phase 1) Black Country sub-regional plan
12 May 2008: East of England
21 May 2008: Yorkshire and Humber
15 July 2008: North East
30 September 2008: North West

Right to Buy Scheme

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many housing association tenants have (a) the right to buy and (b) a preserved right to buy. [252627]

Mr. Iain Wright: Secure tenants of non-charitable housing associations are eligible for the Right to Buy scheme. The number of such tenants is 18,599.

Former tenants of local authorities who have transferred with their homes to housing associations since 1988 retain a Preserved Right to Buy. The number of such tenants is 1,117,827.

Rural Areas

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to respond to the hon. Member for Truro and St Austell's report on rural economy and affordable housing; and if she will make a statement. [253627]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government expect to make their formal response to the Taylor Review shortly.

Shared Ownership Schemes

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how much funding has been made available to each local authority for shared ownership schemes in each month since May 2008; [251709]

(2) how many homes have been sold in each local authority through shared ownership schemes in each month since May 2008; [251710]

(3) how much funding has been made available to each local authority for equity loan schemes in each month since their introduction; [251711]

(4) how many homes have been sold in each local authority through equity loan schemes in each month since their introduction. [251712]

Mr. Iain Wright: Tables have been deposited in the Library showing grant provided through the Homes and Communities Agency's Affordable Housing Programme to their investment partners by month for equity loan and shared ownership schemes by local authority area from April 2008 to December 2008.

Tables showing completions through the Homes and Communities Agency's Affordable Housing Programme by month for equity loan and shared ownership schemes by local authority from April 2008 to December 2008 have also been deposited in the Library.

There is no direct comparison between spend and completions especially on shared ownership schemes. Shared ownership scheme payments are made in tranches usually on start on site and at practical completion. For equity loan schemes, the payment is made on completion of the scheme as these are generally open market purchases. The figures cover the current open market homebuy equity loan scheme which commenced in April 2008. Tables have been deposited in the Library of the House which show completions by month and local authority location for each homebuy scheme in 2006-07 and 2007-08 through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme.

Social Rented Housing

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect of the economic turndown on the number of new social homes to be provided through the section 106 process in the next 12 months. [251727]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ministers and officials have been meeting housing associations and the National Housing Federation to discuss provision of affordable housing in the current housing market downturn, including the impact of a potential downturn on section 106 activity. In response, we have taken a number of steps to encourage delivery including allowing the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) increased flexibility on levels of grant funding to support development. The HCA will assess each bid on a case by case basis to ensure it meets its funding criteria, including value for money requirements.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of new social housing has been provided under section 106 agreements in the last 12 months. [251728]

Mr. Iain Wright: In 2007-08, 51 per cent. (14,860) out of a total of 29,370 new homes for social rent were provided under section 106 agreements.

Stamp Duties

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 1 May 2008, Official Report columns 632-3W on stamp duties, how many of the 200 planned zero-carbon homes near Bristol have been built; and how many qualified for zero per cent. stamp duty on zero-carbon homes. [252426]

Mr. Iain Wright: The site at Hanham Hall near Bristol is the first to be developed under the carbon challenge which the Homes and Communities Agency is delivering on behalf of Communities and Local Government. A planning application to build 195 homes at this site was submitted to the local planning authority in December 2008. Subject to consent being granted we anticipate that construction will start on the site before the end of this year with the first homes being completed in 2010.

The brief for the carbon challenge requires that the new homes must achieve level 6 of the Code for Sustainable Homes. In keeping with the brief, Barratt Developments Plc, the preferred bidders for the Hanham Hall site, have designed the homes to meet the requirements of the definition of net zero carbon in the Code for Sustainable Homes. We therefore envisage that all 195 homes will qualify for stamp duty tax relief in due course.

Tenant Services Authority: Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the budget for the Tenant Services Authority is for its first full year of operation. [251800]

Mr. Iain Wright: The budget available to the Tenant Services Authority for 2009-10 is £35.573 million.

Tenant Services Authority: Publicity

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the cost of the Tenant Services Authority's pink camper van campaign. [251733]

Mr. Iain Wright: The TSA is the successor (since 1 December 2008) to the Housing Corporation as the regulator of housing associations. It has been set 10 statutory objectives relating to the supply, quality and management of social housing, protection for and involvement of tenants in estate management, the financial viability and proper conduct of HAs, and 'light touch' regulation.

The Housing and Regeneration Act 2008 gives it powers to set standards for the nature, extent and quality of accommodation, and facilities and services provided by HAs, and in respect of the management of HAs' financial and other affairs. It is expected that these powers will be brought into effect early in 2010.

The TSA is therefore undertaking wide-ranging public consultation in 2009 on how to exercise these powers. It has launched a 'National Conversation' and is encouraging landlords all over England to engage their tenants in discussion. The TSA is also holding its own events and activities. These include hiring a camper van fitted out with a video camera for nine days, which has proved to be an effective way of speaking to tenants who would not otherwise give their views through more traditional consultation events. The cost of hiring this facility is £14,816.00 plus VAT.

Travelling People

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many unauthorised Traveller caravans were recorded in each Government Office region in the summer of each year since 1997. [252289]

Mr. Iain Wright: The bi-annual count of Gypsy and Traveller caravans, undertaken in January and July, records the number of caravans on unauthorised sites by each Government Office region. Copies of the caravan count are available in the Library of the House.

Zero Carbon Delivery Unit

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 369W, on Zero Carbon Delivery Unit, if she will place in the Library a copy of the business plan for the zero-carbon hub. [252149]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department expects to receive a copy of the final business plan soon and will arrange for a copy to be placed in the Library when it is received.

JUSTICE

Penalty Notices

12. Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the percentage of the sum imposed in fines under penalty notices issued in 2007 and 2008 which has not been paid. [253533]

Mr. Malik: Approximately 52 per cent. of offenders given PNDs pay at the first opportunity. Apart from a small percentage who challenge the PND in court, the remainder are registered as fines at one and a half times the amount and enforced in the normal way.

Overall, [illegible] per cent. of the value of fines imposed is collected.

Use of Restraint: Young Offenders

14. Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will bring forward proposals to end the use of restraint on young offenders in secure accommodation. [253535]

Mr. Hanson: It is the Government's intention to ensure that restraint is only used as a last resort. The recent review, published on 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 84WS, set out the revised policy on the use of restraint.

Prison Places

15. James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many new prison places he plans to provide by 31 December 2009. [253536]

21. Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many new prison places he plans to provide by 31 December 2009. [253543]

Mr. Hanson: In total, around 2,150 new places will be provided in 2009; 180 have been provided to date.

Civil Legal Aid

16. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his policy is on piloting new ways to provide civil legal aid. [253537]

Mr. Malik: Pilots can provide important evidence about the effectiveness and cost of new arrangements for legal aid. We are seeking to expand our ability to conduct pilots through the Coroners and Justice Bill.

Titan Prisons

17. Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he expects construction of the first Titan prison to begin. [253538]

Mr. Hanson: We plan to open the first prison cluster on a phased basis from December 2012. Construction will commence around two years prior to this.

Custody Licence Scheme

18. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to end the end of custody licence scheme. [253539]

Mr. Straw: I refer the hon. Member to my answer to the hon. Member for Clwyd West (Mr. Jones) at Justice oral questions today.

Court Cells: Bournemouth

19. Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will allow Bournemouth's court cells to be used by Bournemouth police to detain suspected offenders. [253540]

Mr. Hanson: The Dorset police have been given permission to use the cells at Bournemouth magistrates courts at weekends during peak summer months pending completion of their own custody suite.

Domestic Violence

20. Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps his Department is taking to support during judicial processes those who have undergone domestic violence. [253542]

Bridget Prentice: Since 1997 the Government have been working to ensure that all sections of domestic violence law support and protect all victims of domestic abuse. In 2004 the Government passed the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act which was the biggest overhaul of domestic violence law in 30 years

Aside from legislation, on a national level in criminal courts this has included practical system changes promoting a co-ordinated community response to domestic violence through a set of initiatives in and around the criminal justice agencies. This includes establishing 104 specialist domestic violence courts (SDVC) with a commitment to increase this to 128 courts by 2011. Linked to each SDVC is a dedicated independent domestic violence adviser service which provides invaluable support to victims of domestic violence and their families. Evidence shows that incidents of victimisation decrease and victims are less likely to withdraw from cases when this support is provided.

Forced Marriages

22. Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Forced Marriage (Civil Protection) Act 2007 in enabling the courts to prevent forced marriages. [253544]

Bridget Prentice: As the Forced Marriage (Civil Protection) Act 2007 was only implemented on 25 November 2008, it is too early to evaluate trends. 10 orders have been made since the introduction of the Act including one for the victim returned from Bangladesh. We are continuing to monitor the number of forced marriage protection orders made by the courts. We have asked the courts dealing with the Act to provide statistics on the number of orders they make.

British Statement of Values

23. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to consult on a British statement of values. [253545]

Mr. Wills: Since the publication of the Governance of Britain Green Paper in July 2007 we have been conducting an inclusive discussion on citizenship and the values that underpin what it means to be a member of UK society, through a series of online discussions, consultation toolkits and local events. We expect to continue this discussion as part of the proposed Green paper on a Bill of Rights and Responsibilities.

Magistrates Courts

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of differences between magistrates courts in their use of custody for remand and for sentences. [253523]

Mr. Malik: On 5 December 2007 we published a report on local variation in sentencing in England and Wales. The study describes geographic variation in custodial sentencing for the period 2003 to 2006 and the possible reasons for it. No similar assessment has been in relation to the use of custody for remand.

Custodial Sentences: Single Parents

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of the effects on dependent children of custodial sentences for single parents. [253534]

Mr. Malik: The Government recognises that this is an important issue, especially for the children of women offenders who are more likely to be single carers. It is one of the reasons why we commissioned the Corston Review on vulnerable women in the criminal justice system. The Government have made considerable progress in taking forward the recommendations from that review, as has been reported to this House by my ministerial colleague the member for Liverpool, Garston. We agree that more should be done and we are working closely with the Department for Children, Schools and Families to ensure services join-up to meet the needs of these vulnerable children.

Bail Accommodation and Support Service

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) offenders on home detention curfew and (b) defendants on bail have used the Bail Accommodation and Support Service since June 2007; [252832]

(2) in which local authority ward each Bail Accommodation and Support Service property is located. [252833]

Mr. Straw: The service commenced on 18 June 2007. Up to 26 January 2009, 1,073 offenders on Home Detention Curfew and 1,385 defendants on bail have been placed in the service. Of these 1,048 offenders on Home Detention Curfew and 1,292 defendants on bail have been provided with housing.

It is not our practice to publicise the precise whereabouts of the properties, which are the private rented homes of those living in them. When a property is brought into use the hon. Member in whose constituency it is located is advised of the local authority ward. The local authority is given the address and the opportunity to comment on its suitability before a property is brought into use. A list of constituencies and postcode areas was provided on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 911W in answer to the hon. Member for Arundel and South Downs (Nick Herbert).

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the running costs have been of the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS) in 2008-09; what budgets for CAFCASS have been fixed over the next two financial years; and if he will make a statement. [243873]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

The funding allocation for CAFCASS for the current and next two financial years is shown as follows. For this financial year, CAFCASS have received £78,311,528 of which £57,486,020 has been for staff costs.

Financial year	£
2008-09	114,855,000
2009-10	124,094,000
2010-11	132,822,000

Community Orders

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders receiving a community sentence in 2007 had (a) more than five, (b) more than 10, (c) more than 15, (d) more than 25 and (e) more than 100 previous convictions. [252835]

Mr. Hanson: The following table gives the previous criminal history of offenders sentenced to community orders in England and Wales in 2007. Information is not available in precisely the format requested. These figures are based on data published in chapter 6 of "Sentencing Statistics 2007" and count both previous convictions and previous cautions.

Persons sentenced to community sentences for indictable offences by previous criminal history, 2007

Number of previous convictions or cautions	Number of sentences
First time offenders	11,451
1-2 previous convictions/cautions	25,158
3-6 previous convictions/cautions	23,609
7-10 previous convictions/cautions	10,249
11-14 previous convictions/cautions	6,150
15 or more previous convictions/ cautions	13,651
Total number of offenders (100%)	90,268

These figures have been drawn from the police's administrative IT system, which, as with any large scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Further information can be found in chapter 6 of "Sentencing Statistics 2007" at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/sentencingannual.htm

Sentencing remains a matter for the court.

Community Orders: Research

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will place in the Library (a) a copy of the full schedule of questions and (b) a breakdown of results from the research on community punishments undertaken by ICM and announced by his Department on 16 November 2007. [252842]

Mr. Hanson: ICM conducted surveys of 1,085 victims of non-violent crime surveyed between 5-14 October 2007 broken down by gender, age, social class and region and 999 victims of non-violent crime surveyed between 31 October-4 November broken down by gender, age, social class and region.

The research was used for public awareness raising about community sentences. A full schedule of questions and the breakdown of the relevant ICM survey results, including regional results, has been placed in the Library.

Coroners

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) which coroners' courts his Department plans to relocate in the next 12 months; for what reason in each case; and if he will make a statement; [252971]

(2) which coroners' courts have been closed since January 2008; and what the reason for closure was in each case; [252972]

(3) which coroners' courts have been relocated since January 2008; and what the reason for relocation was in each case. [252973]

Bridget Prentice: My Department has no direct responsibilities for the location or relocation of coroners' courts. All arrangements for coroners' court accommodation are made locally and information about the closure and relocation of coroners' courts is not held centrally.

Crime Prevention: Finance

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what account he has taken of the effect of the current economic downturn on levels of crime in planning resource allocation to (a) the Probation Service and (b) HM Courts Service; and if he will make a statement. [252778]

Mr. Straw: The Ministry of Justice's Ministers and Corporate Management Board are supplied with regular statistical information about both the economic downturn itself, and areas of the Department's business where demand for services might be affected. This ensures that timely action can be taken where necessary.

Changes in demand for services are taken into account when agreeing allocations to departmental business groups, along with other factors such as policy considerations, inflationary pressures and the potential for efficiency savings.

The Department remains committed to living within its budget as set out in the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007. We are currently looking hard at the services we provide in order to find new ways to improve how we deliver them, while ensuring that we focus on our frontline services. We aim to drive out inefficiencies, overlap and duplication and to reduce our overheads, especially in our headquarters areas. Where possible the Department will actively look to redeploy staff to alternative and appropriate roles.

Crimes of Violence

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether wounding with intent contrary to section 18 of the Offences Against the Person Act 1861 is classified as a serious offence. [252843]

Maria Eagle: For the purposes of the dangerous offender provisions in Chapter 5 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003, section 18 of the Offences Against the Person Act 1861 is a serious offence and is specified in Schedule 15 to that Act, which means that an offender convicted of the offence may attract a sentence for public protection.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offences of wounding with intent contrary to section 18 of the Offences Against the Person Act 1861 were committed by offenders under probation supervision in each of the last five years. [252844]

Mr. Straw: Information on reoffending of offenders commencing court orders under probation supervision or on release from custody on licence is not broken down by detailed offence type. Serious reoffending rates are available which include wounding with intent.

Table 1 provides the number of further severe offences committed per 100 offenders during the one year follow up period for offenders commencing a court order under probation supervision in the first quarter (1 January to 31 March) of the years 2000 to 2006.

The reoffending data do not show if an offender was still under probation supervision when the offence occurred.

The following table shows the severity rates per 100 offenders for adults following commencement of a court order under probation supervision.

		Number of offenders	Number of severe offences per 100 offenders[1]
Court orders[2]	2000 Q1	28,859	0.6
	2002 Q1	29,014	0.7

[1] Severe offences includes wounding with intent, as well as other serious violence offences and serious sexual offences. Please note the small numbers of most serious offences committed places a limitation on any robust breakdown of the severity rate.

[2] Court orders include pre-CJA 2003 community sentences, community orders and suspended sentence orders.

Note:

Data for 2001 are unavailable due to problems with archived data for community sentences.

Further information on the one year rates of reoffending can be found in http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/reoffendingofadults.htm.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many serious further offences were committed by offenders under probation supervision in each (a) probation area and (b) parliamentary constituency in the last year for which data are available. [252845]

Mr. Straw: The Offender Management Caseload Statistics, which are published annually, provide data on serious further offences (SFOs) by offenders under probation supervision, as notified to the National Offender Management Service Public Protection Unit (PPU).

For the purposes of the notification process in force at the time of the offences listed in the table, an SFO was a specified sexual or violent offence, which met the criteria set out in Probation Circular 41/2006.

The following table shows, as at 20 January 2009, the number of convictions recorded to date for an SFO that was notified to the PPU between 1 April 2007 and 31 March 2008, by probation area:

Area	SFO convictions
Avon and Somerset	10
Bedfordshire	2
Cambridgeshire	7
Cheshire	9

Teesside	9
Thames Valley	5
Warwickshire	4
West Mercia	14
West Midlands	58

Total	605

As at 20 January 2009, there were 191 cases of offenders charged with a serious further offence during the period 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008 still awaiting trial.

We do not hold information about the parliamentary constituency in which the relevant offenders were supervised. To obtain such information would require manual checking of files, which would incur disproportionate cost.

The number of SFO convictions is around 0.35 per cent. of the number of offenders being supervised in the community by the Probation Service.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of jobs in (a) his Department and (b) its shadow agencies which will be lost through natural wastage under his Department's financial plan for the Comprehensive Spending Review for 2008 to 2011. [252690]

Mr. Straw: The Ministry of Justice (MOJ) is committed to delivering £1 billion of saving by March 2011 and establishing a modern and efficient justice system that delivers the best possible service to our customers and the public.

We are looking hard at the services the MOJ provides and finding new ways to improve how we deliver them while focusing on our frontline services. We are also driving out inefficiencies, overlap and duplication and reducing our overheads, especially in our headquarters areas.

Centrally we have estimated that for the MOJ as a whole (excluding the probation service) natural wastage will drop from around 10 per cent. in 2008-09 to 5 per cent. in 2009-10 and 2010-11, resulting in around 8,000 exits in 2008/09 and 4,000 a year for 2009/10 and 2010/11.

Detailed planning at agency level to estimate exits due to natural wastage, and determine which of these posts will be filled through redeployment or recruitment, is yet to be completed. The Department is consulting with the trade unions and will continue to do so as the plans develop.

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many members of the public took part in his Department's online discussion on greater citizen engagement; [252818]

(2) how many members of the public responded to his Department's consultation on a framework for greater citizen engagement; [252819]

(3) what the cost was of the consultation on a framework for greater citizen engagement. [252820]

Mr. Wills: A summary of responses to the discussion paper: "A National Framework for Greater Citizen Engagement" was published on the Ministry of Justice website on 8 January 2009.

27 written responses were received from engagement organisations and consultants, voluntary and community organisations, academics, local authorities and individuals. 22 people contributed to the online discussion. The summary report can be found at:

http://governance.justice.gov.uk/wp-content/uploads/2009/01/summary-of-responses-report.pdf

The framework was one of the topics for discussion at the five 'townhall' events on the wider governance Britain programme. The total cost of these events was £3,929.42.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to publish the results of his Department's consultation on bail and murder. [252830]

Mr. Straw: The Government response to the Bail and Murder Consultation was published on the Ministry of Justice website on 2 February 2009.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he will publish the results of his Department's consultation on designation of additional public authorities under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [252847]

Mr. Wills: The public consultation on section 5 of the Freedom of Information Act concluded on 1 February 2008. The Government will publish their response to the section 5 public consultation by the summer.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to publish the results of his Department's consultation on Titan prisons. [252946]

Mr. Straw: The Government plan to publish its response to the consultation before the end of the current financial year.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the 2008-09 near cash allocation to each of his Department's business groups was. [252822]

Mr. Straw: The following table sets out the near cash departmental expenditure limit (DEL) for MOJ business groups, as agreed in the Winter Supplementary Estimate. The Spring Supplementary Estimate, which contains the latest figures, is due to be published on February 10 2009.

Business area	Winter supplementary numbers (£ million)

Governance of Britain

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) Ministers, (b) officials, (c) representatives of local government, (d) invited members of the public and (e) other members of the public attended each Governance of Britain event. [252846]

Mr. Wills: The five "Governance of Britain" 'townhall' events held in summer 2008, were designed to engage active members of the local community in the Government's constitutional renewal agenda with an aim of encouraging them to take the debate out to their community groups and organisations. The events were hosted by myself as Minister of State for Justice and were supported by Ministry of Justice officials who acted as facilitators and note takers. The information required for each event is set out in the following table.

Homophobia

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to bring into force section 74 of the Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008. [252829]

Mr. Straw: Commencement of the offences of stirring up hatred on grounds of sexual orientation has been delayed to ensure compliance with the e-commerce directive. This issue will be resolved by provisions proposed in the Coroners and Justice Bill. We intend to commence section 74 as soon as possible thereafter.

Legal Costs

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether the Government plans to increase court costs for conviction in the magistrates' court for failure to pay a television licence in line with the proposed increase in costs for an application for a liability order against council tax defaulters; [253250]

(2) whether he plans to allow magistrates' courts to (a) reduce and (b) remit court costs in proportion to means for (i) unemployed persons on means tested benefits and (ii) other cases of hardship. [253251]

Bridget Prentice: A consultation paper 'Civil Court Fees' (CP31/08) was published on 10 December 2008. The consultation period closes 4 March 2009. The paper proposes to increase fees in order to maintain full-cost recovery for civil business in the county courts and High Court and increase civil fees for the magistrates court to 100 per cent. cost-recovery. The current fee for an application for conviction within the magistrates court is in three stages, costing a total of £90. The consultation proposes a single fee of £250. There are no plans to increase the fee of £3 for an application for a liability order against council tax defaulters.

The Ministry of Justice is committed to ensuring that court fees do not prevent access to the courts for those less well-off. A system of fee concessions is available in the High Court, county court and magistrates courts to ensure those of limited means are not denied access to the courts because they genuinely cannot afford to pay the fees. The system allows a full remission or part remission of the court fee and is aimed at people who are in receipt of a specific means-tested benefit, whose income is below a prescribed limit and for some whose financial commitments leave them with little or no disposable income.

Magistrates

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make it his policy to increase or abolish the maximum age at which a person can serve as a magistrate. [252983]

Mr. Straw: There are no current plans to review the retirement age for magistrates, which is set in statute at 70 years of age.

Magistrates Courts: ICT

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether all magistrates' courts have access to full Libra functionality. [252831]

Bridget Prentice: All magistrates courts have access to full Libra functionality. The application was deployed to the final courts on 9 December 2008.

Mentally Disturbed Offenders

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) men and (b) women were (i) sentenced to prison, (ii) given community sentences and (iii) detained in appropriate hospital accommodation prior to sentencing in each of the last five years. [252574]

Mr. Hanson: Information is not available to answer the question as posed.

The numbers of males and females (all ages) sentenced to custodial and community sentences in the last five years for which data are available are given in the following table.

Number of persons given custody[1] or community sentences, 2003-07

	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007

Males	100,759	99,651	101,051	117,166	122,547
Females	9,434	9,526	9,851	12,360	13,347
Total	110,193	109,177	110,902	129,526	135,894

Males	163,136	172,166	172,859	161,444	165,807
Females	28,545	30,780	31,388	29,393	30,517
Total	191,681	202,946	204,247	190,837	196,324

[1] Immediate and suspended custodial sentences.

Note:

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

The annual Statistical Bulletins of Mentally Disordered Offenders show that for England and Wales, over the last five years for which figures are available, the numbers of mentally disordered offenders admitted to hospital as restricted patients were:

	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Males	894	948	1,218	1,213	1,279
Females	112	138	111	137	161
Total	1,006	1,086	1,329	1,350	1,440

These figures do not include hospital orders without restrictions, for which statistics are not available. The figures include a relatively large group transferred from prison either after sentence, or while untried or unsentenced. They also include a smaller group admitted under a hospital order with restriction order. Additionally, they include some patients recalled to hospital by the Secretary of State, and very small numbers admitted from other parts of the United Kingdom (see Table 5 of 'Statistics of Mentally Disordered Offenders 2006 England and Wales'). Bulletins on mentally disordered offenders can be downloaded from:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/statistics.htm

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) men and (b) women were transferred from prison to appropriate hospital accommodation under the provisions of the Mental Health Act 1983 in each of the last five years; and what proportion waited over (i) six and (ii) 12 weeks for transfer; [252575]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of (a) male and (b) female prisoners who have (i) one and (ii) two or more mental health conditions together with an alcohol or substance abuse problem; [252681]

(3) what the average size of a mental health prisoner in-reach team is; and what the average number of prisoners in the prisons they serve is. [252683]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

The data requested are not held centrally in the format requested.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much has been spent on (a) mental health in-reach services for prisons and (b) other mental health services in prisons in each of the last three years. [252682]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

Since 2006 £200 million has been invested each year, including £20 million every year on mental health in-reach services.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average time taken to undertake routine screening of prisoners for health problems was (a) on initial entry to a prison establishment and (b) subsequently in the latest period for which figures are available. [252684]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

All new prisoners have a first reception health screen undertaken on entry into custody, this initial health screen generally takes up to 30 minutes to complete. A second health screen which provides a more in depth history of an individuals health and allows for care and treatment to be planned, is completed within the first five days of being in custody.

We do not hold the figures requested centrally.

National Offender Management Service

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will appoint a director with responsibility for reducing reoffending to the National Offender Management Service Board. [253820]

Mr. Hanson: The director of commissioning and operational policy is the member of the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) Board responsible for reducing reoffending. In addition, the director-general of NOMS is the lead official for the delivery of the departmental strategic objective on protecting the public and reducing reoffending on the Ministry of Justice Corporate Management Board.

Police Custody

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost of Operation Safeguard was in each of the last three years. [252825]

Mr. Hanson: Invoices to the value of £14,373,500 were paid between October 2006 and March 2007, £50,761,500 between April 2007 and March 2008 and £9,894,750 between April 2008 and 31 October 2008 for activation of Operation Safeguard.

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the (a) certified normal accommodation and (b) operational capacity of prisons in England and Wales was in each year since 1997. [252823]

Mr. Hanson: The following table provides the information requested. These details are taken from the end of year statistics provided by HM Prison Service.

Certified normal accommodation (CNA) and occupational capacity for prisons in England and Wales Since 1997

	In-use CNA	Operational capacity

2001	63,999	72,016
2002	65,008	75,116
2003	66,758	77,162
2004	68,691	78,889
2005	69,607	80,283

Prisoners Release

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of convicted murderers had served less than half of their custodial sentence at the point of release in the last five years; how many of them committed a serious crime in the six months after their release; and if he will make a statement. [252557]

Mr. Hanson: When an offender is convicted of murder, the courts must hand down a life sentence. Such a sentence will include a minimum tariff which must be served before the offender can be considered by the Parole Board for release. This tariff is set by the courts and is the minimum term required for retribution and deterrence, which is set in line with Section 269 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003.

As a rule, no life sentence prisoner is released before the expiry of their tariff, although there are provisions under the Section 30 of the Crime Sentences Act 1997 for the compassionate release of life or other indeterminate sentenced prisoners. Compassionate release is granted only in the most exceptional circumstances and normally only when the prisoner is terminally ill and close to death.

In the period of 2002-08. there were just 16 compassionate releases of life or other indeterminate sentence prisoners, none of whom have been reported as having gone on to commit further serious crimes.

Prisoners Release: Foreigners

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many foreign national prisoners formerly held in (a) HMP Canterbury and (b) HMP Bulwood Hall have been released. [254130]

Mr. Straw: In 2007, the most recent annual data available, a total of 7,450 foreign national prisoners were discharged from prison establishments in England and Wales. This includes those transferring to immigration centres, those removed from the country, and those released into the community. Of the total (7,450), 210 were released from HMP Bulwood Hall and 500 from HMP Canterbury. It is not possible to identify how many others were released from other prison establishments having previously been held in HMPs Bulwood Hall or Canterbury while serving their sentence.

These figures have been drawn from IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing and so the numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Prisoners Release: Reoffenders

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offences of (a) murder, (b) attempted murder, (c) rape, (d) attempted rape and (e) homicide have been committed by offenders on release on temporary licence in each of the last five years. [252836]

Mr. Straw: To provide the information requested would involve the manual examination of many hundreds of individual records which could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much in subsistence payments has been made by (a) prison governors and (b) his Department to offenders on end of custody licence in each of the last 12 months. [252838]

Mr. Hanson: The available information is shown in the accompanying table. Figures for subsistence paid locally are collated on a quarterly basis; breaking this figure down monthly would entail revisiting local records at disproportionate cost. Figures for more recent months are not yet available.

When the end of custody licence (ECL) scheme was first introduced, offenders released for the maximum of 18 days received their subsistence payments in instalments through the Department of Work and Pensions (DWP), who make payments on behalf of the Ministry of Justice. Offenders released for less than 18 days were paid in full by prisons on release. From 23 June 2008, payment in instalments by DWP was extended to offenders spending 15 days or more on ECL, and the effect of this is shown in the table. From 15 December, payment in instalments by DWP has been further extended to offenders spending eight days or more on ECL.

Prisoners: Foreigners

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many foreign nationals are being held on indeterminate sentences for public protection; [252840]

(2) how many foreign nationals being held on indeterminate sentences for public protection have completed their minimum tariff. [252841]

Mr. Straw: The National Offender Management Service in the process of completing an audit of prisoners serving an indeterminate sentence of imprisonment for public protection and who are recorded centrally as being a foreign national. This audit is scheduled to be completed by the end of February, and I will write to the hon. and learned Member, providing the data which he has requested and will place a copy of the letter in the Library.

Prisoners: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average annual overall resource cost per prisoner was in England and Wales in each of the last five years. [252691]

Mr. Hanson: The overall average resource cost per prisoner in England and Wales was:

2007/08	39,000
2006/07	37,500
2005/06	36,500
2004/05	34,500
2003/04	33,000

Note:

Figures are to the nearest £500.

The average costs comprise the public sector establishments' direct resource expenditure as published in the Annual Report and Accounts of Her Majesty's Prison Service (HMPS), increased by an apportionment of costs borne centrally by HMPS and the National Offender Management Service; and the resource expenditure of contracted-out prisons also increased by certain costs borne centrally. This involves some estimation. Income from the Youth Justice Board (YJB) in respect of services recharged to the YJB is excluded in order to show the overall cost to the Ministry of Justice. The figures do not include prisoners held in police and court cells under Operation Safeguard, nor expenditure met by other Government Departments (e.g. for health and education). The amount of expenditure met by other Government Departments may have altered over the period, possibly affecting comparability of the figures. The prisoner escort service is included.

Prisoners: Voting Rights

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to undertake the second stage of consultation on prisoners' voting rights. [252816]

Mr. Straw: In response to the Hirst (No. 2) judgment, the Government committed to undertake a two-stage consultation process. The first stage concluded in March 2007. The Government remain committed to carrying out this a second, more detailed public consultation, but we have not yet set a time-scale for this.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he expects Lord Patel's Prison Drug Treatment Review Group to report their findings to him; and when he plans to publish the report and his response to it. [254135]

Mr. Hanson: The Prison Drug Treatment Strategy Review Group reports jointly to the Ministry of Justice and the Department of Health. Work on the review started in September 2008 and is expected to take two years to complete.

I expect to receive quarterly updates on progress and will report periodically to the House. A decision has yet to be taken on publication of the final report.

Prisons: Wind Power

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations (a) he, (b) Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have made to (i) the Department for Communities and Local Government and (ii) the Department for Energy and Climate Change on issues arising from the proposed siting of wind turbines near prisons; and if he will make a statement. [253821]

Mr. Hanson: No direct representations have been made by Ministers or officials to the Department for Communities and Local Government or the Department for Energy and Climate Change on issues arising from the proposed siting of wind turbines near prisons. Officials would however comment on proposals submitted to them from local planning authorities such as in the case of HMP Whitemoor and would approach local authority planning departments about any Ministry proposals to erect wind turbines on prison land. Officials are liaising with the Carbon Trust regarding potential prison land for the erection of wind turbines.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many persons have been acquitted of speeding offences as a consequence of speed measure devices (a) not having been properly calibrated and (b) used by officers who have not received specialist training, in each of the last three years. [253004]

Maria Eagle: Statistical information collected centrally by my Department on the number of persons dealt with for offences of contravening speed limits does not identify the reason why the court, after hearing the evidence, decide the defendant is not guilty.

Victims of Crime

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of victims of crime reported satisfaction with the criminal justice system in each of the last 10 years. [252815]

Maria Eagle: From 2003-04 to 2007-08, victim satisfaction with the criminal justice system (CJS) was assessed through the British Crime Survey (BCS), as part of an overall measure of victim and witness satisfaction. The BCS is a survey of the general public and includes a question to those members of the public who have been victims or witnesses about their experience of the CJS. The following table shows results for England and Wales from the last six months of 2003-04 to the end of 2006-07.

Victim and witness satisfaction with the CJS (British Crime Survey)

Period	Percentage
6 months to March 2004	58
Year ending March 2005	59
Year ending March 2006	59
Year ending March 2007	60

Since 2008, the public service agreement for the CJS has changed to use the Witness and Victim Experience Survey (WAVES) to measure victim and witness satisfaction with the CJS. WAVES surveys victims and witnesses whose cases resulted in a charge being brought. The survey was introduced to give more detailed feedback about the experience of victims and witnesses. Unlike the BCS, WAVES gives both national and Local Criminal Justice Board-level data and contains many more questions about every aspect of the CJS.

The following table shows results for England and Wales from 2007-08 (the latest available data).

Victim and witness satisfaction with the CJS (WAVES)

Period	Percentage
Year ending March 2008	80

There are a number of reasons why there is a disparity between the two sets of figures. The BCS is a survey of the general public and although it interviews nearly 50,000 people, this includes only a relatively small proportion of victims whose cases have gone all the way through the CJS. WAVES focuses specifically on victims whose cases have got to the stage of a charge being brought or beyond, and interviews nearly 40,000 victims and witnesses. Hence the two surveys sample different groups. The BCS and WAVES also use different measures of satisfaction. The BCS defined satisfaction as the percentage of victims who were fairly or very satisfied with the contact they had with the CJS. WAVES gives victims the choice of three different levels of satisfaction defining overall satisfaction as the percentage of victims who were fairly, very or completely satisfied with the contact they had with the CJS. This is the standard scale now used by most customer satisfaction surveys and allows a more detailed breakdown of different levels of satisfaction.

Witnesses

John Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what procedures govern the selection and termination of appointments of witness intermediaries. [253006]

Maria Eagle: Intermediaries come from a range of professional backgrounds including speech and language therapy, psychology, occupational therapy, education and other health care professions. To register as intermediaries they must undergo a rigorous assessment process overseen by the Intermediary Registration Board. They are also required to successfully complete an initial five-day procedural training requirement introducing them to the criminal justice system before being placed on the register.

There is a formal complaints process where the users of the service—the police, prosecutors and defence—can raise a specific complaint about individual intermediaries which is then subject to investigation by a member of the Quality Assurance Board for Intermediaries. The remedies available include the removal of the intermediary from the intermediary register.

John Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what methods are used by witness intermediaries to interpret statements by those diagnosed with an autistic spectrum disorder. [253007]

Maria Eagle: The methods used by intermediaries to interpret statements by witnesses diagnosed with an autistic spectrum disorder will be determined by the intermediary concerned on a case by case basis in the light of their professional qualifications, training, experience and knowledge. Intermediaries come from a range of professional backgrounds including speech and language therapy, psychology, occupational therapy, education and other health care professions.

[249950]

Mr. Byrne: This is not a matter for the Cabinet Office. I am therefore unable to place a copy in the Library.

Death: Asthma

Anne Milton: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many asthma-related deaths were recorded in each of the last five years. [252156]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 3 February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many asthma-related deaths were recorded in each of the last five years. (252156)

The attached table provides the number of deaths where asthma was mentioned on the death certificate, either as the underlying cause or as a contributing factor, from 2003 to 2007 (the latest year available).

Table 1: Deaths from asthma[1] [2] in England and Wales[3], 2003-07[4]

		Deaths (persons)
	(i) Underlying cause	(ii) Any mention

2006	1,082	2,569
2007	1,033	2,503

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes J45-J46.

[2] Figures shown as 'any mention' (column ii) include those where asthma was recorded as the underlying cause'(column i).

[3] Figures for England and Wales include deaths of non-residents.

[4] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which (a) Ministers, (b) civil servants and (c) special advisers have allocated desk space in the Prime Minister's office in No. 12 Downing Street. [252361]

Mr. Watson: The Prime Minister works alongside his Private Office, with space allocated for Cabinet Office Ministers and advisers.

Kevin Brennan: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Land

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 783W, on departmental land, whether any of the land held for development within the Duchy of Lancaster's (a) Crewe and (b) Yorkshire Survey is (i) green belt and (ii) green field land. [249945]

Mr. Byrne: Some areas within the Duchy's Crewe estate are designated as green belt land. However, none of this land has been identified for development.

Within the Yorkshire Survey, all sites held for development fall within green field land. At Pontefract, representations have been made for three small allotment sites which fall within green belt land.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 785W, on departmental pensions what account was taken of the (a) new FRS 17 accounting standard and (b) abolition of dividend tax credits in the decision to close the Duchy of Lancaster staff pension scheme to new entrants. [249942]

Mr. Byrne: The abolition of dividend tax credits came into force in 1997 and there was no reference to this in the minutes relating to the decision made on 6 February 2002 to close the Duchy of Lancaster staff pension scheme to new entrants. The FRS 17 accounting standard came into force after the aforementioned decision.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 785W, on departmental pensions, what percentage contribution the Duchy of Lancaster makes to staff pensions for staff who are not in the final salary scheme. [249943]

Mr. Byrne: A contribution equivalent to 10 per cent. of the gross salary of a Duchy of Lancaster employee not within the final salary scheme is made to those younger than 50 years of age. Staff who have attained in excess of 50 years of age receive a contribution of 13 per cent. of the applicable gross salary.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 785W, on departmental pensions, if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the meeting at which it was decided to close the Duchy of Lancaster Staff Pension Scheme to new entrants. [249944]

Mr. Byrne: The decision to close the Duchy of Lancaster Staff Pension Scheme was made by the Duchy Council on 6 February 2002. However, as the Duchy of Lancaster is a private body the minutes of meetings are confidential and it would not be appropriate for these to be placed in the Library.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much the Cabinet Office spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; what proportion of this expenditure related to training for staff employed in the Prime Minister's Office; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) the Prime Minister's Office attended at least one such training course. [252262]

Mr. Watson: All Cabinet Office Units (including No. 10) have delegated responsibility for spend against their training budgets. No payments were made to the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2007-08 year.

There was no centrally organised digital media training provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau for Cabinet Office staff in 2007-08 year.

Futurebuilders

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 9 December 2008, Official Report, column 43W, on Futurebuilders: Catz Club, for what reasons the Who Cares? Trust is no longer a Futurebuilders investee. [250362]

Government Departments: Disclosure of Information

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidance his Department has provided to other Government departments on procedures to be followed in cases of unauthorised disclosure of information since the arrest of the hon. Member for Ashford; and if he will make a statement. [249463]

Mr. Byrne: Guidance to Departments on procedures to be followed in cases of unauthorised disclosure of information has not changed since the arrest of the hon. Member for Ashford (Damian Green).

Higher Civil Servants: Retirement

Mr. Mudie: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which permanent secretaries have retired since 1997; and which of these have subsequently accepted salaried positions paid from the public purse. [250660]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 2 February 2009]: Information relating to permanent secretary retirements will be accounted for in departmental annual reports and accounts.

Data are not centrally held by the Cabinet Office on their subsequent employment, but where the "Rules on the Acceptance of Outside Appointments by Crown Servants" required that permission be sought before an appointment was taken up the details of these appointments are outlined in the annual reports of the independent Advisory Committee on Business Appointments (ACOBA), copies of which are available in the Library of the House and on their website:

www.acoba.gov.uk.

I-Monitoring Security Co-ordination Centre

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the written ministerial statement of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 76-78WS, on departmental expenditure limit (2008-09), what the functions and activities of the (a) i-Monitoring Security Co-ordination Centre and (b) Information Assurance Technical Programme are. [249951]

Mr. Byrne: The Government Security Zone (GSZ) i-Monitoring Security Co-ordination Centre, now referred to as the Government Security Zone-Information Room (GSZ IR), is a key deliverable from the GSZ programme. This programme is a linked series of projects intended to improve the collective physical security of Government Departments and other specified establishments located within the zone, by enhancing existing security arrangements.

The GSZ IR has three main functions:

Proactive use of CCTV to identify threats (particularly terrorist-related threats) and suspicious activity within the zone;

Co-ordination of security information between the Government departmental security community and the Metropolitan Police Service and other police units;

Provide Government Departments with a 24/7 link to the police for immediate advice on counter-terrorism and security issues and to initiate a response to incidents.

The Information Assurance Technical Programme is a common good programme which aims to provide a sustainable UK Information Assurance capability benefiting the whole of UK Government. The IATP is run by CESG, the national technical authority for Information Assurance, and an arm of GCHQ, in partnership with industry. Governance of the programme has recently moved from the CSIA in the Cabinet Office to the Ministry of Defence. More information on the work of the IATP can be found at:

http://www.cesg.gov.uk/products_services/iatp/index.shtml

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will bring forward legislation to establish a mandatory register of lobbyists as recommended by the Public Administration Select Committee; and if he will make a statement. [253509]

Kevin Brennan: The Report from the Public Administration Select Committee was published on 5 January. The Government will respond in due course.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what cars of what engine cubic capacity are (a) owned and (b) leased by the Cabinet Office. [250031]

Kevin Brennan: The Cabinet Office owns one car, which utilises both a petrol engine, with a cubic capacity of 1497, and 500V electric engine.

For cars leased by the Cabinet Office, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State at the Department for Transport (Mr. Hoon) on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W, about cars provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency.

Place and Prosperity Seminar

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the presentation and handouts prepared for the Strategy Unit seminar on Place and Prosperity held on 11 December 2008. [252474]

Mr. Watson: Yes.

[249946]

Mr. Byrne: No further payment has been received from the Rural Payments Agency since that for 2007 reported in the answer given on 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 785W. Receipt of the 2008 payment is expected by March 2009 but due to fluctuations of exchange rates the figures are unavailable at present.

WALES

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many staff in his Department were disciplined for (a) bullying and (b) harassment of colleagues in each of the last three years. [254082]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps his Department is taking to advise staff of pension options available to them in relation to added years or additional voluntary contributions. [253258]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office does not employ financial advisers. The HR team can talk to staff about pension options and provide information, but are not qualified to advise on their individual financial circumstances or retirement needs. They will always advise the individual to discuss their pension options (including added years and AVCs) with a qualified Independent Financial Adviser before making a decision.

Employment

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent estimate he has made of the effects of globalisation on levels of employment in (a) Wales and (b) Blaenau Gwent. [250942]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The effects of globalisation on employment in Wales must be seen as both a challenge and a significant opportunity.

The Government are working to maximise the gains to the UK economy from globalisation while at the same time attempting to mitigate the downside risks associated with globalisation, by raising productivity and competitiveness.

In relation to overseas markets the Government and National Assembly for Wales seek every opportunity to maximise export and inward investment opportunities.

SCOTLAND

Barnett Formula

Mr. Jim Murphy: I have regular discussions concerning a range of topics with my right hon. Friend.

Welfare Reform

7. Miss Anne Begg: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on the likely effects of welfare reform on people in Scotland. [253065]

Ann McKechin: I have regular discussions with my right hon. Friend on a range of issues, including the measures in the Welfare Reform Bill. The reforms will give people the help they need to move away from a life on benefits, and put in place a new conditionality regime for those people who are able to work with the right support.

Job Losses

8. Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent assessment he has made of trends in numbers of job losses in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [253066]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The trends in claimant count in Scotland are in the range of a low of 67,700 in 1974 to a high of 334,000 in January 1987. Today there are 97,000 people on jobseeker's allowance in Scotland.

Forth Crossing

9. Lindsay Roy: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive and the Chancellor of the Exchequer on UK Government assistance for the financing of the construction of a new Forth crossing. [253067]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I plan to meet shortly with my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary and Mr. John Swinney, the Cabinet Secretary in the Scottish Government to discuss funding for this vitally important project.

High-speed Rail Link

10. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Transport on a high-speed rail link between London and Scotland. [253068]

Ann McKechin: My right hon. Friend and I hold regular discussions with ministerial colleagues across Government about a wide range of issues.

National Minimum Wage

11. Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on steps to ensure that businesses in Scotland are complying with the requirement to pay the national minimum wage. [253069]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I have regular discussions with the Chancellor on a range of issues. We are committed to effective national minimum wage enforcement through new penalties contained within the Employment Act 2008, awareness raising initiatives and an increased enforcement budget.

European Social Fund

12. Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with Scottish Executive Ministers on the use of the European social fund in Scotland. [253070]

Ann McKechin: I, and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland, have had no recent discussions with Scottish Ministers concerning the use of the European social fund in Scotland. European social fund money for Scotland goes directly from the European Commission to Scottish Ministers and it is up to them whether they wish to use this money to provide, for example, careers advice, skills training and support for unemployed people in Scotland. The UK Government have committed to doing this for people in England.

Digital Switchover

13. Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on digital switchover in Scotland. [253071]

My right hon. Local Government Finance

14. Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on mechanisms for allocating the block grant to Scotland in 2010 and 2011. [253072]

Mr. Jim Murphy: There are no plans to change the mechanism of payment of the Scottish block grant.

Retained Firefighters

15. Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues for the purposes of agreeing the UK's position in EU discussions on the effect on retained firefighters in Scotland of an end to the voluntary opt-out from the provisions of the EU working time directive. [253073]

Ann McKechin: There have been no specific discussions. However, the UK Government will continue to work with the Scottish Government on this matter. Protecting communities across Scotland, and the UK, is our top priority.

The amendments to the Common Position voted by the European Parliament on 17 December are the latest step in a complex negotiation. Implementation of the working time directive, by setting a 48-hour maximum to the working week, would greatly reduce the hours which firefighters working the retained duty system could be available for duty. The UK Government therefore place great importance on retaining their opt-out from the directive.

Departmental Internet

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many hits his Department's blog has received in each month since its launch. [248515]

Ann McKechin: The number of visits to the Secretary of State's blog each month since its launch in October 2008 is set out in the following table:

Month	Number of hits
October 2008	5,077
November 2008	4,910
December 2008	4,450
January 2009	5,142

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what steps his Department has taken to publicise its blog; and what the cost of such activity was. [248516]

Ann McKechin: The Secretary of State launched his blog:

http://www.scotlandoffice.gov.uk/secretary-of-state-blog/on 6 October 2008. It was publicised by press notice as part of the departmental press office's routine communications activity, and as such it is not possible to provide a discrete cost.

Date	Minister	Destination	Departmental staff
August 2008	Minister of State for Scotland	Norway	2
November 2008	Secretary of State for Scotland	Iceland	3

Ann McKechin: Since 2005, Ministers in the Scotland Office have received training in Presentation and Public Speaking Skills and have participated in Introduction Workshops for New Ministers.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he plans to answer Questions (a) 248515 and (b) 248516 tabled on 13 January 2009, on his Department's blog. [253330]

Ann McKechin: These parliamentary questions were answered today.

TRANSPORT

British Railways Board (Residuary): Parking

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the workplace parking charges being introduced by Nottingham city council will be passed on to staff members in whole or in part of British Railways Board (Residuary) Ltd where those staff have offices located within the workplace parking charging zone. [253772]

Paul Clark: No decision has been taken by Ministers on whether or not to confirm Nottingham city council's workplace parking levy order. It would not be appropriate, while the scheme is being considered, to speculate on the implications of the city council's proposals for any employers located in Nottingham or their staff.

Compulsory Purchase: Hagley

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made on the compulsory purchase of the Prince of Wales public house at Stourbridge Road, Hagley, Worcestershire; how much has been spent on (a) compensation payments, (b) legal costs, (c) provision of a mobile unit in the car park, including associated personnel costs and (d) other costs in connection with the purchase; and if he will make a statement. [249330]

Paul Clark: The Prince of Wales Public House was purchased by the Highways Agency on 14 July 1993 for £325,000 following a request from the owner to purchase under blight provisions in connection with the A449/A456 Kidderminster-Blakedown-Hagley bypass. A breakdown of this amount by compensation payment and legal costs is currently unavailable because the information is archived.

The total cost of the mobile unit and associated on site security to date is £30,660.

Other costs include management fees to the Highways Agency's managing agents to date of £24,194, and legal costs of £110,647 which were incurred in connection with protracted legal proceedings culminating in a High Court hearing to obtain vacant possession following the lease of the property. Costs were awarded to the Highways Agency and they are seeking to recover them.

The property is now surplus and will be sold.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Fines

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much money the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency has collected in fines from vehicle owners for failure to notify change of ownership in the most recent year for which figures are available; for what purpose this money has been used; and if he will make a statement. [253564]

Jim Fitzpatrick: During the period January 2008 to December 2008 the DVLA collected £1,943,667 in fines as a result of failure to notify change of keeper.

All money collected is returned to Treasury.

Driving Offences: Insurance

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps he has taken to reduce the number of people who drive without insurance. [253502]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Measures introduced in the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 gave the police improved access to the motor insurance database. This enabled them to have data on uninsured vehicles for use with their automatic number plate recognition (ANPR) equipment. The police were also given powers to seize, and in appropriate cases destroy, vehicles being driven uninsured. In 2007 around 150,000 vehicles were seized.

The Road Safety Act 2006 introduced a new offence of being a registered keeper of a vehicle for which there is no valid motor insurance. Further regulations are required to bring the provisions into force. We are consulting on these and the details of the proposed scheme for Continuous Insurance Enforcement.

Rather than relying on the police to spot vehicles in use, Continuous Insurance Enforcement would identify uninsured drivers by frequent comparison of the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's vehicle register and the insurance industry's database. Those that ignore warning reminders that their insurance has expired and take no action would be sent a fixed penalty notice and fine of £100, and may be liable to court prosecution, the vehicle clamped, impounded and disposed of.

Driving under Influence

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received on reducing the drink-drive limit from its current level in the last 12 months. [253196]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have received a number of representations for and against reducing the prescribed alcohol limit for driving. On 20 November 2008, we published a paper, Road Safety Compliance Consultation, inviting views on the matter, and expect a range of responses by the deadline of 27 February. An analysis of the responses we receive will be published in due course.

Heathrow Airport

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will hold discussions with the Mayor of London on the future expansion of Heathrow airport. [252889]

Jim Fitzpatrick: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, has regular meetings with the Mayor of London. These cover a broad range of London transport issues. It is likely that this could include the development of Heathrow airport.

Public Transport: Rural Areas

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps the Government have taken to improve public transport provision for rural communities. [253826]

Paul Clark [holding answer 3 February 2009]: We are supporting the provision of rural bus services by means of Rural Bus Subsidy Grant (RBSG), which is now paid to local authorities as part of their area-based funding. Since its introduction in 1998, over £500 million has been made available for the support of rural bus services in this way; £57 million has been allocated this year.

In addition, a total of £110 million has been awarded to authorities successful under the Rural Bus Challenge (RBC) programme from 1998 to 2003. This scheme has encouraged the development of innovative solutions to meeting rural transport needs. Many of the 300 projects initially supported by RBC funding are now continuing with mainstream funding from local authorities and other sources.

The rules for the route registration of local bus services have been amended. This has enabled the introduction of flexibly routed, demand-responsive bus services. We also extended to these services eligibility to receive Bus Service Operators Grant (BSOG) from the Department for Transport. BSOG eligibility has also been extended to include community transport operators, with over 1,000 operators, many in rural areas, now claiming BSOG.

The Local Transport Act 2008 includes a number of important steps to enable local authorities to secure better local bus services in rural and urban areas alike by means of:

more effective partnerships with bus operators

making the introduction of quality contracts (i.e. franchising as in London) a more realistic option

a new regime to deliver improved punctuality measures to support development of the community transport sector and to extend to the Private Hire Vehicle sector the ability to provide taxibuses

The Department has implemented the community rail policy on many rural routes, particularly branch lines. This policy aims to bring together the efforts of the train operating company, Network Rail (NR), the local authority and also local communities to put local or rural services on a steady footing by working together to promote and support local rail operations, increase patronage and awareness of the service. In each individual case, the route is assessed and designated as a 'Community Rail' route, supported by a Community Rail Partnership.

Railways: Accidents

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) injuries and (b) deaths have occurred in accidents on railway crossings in (i) Lancashire and (ii) the UK in each year since 1998. [253723]

Paul Clark: The data below are based on incidents reported to the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR), under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995 (RIDDOR 95). Figures for 2008 are provisional and may change with the receipt of coroners' findings for inquests that are currently outstanding.

The following tables cover incidents at level crossings in Great Britain, as the ORR is not responsible for rail safety in Northern Ireland.

Railways: Bus Services

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of rail replacement bus services in each of the last 12 months. [253983]

Paul Clark [holding answer 3 February 2009]: Only one rail replacement bus service is funded by the Department for Transport. This is the service between Ealing Broadway and Wandsworth Road. Estimate of cost for this service since the start of operation in December 2008 is £1,410 in December 2008 and £1,880 in January 2009.

The rules for the route registration of local bus services have been amended. This has enabled the introduction of flexibly routed, demand-responsive bus services. We also extended to these services eligibility to receive bus service operators grant (BSOG) from the Department for Transport. BSOG eligibility has also been extended to include community transport operators, with over 1,000 operators, many in rural areas, now claiming BSOG.

The Local Transport Act 2008 includes a number of important steps to enable local authorities to secure better local bus services in rural and urban areas alike by means of:

more effective partnerships with bus operators;

making the introduction of quality contracts (i.e. franchising as in London) a more realistic option;

a new regime to deliver improved punctuality; and measures to support development of the community transport sector and to extend to the private hire vehicle sector the ability to provide taxibuses.

The Department has implemented the community rail policy on many rural routes, particularly branch lines. This policy aims to bring together the efforts of the train operating company, Network Rail (NR), the local authority and also local communities to put local or rural services on a steady footing by working together to promote and support local rail operations, increase patronage and awareness of the service. In each individual case, the route is assessed and designated as a 'community rail' route, supported by a community rail partnership.

Railways: Freight

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effects on the environment of the decision to reduce funding for rail freight schemes. [253179]

Paul Clark: The Government are not reducing funding for rail freight. We have recently announced additional funding of £67 million to the Sustainable Distribution Fund. £61 million of this is allocated to the capital budget from which the freight facilities grant allocations are made, and in the last 18 months the Government have announced record levels of rail freight investment to support continued growth including £200 million towards the development of a strategic freight network and over £150 million of funding towards the provision of infrastructure enhancement for freight through the Productivity Transport Innovation Fund.

Railways: Scotland

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of (a) demand for a high-speed rail link between London and Scotland and (b) the effect of such a rail link on levels of demand for domestic flights. [253501]

Paul Clark: A new company, High Speed Two (HS2) Ltd. has been formed to develop the case for high speed services between London and Scotland

As a first stage, the company is expected to bring forward proposals for Britain's second new high speed line, between London and the West Midlands, by the end of the year, and to consider the potential for new lines to serve the North of England and Scotland.

The company will need to assess the likely environmental impact and business case of different routes—including the propensity for modal shift from road, air, and conventional rail.

Roads: Accidents

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many (a) deaths and (b) serious injuries have been attributed to drivers speeding in the last (i) six months, (ii) 12 months and (iii) five years; [253855]

(2) how many deaths of children under 13 years old have been attributed to drivers speeding in the last (a) six months, (b) 12 months and (c) five years; [253856]

(3) how many deaths (a) in total and (b) of children under 13 years old have been attributed to drivers speeding in the last 12 months. [253857]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of (a) killed and (b) seriously injured casualties and (c) deaths of children under 13 years old resulting from reported personal injury road accidents, where either 'exceeding speed limit' or 'travelling too fast for conditions' was recorded as a contributory factor are given in the table for each of the last three years.

Number of casualties

	All casualties		Children under 13 old years
	Killed	Seriously injured		Killed
2005	793	5,024	—	9
2006	856	4,998	—	22
2007	727	4,555	—	8
Total	2,376	14,577		39

Note:
Includes only accidents where a police officer attended the scene and in which a contributory factor was reported.

Information regarding contributory factors is only available from 2005. Data for 2008 will be available from the end of June 2009.

Roads: Tolls

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Chipping Barnet of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 1105W, on tolls, whether the local authorities in road pricing demonstration project areas were consulted about the decision to conduct the demonstrations in their areas. [253514]

Paul Clark: Neither the Government nor their contractors have consulted the local authorities whose boundaries will be used as the framework for data collection within this research project, nor is there a requirement to do so. The locations for the trial activity chosen by our contractors will have no bearing on the project results.

Rolling Stock

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding his Department has allocated for new rolling stock in (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) 2011-12. [253312]

Paul Clark: In July 2007, the Department for Transport issued a statement of funds available for implementing its high level output specification (£10 billion) during Control Period 4 (2009-14). This includes provision for procurement of 1,300 additional coaches. The phasing of expenditure by year which depends on the delivery and implementation programme is not yet finally determined.

Tintwistle Hollingworth and Mottram Bypass

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which organisations he has met to discuss the Mottram Tintwistle bypass. [249318]

Paul Clark: The Secretary of State for Transport has so far met Tameside metropolitan borough council to discuss the Mottram-Tintwhistle bypass. In recent years Ministers in the Department for Transport have met a number of stakeholders to discuss the same scheme.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Birds of Prey: Genetics

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what process his Department has put in place for the use of DNA testing to track the movement of peregrine falcons and merlins suspected of having been taken illegally from the wild after they have been sold on to new owners. [253750]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 319W to my hon. Friend the member for Sheffield, Hillsborough (Ms Smith).

British Airports Authority

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) meetings and (b) correspondence (i) he, (ii) other Ministers in his Department and (iii) officials in his Department have had with representatives from BAA since 3 October 2008; when each meeting took place; who attended each meeting; and what the subject of each meeting was. [252765]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 29 January 2009]: DEFRA Ministers have had no meetings with BAA since 3 October 2008.

DEFRA officials attended a meeting on 13 November 2008 with the Heathrow Airport Consultative Committee at which representatives of BAA were present, and in which DEFRA officials made a presentation about the public consultation on the guidance for airport operators to produce action plans under the terms of Environmental Noise Regulations 2006.

In relation to correspondence, Richard Norman replied on behalf of BAA to the DEFRA Consultation on the Guidance for Airport Operators to produce action plans under the terms of the Environmental Noise Regulations 2006. There has not been any subsequent correspondence from DEFRA to BAA.

Common Fisheries Policy

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1587W, on the Common Fisheries Policy, (1) when he plans (a) to complete a detailed impact assessment of the proposals and (b) formally to consult on the proposals; and if will make a statement; [253400]

(2) when he plans to make a formal response to the Council of Ministers and the European Commission on Article 47 of the proposed Council Regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy; [253429]

(3) with reference to the provisions of Article 47 of the proposed Council Regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy, how much quota he plans to allocate to recreational sea anglers, broken down by species in each fishing area and expressed as a percentage of overall national quota; and if he will make a statement. [253430]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My officials are currently engaged in discussions with the EU presidency, the Commission and other member states over the detail of the Commission's proposal for a council regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the common fisheries policy. As part of that discussion, officials will be asking the Commission for further clarification on the intent of article 47. Once we have that clarification, we will be able to better understand the potential impact of article 47 as drafted, including the implications for quota, and can then respond formally to the council. My intention is to consult on the proposal by the end of February. An initial impact assessment will form part of that consultation.

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department in each of the last three years; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248386]

Huw Irranca-Davies: From information held centrally, the Department's expenditure with its major catering services providers in each of the last three years is as follows:

Supplier	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09 April to November
Baxter Storey	1,791,601.00	1,799,984.00	1,160,628.00
Eurest	335,595.00	508,593.00	340,234.00
Mellors	66,861.20	79,595.73	84,370.00
Aramark	88,434.00	91,985.00	41,677.00
ABM	18,901.00	19,846.00	12,304.00
Just Deli	43,351.00	45,519.00	29,436.00
Star	12,440.00	13,060.00	9,140.00

The ratio of food to beverages expenditure is 55 per cent. to 45 per cent. A detailed analysis of the breakdown of the expenditure on food and beverages across all sites and for all suppliers could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248411]

Huw Irranca-Davies: It is the policy of DEFRA and its Executive agencies that both temporary and permanent employees appointed to the same grade are paid within the same pay range. Temporary employees are defined as those employed directly by the department or its agencies and does not include individuals sub-contracted through a third party.

Differences in hourly pay rates between temporary and permanent employees can occur within the same pay range due to a number of business reasons. Permanent members of staff have more opportunity to progress higher up the pay range due to the likelihood of their being in post for longer and receiving more annual pay awards.

Differences can also occur in hourly pay rates when employees, within the same grade and pay range, are appointed on pay rates above the minimum of the pay range due to the skills and experience that they bring to the position.

Environment Protection: Demolition

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which body is responsible for (a) monitoring the environmental impact of demolition sites and (b) ensuring that correct procedures are followed in the disposal of hazardous waste from building material at such sites. [252652]

Jane Kennedy: The main body responsible for monitoring the environmental impact of demolition sites is the Health and Safety Executive (HSE). Some responsibility may also lie with the local authority (e.g. nuisance).

Waste producers have a responsibility under Duty of Care which is monitored by the Environment Agency. All wastes must go to appropriate sites that are permitted by the Environment Agency. The Environment Agency checks compliance at these sites. Much of the waste from demolition is not disposed of but re-used and recycled.

Fisheries: Quotas

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to his Department's Marine Programme Plan for 2008-09, whether the quota reform task group has been established. [253399]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Access to fisheries is being considered as part of the wider common fisheries policy reform process which is now underway, and due for completion in 2012. The UK governance framework for this negotiation will ensure all stakeholders get the opportunity to feed in their views.

In addition, I have recently announced my intention to establish a more targeted advisory group, including industry and community representatives, to support work to achieve our goal of sustainable access to inshore fisheries. I expect this group to be set up by the spring. This work is closely aligned with the work on CFP reform and long term reform of the wider UK industry.

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the draft proposals of the Quota Management Change Programme (QMCP) produced prior to the withdrawal of the Scottish Executive from the QMCP; and if he will make a statement. [253427]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Discussions on the quota management change programme were incomplete when the Scottish Executive withdrew from the process in June 2007. Moreover, subsequent developments have in any case overtaken certain aspects of these discussions. Therefore, I do not intend to publish documents relating to these internal discussions.

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the inclusion of recreational sea angling catches in national quota derives from recommendations of the Quota Management Change Programme. [253428]

Huw Irranca-Davies: No. The proposal to count recreational sea angling catches, in certain circumstances, against a member state's quota forms part of the recently published Commission proposal for a Council regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the common fisheries policy. The UK Government had no discussions with the Commission prior to the publication of the proposal.

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to his Department's Marine Programme Plan for 2008-09, when he plans to consult on the principles of quota separation; and if he will make a statement. [253431]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Last year, the Scottish Executive put forward a number of proposals to amend the existing quota management arrangements. We have yet to see any firm proposals following their consultation last year. The current quota management and licensing rules and management arrangements remain in place.

It is my strong preference to take forward discussions on quota management and licensing arrangements reform through the wider discussions on common fisheries policy (CFP) reform, now under way. This is the best way to make sure we end up with a workable approach that reflects the needs of all four Administrations and ensures we engage with the Commission and other member states productively throughout the negotiation, and that the wishes of the UK are fully reflected in the final outcome.

Floods: Motorways

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the Answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, columns 29-30W, on floods, which stretches of motorway have a significant flood risk probability according to the Environment Agency's flood vulnerability database. [252491]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The flood vulnerability database draws heavily on information held by other parties, and provides a summary of vulnerability to flooding in each 100 metres of land in England and Wales.

Information on motorways at risk of flooding was provided by publicly available ordinance survey data. However to geographically identify and describe each section of motorway at significant flood risk would incur disproportionate cost.

In response to the floods of 2007 and Sir Michael Pitt's recommendations the Highways Agency has been investigating the resilience of the strategic road network to flooding. The Highways Agency is currently reviewing the Environment Agency's fluvial flood risk maps and information on 'Areas Susceptible to Surface Water Flooding' to identify vulnerable locations and develop appropriate contingency measures. This work is ongoing.

Food: Procurement

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to announce a review of the public sector food procurement initiative. [252686]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 29 January 2009]: DEFRA commissioned an evaluation of the public sector food procurement initiative (PSFPI) in October 2008. The evaluation is looking at what has worked well, what could be improved and will provide recommendations for the future. The final report of the evaluation is due in early February, after which we intend to publish the key findings and our response to its recommendations.

Food: Public Sector

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the Answer of 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 1130W, on 10 Downing Street: catering, what the remit of the public sector food procurement initiative is; and whether the initiative has adopted a policy on using genetically-modified food and ingredients. [250041]

Jane Kennedy: The PSFPI's remit is explained in the guide "Putting it into practice" that can be seen at http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/policy/sustain/procurement/resources.htm.

The primary aim is to support the Government's Sustainable Farming and Food Strategy for England, which aims to deliver a world class sustainable farming and food sector that contributes to a better environment and healthier, prosperous communities.

DEFRA's catering toolkit asks public bodies to specify in contracts that suppliers: "Clearly label any genetically modified products used, including the presence of any genetically modified ingredients used in the preparation of the food".

This is consistent with the Food Standard Agency's advice on EC Regulation 1829/2003 (GM Food and Feed Regulation) that requires all foods that either consist of or contain live GMOs or foods or ingredients derived from GMOs to be labelled and traceable throughout the food supply chain.

Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Aid Scheme

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the operation of the Fresh Fruit and Vegetables Aid Scheme by the Rural Payments Agency, with particular reference to the administration of its operational programmes. [252582]

Jane Kennedy: No such assessment has been made.

Noise: Pollution

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance his Department has issued on how local authorities should deal with noise complaints. [252631]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA has issued the following guidance on how local authorities should deal with noise complaints:

> Guidance to Local Authorities in England—Noise Offence Act for licensed premises;
> Neighbourhood Noise Policies and Practice for Local Authorities—A Management Guide (jointly with the Chartered Institute of Environmental Health);
> Guidance on Section 69 to 81 of the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005.

These can all be found on the DEFRA website.

Pet Travel Scheme

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many pets have entered the UK from abroad in each of the last three years. [241469]

Jane Kennedy: The total number of pets entering the UK through quarantine or under the PETS scheme is as follows.

	Number
2005	82,983
2006	94,289
2007	102,233

Pigmeat

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with pork retailers and processors on proposals for a fully integrated supply chain for pork products. [252105]

Jane Kennedy: Ministers in DEFRA have for several years promoted with retailers and processors the benefits of strong supply chain relationships for agricultural products including pork. I met with pork processors on 11 December 2008 and meet regularly with retailers to discuss a range of issues including supply chain. I welcome the recent report of the EFRA Committee into the State of the English Pig Industry and I am studying its recommendations carefully.

Recycling

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to increase the number of trained local authority recycling officers. [252921]

Jane Kennedy: It is the local authorities' responsibility to recruit and train their staff, including recycling officers. However, the Waste and Resources Action Programme under its Local Authority Support Programme can provide support and guidance to officers on operational, communications and waste prevention activities.

Recycling: Standards

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department plans to introduce statutory targets for levels of recycling by local authorities. [252922]

Jane Kennedy: Statutory Best Value Performance Indicator (BVPI) targets for levels of recycling by local authorities were last set for 2007-08.

These were replaced in April 2008 by the new National Indicators. These are now the only measures on which central Government will manage outcomes delivered by local government working alone or in partnership.

DEFRA has no plans to reintroduce any additional targets for levels of recycling by local authorities.

Rodents

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of changes to the rat population in each of the last four years; what provision his Department makes for the removal of (a) rats and (b) other vermin by local authorities; and what information his Department holds on the charges applicable. [253200]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The latest report on rodent presence in domestic properties as revealed by the English House Condition Survey data for 2002-03 and 2003-04 is available on DEFRA's website. Key findings are that the occurrences of rats inside and outside properties in these years are not significantly different from those observed in 2001.

Under the Prevention of Damage by Pests Act 1949, local authorities are responsible for ensuring that their districts are kept so far as practicable free from rats and mice. Should local authorities fail to discharge their responsibilities under the 1949 Act, DEFRA has certain default powers to initiate action.

Sewers: Fats

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the percentage of sewer blockages caused by used cooking oil, fat, soils and greases in the last 12 months. [253712]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Water UK, the representative body for the water industry, estimates that there are on average around 200,000 sewer blockages in England and Wales each year, of which fats, oils and greases are responsible for up to 75 per cent.

Soil: EU Action

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions are planned with his European Union counterparts on the draft Soil Framework Directive. [253922]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Discussions on the draft Soil Framework Directive have been ongoing at official level since the German presidency of the European Union in the first half of 2007. DEFRA officials have taken part in bilateral meetings with like-minded and other member states to explain UK concerns. Discussions have also been held at ministerial level with a number of member states, including the Czech Republic, France, Germany and the Netherlands.

Member states were unable to reach a common position at the Environment Council in December 2007. Since then, the UK has continued to engage in discussions both officially and at ministerial level, and will continue actively to do so in the light of the Czech presidency's indication that it intends to seek political agreement at the June 2009 Environment Council.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which organisation has managed each project funded by his Department in Helmand province since 2005; what the budget of each was; how much has been spent in each case; what monitoring, impact assessments and evaluations have been undertaken; and if he will make a statement. [245776]

Bill Rammell: The UK took responsibility for Helmand province through the establishment of a Provincial Reconstruction Team (PRT) in 2006. The PRT combines the efforts of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), the Department for International Development (DfID) and the Ministry of Defence (MoD) in a comprehensive approach to development. Accordingly, the PRT delivers reconstruction and development projects from a tri-departmental budget managed jointly by FCO, DfID and MoD. £7.04 million was spent in 2006-07 and £9.99 million in 2007-08 from the Global Conflict Prevention Pool. To date, £14.08 million (of a Stabilisation Aid Fund budget of £34.41 million) has been spent in 2008-09. Prior to the establishment of the PRT in 2006 there was no specific allocation of funding to Helmand province.

The tri-departmental funding facilitates a range of projects in Counter Narcotics, Rule of Law, Strategic Communications, Governance, Political activities and Area Based Stabilisation. These projects are administered in Lashkar Gah or London dependent on the implementing agent. Projects are managed through a range of partners including the Afghan government, local community organisations, international or local non-governmental organisations or external contractors. Programmes are reviewed and updated monthly by an official in our Embassy in Kabul and the PRT in Lashkar Gah. Projects are evaluated at six-monthly intervals.

In addition to this tri-departmental budget the FCO spent £17,000 in 2007-08 from its bilateral programme fund, on Helmand specific projects.

Burma: Religious Freedom

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the State Peace and Development Council in Burma on its recent order to close churches in Rangoon. [253435]

Bill Rammell: We are concerned that the Burmese regime has imposed restrictions on churches and other places of worship for religious minorities in Rangoon. We condemn the marginalisation or persecution of any community based on their religious beliefs. The regime's actions are part of a wider deterioration of the human rights situation in Burma and the UK will continue to ask the UN Secretary-General's Good Offices mission and representatives of the UN human rights bodies to raise our concerns with the State Peace and Development Council.

China: Human Rights

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the outcome of the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue meeting of 12 to 13 January was, with specific reference to Tibet; and if he will make a statement. [249326]

Bill Rammell: Issues discussed at the recent human rights dialogue included China's co-operation with international human rights mechanisms, the death penalty, reform of the administrative detention system, religious freedom in Xinjiang, Democratic People's Republic of Korea border-crossers and freedom of expression. We held detailed discussions on disability and mental health issues, and the role of the prosecutor in the UK and China in upholding defendants' rights. We welcomed the decision to make permanent more liberal regulations on foreign journalists, but also raised our concerns about the continued detention of a signatory of charter 08. We handed over a list of 50 other individual cases and asked for further information about these. We urged China to implement the recommendations of the UN Committee Against Torture and to issue open invitations to UN Special Rapporteurs to visit China. With reference to Tibet, we made clear that we remain concerned about the apparent lack of due process for those in detention in Tibet, restrictions on freedom of religion and lack of transparency. We urged renewed dialogue between the Chinese Government and representatives of the Dalai Lama to resolve the underlying issues, and pressed for agreements on visits by foreign journalists and diplomats.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on national caveats applicable to the operations of troops deployed with the UN peacekeeping force in the Democratic Republic of Congo; and if he will make a statement. [240833]

David Miliband: Certain troop contributing countries to the UN peacekeeping force in the Democratic Republic of Congo have placed what the UN refers to as 'theatre specific restrictions' with regard to the geographical deployment of their troops and on mission chain of command. In my contacts with colleagues from troop contributing countries, I have encouraged them to be as flexible and responsive to the recent crisis as possible.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248054]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has spent the following on maintaining, decorating and improving departmental buildings, at home and overseas, for the financial years 2004-05 to 2007-08.

£ million

	Costs of maintaining and decorating departmental buildings	Cost of improving departmental buildings
2004-05	37.6	38.8
2005-06	43.3	43.0
2006-07	41.1	53.0
2007-08	45.2	76.4

The cost of wallpaper is not recorded separately and figures prior to 2004-05 cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

The FCO maintains a forward programme for the upkeep of its UK estate as do our overseas posts. For 2008-09, the FCO has budgeted £17.4 million for building maintenance. Information about planned future expenditure by our overseas posts is not kept centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Japan: Tourism

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK citizens visited Japan in (a) 2007 and (b) 2006. [245262]

Bill Rammell: According to figures supplied by the Japanese Ministry of Justice, in 2007 192,148 British citizens and 30,681 British Nationals (Overseas) visited Japan. In 2006, 186,633 British citizens and 33,618 British Nationals (Overseas) visited Japan.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the merits of suspension of Israel's application for membership of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development until allegations of war crimes during Israel's military operation on Gaza have been fully investigated; and if he will make a statement. [250332]

Bill Rammell: The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) launched accession negotiations with Israel in 2007. Following the submission of Israel's initial memorandum, which sets out the current state of Israel compliance with the OECD body of law and best practice, negotiations have consisted so far of technical scrutiny of the memorandum. Any political issues about the Israeli accession will be considered once the technical phase is over.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the number of (a) rockets and (b) mortar shells fired at Israel by Hamas in each year since 2001. [253015]

Bill Rammell: According to the Israeli ministry of foreign affairs the number of rockets and mortars fired at Israel between 2001-08 is as follows:

	Number of rockets and mortars fired
2001	249
2002	292
2003	420
2004	1,157
2005	417
2006	968
2007	1,645
2008	3,102

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps are being taken to restrict access to funding and resources on the part of Tamil forces. [252000]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 29 January 2009]: I have been asked to reply.

The Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE), or "Tamil Tigers" was proscribed by the then Home Secretary in 2001 under the terms of the Terrorism Act 2000. One of the consequences of proscription is that the resources of the organisation are defined as "terrorist property." The definition of "terrorist property" is money or other property likely to be used for the purposes of terrorism, including any resources of a proscribed organisation. As such, there are a number of provisions, also contained in the Terrorism Act 2000, which make it unlawful to carry out specified fundraising activities if the person intends or has reasonable cause to suspect that the money or property may be used for the purposes of terrorism. The specified activities include inviting another to provide money or other property, receiving money or other property, providing money or other property, or possessing money or other property.

The LTTE is also subject to financial sanctions, i.e. an asset freeze, as a result of being both designated domestically by HM Treasury and listed under EU Council Decision 379.

A wide range of law enforcement and other agencies conduct operations to prevent financial resources reaching terrorist organisations, and the investigation of alleged terrorist finance offences is a matter for the police.

Stem Cells: Research

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the report of the seminar on stem cell research organised by the British Embassy in Israel on 26 and 27 March 2008; and if he will make a statement. [247756]

Bill Rammell: I have arranged for a copy of the report to be placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what files his Department holds on the seminar on stem cell research organised by the British Embassy in Israel on 26 and 27 March 2008; and if he will make a statement. [247757]

Bill Rammell: A brief report of the seminar was compiled by the science and innovation attaché at our embassy in Tel Aviv, which also has files covering the logistical arrangements for the seminar.

USA: Foreign Relations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken to initiate contacts with the incoming US administration. [248111]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Government have excellent links with the incoming Administration. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has met President-elect Obama twice in 2008, and spoken to him on other occasions. We have long standing ties with Vice-President-elect Biden as well as the nominees for Secretaries of State, Defence and Treasury, as well as with nearly all other prospective Cabinet Secretaries. These strong Cabinet relations are mirrored at all levels, thanks to the work of our embassy in Washington and our other US posts in establishing, cultivating and building strong links with officials who will work in the White House and across the incoming Administration.

JUSTICE

Driving Under Influence

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were convicted for driving under the influence of alcohol in each of the last five years, broken down by police authority. [253289]

The data provided cover both drink and drugs offences combined, as volumes of convictions for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs cannot be provided separately.

[1] Data provided cover summary offences of driving etc. after consuming alcohol or taking drugs (which cannot be reliably distinguished separately).

[2] It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Closure Orders: Merseyside

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions courts in Merseyside issued a closure order in 2008. [253401]

Bridget Prentice: On one occasion. Southport county court was closed from 4.00 pm on 23 December 2008 until 10.00 am on 2 January 2009.

Community Orders: North Yorkshire

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many community orders were issued in (a) the area covered by Hambleton and Harrogate councils and (b) the North Yorkshire area in (i) 2003, (ii) 2004, (iii) 2005, (iv) 2006 and (v) 2007. [253143]

Criminal Cases Review Commission

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Criminal Cases Review Commission plans to take to reduce its level of case accumulation; and how the Commission will monitor the effectiveness of those steps. [253149]

Maria Eagle: The Criminal Cases Review Commission expects to bring about further improvements in the number of applicants awaiting review and the time taken to review their cases by refining casework processes as part of an ongoing project.

Since that project started three years ago, the number of cases waiting for review by the Commission and the average waiting time of each case has fallen significantly. For instance, in March 2005 there were 360 cases awaiting review. In December 2008—the last full month for which figures are available—there were 90.

Between September 2005 and December 2008, the time that applicants in custody with complex cases had to wait for the review of their cases to begin fell from 20 months to six months.

Casework trends are analysed and steps to bring about improvements are discussed in various forums including weekly meetings of the senior management team and monthly meetings of the full Commission. All non-confidential casework policies can be seen on the publications section of the Commission's website at www.ccrc.gov.uk

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how the Criminal Cases Review Commission measures the (a) effectiveness, (b) efficiency and (c) economy of its policies. [253150]

Maria Eagle: The Commission's policies all feed into the performance of its core function—reviewing alleged miscarriages of justice. The effectiveness and efficiency is assessed through the performance of the Commission.

The Commission uses a set of eight key performance indicators to help it monitor and manage performance. The indicators help the Commission measure waiting times, waiting lists and time taken to reach certain key stages in the life of each case such as time to allocation and time to completion. The Commission sets targets in each of these areas and measures its performance against those targets. Targets and performance are reviewed regularly by the Commission and the senior management team. Performance across most KPIs has improved substantially over the last two years.

Commission policies are regularly reviewed with input from Commissioners and staff and revised as necessary.

The KPIs are developed by managers and Commissioners and approved by the Commission. They appear in the CCRC business plan and are reported on annually in the annual report—both documents are available on the Commission's website at www.ccrc.gov.uk.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what procedures apply to the (a) recruitment, (b) training and (c) assessment of the welfare of the Criminal Cases Review Commission's expert staff. [253151]

Maria Eagle: The Commission's Recruitment and Equal Opportunities policies seek to ensure that all the Commission's recruitment activity is fair and open.

The Commission provides in-house training for staff and Commissioners to share knowledge and expertise and promote good practice. The Commission also supports external training for staff in line with the aims of the organisation.

The Commission takes seriously the welfare of all its staff. Human Resources staff and line managers are responsible for supporting staff dealing with various day-to-day welfare issues.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Criminal Cases Review Commission has taken to increase the public's understanding of its role. [253152]

Maria Eagle: The Commission issues a press release about every referral it makes to the appeal courts. The organisation, and its chair in particular, seek appropriate opportunities to engage with local and national media about the work of the Commission, miscarriages of justice in general and about individual cases as far as possible.

Commissioners and Commission staff give regular presentations about the Commission and its work at universities, law clinics and at other events and venues.

The Commission tends to focus on specific sections of the public likely to have an interest in its work and on reaching those who may have legitimate reason to make an application to the Commission for review of an alleged miscarriage of justice. For instance, the Commission holds stakeholder events for groups and individuals interested in the issues and runs an annual programme of visits to prisons of all kinds to increase informed awareness of the Commission among prisoners and prison staff. The Commission advertises in media directed at the prison population and is developing ways of feeding information and material into the training of prison officers providing legal advice to prisoners.

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps his Department is taking to advise staff of pension options available to them in relation to added years or additional voluntary contributions. [253272]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice and the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) asks new and re-employed civil servants to complete a pension questionnaire which enables them to be sent details of the pensions options available to them on joining the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS). On the basis of their reply, information is subsequently provided to them on added years and additional voluntary contributions.

For existing staff, information is available on the Ministry of Justice's intranet site. This site also directs staff to the Civil Service Pensions website and provides contact details for Capita Hartshead who are the Ministry of Justice's Authorised Pensions Administration Centre (APAC), both of which can also provide information about these options to interested staff. NOMS staff have access to the Ministry of Justice intranet and can phone the Home Office Pension Service (NOMS APAC) help desk for advice and are also provided with details of the Civil Service Pensions website address when they join.

The purchase of added years was replaced by added pension from 1 March 2008 and this change was given prominent publicity in June 2007 and again in February 2008.

From time to time, relevant pension-related information is published on the Ministry of Justice's intranet and brought to the attention of employees.

Information on the 36 probation boards and six probation trusts has not been included, as their members of staff are not employees of the Ministry of Justice. Probation staff are generally eligible for membership of the Local Government Pension Scheme.

Glen Parva Young Offenders Institution

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the building of the planned extension of Glen Parva Young Offenders Institution will be (a) started and (b) completed; how many additional places and what facilities for young offenders the extension will provide; what facilities currently available will be removed; and what the total cost will be of the extension. [253352]

Mr. Hanson: Solutions are being developed on behalf of the Youth Justice Board (YJB) to build a new prison adjacent to the site of the existing Glen Parva YOI; this is not an extension to the existing Glen Parva YOI for young adult males.

Planning permission is due to be submitted in the summer of 2009. If this is granted, work is anticipated to start in late 2009 and expected to be completed in early 2012.

The new prison will create approximately 360 new prison places and, as this is a new self-contained prison for young men aged 15-17, no existing facilities will be removed from the existing establishment. The development at Glen Parva will include facilities for young people to take part in a variety of training and education activities to help them gain the necessary skills they need on release to help reduce their risk of reoffending. The total cost of the project has not been determined and will be subject to competition over the next six to eight months.

Legal Services Ombudsman

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) applications and (b) successful applications for judicial review of decisions made by the Legal Services Ombudsman have been made in each year since 2002; [253131]

(2) how many (a) applications and (b) successful applications for judicial review of decisions made by the Legal Services Ombudsman there have been in each year since 2002. [253318]

Bridget Prentice: Although the Legal Services Ombudsman is independent of Government, we understand from her annual reports that:

> In 2004-05, 14 applications for Judicial Review were made. None were successful.
> In 2005-06, eight applications were made. None were successful.
> In 2006-07, nine applications were made. None were successful.
> In 2007-08, eight applications were made. Five have been unsuccessful. The three remaining cases continued into 2008-09 and were subsequently unsuccessful.

According to the Office of the Legal Services Ombudsman there are no records available to confirm the number of applications for Judicial Review between 2002-04.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent representations he has received on the performance of the (a) Legal Services Ombudsman and (b) Legal Complaints Service. [253284]

Bridget Prentice: The Legal Services Regulation and Redress Division (LSRRD) in the Ministry of Justice is responsible for the policy relating to the regulation of legal services in England and Wales.

During 2008, LSRRD received 56 representations regarding the performance of the Legal Services Ombudsman, and 37 representations regarding the performance of the Legal Complaints Service.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many complaints he has received regarding decisions made by the Legal Services Ombudsman in each of the last five years. [253319]

Bridget Prentice: The Office of the Legal Services Ombudsman is independent of Government. Therefore, the Department does not deal with complaints regarding decisions made by the ombudsman.

The ombudsman's report in individual cases is final and there is no appeal against it. However, consumers can challenge her decisions in the courts through application for Judicial Review.

Magistrates: Age

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many magistrates are aged between (a) 20 and 29, (b) 30 and 39, (c) 40 and 49, (d) 50 and 59 and (e) 60 and 69 years old. [253157]

Bridget Prentice: The information requested is as follows:

The age of magistrates as at 28 January, 2009

Age	Number
(a) 20-29	134
(b) 30-39	993
(c) 40-49	4,344
(d) 50-59	9,557
(e) 60-69	14,390

Mental Health Tribunals

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether specialist legal advice is routinely made available to people who are the subject of a mental health tribunal. [253296]

Mr. Malik: Legal aid is available for representation in the first-tier tribunal and upper tribunal for mental health proceedings. It is available without reference to the means of the applicant in the first-tier tribunal.

National Mediation Helpline: Finance

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what funding his Department provided to the National Mediation Helpline in each of the last three years. [253585]

Bridget Prentice: Since the launch of the National Mediation Helpline in March 2005, the year on year costs are as shown in the following table:

Justice Department funding of the National Mediation Helpline, 2005-08

2005-06	73,880
2006-07	50,523
2007-08	72,094

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many new prison places he plans to provide by 31 December 2009. [253677]

Mr. Hanson: At 31 December 2009 we will have delivered over 6,000 new prison places since April 2007. This includes over 2,100 new prison places in 2009.

Prisoners Release: Reoffenders

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people released from prison less than half way through their sentence had reoffended before the date originally set for the end of the sentence in each of the last three years, broken down by offence. [253388]

Mr. Hanson: Information about the length of time that a prisoner spent in prison cannot be extracted from the Police National Computer database and we do not collate this information from the prisoner discharge dataset in the production of reoffending data. These are the two key sources for producing statistics on reoffending following a discharge from prison.

Further information on the one year rates of reoffending can be found at http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/reoffendingofadults.htm.

Prisoners: Bullying

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what measures are in place to prevent bullying of prisoners by other inmates. [253154]

Mr. Malik: Since 2004, every public sector prison has been required to have in place a local violence reduction strategy. From mid 2007 this policy has been applied to both the public sector and contracted estate. Under the strategy each prison is required to undertake regular analysis of any problem areas, consider solutions and provide an action plan to improve personal safety and reduce violence. All closed establishments are required to undertake a cell-sharing risk assessment to inform cell allocation. The violence reduction strategy is due to be reviewed during 2009.

Prisoners: Islam

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of prisoners in each high security prison in each of the last five years were Muslim. [253160]

Mr. Hanson: Figures showing the numbers and percentages of Muslim prisoners in each high security prison establishment in England and Wales on 30 June each year can be found in the following table.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisoners: Racial Harassment

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many racial incidents were reported by prisoners during 2008; and what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of subsequent investigations. [253153]

Mr. Malik: In 2008 there were 8,911 incidents of alleged racism reported by prisoners—of those 2,849 were about the behaviour of other prisoners and 6,062 were concerned with the actions of members of staff. A small proportion consist of allegations of misconduct by staff and all such matters are subject to disciplinary investigation under the code of conduct and discipline.

All investigations into reported acts of racism are overseen and signed off by the Governor or Deputy Governor. In addition the area manager conducts bi-annual checks of a random' sample of investigations.

'Race Review 2008' recently published by NOMS and available in the Library sets out the current assessment of race equality in the prison service, including the effectiveness of these systems and plans for work further to improve them.

Reoffenders: Sentencing

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of people released on (a) probation and (b) licence who subsequently committed a further crime were returned to prison in each of the last three years. [253336]

Mr. Hanson: The following table sets out the number of offenders who were released on licence and who were subsequently recalled to custody, having been charged with committing a further offence in the period of their licence in the year 2007-08 and between April and December 2008, as notified to the National Offender Management Service. Accurate data on the reasons for recalling determinate prisoners who were on licence were not held centrally prior to April 2007 and to compile such data would incur disproportionate cost.

Offenders recalled for committing further offences are normally recalled at the point at which the charge is laid. Inevitably therefore, some of the cases listed would have either resulted in acquittal or would not have proceeded to trial, as the charges were subsequently withdrawn.

Furthermore, there will have been prisoners released on licence and who were charged with offences after their licence period had expired. They would not have been liable to recall.

The proportion of offenders recalled for committing further offences cannot be expressed as a proportion of the number of releases, as offenders may be recalled at any point during a licence and on more than one occasion, particularly with respect to licences that can be several years in duration.

	Offenders recalled for further charges
April 2007 to March 2008	[1]2,604
April 2008 to December 2008	[1]2,081

[1] These figures exclude all those recalled from early custody licence. It also excludes those recalled from home detention curfew who had a sentence of less than 12 months as they would not have been under probation supervision.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many charges for speeding offences were discontinued because the location of the speed camera failed to comply with the guidance in each of the last five years; [253021]

(2) how many charges for speeding offences were discontinued because of a breach of the guidance on co-located signs in each of the last five years. [253022]

Maria Eagle: Charging data are not held by my Department. Prosecutions data are normally provided in lieu.

The number of proceedings at the magistrates court for speeding offences, and the number discontinued, for 2003 to 2007 (latest available) are given in the following table.

Statistical information collected centrally on the number of persons proceeded against for offences of contravening speed limits does not identify the reason why the proceedings are discontinued.

The number of proceedings at the magistrates court for speeding offences[1] and the number discontinued, England and Wales, 2003-07[2, 3, 4]

	Number of offences
	Proceeded against	Proceedings discontinued
2003	165,495	1,465
2004	172,327	1,540
2005	192,238	1,809
2006	180,630	1,759
2007	177,917	1,753

[1] Offences under the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 ss. 16, 81, 84, 86, 88 7 89; Motor Vehicles (Speed Limits on Motorways) Regs. 1973; Parks Regulation (Amendment) Act 1926—byelaws made thereunder.

[2] It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.

[3] Volumes of convictions for camera detected speed limit offences cannot be accurately established because in many cases the method of detection is not identified in the court data. It is not known exactly in how many cases it was in fact a camera or a visual detection by a police officer.

[4] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Young Offenders: Reoffenders

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many persistent young offenders were (a) arrested and (b) sentenced at (i) magistrates' courts and (ii) the Crown Court in (A) Vale of York constituency and (B) England in each year since 1997. [253142]

Mr. Hanson: Statistics on Persistent Young Offenders (PYOs) split by court type, as requested in the question, are only available from 1999 onward. The closest geographic level to the Vale of York for which robust numbers are available is the North Yorkshire police force area.

The PYO figures are designed to measure the speed and efficiency of the youth justice system, through monitoring the pledge to halve the average time from arrest to sentence for dealing with PYOs in England and Wales from 142 days in 1996 to 71 days. However, numbers of PYO cases are not a reliable measure of overall levels of youth crime, and will give a misleading view of the true trend if used for this purpose.

The following tables show the number of PYOs dealt with in England and Wales and for North Yorkshire. The breakdowns are based on whether the cases were heard in the magistrates courts or in the Crown court.

The Police National Computer data can contain records where the type of court in which the case was heard was unknown. This missing information only impacts a very small minority of cases, and was more a feature of the data in the past than in the present. Thus, the sum of cases heard in magistrates' courts and the Crown Court in each year is less than all cases heard in England and Wales.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of performance against the 71-day target for the average time from arrest to sentence for persistent young offenders. [253148]

Mr. Hanson: Overall statistics on persistent young offenders (PYOs) are available from 1997 to 2007.

These figures are derived from police national computer data, and used to monitor the pledge to halve the average time from arrest to sentence for dealing with PYOs in England and Wales from 142 days in 1996 to 71 days.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Broadband: Job Creation

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of jobs that will be created by increased funding for new broadband networks in (a) 2009, (b) 2010 and (c) 2011 under the Government's plans to create up to 100,000 new jobs through public works; and what proportion of these jobs he estimates will go to British workers. [248745]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

This Department has not made precise estimates of the number of jobs that will be created by increased funding for broadband networks and has not estimated how many of these will go to British workers. However, we believe, like many nations that investment in new broadband networks opens the way to a whole range of job opportunities, both during and post construction of the new networks. NESTA estimates that universal super-fast broadband in the UK could directly create 600,000 new ICT jobs and add £18 billion to GDP over four years with even larger indirect benefit. There have been a number of other announcements from international competitors in recent weeks, which make reference to new employment and economic benefits.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to increase capital expenditure on a new broadband network as part of the Government's plans to create up to 100,000 new jobs through public works. [248752]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

There are no plans for an immediate increase in public capital expenditure on a new broadband network. The Caio Review concluded that there was no case for public sector intervention but recommended that Government along with Ofcom should take a lead role in shaping broadband policies that could support and inform the activity of regulators and industry players on their journey toward Next Generation Access. The Government will respond to the recommendations made in the review in due course.

We published the interim Digital Britain Report, an action plan to secure the UK's place at the forefront of innovation, investment and quality in the digital and communications industries, on 29 January, seeking comments by 12 March.

Creativity and Business International Network

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what deposit has been paid to The Grove in Hertfordshire for the use of its facilities for the inaugural Creativity and Business International Network; and what payment has been agreed. [250245]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend, the Minister with responsibility for culture, creative industries and tourism, gave him on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 1210W. The cost of hiring The Grove is included within the £1 million allocated towards the running of the World Creative Business Conference in each of the next three years, including 2008-09.

Cricket: Public Participation

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of (a) the effectiveness of the 3 times 30 minute weekly participation target for cricket, (b) the effect this target has had on the England and Wales Cricket Board's recent Whole Sport Plan award from Sport England, (c) the effect of the reduction in the England and Wales Cricket Board's grant from Sport England on disabled and women's cricket and (d) participation rates in cricket in each year since Sport England began to provide funding for cricket; and if he will make a statement. [246122]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 12 January 2009]: Sport England has announced that the England and Wales Cricket Board will receive nearly £38 million of 2009 to 2013 Whole Sport Plan funding to deliver its plan for cricket. This represents the largest award made to any of the 46 national governing bodies receiving Whole Sport Plan funding. The final breakdown of these awards is still being finalised with NGBs. It will also be open to the ECB to supplement this further through bidding for the significant extra funding streams which will be available, as they currently do.

In answer:

(a) Sport England is responsible for getting 1 million more people playing sport—three times 30 minute sessions of at least moderate intensity per week—and will measure this through the Active People Survey. As part of their Whole Sport Plan funding, national governing bodies will be responsible for increasing one times 30 minute weekly participation in their sport as a contribution towards the global target. Given this, the varying intensities of longer duration sports, and the emphasis on the sustain strand of the Sport England strategy, the one times 30 measure represents an effective gauge of a sport's contribution to Sport England's participation objectives.

(b) Therefore three times 30 minute participation in Cricket was not a contributory factor in the assessment of the ECB's funding submission. Sports were asked to demonstrate how they could increase one times 30 minute participation as part of the funding process.

(c) It is the ECB's responsibility to manage the sport of Cricket, creating opportunities for all. The ECB submission contains specific interventions for women and girls, and disabled cricket. Sport England's investment into the ECB will seek to encourage the grow, sustain and excel outcomes for these priority groups, and funding for these areas of work will be allocated to the ECB accordingly.

Sport England has carried out two Active People Surveys. Active People 1 (between October 2005 and October 2006) shows one times 30 minute cricket 16+ participation as 195,200. Active People 2 (between October 2007 and October 2008) shows one times 30 minute cricket 16+ participation as 204,900. One times 30 participation data are not available prior to Active People 1.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport for what reasons the telephone number given for each of the private offices of Ministers in his Department in the List of Ministerial Responsibilities is that of his Department's main switchboard. [251693]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The telephone number included in the List of Ministerial Responsibilities routes callers to the Department's Public Engagement and Recognition Unit, who are able to provide responsive advice to hon. Members on issues such as the progress of correspondence and parliamentary questions.

The List of Ministerial Responsibilities is a public document, published on the Cabinet Office website. As such, members of the public may also require assistance from the public engagement and recognition unit, which aims to answer as many calls as possible without transfer. Switchboard staff in the unit are able to transfer any calls requiring contact with Ministers direct to Private Offices.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and Departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251881]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 6W. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Exercise

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of (a) men and (b) women over the age of 18 years who have participated in at least 30 minutes a day of moderate intensity physical activity on five or more days of the week in each of the last three years. [252810]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Taking Part survey is a continuous household survey providing national data on participation in culture, leisure and sport.

The following table shows the percentage of men and women aged 19 and over who have participated in at least 30 minutes of moderate intensity level sport on at least five separate days in the past week.

Participation in moderate intensity sport on at least five days in the past week, by adults aged 19 and over

Exercise: Young People

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of children aged (a) five to 11, (b) 12 to 16 and (c) 17 to 18 years who have undertaken 60 minutes of moderate intensity physical activity each day in each of the last three years. [252811]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Taking Part survey provides data on participation in culture and sport by adults aged 16 and over. In those households containing at least one child aged 11 to 15, an interview is also conducted with a randomly selected child.

Child respondents are asked to indicate on how many days in the past week they have participated in at least an hour of active sport outside school lessons. Table 1 shows the percentage of children who had participated in the past week. The child survey began in January 2006 and data are therefore available for 2006 and 2007 only.

Film

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps his Department has taken to support independent film makers. [253801]

Barbara Follett: The UK Film Council, the Government's strategic agency for film, provides a range of support for independent filmmakers.

Their New Cinema Fund distributes £5 million lottery funding per year to support independent filmmakers and emerging talent. The Fund also supports several short film schemes to help new filmmakers develop their talent, enabling many new directors to make the transition from short films to full length features.

The Prints and Advertising Fund distributes £2 million lottery funding to UK distributors to enable wider distribution and publicity for films which might otherwise have only a limited distribution, helping independent filmmakers to reach a wider audience.

The Premiere Fund distributes £8 million lottery funding per year to support the production of independent and mainstream, commercially-driven feature films that can attract audiences around the world.

The Development Fund distributes £4 million lottery funding per year to broaden the quality, range and ambition of film projects and talent being developed in the UK. The fund helps filmmakers of all experience levels to develop their ideas and screenplays into viable feature films and delivers support for both first-time feature filmmakers and established filmmakers.

The UK Film Council also allocates £7.5 million per year to nine regional and three national screen agencies across the UK, supporting their efforts to build a clear film strategy and provide financial support for a wide range of film related activities. Screen West Midlands is the regional screen agency that covers the Coventry South constituency.

Independent filmmakers working in the UK also have the opportunity to access the film tax relief, which last year distributed £104 million in support of British Film.

Gambling: Regulation

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many inspections have been carried out by the Gambling Commission in each year since the development of the annual visit programme; [252804]

(2) how many follow-up visits have been made by the Gambling Commission in each year since the development of the annual visit programme; [252805]

(3) how many (a) warnings have been issued and (b) licences revoked under the Gambling Commission's compliance process in each year; and what the (i) reason for the action taken and (ii) type of operation was in each case; [252806]

(4) how many compliance officers the Gambling Commission employs; [252807]

(5) how many visits made by Gambling Commission compliance officers under the compliance process to each type of operator were (a) programmed, (b) advisory, (c) complaint, (d) revisit, (e) survey and (f) other in each year since the process began; [252808]

(6) how on many visits by Gambling Commission compliance officers to each type of operator evidence was found of (a) operational risk, (b) crime and disorder risk, (c) fair and open risk, (d) risk to children, (e) risk to other vulnerable people and (f) external risk in each year since the compliance process began. [252809]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Gambling Commission has advised that it carried out a total of 5,545 visits and 620 follow-up visits between 1 September 2007, when the Gambling Act 2005 came into force, and 31 December 2008.

The Gambling Commission has advised that a list of revocations and formal warnings issued under the Compliance process, including the type of licence holder and details of the decision, is available on its website at:

http://www.gamblingcommission.gov.uk/Client/mediadetail.asp?mediaid=477

The Gambling Commission has also advised that an additional 50 licensed operators have had their licence revoked following the non-payment of their annual licence fee.

The Gambling Commission has advised that it intends to publish details of its annual visit programme for 2008-09 in its next Annual Report.

The Gambling Commission currently employs 59 compliance managers.

Gaming Machines

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans his Department has to review the number of Category B3 machines in adult gaming centres. [253232]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The Department has no plans to review the number of Category B3 machines in adult gaming centres.

Homecoming Scotland

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what role his Department is playing in relation to the Homecoming Scotland 2009 initiative. [253089]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 2 February 2009]: VisitBritain have advised that they are working closely with VisitScotland to support Homecoming Scotland 2009. VisitBritain have planned online and public relations activities incorporating the Americas, Asia and Europe.

Legal Opinion

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost was of external legal services provided to his Department in each of the last five years. [251348]

Mr. Sutcliffe: On the basis of available records, the total cost to the Department of external legal advice in each of the last five years is shown in the following table:

Cost to Department of Culture, Media and Sport of external legal advice

Financial year	£
2003-04	490,242.08
2004-05	791,050.23
2005-06	456,480.95
2006-07	251,011.67
2007-08	428,524.32

Music: Young People

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to encourage the learning of musical instruments by young people. [253140]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport is working closely with the Department for Children, Schools and Families to promote music for young people through the package of funding for music education, which was announced in November 2007. This totals £332 million over three years and includes investment in singing, new instruments and free music lessons.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport provides financial support for the arts through Arts Council England, which makes funding decisions independently of Government.

The Arts Council provides funding of £10 million per year to Youth Music so that it can continue its work of complementing music in the national curriculum by supporting activities outside of school hours. Youth Music works alongside formal and community-based sectors to support music-making and training. This includes helping young people with the fewest opportunities to learn musical instruments.

Take It Away is an Arts Council initiative designed to help more people get involved in learning and playing music. The scheme allows individuals to apply for an interest-free loan of up to £2,000 for the purchase of any kind of musical instrument. Children and young people are a particular priority for the scheme and over a quarter (26 per cent.) of all customers have purchased an instrument for a young person under 18 ears of age.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what cars of what engine cubic capacity are (a) owned and (b) leased by his Department. [250028]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W about cars provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency.

Public Houses

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to respond to the findings of the Community Pubs Inquiry. [254590]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The recommendations in the Community Pubs Inquiry Report cover the policy interests of several Government departments. DCMS is collating a Government response and we hope to respond shortly.

Public Libraries

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's policy is on the development of community libraries. [253760]

Barbara Follett: It is right that authorities take a fresh look at how to deliver their services, and they remain accountable to their communities for the changes they make.

Some authorities have found that the best way to manage limited resources is to provide basic library services in community facilities, or to hand smaller libraries over to their communities. Authorities that have done so often report positive additional outcomes for communities.

Community libraries can be very successful and offer a full range of services, when the relationship between the community involved and the various partners is handled responsibly. DCMS encourages any authority considering the 'community run' option to carry out extensive consultation with the communities affected.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what definition his Department uses of "comprehensive and efficient" in relation to library services. [253786]

Barbara Follett: Local library authorities have duties under the Public Libraries and Museums Act (1964) to provide a "comprehensive and efficient" library service, and it is predominantly this duty that the Secretary of State is tasked with superintending under section 1 of the Act.

However, the Department acknowledges that what constitutes a "comprehensive and efficient" library service will vary significantly between local authority areas given the nature and needs of their particular communities.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effects of the Big Lottery Fund's scheme for libraries on the development of community libraries since October 2006. [253914]

Barbara Follett: The majority of the funded projects have only recently started on their capital elements, so the Big Lottery fund have informed the Department that it is too early to make an assessment of the impact of the programme. However, the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council are conducting an evaluation, which is expected to report in 2010, and Big Lottery Fund will also be commissioning its own evaluation in due course.

Public Libraries: Closures

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what guidance his Department has issued to local authorities on procedures for public consultation on proposals to close a public library; [253673]

(2) how many local authorities have informed his Department that they have closed one or more public libraries in the last (a) six months, (b) 12 months and (c) two years; [253674]

(3) what proportion of public library closures were preceded by a consultation period longer than six weeks in the last two years; [253742]

(4) what estimate he has made of the proportion of public library closures reported to his Department before the closure takes place; [253747]

(5) whether his Department has established (a) minimum consultation periods and (b) processes for public library closures by local authorities; [253912]

(6) what estimate he has made of the proportion of public library closures which was preceded by effective consultation in the last two years; [253913]

(7) what steps his Department takes when it considers that a library has been closed without an effective consultation process. [253915]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport does not provide local authorities with guidance on procedures for public consultation on proposals to close a public library. The processes by which consultation is undertaken are a matter for local authorities and they are accountable to the communities they serve for the decisions taken.

There are no official national guidelines on consultation or periods of consultation which apply to local authorities. However the Consultation Institute and the code of practice adhered to by central Government outline that a 12-week period represents best practice for consultation. While it is expected that most local authorities would also adhere to this standard, under exceptional circumstances this might not be appropriate.

There is no duty on local authorities to inform central Government about plans to close public libraries. However, we have been informed of plans to permanently or temporarily close libraries in approximately 34 local authorities in the last two years.

We have not been informed how many or what proportion of the library closures implemented in the last two years were preceded by a consultation period of longer than six weeks.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether his Department has reviewed (a) the legal duties on and (b) guidance for local authorities on the closure of public libraries by local authorities in the last (i) 12 months, (ii) two years and (iii) five years. [253762]

Barbara Follett: Library authorities have a legal duty to provide a "comprehensive and efficient" library service under the terms of the Public Libraries and Museums Act 1964. The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport has a duty to superintend library services and intervene if a library service is no longer meeting the requirements of the Act. The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has not reviewed these requirements in the last five years.

The Public Library Service Standards, introduced in April 2001, defined our expectations of library service provision but were not legally binding. The standards which fed into comprehensive performance assessment were removed in March 2008, when it was replaced with comprehensive area assessment.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development with reference to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 103W, on departmental personnel, how many of his Department's staff are (a) without posts and (b) subject to the internal market-based system; how many of the staff without posts were classified as such upon return from maternity leave; and how many of the staff without posts have been classified for at least (i) six and (ii) 12 months. [250039]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: With the exception of the senior civil service, all 1,552 of DFID civil service staff can apply for jobs through our market based internal posting system. While DFID sometimes has people between posts for short periods of time, we do not currently have any permanent members of staff classed as surplus.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248416]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The policy at the Department for International Development (DFID) is for all employees whether they are on permanent or temporary contracts to be treated the same in terms of pay. However, as each grade has an associated pay range with minimum and maximum pay points, all employees in the same grade, whatever their contractual status, will not necessarily be paid at the same hourly rate.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248708]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not operate staff award and recognition schemes outside of performance related pay.

Legal Opinion

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost was of external legal services provided to his Department in each of the last five years. [251353]

Mr. Michael Foster: The costs of external legal services over the last five years are:

	Total (£)
2003-04	271,453.54
2004-05	266,331.06
2005-06	579,960.00
2006-07	422,584.33
2007-08	368,550.96

These figures include amounts previously reported as internal legal costs, on Office of Government Commerce advice.

Our overseas offices may obtain advice from local legal advisers on a range of foreign domestic issues, from foreign accommodation leases to local employment law. Information on these costs could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Amess: To ask the honourable Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the (a) date of opening was and (b) current estimated value is of each building on the Parliamentary Estate. [248142]

Nick Harvey: The information requested is in the following table. Date of opening has been taken to mean date of occupation by the House.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Saville Inquiry

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 886W, on the Saville Inquiry, whether expenditure on legal fees is expected to increase. [243244]

Mr. Woodward: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 992W.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Buildings

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much has been spent by the Government Equalities Office on renovation and refurbishment of its properties in each year since its establishment. [251653]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office does not own any properties. It leases space from Communities and Local Government in their headquarters building, Eland House. That space has not been renovated or refurbished in GEO's tenure so no costs have been incurred. I refer the hon. Member to my answer on 20 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1312-13W.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the Government Equalities Office's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public has been since it was established. [251430]

Maria Eagle: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

With respect to correspondence from members of the public, this information can be obtained only through the detailed examination of individual letters at disproportionate cost; however the Government Equalities Office aims to respond to all written correspondence within 15 working days.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many staff in the Government Equalities Office have been disciplined for (a) bullying and (b) harassment of colleagues since its inception. [254081]

Maria Eagle: Since the Government Equalities Office was established on 12 October 2007 no members of staff have been disciplined for bullying or harassment.

Departmental Internet

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much the Government Equalities Office has spent on broadband internet in each year since it was established. [251668]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office receives a service charge from the Department for Communities and Local Government and from Cabinet Office for IT services. Broadband internet is not separately identified in these charges.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much the Government Equalities Office has spent on maintaining its departmental website in each year since the Office was established. [251900]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office website www.equalities.gov.uk was launched on 10 January 2008. The charge for maintaining the site since 10 January 2008 was £891.83. In 2008-09 the charge for maintaining the site is £2,700.

Departmental Sick Leave

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what estimate she has made of the number of hours of work lost through sickness absence on the part of staff working in the Government Equalities Office in the last 12 months. [251651]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office has lost 806 hours of work through staff sickness absence in the last 12 months.

Departmental Television

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many flat screen televisions have been purchased by the Government Equalities Office since it was established. [2[illegible]

Maria Eagle: Since its establishment, the Government Equalities Office has purchased two flat screen televisions.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in the Government Equalities Office for working (a) in lunch breaks and (b) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252028]

Maria Eagle: The calculation could be made only at disproportionate cost. The Government Equalities Office does not keep a central record of how many days off in lieu were granted to staff for working in lunch breaks and at other times. Records are held by individual members of staff and their line managers. Time off in lieu has to be authorised by managers, and be within parameters set out in GEO's terms and conditions.

Equal Pay: Private Sector

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what estimate she has made of the cost to business of mandatory pay audits in the private sector; and if she will make a statement. [252773]

Maria Eagle [holding answer 2 February 2009]: Research commissioned by the Equal Opportunities Commission in 2005 found that the administrative cost of carrying out an equal pay review was typically the equivalent of three to six months of the time of a single member of staff.

Mass Media

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many press and communications officers are employed by the Government Equalities Office. [251908]

Maria Eagle: The communication team at the Government Equalities Office consists of six posts of which two are press officers.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she has issued to (a) police forces and (b) licensing authorities on using under 18 year olds for test purchases of alcohol in pubs. [247771]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has not issued any recent guidance to the police or licensing authorities on the issue of test purchasing. The use of test purchase operations is a local operational matter, and as such is a decision for the chief constable. However, we are aware that both ACPO and LACORS have produced guidance on this matter.

Animal Experiments: Primates

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her Department's policy is on the provisions in the draft EU Directive 86/609 relating to the use of great apes in scientific procedures. [253688]

Meg Hillier: Great apes have never been used as laboratory animals under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 and in 1997 we gave a commitment that we will not allow their use in the future. This remains our position.

The provisions of the draft directive seek to prohibit the use of great apes, except in research aimed at the preservation of those species and where action is warranted in relation to an unexpected life-threatening or debilitating condition endangering human beings and no other species or alternative method would suffice.

Although these provisions appear weaker than our position, we support the proposal in principle. The exemptions allowed could only be invoked in genuinely exceptional circumstances and in practice the provision would be an effective ban on the use of great apes consistent with our policy.

Borders: Passenger Ships

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will hold discussions with the Secretary of State for Transport on strengthening domestic security in relation to cruise ships under the (a) e-borders programme and (b) Government's counter-terrorism strategy. [253703]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Secretary is in regular contact with the Secretary of State for Transport on a range of matters including maritime security and e-Borders.

The e-Borders programme is designed to collect passenger and crew data for all those entering or leaving the UK regardless of the mode of transport and is currently in the process of being rolled out. Cruise ships are included in the implementation programme and preliminary discussions and trials with major cruise operators and with shipping agents who act on behalf of cruise operators have been held. No major issues have been identified that would prevent cruise ship operators from achieving full compliance in line with the e-Borders implementation plan.

There is an established maritime security regime in place in the UK for all passenger ships, including cruise ships, engaged in international voyages. This regime is regulated by the Department for Transport and is in accordance with the requirements of the International Ship and Port Facility (ISPS) Code and EU Regulation 725/2004.

British Nationality: Republic of Ireland

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people applied for UK passports from a primary residence in the Irish Republic in the last two years. [253276]

Meg Hillier: The British embassy in Dublin issued the following number of passports to British nationals applying within the Republic of Ireland.

	Number of passports
2007	9,487
2008	9,225

Statistics are not broken down by place of primary residence. However, the majority of these are issued to British nationals resident in the Republic of Ireland, the few exceptions being British nationals visiting Ireland and who lost their previous passports while there.

Community Relations

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to publish the CONTEST 2 strategy. [254139]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 3 February 2009]: An account of the Government's long-term strategy for countering international terrorism, known within Government as CONTEST, was published in July 2006. The Home Secretary announced last October plans to revise the strategy. This revised account will be published in the spring.

Crime: Economic Situation

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what account she has taken of the effect of the economic downturn on levels of crime in planning resource allocations to police forces; and if she will make a statement. [252779]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Caernarfon (Hywel Williams) on 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 806W.

Departmental Data Protection

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many electronic or computer files her Department and its agencies lost in transit in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [241789]

Jacqui Smith: Incidents of personal data losses are recorded centrally but the numbers of electronic and computer files contained within lost data is not recorded. To answer this question would fall into the disproportionate cost threshold.

The Home Office has publicised details of personal data related incidents notified to the Information Commissioner's Office in 2007-08 in its Resource Accounts published in August 2008. In the first half of 2008-09 a notification was made to the Information Commissioner regarding the PA Consulting data loss incident.

Domestic Violence

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1074W, on domestic violence, what steps are being taken to reduce the incidence of such offences. [247981]

Mr. Alan Campbell: One of the key outcomes in our National Domestic Violence Reduction Delivery Plan is to reduce the prevalence of domestic violence, particularly in high incidence areas and/or communities. We are revisiting our delivery plan to ensure a greater focus on prevention. An example would be exploring how to change attitudes and behaviours of key audiences.

One initiative which is currently being promoted through the school curriculum provides scope for education on addressing the underlying causes of violence and abuse relationships. One example is SEAL (social and emotional aspects of learning), which helps children develop their capacity to empathise, show respect and form positive relationships with other people. This can be expected to apply to any form of violent behaviour and thus prevent future incidences of domestic violence.

Forensic Science Service: Manpower

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many forensic scientists have (a) left and (b) joined the Forensic Science Service since 2001. [253168]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 2 February 2009]: Since 2002, the following number of forensic scientists[1] (including permanent, temporary and external employees) have (a) left and (b) joined Forensic Science Service Ltd. (FSS):

	Leavers	Starters
1 June 2002 to 31 December 2002	71	99
1 January 2003 to 31 December 2003	139	105
1 January 2004 to 31 December 2004	139	100
1 January 2005 to 31 December 2005	116	112
1 January 2006 to 31 December 2006	143	73
1 January 2007 to 31 December 2007	179	48
1 January 2008 to 31 December 2008	190	153

Genetics: Databases

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 15 September 2008, Official Report, columns 2069-70W, on genetics: databases, what her most recent estimate is of the number of DNA samples taken and loaded onto the national DNA database since 31 March 2008 which would not previously have been taken prior to the entry into force of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001; and if she will make a statement. [251165]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The National DNA Database is designed to match DNA taken from crime scenes with that taken from individuals. It does not hold information on whether those with records on it have convictions, as this is not necessary for this purpose. Some data on whether those on the NDNAD have convictions is available from the police national computer (PNC), but not as part of its routine functions and not within the cost limit for parliamentary questions. However, the National Policing Improvement Agency does obtain this information periodically and this was last done at the end of March 2008. The information is due to be obtained again at the end of March 2009.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many new profiles have been added to the national DNA database since December 2008, broken down by age group; how many have been added by each police force; and if she will make a statement; [251184]

(2) with reference to the answer of 5 March 2008, Official Report, columns 2669-70W, on genetics: databases, how many and what proportion of new DNA profiles added to the national DNA database in each month since 18 January 2008 relate to individuals aged (a) under 16, (b) 16 to 18, (c) 19 to 20, (d) 21 to 30, (e) 31 to 40, (f) 41 to 50, (g) 51 to 60 and (h) over 60 years, broken down by police force responsible for the profile being added; and if she will make a statement. [251241]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The figures given in Table 1 show the number of profiles added to the National DNA Database by English and Welsh forces during the period 1 to 22 January 2009, broken down by age group and the police force which added the profile.

The figures given in Table 2 show the number of profiles added to the National DNA Database by English and Welsh forces during the period 18 January to 31 December 2008, broken down by age group and the police force which added the profile. It is not possible to break this information down by month except at disproportionate cost.

[1] The term forensic scientist is taken to mean any scientist who carries out police casework. Information is not available for 2001.

The age breakdown in both tables is based on the age of the subjects as at 22 January 2009. The figures show the number of profiles added to the database. Some of these may since have been deleted.

A proportion of DNA profiles held on the NDNAD are replicates, that is, a profile for a person has been loaded on more then one occasion (this may be because the person gave different names, or different versions of their name, on separate arrests, or because of upgrading of profiles). It is estimated that 13.3 per cent. of profiles held on the NDNAD are replicates. Therefore, the number of individuals on the NDNAD is approximately 13.3 per cent. less than the number of subject profiles. The presence of these replicate profiles on the NDNAD does not impact on the effectiveness and integrity of the database.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her most recent assessment is of the contribution made by the national DNA database to the detection of crime; and if she will make a statement. [252550]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The National DNA database is a key police information tool which contributes to the efficiency of crime detection. It has a key role to play in contributing to detection outcomes, eliminating the innocent from inquiries, focusing the direction of inquiries resulting in savings in police time and in building public confidence that elusive offenders may be detected and brought to justice.

It is estimated that over the period April 1998 to end September 2008, there have been approximately 290,000 detections in which a DNA match was available or played a part in solving the crime. A breakdown of this figure by year is given in the following table. It includes figures for quarters 1 and 2 of 2008-09 to 30 September 2008.

Number of detections in which a DNA match was available or played a part April 1998 to September 2008: England and Wales

[1] Additional detections may result from the original crime with the DNA match due to the identification of further offences through forensic linkage or through admission by the offender.

Human Trafficking

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the reasons are for the decision to cease funding the Metropolitan Police's human trafficking unit; and if she will make a statement. [241802]

Jacqui Smith: Following discussions with the Metropolitan Police Service, we have decided to provide additional funding for the MPS trafficking team. This will enable the MPS to ensure the trafficking team continues during 2009-10.

Human trafficking is part of core police business. The funding, which is a one-off grant, is designed to enable the MPS to mainstream this work into its daily activities in a planned and organised fashion.

Identity Cards

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of identity cards to be issued to (a) foreign nationals and (b) British and Irish citizens resident in the UK in each year to 2014-15. [250833]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The UK Border Agency expects to issue in the region of 50,000 cards by the end of April 2009 to non-EEA foreign nationals who are subject to immigration control. Volumes will rise rapidly thereafter.

Under current plans over the next three years the scheme will be extended to other categories for non-EEA foreign nationals extending their stay in the UK and be widened to include those coming in to the UK on visas for more than six months. Within three years we expect to be issuing over one million identity cards a year to foreign nationals. All new entrants and those extending their stay will have a card within three years.

The following table summarises the estimated volumes published in the November 2008 National Identity Cards Scheme Cost Report, combining the total volume of Identity Cards and Passports issued by IPS to British and Irish Citizens resident in the UK. The figures for issuing both products were combined as, in many cases, the same application would result in the issue of both a passport and an identity card.

Estimated passport and identity card products issued to British and Irish citizens resident in the UK

	(million)
2009-10	5.5
2010-11	5.4
2011-12	5.9
2012-13	7.9
2013-14	10.5
2014-15	12.5

This is the most recently published information on product volumes that is currently available. The Identity and Passport Service is currently developing the product choice offered to customers, as indicated in the National Identity Scheme Delivery Plan published in March 2008. Figures for the projected product volumes will be published in due course.

Illegal Immigrants

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what written instructions police from each police authority give to illegal immigrants who are found in or near a vehicle. [250276]

Mr. Coaker: No central information is kept on this matter.

Immigration Controls

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will commission an independent inquiry into the socio-economic effects of the (a) new points-based immigration system and (b) new civil penalties regime. [250599]

Jacqui Smith: Significant policy proposals, such as the statements of intent for the various tiers of the points-based system, are regularly referred to the migration impacts forum in order to obtain the forum's view on the likely impacts of those policies on the UK.

Immigration: Appeals

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to reduce the number of appeals in immigration and asylum cases. [249923]

Jacqui Smith: We have recently consulted on a number of proposals in this area and will publish our plans in due course. Our ongoing Quality Initiative Project, in conjunction with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, aims to improve the quality of decision making in asylum cases which should reduce the number of appeals. UNHCR have published reports over the last four years which illustrate both the work that has been done to improve quality and the progress UNHICR and UKBA have jointly made.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were waiting for a successful appeal against a UK Borders Agency determination to be reflected in their documented immigration status at 31 December (a) 2003, (b) 2004, (c) 2005, (d) 2006, (e) 2007 and (f) 2008. [249924]

Jacqui Smith: Information on the number of people who were waiting for a successful appeal against a UK Border Agency determination to be reflected in their documented immigration status at 31 December (a) 2003, (b) 2004, *(c)*2005, (d) 2006, (e) 2007 and (f) 2008 is not available.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what targets the UK Border Agency has for the length of time it should take to regularise the paperwork of an immigration or asylum applicant following a successful appeal made by that applicant against one of the Agency's decisions. [250597]

Jacqui Smith: There are currently no targets in place governing the length of time that it should take to implement an applicant's status following an allowed appeal.

However, UKBA has recently undertaken a piece of work to review the processes involved in granting status following an allowed appeal. The review has identified potential process amendments to make the system more timely.

Independent Police Complaints Commission: Finance

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding has been provided by her Department to the Independent Police Complaints Commission in each year since it was established. [252952]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has provided the following amounts towards the funding of the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) in each year since it was established in 2004.

	£ million
2004-05	27.7
2005-06	29.8
2006-07	31.2
2007-08	32.2
2008-09	34.2

Independent Police Complaints Commission: Standards

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the Independent Police Complaints Commission's (IPCC) target is for the time to conclude investigation of a complaint against the police from the date of registration of the complaint; what the average time taken per case has been since the IPCC was established; and if she will make a statement. [253013]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold the information requested as this is a matter for the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC). A copy of the hon. Member's letter has been sent to the IPCC and they will respond to him direct.

Passports

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) staff were employed on average in and (b) passports were issued by each of the passport offices in the UK in 2008. [253088]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The number of staff employed on average and the number of passports issued by regional offices are as follows:

Region	Passports produced	Average FTEs
London	235,873	262
Liverpool	1,050,389	380
Peterborough	991,319	458
Newport	765,821	306
Glasgow	232,268	202
Belfast	348,900	160
Durham	1,669,111	588
Total	5,293,681	2,355

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hours per week each passport office is open; and if she will make a statement. [253670]

Meg Hillier: The Identity and Passport Service's seven regional passport offices are open for the hours listed in the following table. The various days and individual opening hours of the 68 interview offices are given on our website at:

www.ips.gov.uk

Regional Passport Office	Days	Opening times	Total hours open
Belfast	Monday to Friday	8.30 am - 5.00pm	48 hours 30 minutes
	Saturday	9.00 am - 3.00pm
Durham	Monday to Friday	8.30 am - 5.00pm	48 hours 30 minutes
	Saturday	9.00 am - 3.00pm

	Saturday	9.00 am - 3.00pm
Peterborough	Monday to Friday	[1]8.00 am - 5.00pm	51 hours
	Saturday	9.00 am - 3.00pm

[1] Liverpool and Peterborough are open until 6.00pm from March until September.

Passports: Lost Property

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many passports were (a) issued and (b) reported (i) lost and (ii) stolen from each passport office in each of the last three years. [254134]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The figures in the following table set out the numbers of passport or supporting document deliveries that have been recorded as lost or stolen either during the delivery process, or due to being delivered incorrectly by the secure delivery courier.

		Number
2006	February 2006 to January 2007	727
2007	February 2007 to January 2008	716
2008	February 2008 to September 2008	[1]495

[1] Provisional

It is not possible, in the time given, to report these figures for each Passport Office or to differentiate between losses of passports and losses of supporting documents.

The majority of these losses (around 90 per cent.) are a consequence of items being incorrectly delivered. These figures are collated in line with the contractual arrangements with Secure Mail Services (SMS), the Secure Delivery provider, who commenced the secure delivery of passports in 2004.

Over five million items a year are delivered to IPS customers through the Secure Delivery service. IPS and SMS continue to work closely to improve upon losses while maintaining minimum inconvenience to customers. All passport losses are added to the database of lost or stolen passports, which is maintained by IPS.

Police: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will commission a report from the Commissioner of Essex Police on the amount spent by (a) Essex and (b) Southend police on (i) own force investigations, (ii) supervised investigations, (iii) managed investigations and (iv) independent investigations in each of the last three years for which information is available. [253020]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held by the Home Office. This is a matter for the chief constable of Essex police.

Police: Forensic Science Service

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police forces do not employ the Forensic Science Service (FSS); and what the average duration of a FSS contract with the police was in each of the last five years. [253169]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 2 February 2009]: All police forces submit some work to the Forensic Science Service (FSS).

Most police forces have contracted on the basis of service level agreements which are between one and two years' duration. Other contracts have been awarded to FSS following a police tendering exercise and are usually three years' in duration with an option to extend the contract for a further two years.

Police: Pay

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was paid to police officers of each rank in each police force under the Chief Officers' Bonus Scheme in each year since its creation; for what reason each bonus was paid; how many officers refused to accept a bonus; what criteria are used in awarding such bonuses; what discussions she has had with the Association of Chief Police Officers about the bonus scheme; and if she will make a statement. [252953]

Mr. Coaker: Data relating to the levels of bonuses, the reasons for payment and any refusals are not held centrally. Chief officers are eligible for bonuses as part of their performance pay arrangements; the bonus criteria are set out in Police Negotiating Board Circular 2005/03. I have arranged for a copy to be placed in the House Library. My right hon. Friend and I meet regularly with ACPO to discuss a range of issues.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was paid from the Chief Police Officers' bonus scheme in each of the last three years; and what individual payments were made to each recipient. [253205]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 2 February 2009]: Decisions on chief officer bonus payments are a matter for the police authority. Data on the bonuses paid to chief officers are not held centrally.

Police: Prosecutions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many serving police officers have been (a) prosecuted and (b) convicted of a criminal offence in each month since June 2006, broken down by (i) sex, (ii) age and (iii) police force; and how many were (A) suspended from duty, (B) demoted, (C) dismissed and (D) cautioned. [253017]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been informed by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform that the data held centrally on court proceedings do not contain information about the circumstances behind each case, beyond the description provided in the statute under which prosecutions are brought.

It is therefore not possible to identify the occupation of a defendant who has been prosecuted or convicted of a criminal offence. As a result the information requested on court proceedings is not available.

Police: Resignations

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many heads of police forces have been requested to resign by (a) her and her predecessors and (b) the relevant police authority in each year since 1997. [247111]

Jacqui Smith: The information is as follows:

(a) Following the fatal shooting of James Ashley in 1998 the then Home Secretary wrote to Sussex police in 2001 urging it to take action to restore public confidence. Paul Whitehouse, the chief constable, retired.

Michael Bichard's independent enquiry into child protection measures, record keeping, vetting and information sharing in Humberside police and Cambridgeshire constabulary reported in 2004. Subsequently the then Home Secretary required Humberside police authority to suspend chief constable David Westwood. David Westwood retired.

(b) The Home Office does not keep records of all discussions between police authorities and heads of police forces.

Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many instances of a refusal to comply with a Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act section 49 notice were notified to her Department in 2008. [253781]

Mr. Coaker: I understand that there were seven notifications of refusal to comply with a section 49 notice in the calendar year ending December 2008.

Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000: Convictions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many convictions for refusal to comply with a Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 section 49 notice there were in 2008. [253771]

Mr. Coaker: I understand that there was one conviction in the calendar year ending December 2008.

Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000: Prosecutions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions for refusal to comply with a Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 section 49 notice there were in 2008. [253782]

Mr. Coaker: I understand that there was one prosecution in the calendar year ending December 2008.

Right of Search: Computers

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Government plans to introduce legislation to require the police and security forces to obtain a warrant before remotely accessing web users' hard drives. [252558]

Mr. Coaker: No. There is already legislation which governs this issue. Remote police interference with a computer would require authorisation under Part III of the Police Act 1997, from a chief constable. Any such authorisation must also be notified to a Commissioner from the independent Office of Surveillance Commissioners. The Intelligence and Security Agencies would require a warrant authorised by the Secretary of State under the Intelligence Services Act 1994.

Security: Illegal Immigration

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many of the 3,275 cases where persons were suspected of working in the security industry in breach of immigration laws after a false name or national insurance number had been given to the Security Industry Authority have resulted in the (a) prosecution and (b) deportation or removal of the person concerned from the United Kingdom. [244298]

Mr. Woolas: Premature release of information relating to the introduction of right to work checks within the security industry was likely to have forewarned potential targets of our investigation into illegal working and compromised the UK Border Agency's opportunity to mount targeted, intelligence led removal operations. Nevertheless the UK Border Agency carried out an extensive programme of visits to workplaces and home addresses during the course of its subsequent investigation.

UK Border Agency internal management information indicates that 13 cases have been proceeded against for criminal offences, mainly involving forgery or the use of false identities and at least 35 former Security Industry Authority licence holders have been removed so far. This information has not been quality assured under national statistics protocols, is subject to change and should be treated as provisional.

In February this year, we introduced a tough new system of heavy financial penalties for employers found to be employing illegal migrant workers, making it progressively more difficult for illegal immigrants to remain in the United Kingdom. As a result of this—and the publicity surrounding action taken to revoke these licences—we believe that many more individuals will have left the country voluntarily at no cost to the UK taxpayer.

Stop and Search

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer of 21 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1628-29W, on stop and search, how many of those searched in each year were subsequently arrested. [252585]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of persons stopped and searched under section 44 (sections 1 and 2) of the Terrorism Act 2000 and resultant arrests, from 1999-2000 to 2006-07 (latest available) are provided in the following table.

Searches of pedestrians, vehicles and occupants under sections 44(1) and 44(2) of the Terrorism Act 2000[1] and resultant arrests, 1999-2000 to 2006-07—England and Wales

Number

	Stops and searches in order to prevent acts of terrorism
	Total searches	Resultant arrests
1999-2000	1,900	18
2000-01	6,400	45
2001-02	10,200	18[illegible]
2002-03	32,100	380
2003-04	33,800	491
2004-05[2]	37,000	468
2005-06	50,000	563
2006-07	41,900	480

UK Border Agency: Appeals

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she monitors the length of time taken by the UK Border Agency between a successful appeal against its decisions and the regularisation of the applicants' paperwork; and if she will make a statement. [249970]

Jacqui Smith: UKBA does not currently monitor the length of time taken between a successful appeal and the regularisation of the applicants' paperwork.

However, UKBA has recently reviewed the processes. The review has identified potential amendments to make the system more timely. We are currently working to finalise how these changes will be implemented. Arrangements have been made to monitor progress in this area.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the effect of proposed job losses at Corus on the construction of the Royal Navy's aircraft carriers. [253477]

Mr. Quentin Davies: We do not anticipate this will have any effect on the construction of the aircraft carriers, HMS Queen Elizabeth and HMS Prince of Wales.

Armed Forces: Expenditure

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on (a) the armed forces and (b) military intelligence since January 2002; and if he will make a statement. [252107]

Mr. Hutton: Historic Defence outturn figures, as published in UK Defence Statistics 2008, are set out in Table 1 as follows. Due to the introduction of resource accounting and budgeting in 2003-04 there are no comparable outturn figures for the years 2001-02 and 2002-03. More detailed Defence expenditure information is available in the annual report and accounts, copies of which are placed in the Library of the House.

Table 1

	Defence outturn (£ million)
2003-04	30,861
2004-05	32,515
2005-06	33,164
2006-07	34,045
2007-08	37,407
Total	167,992

Military intelligence functions are spread across a broad range of Defence activities. To produce an accurate figure would involve collating data from various sources across the Department and armed forces at disproportionate cost. Nevertheless, the majority of intelligence business is conducted by the Defence intelligence staff (DIS). DIS outturn figures (based on direct resource DEL and capital DEL) are set out in Table 2 as follows.

Table 2

	DIS Outturn (£ million)
2001-02	162.5
2002-03	185.7
2003-04	216.0
2004-05	251.5
2005-06	269.1
2006-07	272.5
2007-08	257.0
Total	1,614.3

Outturn figures are not yet available for 2008-09.

Armed Forces: Housing

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many reports have been made by residents of services accommodation to (a) Modern Housing Solutions and (b) Defence Estates on the presence of asbestos in their accommodation. [248659]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Details of inquiries specifically relating to asbestos cannot be separately identified.

However, the Ministry of Defence and its contractors take the health and safety of all occupants of service accommodation seriously and any reports concerning asbestos are fully investigated and appropriate action taken where necessary. Also occupants of service accommodation are made aware of the location of any asbestos known to be present in their accommodation and are given appropriate health and safety advice. The MOD's actions are in accordance with the control of asbestos regulations.

Armed Forces: Journalism

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 82-3W, how many journalists have been embedded in the armed forces since 1997; and for how long in each case. [252651]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Since April 2005, 537 media visits were facilitated to destinations worldwide. These figures exclude May to July 2005 for which no data are available. The number of journalists involved in each visit varies and exact figures are not available.

Most journalists will spend between one and two weeks in theatre.

Data representing the number of media visits prior to April 2005 are not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Prosthetics

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the supply of prosthetic limbs for service personnel injured on operations (a) for the first fitting of the limb and (b) for second and subsequent replacement limbs; and what recent estimate he has made of the average waiting time between the submission of a request for a prosthetic limb and the fitting of the limb in such cases. [251699]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 27 January 2009]: Injured service personnel who require prosthetic limbs are supplied with tailor made prostheses with state of the art componentry which is matched to their clinical needs. Service patients requiring such prostheses are transferred to the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre (DMRC) at Headley Court when they are medically stable. Within typically two days of arrival they are seen by a prosthetist in order to cast a bespoke socket that will cover the stump and allow attachment of the prosthetic limb itself. The limb is then typically supplied within five days of admission to Headley Court and fitted when it is clinically appropriate. The patient is also given a second limb as a spare and additional limbs or fittings as are required to improve functionality. In cases where a simple replacement of a component is appropriate, individual patient data held at DMRC enable the new item to be manufactured and supplied without necessarily requiring the patient to attend Headley Court in person.

For veterans, the standard of prosthetic limb provision to injured personnel by the Defence Medical Services will, as a minimum, be matched by the NHS in Great Britain as set out in the Service Personnel Command Paper.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in departmental buildings in the last 12 months. [252371]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Due to the increase in Ministers, following the last reshuffle, the Department has spent £131,000, excluding VAT, on works and refurbishments in the last 12 months.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251880]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 6W. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the ministerial code.

EU Rapid Reaction Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK (a) military personnel and (b) civilian staff were attached to (i) the European Union Military Staff, (ii) the European Defence Agency, (iii) the European Union Military Committee and (iv) other EU institutions in each month since May 2008. [253369]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The staffing numbers for each month between May 2008 and January 2009 are as follows:

	Date period	(a) Military personnel	(b) Civilian staff
(i) EU Military Staff	May 2008 to January 2009	18	0
(ii) European Defence Agency	May 2008 to September 2008	2	4
	October 2008 to January 2009	3	4
(iii) EU Military Committee	May 2008 to January 2009	1	0
(iv) Other EU institutions	May 2008 to January 2009	0	3

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the Answer of 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 754W, on the EU Rapid Reaction Force, what the UK contribution is to the 50,000 to 60,000 person military force. [253386]

Mr. Hutton: There is no EU Rapid Reaction Force.

However, the UK continues to support the Helsinki Headline Goal that all EU member states agreed to in 1999, which calls for EU member states to be able to:

> "deploy within 60 days and sustain for at least one year military forces of up to 50,000 to 60,000 persons capable of the full range of Petersberg tasks."

This represents an overarching target for member states' collective level of capability, from which the EU's capability development framework takes its lead. It does not imply the creation of a standing EU force of any kind. Any commitment to an EU-led operation is voluntary and is a decision for national Governments to make on a case by case basis.

Gurkhas

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his plans for the future of the Gurkha regiments are. [254133]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Brigade of Gurkhas provides a key element of the British Army, fulfilling a number of roles, including infantry, engineers, signals and logistics. These roles were confirmed as part of the Future Army Structure review in 2004 and there are no plans to change them.

Military Aircraft

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what estimate his Department has made of the cost of purchasing and converting three replacement United States Air Force KC-135R aircraft into RC-135V/W Rivet Joint aircraft and associated equipment and services to UK requirements; what assessment he has made of the additional capability such aircraft will provide; and if he will make a statement; [253332]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the cost of supplying and modifying three replacement MRA4 aircraft platforms to fit UK requirements; what assessment he has made of the additional capability such platforms will provide; and if he will make a statement. [253331]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Helix programme is examining the future manned airborne electronic surveillance capability.

The costs of using the Nimrod MRA4 platform and the Rivet Joint system and the capabilities they provide are currently being assessed against this requirement, along with the Nimrod R1 platform, as part of the preparations for a main investment decision expected in 2009.

The Nimrod MRA4 production contract covers nine aircraft with an option to productionise the three trials aircraft. We continue to discuss this possible extra work with BAE Systems, but no decision has yet been reached.

Minesweepers: Research

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent on research to combat the use of improvised explosive devices in each year of the last five years. [252873]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Ministry of Defence undertakes a wide ranging research programme addressing and supporting many activities. In the last five years, research specifically targeted to counter the use of improvised explosive devices by adversaries has been undertaken to the values shown in the following:

	£ million
2004-05	2.6
2005-06	2.1
2006-07	5
2007-08	14
2008-09	15

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research his Department undertook on protecting troops against use of improvised explosive devices by opposing forces before deploying troops to Afghanistan and Iraq. [252876]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Prior to the deployment of UK forces to Afghanistan and Iraq, the MOD was carrying out research on the development and enhancement of protective capability against a wide range of threat explosive devices. This research included the enhancement of personal and vehicle protection, and means of electronically countering the IED threat.

Navy: Piracy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his Answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 38W, on Navy: piracy, whether (a) CTF-150 and (b) CTF-151 will have operational priority for use of HMS Portland. [253371]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 721W.

Given the inherent flexibility of our Royal Navy assets, HMS Portland will be able to switch between CTF 150 and CTF 151 to exploit capability in the region and support international requirements.

Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) troops in contact incidents and (b) indirect fire events were recorded in (i) Afghanistan and (ii) Iraq in each month of the last three years. [243255]

Mr. Hutton: The Ministry of Defence is currently collating and validating the data needed to answer this question. I will write to the hon. Member when this work is complete, and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Royal Navy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) requirement and (b) actual crew number for each ship type in the Royal Navy is. [253718]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As I stated in my answer to the hon. Member on 13 November 2007, Official Report, column 127W, manning levels of ships are adjusted according to their task. Thus ships undergoing maintenance, for example, would be expected to have a lower level of manning than those deployed on operations. Detailed statistics on these manning judgements are not held centrally.

Warships

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 40W, on warships, what the (a) required and (b) actual level of spare part availability has been for each (i) frigate, (ii) destroyer and (iii) submarine type in the Royal Navy in each year since 2001. [253787]

Mr. Quentin Davies: As I stated in my answer on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 40W, there is no requirement to measure the availability of spare parts for Royal Navy vessels in the format requested as availability is measured at equipment rather than platform level. The new system currently being rolled out to record performance statistics for equipment demands only holds data from the last 12 months which I provided in my earlier response; information prior to this could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247367]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department pays a variety of providers from the private, public, voluntary and charitable sectors for the provision of employment programmes.

The information requested, however, is not held centrally and is available only at disproportionate cost.

The Department and its agencies work in close partnership with charities and voluntary sector organisations to help people access the services and benefits to which they are entitled.

Climate Change

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of its capacity to adapt to climate change; and what plans he has to publish a climate change adaptation strategy. [241171]

Jonathan Shaw: In July 2008, the cross-Government Adapting to Climate Change Programme published Adapting to Climate Change in England—a framework for action which set out the Government's strategy for adaptation and the work-plan for the cross-Government Programme for the next three years. This programme increases Government's capacity to adapt by ensuring a coordinated approach across all Departments and the public sector, and overall responsibility for it rests with DEFRA. Information about the programme can be found at www.defra.gov/adaptation.

This includes taking forward work flowing from the Climate Change Act 2008—including a national Climate Change Risk Assessment and cost benefit analysis which will inform future priorities for the statutory adaptation programme beginning in 2012.

The Government's longer term strategy on adapting to a changing climate will be set out in this statutory National Adaptation Programme, which will be reviewed and updated on a five year rolling basis in response to updated risk assessments, and reported to Parliament.

DWP recognises that the most vulnerable in society may be disproportionately affected by climate change. As such, we consider it important to take steps to adapt to the short, medium and long-term risks and impacts.

In 2003, DWP undertook some initial exploratory work, updated it late last year, and commissioned the Meteorological Office to undertake a review of the impacts of climate change on the Department's policies and operations. The Meteorological Office report was received earlier this year and its findings are now being taken into consideration in formulating the future programme of climate change adaptation work, based on the priorities identified. The Department's Planning Performance and Risk Committee is leading on this work and has endorsed the initial findings of the review. An update to the review will be commissioned once the revised UK Climate Projections are published in the new year.

The Department continues to build climate change into its contingency planning work, and works closely with colleagues from other Government Departments to develop a joint coordinated approach to adapting to climate change. We also sit on the pan-government Domestic Adaptation Programme Board.

Departmental Furniture

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent by his Department on furniture made by (a) British firms, (b) Remploy and (c) overseas firms in each year since 2000. [244359]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has a PFI contract with Land Securities Trillium for the provision of fully serviced accommodation, including the provision of furniture, and for which an all inclusive unitary charge is paid. It is not possible to provide separate details of expenditure which relates solely to furniture from within this amount. The information that is available is provided in the following table. The figures in the table relate solely to expenditure on furniture for projects (including the roll-out of the new Jobcentre Plus network and other departmental initiatives in the Pension Service and Debt Management, which is procured and paid for separately by the Department.

[251325]

Jonathan Shaw: Other Ministers in the Department for Work and Pensions have taken the following personal training courses at public expense since 1 January 2008:

Action Learning Set: 1 Minister

Financial Management: 1 Minister

Governance and Public Accountability: 1 Minister.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251867]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 6W. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Employment Schemes

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many workshops had been held as part of his Department's Employ ability programme at the latest date for figures are available; how many people attended each such workshop; and how many employers in (a) Glasgow North West constituency, (b) Glasgow and (c) Scotland attended an Employ ability workshop in 2008. Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what employment rates were achieved in each region by (a) private and (b) voluntary sector employment service contractors under each (i) New Deal, (ii) Employment Zone and (iii) Pathways to Work programme in each of the last eight years; and if he will make a statement. [246570]

Mr. McNulty: The cost of complying with the request is disproportionate.

Employment Schemes: Finance

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much had been spent on his Department's Employ ability programme at the latest date for which figures are available; and how much of the expenditure had been used for the purposes of advertising the programme. [252563]

Mr. McNulty: Employ ability is a communications campaign that aims to challenge attitudes among SME employers towards recruiting and retaining disabled people and those with long term health conditions. The campaign was piloted in four cities from September to December 2007 and rolled out to 10 UK areas between March 2008 and the present day.

The campaign is delivered through the following activity:

Advertising and advertorials in trade and regional press;
Billboard posters;
Media liaison and PR;
How to Employ ability workshops;
Web pages on DWP website;
E-marketing;
Direct mail and telemarketing;
Stakeholder engagement.

Invest To Save Budget

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) which organisation led each Invest To Save project which has been sponsored by his Department since 1998; and if he will make a statement; [247057]

(2) how many of the Invest To Save projects sponsored by his Department in each year since 1998 (a) have completed their initial stage and have been continued, (b) have completed their initial stage and been discontinued and (c) are in progress; and if he will make a statement; [247058]

(3) how many Invest To Save projects have been sponsored by his Department in each region in each year since 1998; what the cost of each such project was; and if he will make a statement. [247059]

Jonathan Shaw: The Invest to Save Budget (ISB) was a cross-Government funding stream that was launched by HM Treasury in 1998 to foster innovation within the public sector and promote the joined-up delivery of public services through greater partnership working.

Many lessons were learnt from the DWP-sponsored projects and the outcomes of the initial stages informed the effective delivery of services and products to DWP's customers. A 2007 review of the ISB drew particular attention to the success of the ONE project. This piloted the requirement of benefit claimants to consider their work potential before making a claim and heavily influenced the design and roll-out of Jobcentre Plus.

The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the following table. The table shows the 'Invest to Save' funding allocated to each project. Information on costs is not readily available and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many times criminal damage has taken place in Jobcentre Plus premises in each Jobcentre Plus district in each month since the creation of Jobcentre Plus; and what estimate he has made of the costs to his Department arising from such criminal damage. [249421]

Mr. McNulty: Under the terms of the Department's estate PFI (private finance initiative) prime contract, responsibility for meeting the costs of repairing damage to Jobcentre Plus buildings falls to our estates partner, Trillium. No central records are kept of instances of criminal damage, and the associated costs of repair, and this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. McNulty: Information on the number of employment vacancies and persons claiming jobseeker's allowance in each parliamentary constituency has been placed in the Library.

Mentally Ill: Discrimination

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent steps he has taken to reduce levels of discrimination on grounds of mental health; and if he will make a statement. [252447]

Jonathan Shaw: The Disability Discrimination Act (DDA) 1995, which this Government have improved and strengthened, particularly through the Disability Discrimination Act 2005, provides a comprehensive set of enforceable rights for disabled people, including those with mental health conditions (who meet the DDA's definition of a disabled person.)

To improve our support for disabled people we have recently been working with MIND (the mental health charity) to pilot flexible Access to Work support for people with fluctuating mental health conditions. Our Employ ability campaign challenges preconceptions and offers practical information and support to help make employing disabled people (including people with poor mental health) as easy as possible.

In addition to this, 'Improving health and work: changing lives', the Government's response to Dame Carol Black's review of the health of Britain's working age population, set out a number of measures the Government intend to take to help reduce the stigma and discrimination often associated with poor mental health.

The most prominent current initiative is the development of the first ever cross-Government National Mental Health and Employment Strategy which will specifically focus on issues such as stigma and discrimination. We expect that this strategy will be published in the spring.

Pensioners: Poverty

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the percentage of pensioners in (a) Glasgow North West constituency, (b) Glasgow and (c) the UK who are living in poverty. [248536]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Poverty is a complex and multidimensional issue and, as such, there are many possible measures of poverty.

Our public service agreement "Tackle poverty and promote greater independence and wellbeing in later life" includes a range of indicators related to low income for pensioners. These are relative low income (below 50 and 60 per cent. contemporary median household income), and absolute low income (below 60 per cent. of 1998-99 median income uprated in line with prices), all measured after housing costs have been taken into account.

Latest information for Scotland and the UK on the percentage of pensioners below each of these thresholds is given in the following table. The data source does not allow us to provide robust numbers for estimates below the level of Scotland as a whole.

Percentage of pensioners falling below various thresholds of median household income: after housing costs, Scotland and the UK, 2006-07

	Scotland	UK
Below 60 per cent. of contemporary median household income	15	19
Below 50 per cent. of contemporary median household income	7	10
Below 60 per cent. of the 1998-99 median household income uprated in line with prices	7	10

Notes:
1. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication "Households Below Average Income" (HBAI) series, which uses disposable household income, adjusted (or 'equivalised') for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
2. The figures are based on OECD equivalisation factors.
3. Figures are based on survey data and as such are subject to a degree of sampling and non-sampling error.

Sight Impaired

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidelines his Department follows in respect of making printed materials and forms accessible to people suffering red/green colour blindness. [245724]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department considers it vitally important that we respect all people by ensuring that our communications are inclusive, legible and accessible. Our corporate branding guidelines have been carefully designed to consider the language, colours and imagery we use, as well as the way we lay out our communications.

The most common form of colour blindness is red/green followed by yellow/blue. Our core colours are green, purple and grey with a palette of secondary colours. These colours help anchor our visual identity, give consistency to our communications and are accessible.

Social Security Benefits: Advisory Services

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what funding his Department is making available for (a) voluntary sector organisations and (b) local authorities to provide advice on the availability of and eligibility for benefits in 2008-09. [244368]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department provides local authorities with housing benefit/council tax benefit (HB/CTB) administration subsidy. It is a targeted DWP specific grant paid to all 408 local authorities in Great Britain which helps meet the cost of administering HB/CTB. The overall administration subsidy allocation is £541 million for 2008-09. This subsidy covers the provision of advice on eligibility for benefits to potential claimants.

The Department and its agencies work in close partnership with voluntary sector organisations and local authorities to help people access the services and benefits to which they are entitled.

The Department itself does not provide any other regular sources of funding to either voluntary sector organisations or local authorities to provide advice on the availability of and eligibility for benefits.

Working Conditions: Temperature

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions his Department has had with the Health and Safety Executive on the introduction of a legal maximum workplace temperature. [249055]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Secretary of State has written recently to the chair of the Health and Safety Executive, asking them to revisit the reasons for and against a maximum workplace temperature. He has asked the Executive to ensure that trade unions, and other key stakeholders, are fully engaged in this exercise.

The FSCS confirmed on 25 November that it is has sent out compensation claim forms to all the savers that they have records for at Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander (KSF) who did not transfer to ING Direct. On 12 December the FSCS announced that their claims teams have been processing the application forms received back from savers.

The FSCS's priority is to pay eligible retail depositors their compensation as quickly as possible. Claimants can contact the FSCS directly if they would like more information about their claim.

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the monetary value in sterling of the reduction in the UK's rebate to its contribution to the EU budget negotiated in December 2005. [251283]

Ian Pearson: The December 2005 Budget agreement sets a cap on the disapplication of the UK abatement in 2004 prices in the current Budget period. The sterling value of this cap will depend upon changes in the exchange rate against the Euro within the Budget period.

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what administrative financial penalties may be levied by his Department and its agencies. [253602]

Angela Eagle: No financial penalties are levied by the Treasury or any of its agencies.

The application for an administration order was made by the Financial Services Authority. The order was made by the court. The administration process of KSF UK is a matter for the administrators of KSF UK.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many businesses in each local authority area occupy premises with rateable values between £10,000 and £14,999; and if he will make a statement; [253628]

(2) how many businesses occupy premises with rateable values below £10,000 are receiving small business rate relief; and if he will make a statement. [253629]

Mark Prisk: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, how many businesses there are on the ratings list in each local authority area with rateable values below £10,000; and if he will make a statement. [253631]

Mr. Timms: Local authorities reported that there were 392,000 businesses in England in receipt of small business rate relief as at 31 December 2006, the only year for which this information is currently available.

Information on the rateable value of properties owned by businesses in receipt of the relief is not available.

Responsibility for policy on business rates in other parts of the United Kingdom lies with the devolved Administrations.

2007	26	33	4
2008	16	26	7

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the full-time equivalent median pay for HM Revenue and Customs employees is in (a) England, (b) each region in England, (c) Wales, (d) Scotland and (e) Northern Ireland. [250846]

Mr. Timms: The full-time equivalent median pay of HMRC employees in each Government Region at 1 February 2009 is in the following table:

Government region	£ Median annual salary

East Midlands	22,605
London	29,734

Revenue and Customs: Security

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to outsource the provision of security at offices and operations of HM Revenue and Customs. [253464]

Mr. Timms: Guarding services in HMRC are currently provided through a mixture of in-house and outsourced security guards. Over 60 per cent. of the security guards at HMRC sites are already provided by external suppliers, primarily Mapeley under the terms of its PFI contract with HMRC which commenced in April 2001.

HMRC are currently exploring the potential to outsource its remaining in-house manned guarding services and in August 2008 commenced a fully competitive procurement exercise by publishing a contract notice in the Official Journal of the European Union (OJEU). A decision on any further outsourcing will depend on the comparative business cases that are constructed as a result of this exercise, including the provision of in-house security guards.

Seized Articles: Appeals

Michael Jabez Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of appeals to magistrates' courts against seizure of excise goods by HM Revenue and Customs were successful in the last two years. [250780]

Angela Eagle: During the financial year 2007-08 there were 423 condemnation cases concluded in the courts in the United Kingdom, in relation to excise goods. Approximately 8 per cent. of these appeals by the claimant were successful.

For the current financial year 2008-09 until 16 January 2009 there have been 738 condemnation cases initiated. Of these, 426 cases have been concluded and the claimants were successful in 5 per cent. of these cases.

Smuggling

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what steps he plans to take to (a) reduce levels of alcohol and tobacco smuggling and (b) implement Article 15 of the World Health Organisation's Framework Convention on Tobacco Control on illicit trade in tobacco products; and if he will make a statement; [253581]

(2) what steps the UK has taken at EU level to reduce the smuggling of alcohol and tobacco products; and if he will make a statement; [253667]

(3) what mechanisms are in place to monitor the effectiveness of HM Revenue and Customs in tackling the smuggling of alcohol and tobacco products; and if he will make a statement; [253664]

(4) what evaluation he has made of the effectiveness of (a) tobacco and (b) alcohol industries' responses to smuggling of their products; and if he will make a statement; [253665]

(5) what recent discussions he has had with EU counterparts on the smuggling of alcohol and tobacco products; and if he will make a statement; [253668]

(6) what assessment he has made of recent trends in the level of smuggling of (a) alcohol and (b) tobacco products; [253675]

(7) what the estimated losses to the Exchequer from (a) tobacco and (b) alcohol smuggling were in each of the last five years. [253676]

Mr. Timms: At the time of the 2008 pre-Budget-report, the Government published a new integrated strategy for HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) and the UK Border Agency (UKBA); 'Tackling Tobacco Smuggling Together'. The strategy document is available in the Commons Library. This sets out the Government's plans to build on the considerable progress that has already been made in driving down tobacco smuggling and reducing revenue losses. The strategy takes full account of work being done at EU level and at international level through the World Health Organisation's framework convention on tobacco control. As a party to the convention, the UK is committed to seeking an agreement on an illicit trade protocol under article 15 by 2010. The strategy also sets out a clear framework for co-operation between law enforcement bodies, regulatory authorities and the public health sector. It also reinforces co-operation with the tobacco industry, which remains crucial to tackling smuggled and counterfeit tobacco.

The respective roles of HMRC and the UKBA, details of how UKBA performance will be monitored and objectives for tobacco seizures in 2008-09, are set out in the UKBA Partnership Agreement with HMRC, which is published on the UKBA website.

At PBR 2008, the Government also announced a review of HMRC's alcohol fraud strategy. The review will look to strengthen work to tackle spirits fraud and extend this approach to other products affected by fraud. A further announcement on this will be made at Budget 2009.

The most recent estimates of the losses attributable to alcohol and tobacco fraud and smuggling were published by HMRC in November 2008 in a report 'Measuring Indirect Tax Gaps—2008', which is also available in the Commons Library.

Tax Evasion

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Government are taking to reduce levels of tax evasion; and if he will make a statement. [250437]

Mr. Timms: The Government are committed to ensuring that everyone pays their fair share of tax and combating tax evasion is important to deliver that commitment.

A number of steps have been taken to enhance HM Revenue and Customs' (HMRC) approach to tackling evasion including improvements in HMRC's capability to identify evasion, stronger operational practices to tackle that evasion more quickly and effectively, and a new penalty regime to help deter evasion.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Allotments

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what area of land in each (a) constituency and (b) region of England was used as allotments in each of the last three years. [254112]

Mr. Iain Wright: We do not have centrally held figures on the area of land used as allotments in England. Local authorities are responsible for keeping figures on the amount of land used as allotments and we do not require them to provide central Government with these figures.

Arts Club

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 303W, on departmental procurement, who attended the dinner at the Arts Club organised by the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [251807]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The Equality and Human Rights Commission held a business dinner for its Commissioners at the Arts Club on 12 February 2007. The attendees were 12 EHRC Commissioners, an EHRC official member of staff and a personal assistant to one of the Commissioners. The dinner was an opportunity for Commissioners to meet with each other and discuss the Commission's agenda, including the identification of priorities, during the transition period. It was also the first opportunity for Commissioners to meet together in a less formal setting than the monthly board meetings.

Building Regulations: Fire Prevention

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to amend building regulations to reduce (a) the risk of fires in buildings spreading and (b) the speed at which such fires spread. [252696]

Mr. Iain Wright: The last major revision of Part B (Fire safety) of the Building Regulations and the supporting guidance took effect in April 2007. This included the provision of sprinkler protection in large warehouses and high rise blocks of flats. Improved guidance was also provided on the design and specification of measures such as compartment walls, cavity barriers and fire dampers which all service to restrict the spread of fire. We do not intend to revisit the provisions of Part B (Fire safety) until 2013 at the earliest.

Coastal Areas

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of levels of migration of young people out of coastal towns; and what steps her Department has taken to mitigate the effects of this migration. [252931]

John Healey: "England's Seaside Towns: a benchmarking study", published by the Department in November 2008, includes an assessment of the demographic profile of the principal seaside towns. The report notes that the population of seaside towns is skewed towards older age groups, with a correspondingly lower proportion of working age and young people, although there are some exceptions. Most seaside towns have attracted fewer international migrant workers than the national average. No specific assessment has been made of the levels of migration of young people from coastal towns.

The Government's local area agreement framework is enabling local authorities in coastal towns and other areas, alongside key partners, to develop local solutions to the social and demographic challenges they face. This can include responding to the effects of outward migration of young people, where there are local concerns. In addition, the Review of Sub National Economic Development and Regeneration proposals for a new statutory duty on local authorities to carry out a statutory local economic assessment of their area, and to form sub regional partnerships, will empower coastal and other local authorities to drive local prosperity, regeneration and economic growth for the benefit of the local population, including young people.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made towards implementing the recommendations of the Communities and Local Government Committee in its report on coastal towns, that the Government undertakes further research into the challenges facing coastal communities; and what timetable she has set for undertaking research in each policy area. [253613]

Mr. Iain Wright: In response to the conclusions and recommendations made in Communities and Local Government Select Committee on coastal towns, the Department commissioned a comprehensive benchmarking study to determine the socio-economic conditions in the 37 largest seaside towns in England. This research was specifically carried out to fill the evidence gap that existed on seaside towns and will help inform future policy development in these areas.

The report was published in November 2008 and can be found at:

Community Relations: Finance

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how the additional £5 million in funding for local authorities, Government offices and police in support of work in schools, colleges and universities which she announced on 10 December 2008 will be allocated between the three groups in 2009-10 and 2010-11; on what basis the allocations will be made; how the effectiveness of the funding will be evaluated; and if she will make a statement. [249589]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

The additional £5 million was announced in the Home Secretary's speech of 10 December at the national Prevent conference and supports activity this financial year (2008-09). The announcement relates to a joint funding package from the Home Office and the Department for Children, Schools and Families. The funding is allocated as follows:

£1.68 million to all local authorities to help with the local roll-out of the published schools toolkit "Learning Together to be Safe". Funding levels reflect the number of schools and include a boost for those areas that receive Prevent funding to reflect the scale of the challenge.

£3 million for 24 priority police forces to work with Government offices and other partners to support Prevent work in schools and education institutions including higher and further education. The distribution of this allocation was based on the Association of Chief Police Officers guidance criteria which included an assessment of population vulnerability and evaluated intelligence.

£480,000 to buy the copyright to provide free access for schools and colleges to the Kids Taskforce's "Watch Over Me" DVD for three years supplemented by 60 training days on the product for teachers and local partners.

Any additional allocations for 2009-10 and 2010-11 are yet to be finalised.

Government offices are providing monthly updates to the Home Office through the Government Prevent Progress tracker and the police are submitting six weekly returns to the Association of Chief Police Officers. In addition, we will conduct a 'lessons learned' exercise at the end of 2008-09 to produce a document for partners outlining the hallmarks for effective police prevent activity in the education world.

Compulsory Purchase: Travelling People

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's policy is on the compulsory purchase of land to provide for Traveller encampments; and what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on the matter. [252751]

Mr. Iain Wright: Guidance on the compulsory purchase of land is contained in ODPM Circular 06/04 "Compulsory Purchase and the Crichel Down Rules". The use of compulsory purchase powers is entirely a matter for the local authority. If a local authority wished to compulsorily purchase any land, it would have to demonstrate that there is a compelling case in the public interest before any compulsory purchase order could be confirmed. This is true for the purchase of land to provide Traveller sites as in any other circumstance. Planning advice for Gypsies and Travellers is contained in ODPM Circular 1/06 "Planning for Gypsy and Traveller Caravan Sites".

Council Housing: Crosby

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many non-decent council homes there are in Crosby constituency; and how many there were in (a) 1997, (b) 2001 and (c) 2005. [253409]

Mr. Iain Wright: Data on levels of non-decency are collected at local authority level and was not collected prior to 2001. In 2001 Sefton borough council reported that 9,715 of the homes they managed failed the decent homes standard, in 2005 it was 7,500.

Council Housing: Greater London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people in each category of housing need were on local authority waiting lists in each London borough in each of the last 10 years. [253861]

Mr. Iain Wright: This information is not held centrally.

Council Tax

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to issue guidance to local authorities to prevent the incorrect issuing of court summonses for non-payment of council tax; and if she will make a statement. [251332]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 2 February 2009, Official Report, column 946W.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to enable people incorrectly issued with a court summons for non-payment of council tax to make a claim for compensation against the local authority which issued that summons; and if will make a statement. [252618]

John Healey: No.

Councillors: Allowances

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) statutory and (b) other changes have been made to the rules relating to allowances and pensions for councillors since May 199 ; and what the date of each change was. [252633]

John Healey: From 1 May 2003, changes were introduced to the Local Government Pension Scheme Regulations which allow authorities to permit their elected members to access the local government pension scheme. The provisions were subsequently amended as follows: on 1 October 2003 by SI 2003/2240; 1 April 2004 by SI 2004/573; 10 June 2004 by SI 2004/928; 5 December 2005 by SI 2005/3069; 6 April 2006 by SI 2006/966; and 1 October 2006 by SI 2006/2008. These changes are available in a composite form at:

www.timeline.lge.gov.uk

Section 18 of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 provides that the Secretary of State may by regulation authorise or require a local authority to make a scheme of allowances for councillors. The above provision was amended by section 99 of the Local Government Act 2000, which requires local authorities to establish and have regard to the recommendations of an independent remuneration panel before making or amending their schemes of allowances. Since May 1997, the rules relating to the payment of allowances to councillors in England has been amended as follows: on 1 April 1998 by SI 1998/556; on 30 April 1999 by SI 1999/1086; on 1 April 2000 by SI 2000/622 and SI 2000/623; on 1 May 2003 by SI 2003/1021; on 31 July 2003 by SI 2003/1692 and on 3 November 2004 by SI 2004/2596.

Departmental Procurement

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 304W, on departmental procurement, what the purpose of the expenditure on Info Terra Ltd was; and what goods or services were purchased. [251954]

Mr. Khan: Of the £125,409.81 paid to Info Terra Ltd in 2007-2008, £85,410.16 was made in connection with a series of contracts let by the Department to provide a digital mapping service. The remainder, £39,999.65 was paid for Phase 2 of the Green Spaces Database, which comprised web mapping, data migration and green space quality indicators.

Departmental Recycling

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much (a) paper, (b) plastic and (c) other waste was produced by her Department in each of the last three years; and what proportion of such waste was recycled. [252697]

Mr. Khan: The quantity of paper, plastic and other waste, and the proportion recycled by Communities and Local Government in each of the last three years is shown in the following table:

	Central Department			Executive Agencies
Tonnes of material

[1] The data for paper include cardboard as these materials are often mixed for recycling

[2] These data include composted material and materials separated and sent for external reuse by other organisations

Note:

These figures do not include data from the Government Offices for the Regions

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which external organisations her Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in her Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252230]

Mr. Khan: Over the last three years CLG have engaged with 13 different training providers for the Fast Stream. The full list is as follows:

Alpha, Atkins, Birkbeck University, Brunel University, Capital, Hemsley Fraser, Illumine Training, Indigo, National School of Government, Scope IXL Group, Southampton University, UCL, and Westminster Explained.

We do not centrally hold details of civil servants within the Department that have participated in provision of training for external organisations during this period. The information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Derelict Land

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) terms of reference and (b) timetable are for the review of the brownfield designation of garden land; and if she will make a statement. [253900]

Mr. Iain Wright: We are committed to a review of the evidence on the extent of development on back gardens to establish whether or not there is a clear and genuine problem. If there is a problem, we will consider action to remedy the situation. The terms of reference for the review are due to be decided shortly and will be published.

Eco-Towns: Public Consultation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people have (a) written to her Department and (b) used her Department's online consultation to express their views about eco-towns; and how many representations by each method have been (i) favourable and (ii) not favourable to the Government's proposals. [254129]

Margaret Beckett: As part of the first stage of consultation on "Eco-towns—living a greener future", we received over 12,000 responses, providing a wide range of views on the principles of eco-towns and the shortlisted locations. A summary report of the responses received, is available on my Department's website.

The online consultation is part of our second stage consultation, covering the draft eco-towns planning policy statement and sustainability appraisal. This began in November 2008 and runs to March 2009. A summary report of the responses and comments received will be published following the end of consultation in the usual way.

Energy Performance Certificates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether additional funding will be provided to local authorities under the new burdens principle to meet the new statutory requirements to provide (a) energy performance certificates and (b) display energy certificates. [252786]

John Healey: Additional funding is being provided to local authorities under the new burdens principle to meet the new statutory requirements to provide energy performance certificates for their social housing only. No funding is provided for energy performance certificates for their other properties or for display of energy certificates since the new statutory requirement impacts on all sectors of the economy.

Equality: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding (a) her Department and (b) the Government Offices for the Regions have allocated to regional equality and diversity partnerships in 2008-09 to date. [252460]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Member for Wentworth (John Healey) on 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 969W.

Fire Services: Safety

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with representatives of the Fire Brigades Union on the safety of firefighters. [253557]

Mr. Khan: My right hon. Friend the Member for Lientworth (John Healey) and I met with the FBU Parliamentary Group on 17 December 2008 and firefighter safety was discussed with FBU representatives. Since then I have written to the FBU General Secretary following up the publication of their report 'In the Line of Duty', which focused on this issue.

Furthermore, my officials have held positive discussions with the FBU on this issue and I will discuss the matter further with the FBU when we next routinely meet.

Geographical Information Systems

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 603W, on geographical information systems, what the timetableis for a decision on implementation of a national geo-portal; and whether cadastral information will be included on it. [252742]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 603W, that a national geo-portal is being considered among the implementation options for the INSPIRE Directive. Decisions on implementation will be taken through the governance arrangements that are being established to oversee implementation of INSPIRE and the closely related UK Location Strategy[1] i.e. the Location Council. As 'cadastral parcels or equivalent' is one of the data themes in scope of INSPIRE, we are obliged to include it in the preferred option for INSPIRE implementation.

HomeBuy Scheme

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the Answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1271W, on housing: low incomes, how much of the funding for the Homebuy Direct programme will be allocated to each region of England. [252739]

Mr. Iain Wright: HomeBuy Direct is a shared equity scheme that is offered on specific new build properties bought forward by developers. These properties were selected through a competitive bidding process that concluded in December 2008. On 15 December, we announced the outcomes of this competition, including the number of properties selected for the scheme in each region and the maximum Government investment that these properties represent.

The following table sets out the maximum Government investment figures for each region. These figures are based on the Homes and Communities Agency providing a 15 per cent. equity loan on every HomeBuy Direct property in each region (not all purchasers will necessarily qualify for the maximum equity loan—this will depend on what they are able to afford). The figures are also based on current estimated open market property values.

Region	Maximum government investment (£ million)
East Midlands	55.1
Eastern	55.0
London	45.5
North East	39.9
North West	51.8
South East	79.2
South West	46.6
West Midlands	50.5
Yorkshire and the Humber	61.7

The division of funding shown in the table reflects the pattern of approved bids bought forward by developers. It is important to note that the actual level of Government investment in each region will depend on take-up by first time buyers, and that Government investment will be matched 'pound for pound' by the participating developers.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes were sold under the social HomeBuy scheme in (a) each region and (b) each London borough in (i) 2006-07, (ii) 2007-08 and (iii) 2008-09. [253569]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following tables show the number of social HomeBuy sales broken down by regions and London boroughs for each year from 2006-07 to 2008-09.

Social HomeBuy sales by regions in 2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) landlords, (b) housing associations and (c) local authorities participated in the social HomeBuy scheme in (i) each region in England and (ii) each London borough in (A) 2006-07, (B) 2007-08 and (C) 2008-09. [253570]

Mr. Iain Wright: Tables have been deposited in the Library that show participating landlords in each region in England and each London borough in each year from 2006-07 to 2008-09.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many completed social HomeBuy sales there have been to date. [254023]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 3 February 2009, Official Report, column 1141W.

Homelessness

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what support services are offered by her Department to help homeless people find housing; and if she will make a statement; [253405]

(2) whether the Government plan to change levels of funding for services to and support for homeless people; and if will make a statement; [253406]

(3) what steps her Department is taking to provide accommodation for homeless people. [253407]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government take all aspects of homelessness very seriously. We have allocated over £200 million to local authorities and voluntary organisations over the next three years (2008-11) to tackle and prevent homelessness in their area. This is the biggest ever cash injection for homelessness services.

Over recent months Government have announced a series of measures and new funding that will help homeowners remain in their home wherever possible. This help includes the £200 million Mortgage Rescue Scheme which should enable up to 6,000 of the most vulnerable households to avoid repossession; the Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme which will allow households to defer payment on their mortgage for up to two years; and substantial changes to Support for Mortgage Interest by reducing the waiting time from 39 weeks to 13 weeks, and increasing the capital limit to £200,000.

In addition, my Department has provided £2.5 million funding to the National Homelessness Advice Service (NHAS) which is a partnership between Shelter and the Citizens Advice Bureaux (CABx) providing high quality advice on homelessness prevention through the network of participating CABx and other voluntary agencies across England. The funding will also help to strengthen NHAS responses to support those people facing repossession. This will involve training 1,000 front line advice workers in Shelter and CABx which NHAS will also roll out to local authorities.

In November 2008 we launched "No One Left Out: communities ending rough sleeping", an action plan developed with leading rough sleeping charities which uses action, advice and assistance across England to prevent the flow of people onto the streets, as well as to support those already there to get off the streets into stability. This is supported by our "Places of Change" programme which is transforming services for rough sleepers. £80 million has been provided for the period 2008-11.

The Supporting People programme provides housing-related support to the most vulnerable in society. In December 2007 we announced a further £4.9 billion funding up to 31 March 2011

Government have also provided additional funding for advice services. Last year CLG funded 40 court desks that provide free legal representation at repossession hearings and are successful in 85 per cent. of cases where people attend court. We continue to review court desk funding.

The Department also monitors local authorities' activities under the homelessness legislation.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the consistency of provision for homeless people across England. [253408]

Mr. Iain Wright: Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996 provides one of the strongest safety nets in the world for families with children and vulnerable people who become homeless through no fault of their own. It provides a consistent, national statutory framework for the provision of homelessness assistance across England. The Secretary of State has issued guidance to which all local authorities in England must have regard to when exercising their functions relating to homelessness and the prevention of homelessness. Extensive data about local housing authorities' activities under the relevant legislation are collected and published quarterly. These data are monitored by a team of homelessness specialist advisers, located within the Department of Communities and Local Government, who work closely with local authorities to help them tackle and prevent homelessness effectively.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the number of people who were homeless in (a) the City of Southampton, (b) the ceremonial county of Hampshire, (c) Test Valley borough and (d) England in each of the last five years. [254018]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local housing authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level, about households rather than individuals.

Data collected include the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

Information is also collected on the number of people who sleep rough. Mid-year rough sleeping estimates have been published annually since 1998, and give a snapshot of the number of people sleeping rough on a single night, based on local authority street counts in those areas where there is a known or suspected rough sleeping problem.

Summary tables showing the total number of households accepted as owed a main homelessness duty and in temporary accommodation for each year since 1997-98, and rough sleeper estimates for each year since 1998, for each local authority, were provided in the answer I gave to the hon. Member for West Suffolk (Mr. Spring) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1499-1500W, and are available in the Library.

An extract showing data for each local authority within the ceremonial county of Hampshire (which includes both Test Valley borough and Southampton city council), and England, is shown as follows:

[254019]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are two grant programmes that specifically support organisations to help the homeless. The Homelessness Grant supports all local authority homelessness strategies enabling them to tackle and prevent homelessness effectively. The Supporting People programme supports the provision of housing-related support to the most vulnerable in society.

Homes and Communities Agency: Costs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her latest estimate is of the cost of establishing the Homes and Communties Agency. [252493]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1265W. The estimate for the set-up costs remains at £20 million.

Homes and Communities Agency: Operating Costs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the estimated cost of running the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) is in its first year of operation; and which funding elements and streams are being incorporated into the HCA. [252486]

Margaret Beckett: In agreement with Her Majesty's Treasury, the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) budgets for 2008-09 have been agreed on merger accounting principles. This means that the HCA is deemed to have existed since 1 April 2008 and full 2008-09 budgets have been set.

The planned full year running costs budget for the HCA in 2008-09 is £86 million, with an additional £4 million being provided to the HCA for transitional costs. This figure has been reduced from the £99 million that was quoted to the hon. Gentleman in an earlier written answer, Official Report, column 1265W on 30 October 2008. That response was during the set-up phase of the HCA and of necessity included best estimates of potential running costs which have been revised now that the HCA is in operation.

The elements and funding streams incorporated into the HCA are those that were formerly functions of English Partnerships, the investment function of the Housing Corporation, and the Academy for Sustainable Communities. In addition, a range of programmes that were formerly carried out by my Department have been transferred to the HCA for delivery, including the Growth Fund (excluding that element for the West Northamptonshire Development Corporation), the Community Infrastructure Fund, Housing Market Renewal pathfinders, the Gypsies and Travellers site-specific grant, the Places of Change programme, the Decent Homes initiative and the Thames Gateway.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1270W, on housing: low incomes, what the timetable for all social housing stock to be recorded on the National Register of Social Housing is; and whether it is mandatory for (a) local authorities and (b) housing associations to provide property information for the Register. [252212]

Mr. Iain Wright: The targets for provision of data to the National Register of Social Housing (NROSH) are phased. The first target is for those local authorities that still own social housing and large housing associations to provide a list of their social housing together with confirmation of ownership and manager by 31 March 2009.

The second target is to provide additional priority attribute data by 31 March 2010. Small housing associations have until 31 March 2010 to provide both the list of dwellings and the priority attributes.

Participation is not currently mandatory. Communities and Local Government and the Tenant Services Authority have a good relationship with local authorities and housing associations and are working closely with them to achieve the targets. NROSH will deliver a step change in the evidence base for social housing as well as reducing the burden of data provision. Data providers are encouraged to provide data as soon as they are able so that the benefits for all can begin to be realised.

Housing: Standards

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the progress made in meeting the targets for decent homes; whether she expects the 2010 target to be met in respect of (a) Waltham Forest and (b) Redbridge; and if she will make a statement. [247982]

Mr. Iain Wright: On 28 November 2008 the Department's autumn performance report was published which set out the progress on delivering decent homes. It recorded that the latest figures reported by landlords show that 22 per cent. of their stock was non decent as at 1 April 2007, compared with 26 per cent. in 2006.

Ascham Homes manages the London borough of Waltham Forest's housing stock.

Ascham Homes expect to complete their decent homes programme in 2011-12.

Redbridge Homes manages the London borough of Redbridge's housing stock once it passes an inspection currently scheduled for February 2009 it will be able to access funding to deliver decent homes. If successful, Redbridge Homes expects to complete its decent homes programme by 2012-13 but 89 per cent. of their homes will be decent by 2010-11.

Local Government Finance: Coastal Areas

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the impact of day visitors on levels of expenditure by local authorities containing coastal towns. [252930]

John Healey: A measure of the number of day visitors to an authority is taken into account in the relative needs formulae for both highways maintenance and environmental, protective and cultural services used in the distribution of formula grant to local authorities.

Formula grant is an unhypothecated block grant which means that local authorities decide how they allocate this grant across the services that they provide.

Local Government Statistics Data Upload

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) statistics and (b) other data in respect of 2008-09 local authorities are required to submit to her Department using the Local Government Statistics Data Upload facility. [251912]

Mr. Khan: The contract referred to relates to an annual upload of performance only data onto the Best Value Performance Indicators website. Local authorities did not upload to the website directly. The BVPI website closed down last April but the data are publicly available on the Audit Commission website:

http://www.audit-commission.gov.uk/performance

Local Government: Bank Services

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what her latest estimate is of the length of time which will elapse before local authorities with deposits in Icelandic banks will receive compensation; and what assessment has been made of the financial effects on those authorities of the lack of interest being received on those deposits; [252748]

(2) what assessment has been made of the effect on local authority budgets of lower rates of return as a result of local authorities placing money in very low-risk deposits following the Icelandic banking crisis. [252749]

John Healey: HM Treasury is continuing to work closely with the Icelandic Authorities to ensure fair treatment for all UK depositors and creditors. The Local Government Association are co-ordinating activity on behalf of local authorities, and local authorities are representing themselves at creditors meetings.

Under the Local Government Act 2003, local authorities are responsible for their own investment decisions, and we have not made an assessment of the financial effect on local authorities of the loss of interest from Icelandic investments, or of lower rates of return from their investments. The Department's guidance on local government investments is available at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/capital/data/lginvest2.pdf

The first-ever three-year settlement has given authorities the flexibility and stability they need to manage their budgets effectively.

Local Government: Conditions of Employment

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what requirements there are on local authorities to give time for local authority staff to undertake work for their trade union which is (a) unpaid and (b) paid for by the local authority. [252725]

John Healey: Local government employers are required to follow Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service (ACAS) guidance, under section 199 of the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992.

More information can be found at:

http://www.direct.gov.uk/en/Employment/TradeUnions/DG_10027556

Local Government: Cornwall

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons local elections in Cornwall will take place in October 2009; what the estimated additional cost is of not holding them at the same time as the June 2009 elections; and who will pay that cost. [252793]

John Healey: Following the coming into force of the Local Elections (Ordinary Day of Elections in 2009) Order, the 2009 local elections in Cornwall are scheduled to be held on 4 June. However, as explained in my answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 20 November 2008, Official Record, column 771W, I was minded to defer the Cornwall local elections to the end of October 2009 as the Boundary Committee had failed to complete their review of electoral arrangements in Cornwall, and that before taking any decision to defer I would take soundings and consult those in Cornwall. That soundings exercise ended on 30 January and having regard to comments and representations received, I shall shortly decide whether to defer the Cornwall local elections.

Local Government: Mortgages

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities offer mortgage facilities for home buyers. [253221]

Margaret Beckett: We do not directly hold all such information. It is for local authorities to decide whether to exercise the power to provide mortgages.

Local Government: Reorganisation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of the compatibility of the introduction of unitary local government without local referendums with Article 5 of the European Charter of Local Self-Government. [252728]

John Healey: We are satisfied that the introduction of the new unitary councils, following proposals from locally accountable councils, stakeholder consultations, and parliamentary approval, is compatible with Article 5 of the European Charter of Local Self-Government which contains no requirements about local referendums.

Local Government: Translation Services

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with local authorities on the provision of local authority documents and other publications in translation. [253704]

Mr. Khan: Since publishing Guidance for Local Authorities on Translation of Publications, the Secretary of State has had no discussions with local authorities about the translation of their publications.

Lord Taylor of Blackburn

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) she and (b) her officials have received any representations from Lord Taylor of Blackburn in the last 12 months. [253444]

Mr. Khan: After the Secretary of State issued her decision to refuse planning permission for development of a natural gas storage facility at Preesall Saltfield, Fleetwood, Lancashire on 16 October 2007, Lord Taylor of Blackburn asked my noble Friend Baroness Andrews whether representatives of Canatxx Ltd could meet officials. Representatives of Canatxx met policy officials on 6 December 2007 to discuss general policy on gas storage facilities.

In the summer of 2008 Lord Taylor of Blackburn requested information from my noble Friend Baroness Andrews about Newark as a growth point and related planning cases.

Minister for Yorkshire and the Humber: Lloyds TSB

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) if she will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the meeting the Minister for Yorkshire and the Humber had on (a) 4 November 2008 with the Chairman of Lloyds TSB and (b) 17 November 2008 with the Yorkshire and Humber Economic Delivery Group; [248890]

(2) if she will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the meetings between the Minister for Yorkshire and the Humber of (a) 8 December 2008 with the Yorkshire and Humber Delivery Development Group and (b) 15 December 2008 with Lloyds TSB. [250410]

Mr. Khan [holding answers 19 and 22 January 2009]: Ministers and civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and advice. It is not normal practice to disclose minutes of such meetings.

Minutes of the Yorkshire and Humber Economic Delivery Group can be found on the Government office website at:

http://www.gos.gov.uk/goy/ourregion/RegionalMinisters/776439/

Mortgages: Government Assistance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the (a) maximum and (b) average number of households which will receive support each year from the Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme in each of the next three years. [251772]

Margaret Beckett: The Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme is a consumer and lender-led scheme, supported by a Government guarantee. The Government want to see this scheme provide incentives for lenders to help as many struggling homeowners as possible. We will publish a full impact assessment when the scheme description has been finalised.

As part of a wider package of real help for homeowners, this scheme should enable ordinary hard-working households that experience a redundancy or significant loss of income to reduce their monthly payments to a more manageable level, by deferring a proportion of the interest payments on their mortgage for up to two years.

Homeowners remain responsible for repaying the mortgage in the long term but the scheme will result in more affordable monthly payments. This will give them the breathing space they need to get their finances back on track, and help ensure they can stay in their homes.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which banks and building societies have agreed to participate in the Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme; and on what dates each agreed to do so. [253879]

Margaret Beckett: The country's eight largest lenders—HBOS, Nationwide, Abbey, Lloyds TSB, Northern Rock, Barclays, RBS and HSBC—representing 70 per cent. of mortgage lending, agreed in principle to support the new Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme prior to the Prime Minister's announcement on 3 December.

The scheme should enable ordinary hard-working households that experience a redundancy or significant loss of income to reduce their monthly payments to a more manageable level, by deferring a proportion of the interest payments on their mortgage for up to two years.

Government are now working with a wider group of lenders to finalise the scheme design and agree implementation plans.

Non-Domestic Rates: Empty Property

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect of the new empty property business rates regime on rates of conversion of empty agricultural properties into business use. [252628]

John Healey: There has not been a specific assessment of the impact of empty property rates on the conversion of empty agricultural properties into business use. However, an impact assessment detailing the impact of the empty property reforms was published by Communities and Local Government in May 2007 accompanying the introduction of the Rating (Empty Properties) Bill and a further assessment was laid before this House on 26 February accompanying the Non-Domestic Rating (Unoccupied Property) (England) Regulations 2008—Number: 386.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 949W, on empty property, which local authorities have sent back completed forms on empty property business rates; [252714]

(2) with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 29 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1142-3W, on empty property, if she will place in the Library a copy of each of the responses to the requests for information made in June and September. [252796]

John Healey: The Government are compiling information on the possible avoidance of empty property rates over the course of the first year of the reforms, and we will set out in an appropriate form our general findings in due course.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of each response to Modernising Empty Property Relief—A Consultation Paper. [252726]

John Healey: I have placed a copy in the Library of the summary of the consultation responses to Modernising Empty Property Relief—A Consultation Paper.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether transitional relief will apply in cases of non-domestic dwellings for which empty property business rates are paid following the 2010 revaluation. [252733]

John Healey: There will be a consultation on the transitional relief scheme for the 2010 revaluation later this year. We have consulted on a transitional relief scheme for the previous ratings lists.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether supplementary business rates will apply to dwellings for which empty property business rates are paid. [252734]

John Healey: Business rates are not payable on domestic dwellings, unless they are occupied for both domestic and non-domestic purposes and have been assessed by the Valuation Office Agency for both council tax and business rates purposes.

Clause 11 of the Business Rate Supplements Bill, published in December 2008, provides that the decision to levy a BRS on empty non-domestic properties will be left to the discretion of the levying authority.

Non-Domestic Rates: Tax Allowances

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the responsibilities of local authorities are in respect of meeting the costs of hardship rate relief under section 49 of the Local Government Finance Act 1988. [252752]

John Healey: A local authority has to fund 25 per cent. of any hardship relief given.

Non-Domestic Rates: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1284W, on non-domestic rates: valuations, what the (a) description and (b) unique identifier given to each sub-location is in each billing authority area. [252736]

John Healey: Sub-location codes and associated descriptions are not maintained in available listings. The cost of extracting the requested data would be disproportionate.

Ordnance Survey: Publicity

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 1060W, on Ordnance Survey: databases, if she will place in the Library copies of the promotional brochures for each of the Ordnance Survey products listed. [251967]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have today arranged for promotional materials for Ordnance Survey products OS MasterMap® Topography Layer, OS MasterMap® Address Layer 2, OS MasterMap® Integrated Transport Layer, OS MasterMap® Imagery Layer, Land-Form PROFILE® Plus, Code-Point® with Polygons and Boundary-Line™ to be placed in the Library.

Ordnance Survey is not actively marketing ADDRESS-POINT® or OS MasterMap® Address Layer, and has therefore not issued promotional material for these products during 2007-08.

Ordnance Survey has not produced promotional material in the year 2007-08 for 1:10 000 Scale Raster, 1:50 000 Colour Raster or 1:250 000 Colour Raster. The current policy is to promote these products via the Ordnance Survey website:

www.ordnancesurvey.co.uk

Planning Permission: Hammersmith and Fulham

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the representation to her Department made by the hon. Member for Ealing, Acton and Shepherd's Bush (Mr. Slaughter) in relation to the planning application for the Gate Hotel, Olympia. [252747]

Mr. Iain Wright: There has been no written representation from my hon. Friend. The Government Office for London had a telephone representation from my hon. Friend stating that he was concerned about the application. The deputy leader of the Hammersmith and Fulham labour group, Councillor Cartwright subsequently wrote requesting call-in, stating that this had the support of my hon. Friend.

Planning Permission: Inland Waterways

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will issue planning guidelines relating to residential moorings; and if she will make a statement. [253074]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have no current plans to issue planning guidelines for residential moorings. Planning decisions on the provision of residential moorings are better taken locally after careful consideration of local circumstances, having regard to any relevant policies in the local development plan.

Property Development: Floods

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new dwellings have been built in areas designated as being at high flood risk in each Government Office region in each year since 1997. [252286]

Mr. Iain Wright: Between 1997 and 2007 an estimated 151,900 dwellings were built in areas of high flood risk, less than 10 per cent. of the total number of homes completed in England in that period. The following table gives a breakdown by year and region over that time. These figures have been estimated by applying the proportion of all new dwellings built in areas of high flood risk, as recorded by Land Use Change Statistics, to the published total number of house building completions. These estimates are not precise, and have therefore been rounded to the nearest 100 dwellings.

Land Use Change Statistics Live Table 251 gives a regional breakdown of the percentage of all new dwellings that were built in areas of high flood risk. The table can be found at http://www.communities.gov.uk/planningandbuilding/planningbuilding/planningstatistics/livetables/landusechange/

Housing Live Table 217 gives the number of permanent dwellings started and completed, by region and quarter. The table can be found at http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/housebuilding/livetables/

High flood risk areas account for about 10 per cent. of land in England.

Planning policy on development and flood risk was strengthened in 2006 with the publication of Planning Policy Statement 25 (PPS25), reflecting the importance of avoiding and managing flood risk in the location of new development. The Government's policy is to avoid inappropriate development in areas of risk of flooding, and to direct development away from areas at highest risk. However it is not always possible to find a location at low flood risk. In parts of the country where virtually all land is within high flood risk areas and there are few, if any, low risk sites for development PPS25 imposes new requirements on planners to show that the need for development outweighs the flood risk, and to ensure that homes that have to be built in higher risk areas are safe and less susceptible to flood damage.

Notes:

1. There is an inevitable time-lag between land use change occurring and it being recorded, therefore data are constantly being updated.
2. The data in the table are based on records received from Ordnance Survey up to June 2008, consistent with the October 2008 update of LUCS.
3. Figures may not add up due to rounding.
4. The definition of high flood risk areas used by Communities and Local Government is the high risk zone mapped by the Environment Agency as being at a probability of flooding, excluding the presence of flood defences, of at least one in one hundred each year for river flooding and at least one in 200 for coastal flooding. High flood risk areas account for about 10 per cent. of land in England: including parts of major cities such as London.

Public Buildings: Fire Prevention

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her most recent estimate is of the proportion of public buildings, schools and social housing which have been equipped with a fire safety water sprinkler system; and if she will make a statement. [253746]

Mr. Khan: This information is not currently held centrally and thus could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Regeneration: North West

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which wards and programmes within Sefton have received funding from the Government Office for the North West programmes for (a) capital investment in housing, (b) major repairs allowance, (c) disabled facilities grants, (d) the Working Neighbourhoods Fund Community Empowerment Fund, (e) Community Learning Chest, (f) the Objective 1 Programme, (g) the Community Champions Fund, (h) UK Online, (i) Connexions, (j) Children and Young People, (k) drug and alcohol training, (l) Lifelong Learning Partnerships, (m) renewable energy, (n) Mersey Basin Campaign, (o) building safer communities, (p) Wardens Scheme, (q) small retailer in deprived areas, (r) Partnership Support Development, (s) CCTV, (t) Partnership Support Programme, (u) Target Policing Initiative, (v) prostitution and (w) violence against women. [253342]

Mr. Khan: Where Government funding is paid to the local authority decisions on how this funding is, or has been distributed within the authority in the past, are made locally. Information on expenditure at ward level is therefore not readily available. Some of the information requested relates to funding programmes which no longer exist, and for which information cannot readily be obtained.

A number of funding streams as follows now form part of the area based grant which has been paid to local authorities since April 2008. Local areas have discretion to use this funding as they see fit to support delivery of local, regional and national priorities in their area, including the achievement of LAA targets. Sefton has received the following funding in 2008-09:

(a) Capital investment in housing—£4,455,000.

(b) Major Repairs Allowance—nil.

(c) Disabled Facilities Grant—£964,000.

(d) Working Neighbourhoods Fund—£6,225,786—included within the area based grant. The Community Empowerment Fund is now discontinued.

(e) The Community Learning Chest is now discontinued.

(f) Information is not held on levels of European funding at ward level. As the objective 1 programme is Merseyside-wide in scope, a substantial amount of programme-funded activity will be delivered by organisations that have a pan-Merseyside remit. A project based on one particular area will therefore draw beneficiaries and spend money outside its immediate locality. However Sefton will benefit from the £920 million which has been invested through objective 1 since the programme's outset.

(g) The Community Champions Fund is now discontinued.

(h) UK Online is now discontinued.

(i) Connexions—£2,883,000—included within the area based grant.

(j) The Department for Children, Schools and Families administers a number of grants which are now paid as part of the area based grant as follows:

Grants administered by Department for Children, Schools and Families	£
School Development Grant	2,430,237
Extended Schools Start-Up Grants	523,887
Primary National Strategy—Central Co-ordination	138,565

(k) The Drug and Alcohol Training Programme is now amalgamated within the Connexions Programme.

(l) Lifelong Learning Partnerships is now administered by the Learning and Skills Council.

(m) The Government office for the north-west administers no funding for renewable energy.

(n) Details on funding for Sefton are not held by the Mersey Basin Campaign.

(o) The Building Safer Communities Programme has now been amalgamated within the Safer Stronger Communities Fund for which Sefton has been allocated £681,316 as part of the area based grant.

(p) The Wardens Scheme is now discontinued.

(q) The Small Retailer in Deprived Areas Programme is now discontinued.

(r) Partnership Support Development is now discontinued.

(s) The CCTV Initiative is now discontinued.

(t) The Partnership Support Programme is now discontinued.

(u) The Target Policing Initiative is now discontinued.

(v) The Government office for the north-west administers no funds in respect of prostitution.

(w) The Violence Against Women programme is now discontinued, but Sefton has been allocated £20,000 this year in respect of independent domestic violence advisers.

Regional Planning and Development: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) sites and (b) hectares of land were (i) available and (ii) potentially suitable for development in Castle Point constituency at the latest date for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [250053]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Secretary of State for Communities does not hold information for how many sites and hectares of land were available and potentially suitable for development in the Castle Point constituency. This information would be available from the local authority.

Regional Planning and Development: South West

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Minister is responsible for overseeing the progress of the south-west regional spatial strategy. [253652]

Mr. Iain Wright: The decision-making Minister with responsibility for overseeing the progress of the south-west regional spatial strategy is Baroness Andrews.

Rented Housing: Hampshire

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many families in Hampshire were tenants of (a) council, (b) housing association and (c) privately-owned accommodation allocated by local authorities (i) in 2006-07, (ii) in 2007-08 and (iii) at the latest date for which figures are available. [251094]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information is collected at household level rather than by family. Local authorities in England report information for numbers of local authority owned (council) dwellings as at 1 April in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) returns.

Table 1 as follows provides estimates for numbers of local authority owned dwellings in Hampshire for (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. The most recent figures are fof 2008.

Further information on the number of local authority owned (council) dwellings for England, can be found in the statistical release "Local Authority Housing Statistics England: 2007-08: Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) and Business Plan Statistical Appendix (BPSA)". This was published on 22 January 2009 on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/statistics/lahousing200708

This information is also published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 116. Copies of the statistical release and live table have already been deposited in the Library.

Information for the number of dwellings owned by housing associations has been collected by the Tenants Service Authority (formerly the Housing Corporation), via their annual Regulatory and Statistical Return (RSR). Table 2 as follows provides estimates for numbers of Registered Social Landlord (RSL) owned dwellings in Hampshire for (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. The most recent figures are for 2008.

Lettings Market: South West

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of trends in the (a) residential and (b) business lettings market in South West England. [253433]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on residential and business lettings is not available. However, estimates of the total number of households in private rented accommodation in South West England from 2003 to 2008 are set out in the following table. These estimates are based on data from the ONS Labour Force Survey.

Rising to the Challenge

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what response she plans to make to the Audit Commission's recent report Rising to the Challenge. [253475]

Mr. Khan: The Government welcomed the Audit Commission's report when it was published last month. We supported the Commission's main findings and agreed there was more to be done to achieve efficiency savings on top of the £197.3 million the Fire and Rescue Service (FRS) made between 2004 and 2008 against a target of £105 million.

The Department for Communities and Local Government will work with the FRS and other stakeholders to address the performance issues identified by the Commission. The Fire and Rescue National Framework, published last year, already seeks delivery of a challenging efficiency target and improved performance on equality and diversity by the FRS and we are working with the service to deliver these objectives.

Of the points which the Commission addressed specifically to central Government, we are already taking action on its recommendations that we should:

actively publicise those FRSs delivering all elements of modernisation, including efficiency, and encourage those with furthest to travel; implement agreed proposals for developing operational guidance with the Chief Fire and Rescue Advisor and other stakeholders; advocate the role the fire service can play in achieving community outcomes to other services;

publish data on efficiency savings by FRSs; provide leadership and guidance on equality and diversity issues and the development of an organisational culture that embraces equality and diversity.

We are considering appropriate further action, including the Commission's recommendation that we should:

review the role of regional management boards and their place in the improvement infrastructure; then define and communicate its expectations of them and their potential value to FRAS.

Social Services

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many vulnerable (a) adults and (b) children have been placed out-of-area in each year since 2005; and which were the most common destinations for such placements in each year. [253614]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local housing authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level, about households rather than individuals.

Data collected include the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need (i.e. including dependent children, an expectant mother, or someone who is vulnerable in some way), and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

Data collected include the number of households living in temporary accommodation pursuant to a homelessness duty at the end of each quarter, and the number of these where the accommodation was located outside the district of the placing local authority. The figures reported by each authority over the last three years, as at the last day of each year, are provided in a table which has been placed in the Library. These data are available at household level only — the number of adults and children living in temporary accommodation located outside the placing district is not held centrally.

Information on the location of temporary accommodation provided outside the placing authority's district is also not held centrally.

Supporting People Programme

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations her Department has received on the future of the Supporting People initiative. [250476]

Mr. Iain Wright: The decision about the future of the Supporting People programme that was announced on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 90WS, was made following the evaluation of a pilot process with fifteen Pathfinder local authorities and also took into account consultation with a range of partners. This consultation included discussions at the Supporting People Sounding Board and Expert Reference Group and specific conversations with the Local Government Association and the Association of Directors of Adult Social Services.

In addition to discussions at conferences and stakeholder groups since the Pathfinder process was announced in 2007, the views of a small sample of service users were also submitted and those of more than 400 Supporting People provider organisations were captured in an independent survey and report. A summary of this report can be found on the Department's website at:

www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/changingsupportingpeoplefunding

The Department also received and considered written submissions from:

Sitra (an umbrella body for providers of supported housing)

Homeless Link

The National Housing Federation

Special Needs Housing Association Group

Tenants Rights

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications have been made in the county courts in relation to tenancy deposit protection; and how many such applications resulted in fines in each of the last 12 months. [253280]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The Ministry of Justice does not hold any statistical information about county court applications relating specifically to tenancy deposit protection.

This is because the administrative computer systems used in the county courts do not presently identify this specific application type. While the relevant cases will be logged on the system, they cannot be distinguished from other types of claims issued. Changing the administrative systems to create a specific case type for tenancy deposit protection cases would incur disproportionate cost.

Thames Gateway

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will publish the Thames Gateway implementation planning baselines for delivery partners for 2008-11. [252296]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 20 June 2008, Official Report, column 1241W.

Waste Disposal

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many planning applications have been (a) made and (b) approved relating to energy from waste infrastructure; how many structures have been built consequentially; and if she will make a statement. [253290]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government collects statistics for the number of planning applications which have been made and approved for 'incineration with energy recovery' waste facilities. However, the applications approved in any particular year are not necessarily the same facilities for which applications were made in that year. The information is set out in the following table:

Financial year	Applications made	Applications approved
2000-01	11	11
2001-02	11	5
2002-03	7	6
2003-04	5	5

Communities and Local Government does not hold details on whether these facilities have been subsequently built or brought into operation.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Higher Education: Blackpool

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many pupils from schools in Blackpool South constituency went on to higher education in years (a) 1992 to 1997, (b) 1997 to 2002 and (c) 2002 to 2007. [253968]

Mr. Lammy: The available figures from the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) are shown in the following table. Figures on entrants for 2007/08 were released on 29th January 2009. The figures show the number of school pupils from the Blackpool South constituency who entered higher education aged 18 or 19 in 1997/98 to 2007/08.

Higher Education Statistics Agency Student Record

Students: Finance

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much the Government allocated to the student hardship fund in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07, (c) 2007-08 and (d) 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [254121]

Mr. Lammy: The Access to Learning Fund (ALF) is a discretionary fund that provides additional support for higher education students in financial hardship. ALF is administered by higher education institutions following guidance issued by the Department. Individual institutions make their own decisions on how best to target their allocation, taking into account their student population and their knowledge of local circumstances.

The following table shows how much funding was allocated to ALF over the past four academic years.

Academic year	Amount allocated to ALF (£ million)
2005-06	64.8
2006-07	64.1
2007-08	56.1
2008-09	49.9

The reductions in the ALF budget should be viewed in the context of improved statutory support for students.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Broadband

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the impact of next generation broadband on the quality of broadband service available to (a) rural and (b) urban communities; and if he will make a statement. [246809]

Mr. McFadden: The Government fully recognise that next generation broadband could have a substantial beneficial impact on both rural and urban communities and economy. We will be examining the question of universality of broadband and options for maximising participation across the UK, as well as the importance of encouraging investment in next generation broadband as part of the Digital Britain Report. There will be an interim report in January, with the full report in late spring.

Ofcom is currently consulting on the appropriate regulatory environment to help support investment in super-fast broadband services, while still promoting competition. It is only by achieving both that consumers will truly benefit from the services these new networks can deliver.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many of his Department's staff provided support to the Caio Review. [248896]

Mr. McFadden: This Department provided three permanent members of staff to support the review and one temporary member of staff.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent estimate he has made of the number of households which do not have access to broadband internet because (a) local exchanges have not been enabled and (b) shared line devices prevent a broadband connection. [249012]

Mr. McFadden: This Department has made no recent estimates, but BT has enabled exchanges that connect to over 99 per cent. of households. Satellite also provides nationwide geographical coverage.

A shared line device does not necessarily prevent a broadband service, but it is not possible to know this until an order for broadband has been placed and the line tested. BT is also currently working to reduce the number of shared line devices on their network.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of households that do not have access to broadband internet in (a) the UK, (b) the North East, (c) the Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland. [249637]

Mr. McFadden: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to my hon. Friend. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what research his Department has commissioned to compare the extent of broadband internet provision with that of other EU states. [249722]

Mr. McFadden: This Department has not recently commissioned a comparison of broadband internet provision with that of other EU states. To avoid duplication and for reasons of efficiency the Department uses existing resources such as Ofcom's international market reports and other non paid for sources to make international comparisons.

Business for New Europe

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on what dates since 1 January 2007 (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department or its predecessor have had discussions with Business for New Europe on European matters. [243106]

Mr. Thomas: BERR and its predecessor DTI Ministers and officials have cooperated and engaged with Business for New Europe (BNE), along with other organisations interested in the EU, on events related to EU policy. Similarly officials have had regular discussions with members of the BNE secretariat in preparation for these events. The attached list at Annex A gives further details of BERR events or ministerial meetings involving BNE since 1 January 2007.

ANNEX A

11 September 2007: the BERR Secretary of State (John Hutton) had an introductory meeting with BNE members

19 December 2007: John Hutton attended a BNE breakfast event on Europe

14 January 2008: The BERR/FCO "Business Priorities for a Global Europe" Conference was organised in cooperation with BNE, with Roland Rudd chairing the event and BERR Secretary of State John Hutton was one of the speakers.

7 May 2008: BERR Parliamentary Under Secretary of State Shriti Vadera spoke at BNE Enlargement Seminar

17 June 2008: John Hutton attended a dinner with BNE members

8 December 2008: The Global Europe Business Summit was attended by BERR Parliamentary Under Secretary of State Shriti Vadera and Roland Rudd was one of the business participants (representing BNE)

10 December 2008: Lord Mandelson had a breakfast meeting with Roland Rudd and several BNE company members to discuss EU economic reform issues

17 December 2008: Lord Mandelson had a second breakfast meeting with Roland Rudd and several other BNE company members to discuss EU economic reform issues

Business: Government Assistance

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of the merits of providing financial support to companies with an established record of operating in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [252567]

Ian Pearson: Government financial support is available to businesses in the UK irrespective of whether they are ultimately UK-owned or foreign-owned.

Conditions of Employment: Surrogate Parenthood

Mr. Todd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will bring forward proposals to extend maternity leave and employment protection rights afforded to parents to surrogate parents. [250678]

Mr. McFadden: The rights to maternity leave and pay were introduced as a measure to enable women to take time off at the end of pregnancy and after birth to protect their health and safety and that of their children.

The Government have considered rights for surrogate parents from time to time. The need to keep the various leave and pay provisions as straightforward as possible for employers to manage, and ensure that the qualifying conditions reflect the policy rationale for the entitlement in the first place, inevitably mean that certain groups are not covered.

Parents who have a child through a surrogacy arrangement are able to benefit from many of the rights the Government have put in place to support working parents. This includes the right to parental leave, to time off for dependants and the right to request a flexible working pattern. The father of a child born through a surrogacy arrangement and who fulfils the normal eligibility criteria will be able to take two weeks' paid paternity leave.

Cox Review

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) how many staff from his Department have provided support for the Creative Britain Review; [248894]

(2) what expenditure his Department incurred in relation to the Creative Britain Review. [248895]

Mr. McFadden: The Creative Britain report was published in February 2008 by this Department and the Departments of Culture Media and Sport and Innovation Universities and Skills. In the year leading up to publication, the equivalent of one full time staff member was provided by this Department. BERR's contribution to the report's publication cost was £30,000.

Debts

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what estimate his Department has made of (a) the number of individuals subject to and (b) failing to meet the terms of debt management plans in each of the last four years; [244420]

(2) what representations from (a) individuals and (b) businesses his Department has received regarding the working and effectiveness of debt management plans in the last year; [244421]

(3) what recent representations his Department has received from individuals and organisations on the regulation of debt management plans; and if he will make a statement. [244422]

Mr. Thomas: As noted in my earlier written reply to the hon. Member on 15 December 2008, Official Report, column reference 425W; because a debt management plan (DMP) is an informal agreement between a debtor and his creditors there is no official estimate of their numbers. The only representations received regarding the working and effectiveness of DMPs have concentrated on whether some debtors would be better placed in individual voluntary arrangements rather than DMPs.

Departmental Billing

Margaret Moran: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his Department's policy is on paying supplier invoices within 10 days; and how many and what proportion of such invoices to his Department were settled within 10 days in the last 12 months. [250876]

Mr. McFadden: BERR's policy is to make all payments within 10 days, in line with the PM's commitment of 8 October 2008.

During November and December 2008, the first two months of formally recording performance against the new 10-day target and in advance of new guidance to suppliers being fully embedded, BERR paid 93.1 per cent. (2,205 invoices) and 96.9 per cent. (2,112 invoices) of invoices within 10 working days respectively.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Hands: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which (a) food and (b) drinks companies have supplied his Department in each of the last three years; and how much was paid to each of those suppliers in each year. [248090]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 15 January 2009]: Over the last three years this Department has a recorded spend of approximately £1.2 million each year on refreshments for official meetings and engagements. This spend was made through the Department's contracted service provider, Baxter Storey. It is not possible to separate food and drink spending.

Departmental Compensation

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the 10 highest payments made by his Department in settlement of property compensation cases brought against it in respect of which legal proceedings have been concluded were in the last 12 months for which figures are available; which of the cases were (a) contested and (b) uncontested by his Department; and what the nature of each incident was. [248873]

Mr. McFadden: The Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform settled five property compensation cases in the last 12 months, none of which were contested.

1. £110.78 cost of replacing a suitcase badly damaged during transit between official overseas visits.
2. £60.00 insurance excess paid as a result of damage to car being used on official business.
3. £50.00 cost of replacing clothing damage.
4. £43.27 cost of goods required for official stopover in excess of 24 hours when luggage had already been checked on to a flight to Houston.
5. £29.00 cost of replacing a rucksack badly damaged by excess weight and size of official papers on return from overseas posting.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the answer of 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1130W, on departmental personnel, how many staff without posts there were in his Department at the latest date for which figures are available; how many such staff were classified as such upon return from maternity leave; and how many of the staff without posts have been classified as such for at least (a) six and (b) 12 months. [250101]

Mr. McFadden: As at 1 January 2009, there were seven staff without posts; none was classified as such upon return from maternity leave. Fewer than five people fall into the remaining categories and precise numbers are not available for reasons of confidentiality.

Departmental Official Visits

Mr. Hands: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the cost to the public purse of hotel accommodation for (a) the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and (b) his special advisers was for the three day tour that was undertaken between 7 and 9 January 2009; and which hotels (i) he and (ii) his special advisers stayed in during the tour. [2479[illegible]]

Mr. McFadden: My noble Friend the Secretary of State stayed overnight in Manchester on 7 January in order to host a business breakfast on 8 January. The hotel and accommodation costs were arranged by the agency which deals with overnight accommodation for BERR. My noble Friend, the Secretary of State was not accompanied by a special adviser.

Departmental Public Service Agreements

John Thurso: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his estimate is of expenditure on CSR 2007 Public Service Agreement 1, Raising the Productivity of the UK Economy, in (a) the core Department and (b) those non-departmental public bodies for which his Department is responsible. [242281]

Mr. McFadden: We do not hold this information centrally. In accordance with HM Treasury's financial reporting manual, Government Departments set out their accounts with departmental spend broken down by departmental strategic objectives (DSOs) rather than public service agreement (PSA) outcome.

As PSA 1 is cross-departmental—requiring the work of a number of Departments to contribute towards its achievement—the costs are spread across a variety of Government programmes. As our understanding of the drivers of productivity evolve alongside our understanding of the current global economic climate, the composition of the programmes involved in the PSA's delivery are subject to change. Consequently, Government expenditure is managed at DSO rather than PSA level.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much has been spent by his Department on temporary staff in each year since it was established. [251483]

Mr. McFadden: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 10 November 2008, Official Report, column 906W to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban).

Departmental Work Experience

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many individuals have worked in his Department on (a) paid work experience or internship placements and (b) unpaid work experience or internships in each year since its establishment; on average how many hours a week were worked by such people in each year; what types of work each was involved in; what proportion were in full-time education; what proportion did not complete their set period of work experience; and how much those who received remuneration were paid on average per week in each year. [242125]

Mr. McFadden: The information is as follows.

(a) The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform participates annually in the Cabinet Office Diversity Internship Programme for undergraduates and graduates in education from ethnic minority backgrounds who are under represented in the civil service. The scheme provides an eight week paid placement scheme for students who are considering the civil service as future career.

Based on the information available from 2003 to 2008, a total of 30 students have been placed in the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (and its predecessor the Department of Trade and Industry) as part of the scheme. Each student worked full-time on a variety of administrative tasks and all completed an eight week placement. On average, each person received £285.00 per week remuneration.

(b) This information for this section is not collected centrally and would involve disproportionate cost to provide.

EU Recovery Plan

Mark Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the provisions of the European Commission's EU Recovery Plan; and if he will make a statement. [241326]

Mr. Thomas: The UK Government welcome the European Economic Recovery Plan published by the European Commission. The UK Government have announced measures to directly tackle the slowdown in the UK economy but it is important to have a co-ordinated response from all member states.

The provisions of the recovery plan, worth €200 billion (1.5 per cent. of EU GDP), should limit the scale of the economic downturn that is currently being experienced and avoid the downward spiral effect that may materialise from falling demand. The money will be used to target different priority areas, including job training, investment in research and technology and investment in energy infrastructure. The fiscal stimulus combined with proposals designed to speed up the structural reforms under the Lisbon Growth and Jobs Strategy will improve the long-term competitiveness of Europe. For instance, the importance of continuing to invest in research and development is recognised in the recovery plan, providing a platform for the long-term on which Europe can capitalise once the economy has emerged from the downturn.

Furniture: Credit

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will discuss with his French counterpart measures to support credit insurance arrangements for the furniture industry. [251171]

Ian Pearson: This Department is discussing these issues with industry. We have also had discussions with partners across Europe including those in the French Administration.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the Secretary of State's official engagements were during his visit to India in January 2009. [252356]

Mr. Thomas: My noble Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform visited India on 19-23 January 2009. I refer the hon. Member to the reply I have given him today to his question 252356 which gives a list of official engagements. During his visit Lord Mandelson met numerous individuals and organisations at various events. A full list could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

UK Trade and Investment: India

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate has been made of the amount spent on hotel accommodation for (a) the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, (b) other Ministers from his Department, (c) special advisers and (d) civil servants for the UK Trade and Investment trip to India in January 2009. [252217]

Mr. Thomas: The following amounts were spent on hotel accommodation by my noble Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform during his visit to India in January 2009:

(a) Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform: £336.

(b) Other Ministers from Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform: £0.

(c) Special adviser: £336

(d) Civil servants: £5,446.

My noble Friend the Secretary of State, his Private Secretary and Special Adviser stayed at the high commissioner's residence during the Delhi leg of the visit. There was insufficient space for the rest of the delegation to stay at the residence. The entire party stayed in a hotel during the Mumbai leg of the visit.

Internet

John Robertson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent estimate he has made of (a) the average internet speed available to business users in the UK and (b) the effect of available internet speed on the competitiveness of UK businesses. [248742]

Mr. McFadden: The Department has made no recent estimations on average internet speed and the effect of available internet speed on the competitiveness of UK businesses. However, I recognise the importance of internet for businesses and UK competitiveness and will be examining the question of universality of broadband and options for maximising participation across the UK as part of the Digital Britain Report. There will be an interim report in this month, with a full report in late spring.

Large businesses on the whole have the financial capacity to purchase sufficient bandwidth to match their needs. For smaller businesses service providers offer a range of packages to suit different business needs. Offers include speeds ranging from 500kbps—8Mbps at the lower end and up to 24Mbps at the upper end. There is also broadband provision to science parks across the UK.

ONS reported that over 90 per cent. of businesses have broadband connections. Ofcom publish data on take-up of broadband by small business in their Communications Market reports and the 2008 report indicated that the large majority of small businesses now have broadband.

Ofcom also recently published a study on actual consumer experience of broadband the results of which can be found at:

http://www.ofcom.org.uk/research/telecoms/reports/bbspeed_jan09/

Lord Taylor of Blackburn

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether (a) the Secretary of State and his predecessor and (b) officials in his Department have received any (i) written and (ii) oral representations from Lord Taylor of Blackburn in the last 12 months. [253443]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 2 February 2009]: No.

Motor Vehicles: Industry

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what assistance his Department is providing to UK truck manufacturers; [247027]

(2) what steps his Department plans to take to protect jobs in the vehicle manufacturing and component supply chain. [247028]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement I made in the House on 27 January 2009.

Political Levy

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer to my right hon. Friend the Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 9 December 2008, Official Report, column 66W, on the political levy, whether the Certification Officer has provided guidance on this issue. [250360]

Mr. McFadden: The Certification Officer has not provided guidance on this specific issue. However, in his "Guide to political fund review ballots" he states that > "The Act is silent as to whether the ballot paper may be accompanied by an explanatory statement, a recommendation or other literature. However, unions should be aware of the requirement that members must be able to vote without interference or constraint."

Post Office

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much the Post Office has contributed to the Exchequer in external financing contributions to Government revenues (a) since its establishment as a public corporation and (b) in each of the last 30 years; and if he will express each figure in current prices. [249630]

Mr. McFadden: [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The External Financing Limit (EFL) regime, whereby the Post Office corporation was required to generate funds for the Exchequer, began in 1976-77. A total of £2,481 million was generated up to financial year 1998-99 and the amounts were retained on the company's balance sheet. These funds were not removed from the company and used for Government purposes. Instead the funds were used to support the Post Office Network and more recently the Royal Mail pension fund. The EFL regime no longer applied beyond this period.

The following table shows the value of the EFL outturns for financial years 1976-77 to 1998-99 in historic as well as current prices.

Post Office corporation EFL outturns from 1976-77 to 1998-99

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the Government's proposals for the reform of the Post Office entail the assumption of responsibility by the Government for liability arising from underfunding; or whether the Government plan to assume such responsibility in return for the underwriting of future pension promises. [250504]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The details of how the Government will tackle Royal Mail's pension deficit are still being developed. My noble Friend the Secretary of State will be making a detailed policy statement on the Government's package of proposals for reform in the early part of this year.

Postal Services: EU Countries

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what information he holds on the charge made for posting a standard-size letter of up to 50 grams in (a) the Netherlands and (b) other EU member states. [249599]

Mr. McFadden: Postcomm, the postal industry regulator, holds comparative data on European stamp prices. Listings of European stamp prices ordered by weight and by country, including the prices charged in the Netherlands, can be found on Postcomm's website:

http://www.psc.gov.uk/about-the-mail-market/international-market-reviews/european-comparisons-letter-prices.html

The recently published Hooper Report also provided a table on European stamp prices. Copies of the report can be found on the Department's website:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/whatwedo/sectors/postalservices/Review/page45129.html

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what information he holds on the number of EU member states where postal deliveries are made six days a week. [249605]

Mr. McFadden: Information concerning postal regimes in other European countries can be found in the 2008 Ecorys report on developments in the postal sector—a pan European study commissioned by the European Commission's postal unit. The website address is:

http://ec.europa.eu/internal_market/post/doc/studies/2008-ecorys-final_en.pdf

Royal Mail: Pensions

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many pension contribution holidays Royal Mail and its predecessors have taken in each year since 1980; and if he will express in current prices the monetary value of each contribution not made. [249629]

Mr. McFadden: [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The Post Office (now Royal Mail Group Limited) suspended employer contributions to one of its schemes, Post Office Staff Superannuation Scheme (POSSS), with effect from 1 April 1990. Reasons for suspending included the impact of changes in tax law to the treatment of "excessive surplus". Contributions to the POSSS recommenced on 1 April 2003.

There is no single answer for the possible accumulated current value of the suspended contributions as it would involve the need to make complex assumptions over the period since 1990, based on decisions taken by a number of interested parties.

I have therefore asked the chief executive of Royal Mail, Adam Crozier, to provide a direct reply to my hon. Friend supplying further detail around the contribution holiday.

A copy of the response will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Security Industry: Competition

Mr. Joyce: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the Secretary of State next plans to meet representatives of the security industry to discuss levels of competition in the sector. [242681]

Mr. Thomas: Ministers have no plans to meet industry representatives to discuss this matter. It is for the Office of Fair Trading (OFT), as the UK's independent competition regulator, to promote competition in markets and enforce competition law. Anyone concerned that there are anti-competitive features of a market or that a market is not working well for consumers, should raise the matter with the OFT who have the relevant powers to take appropriate action where necessary.

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the effect on levels of competition in the security industry of the merger of Group 4 and Securicor. [242682]

Mr. Thomas: Group 4 Falck and Securicor merged to form G4S plc. in 2004. The merger fell for consideration by the European Commission under the EC Merger Regulation and was cleared subject to commitments, including the requirement on Group 4 to divest its cash-in-transit business in Scotland.

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of the level of competition in the security industry sector. [244679]

Mr. Thomas: None. It is for the Office of Fair Trading (OFT), as the UK's independent competition regulator, to promote competition in markets and enforce competition law. Anyone concerned that there are anti-competitive features of a market or that a market is not working well for consumers, should raise the matter with the OFT who have the relevant powers to take appropriate action where necessary.

British Summertime

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will commission a review of the effects of the application of British Summertime over the next 12 months. [253278]

Mr. McFadden: The Government believe that the current Summertime arrangements are a satisfactory compromise between those who prefer lighter mornings and those who prefer lighter evenings.

There are no plans to commission a review of the arrangements or the effects but the Government will continue to listen to arguments for and against change.

Trade: International Cooperation

Mr. Soames: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he expects the Doha round of trade negotiations to resume in 2009; and whether he expects them to include negotiations on a general agreement on trade in services. [253504]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The Government remain fully committed to an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the Doha round. We are working with the EU Trade Commissioner, other EU member states and other WTO members on the importance of concluding the ongoing negotiations as early as possible, with a view to achieving an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the round in 2009. Negotiations to extend the existing general agreement on trade in services will be an integral part of the negotiations and of the final Doha deal.

Union Modernisation Fund

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the Union Modernisation Fund Supervisory Board from each of its meetings in the last 24 months. [250469]

Mr. McFadden: There are no minutes of the UMF Supervisory Board for the last 24 months.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many expressions of interest in setting up an academy have been received by his Department in each year for which figures are available. [251046]

Jim Knight: The following numbers of expressions of interest were signed in each year: four in 2000; nine in 2001; 10 in 2002; 15 in 2003; 16 in 2004; 22 in 2005; 50 in 2006; 52 in 2007; 42 in 2008; and one in January 2009. This gives a total of 221 signed expressions of interest since 2000. Of these, six projects did not progress beyond this stage. This is usually due to a joint decision between the Department and the local authority not to proceed.

Association for Citizenship Teaching

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding his Department has provided to the Association for Citizenship Teaching in each year since 2003. [252917]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The following figures show how much the Department has funded the Association for Citizenship Teachers (ACT) in each year since 2003:

	Funding for ACT (£)
2003-04	0.00
2004-05	4,400.00
2005-06	39,506.00

	Funding for ACT (£)
2006-07	169,989.80
2007-08	80,000.00
2008-09	33,300.00

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment his Department has made of the contribution of the Building Schools for the Future programme to educational transformation and learning attainment; and if will make a statement. [252589]

Jim Knight: In 2006, we commissioned PricewaterhouseCoopers to evaluate the impact of Building Schools for the Future (BSF) on educational attainment. This is in line with HM Treasury "Green Book" requirements for independent evaluation of major new programmes. PricewaterhouseCoopers has now delivered its second annual report on this evaluation, which we published on 20 January 2009. I will make this report available in the House Library.

Although 50 BSF schools are now open, the pupils have only been in the new schools for a short time. So it is still too early for pupils' results in tests and exams to tell us about the benefit the pupils are deriving from the new schools. The report therefore concentrates on management of the programme. It shows that BSF is gaining momentum, and that as schools and authorities progress through it, there is increasing sharpness of focus on achieving educational transformation. The majority of head teachers view BSF as educationally transformational and believe that it will allow their schools to deliver better outcomes for pupils, that teachers will be able to focus more on personalised teaching and learning, and that it will increase the range of services offered to support learners and their families.

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Standards

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans his Department has to ensure that the operational performance of Building Schools for the Future schools meets the standards projected by the design team in each case. [252664]

Jim Knight: Within 'Building Schools for the Future' (BSF), the strategic partnering agreement between a local authority and its private sector partner (PSP) requires the PSP to carry out a customer satisfaction evaluation of every school that is built one year after it has opened. The methodology is to capture customer views through use of the design quality indicator tool, DQI for Schools.

All major school projects, including those constructed within the BSF programme, are required to undergo an environmental assessment using the Building Research Establishment Environmental Assessment Method (BREEAM). This method now includes a post-construction review which compares an assessment of the environmental impact of the school as constructed against impact as designed.

But BSF is much more than a building programme; it forms part of the Government's wider strategy to transform children and young people's experience of schooling. So in 2006 the Department commissioned PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC) to evaluate the impact of BSF on educational attainment. PwC has now delivered its second annual report on this evaluation, which was published on 20 January 2009.

Commercial Group

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the performance of his Department's Commercial Group in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [247272]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Commercial Group's responsibilities fall under four main areas: Capability and Capacity of Procurement, Estates and Facilities Management, Enterprise Resource Planning and Sustainable Development. The Permanent Secretary and his Management Board keep under regular review the Department's performance, including that of Commercial Group.

In addition, a procurement capability review was carried out by the Office of Government Commerce (OGC) in 2007 which was reviewed again by OGC in 2008. Positive progress was noted as the Department implements its post-review action plan.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department provides for staff. [249066]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not directly operate any catering facilities. Catering in all of our buildings is provided by our contracted service provider, Aramark. This includes a staff restaurant and vending in all four buildings and a cafe area in Sanctuary Buildings, London.

There are no franchised catering outlets in any of our headquarter buildings.

Departmental Expenditure Limits

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much of his Department's (a) voted and (b) non-voted capital departmental expenditure limit for 2008-09 remains unallocated. [250930]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not have any voted unallocated provision for capital departmental expenditure limit (DEL) in 2008-09. The Department currently has no non-voted capital DEL which will be reflected in the publication of the spring supplementary estimate 2008-09, provisional on 10 February 2009.

The last reported non-voted capital DEL figure of £63.7 million can be sourced from the Department's 2008-09 winter supplementary (page 33) as published on HM Treasury's website under "unallocated capital provision".

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) which ICT projects his Department and its predecessors initiated and abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred in each project; who the contractors for each were; on what date each was (a) commenced and (b) abandoned; and if he will make a statement; [251386]

(2) what the initial estimated (a) cost and (b) delivery date was of each ICT project initiated by his Department and its predecessors in each year since 1997; what the (i) outturn cost and (ii) completion date was of each such project subsequently completed; which contractors were hired for each project; and how much has been paid to each contractor in respect of each project to date. [251375]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) does not hold a current comprehensive list of ICT projects at the level of detail requested. This could be calculated only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the cost of provision of Government cars to special advisers in his Department has been in the last 12 months. [251024]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: In accordance with paragraph 10.11 from the Ministerial Code, the Department does not provide Government cars to special advisers.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much capital expenditure has been brought forward in response to the economic downturn by his Department, its agencies and non-departmental public bodies to (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; from which years such expenditure has been brought forward; and if he will make a statement. [251396]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children Schools and Families, together with its agencies and non-departmental public bodies have identified up to £800 million to be brought forward from the 2010-11 financial year to the 2009-10 financial year.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249133]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested is not recorded. We aim to publish as much information as possible and would consider providing an answer, despite it exceeding the disproportionate cost threshold, if it was deemed to be in the public interest.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what investigations he has undertaken into the circumstances surrounding the failure of the contract to deliver the education maintenance allowance in 2008; and what conclusions he has drawn from that investigation. [249611]

Jim Knight: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) have operational responsibility for the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) and as such they contract for the help line, assessment and payment function for EMA. The management of that contract including its performance is a matter for the LSC. The LSC has instigated its own internal review of the contract failures by Liberata last year. The review has been commissioned by Chris Banks the LSC National Chair and Mark Haysom the LSC Chief Executive and is independent of the LSC executive. The review report will go to the LSC National Council in early March. The Department will consider lessons learnt in the light of the outcome of the LSC's review.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when Miss Emma Roberts of West Lancashire constituency will begin receiving education maintenance allowance payments; and whether those payments will be backdated to September 2008. [252783]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member for West Lancashire with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in both Libraries.

Education: Assessments

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he last met the Examination Officers Association to discuss the effect on the conduct of examinations of recent problems with the marking and return of examinations and test scripts. [252578]

Jim Knight: I met Andrew Harland, the chief executive of the Examination Officers' Association (EOA), on 5 June 2008. This meeting was to discuss the work the EOA is doing to support examinations officers. My officials have had regular contacts with the EOA since then.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the timetable is for the introduction of single level tests after the conclusion of the pilots in July 2009; and if he will make a statement. [252777]

Jim Knight: No decisions have yet been made about any roll out of single level tests (SLTs) nationally. Any roll out will be subject to positive evaluation findings and to endorsement of the approach from Ofqual. We are therefore continuing to monitor progress closely and have asked the expert group on assessment to consider emerging evidence on single level tests from the making good progress pilot.

Education: Finance

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent estimate he has made of the levels of spending on (a) primary schools, (b) secondary schools and (c) colleges in (i) England, (ii) the North East and (iii) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each of the next five years. [252551]

Jim Knight: The Department maintains records of allocations made, on a local authority basis, to local authorities and schools in England. It does not maintain separate records of primary and secondary schools, as expenditure on these is prioritised locally. It does not maintain records of further education college allocations. Actual expenditure within an authority will differ from allocations made. This is due to (a) timing differences between allocations and spend (b) local prioritisation (c) other local resources. Allocations are made on a three year basis, currently covering the years 2008-09 to 2010-11. Accordingly, no figures are maintained beyond 2010-11. Allocations made so far in respect of England, the North West, Middlesbrough and Cleveland, for the period 2009-10 and 2010-11 are set out in the following table.

		£ million
	2008-09	2010-11
England	4,099	4,613
The North East	230.7	260.4
Middlesbrough	9.8	12.1
Cleveland	16.8	19.1

GCSE

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families at how many maintained mainstream schools (a) 50 per cent. or more and (b) 75 per cent. or more of pupils did not attain any GCSE grades higher than a D in the latest period for which figures are available. [241872]

Jim Knight: In 38 maintained mainstream schools 50 per cent. or more of the pupils did not attain any GCSE and equivalent grades higher than a D in 2007/08.

No maintained mainstream schools have 75 per cent. or more of the pupils who did not attain any GCSE and equivalent grades higher than a D in 2007/08.

These figures relate to GCSE and equivalent and based on pupils at the end of KS4 in all maintained mainstream schools.

Only schools with 10 or more pupils are included in the answer.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in how many schools less than 30 per cent. of eligible pupils achieved five GCSEs at grades A* to C including English and mathematics in the last 12 months, broken down by decile of income deprivation affecting children indices. [251049]

Number of schools[1, 2] where fewer than 30 per cent. of pupils[3] achieved five or more A-C grades at GCSE or equivalent including English and mathematics by IDACI decile[4], 2007/08[5, 6]*

Health Education: Sex

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his Department's reasons are for permitting the use of pornography in sex and relationship education classes as a teaching aid. [253106]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not advocate the use of pornographic material in schools. However, all schools are required to have an up-to-date sex and relationships education policy which, among other things, sets out how sex and relationships education will be provided and how it will be monitored and evaluated. The Department's 'Sex and Relationships Guidance (2000)' for schools outlines their responsibilities in this area.

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many key stage 2 national curriculum test papers have been remarked in each of the last five years. [253137]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the administration of the Key Stage 2 (KS2) National Curriculum tests, including the external marking and review service to schools.

The QCA publishes data on review volumes as part of its annual Test statistics. The Test statistics can be found at:

www.naa.org.uk/naa_19205.aspx

The total number of reviews requested at key stage 2 for the 2004 to 2007 rounds are as follows:

	Reviews requested
2004	13,232
2005	21,533
2006	19,486
2007	11,530

The QCA has not yet published 2008 figures for key stage 2 reviews. These figures will be published over the coming weeks, and will comply with the UK Statistics Authority Code of Practice.

Outdoor Education

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effects of the Learning Outside the Classroom Manifesto Partnership on the (a) number and (b) quality of school activities outside the classroom. [252916]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department has not made an assessment of the effects of the Learning Outside the Classroom Manifesto Partnership on the quantity and quality of learning outside the classroom activities.

Prior to the launch of the manifesto in November 2006, the Department published an assessment of activity and practice in schools and local authorities. This found that provision had either increased over the last five years, or had remained broadly the same; and was predicted to remain steady or to increase, over the following academic year. The independent Council for Learning Outside the Classroom, which will take forward this work from April this year, is proposing a further study.

With our partners, the Department has brought together existing safety and quality badges into one easily recognisable Learning Outside the Classroom Quality Badge for provider organisations. From 30 January 2009, it will be awarded to providers who have demonstrated that they meet six quality indicators. To support schools in planning, organising and evaluating these experiences, the Department published the 'Out and About' guidance in October 2008.

Personal Social and Health Education Review

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when the independent review of personal social and health education, led by Sir Alisdair MacDonald, will present its findings. [251466]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The independent review into making Personal, Social, Health and Economic (PSHE) education statutory, being led by Sir Alasdair Macdonald, will report in April 2009. Proposals for the statutory implementation of PSHE education will be the subject of a full public consultation and the parliamentary process.

Primary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which Qualifications and Curriculum Authority staff are undertaking support work for the Independent Review of the Primary Curriculum. [248596]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Qualifications and Curriculum Authority staff from within its Curriculum Group are undertaking work in support of Sir Jim Rose's Independent Review of the Primary Curriculum.

Private Education: Berkshire

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of (a) primary and (b) secondary school age pupils in (i) Reading and (ii) Wokingham attended independent schools in each of the last five years. [248871]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information is given in the following table.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in how many schools over 30 per cent. of pupils received a fixed period exclusion in the last year for which figures are available. [241880]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information is shown in the table:

Primary, secondary and special schools[1, 2, 3]: Number of schools by the percentage of pupils who receive a fixed period exclusion[4, 5] 2006-07[6], England

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) fixed period and (b) permanent exclusions were of students at schools with (i) less than 10 per cent., (ii) between 10 and 30 per cent., (iii) between 30 and 50 per cent., and (iv) more than 50 per cent. of children eligible for free school meals in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [249111]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Pupils: Absenteeism

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of pupils eligible for free school meals were classed as persistent absentees in the last year for which figures are available. [251294]

Persistent absentees[1] in primary, secondary and special schools[2, 3] with free school meal (FSM) eligibility, 2006-07 - England

	Pupil enrolments in schools during 2006-07[4, 5]		Percentage of half days missed[6]
	Number	Percentage[7]	Authorised absence	Unauthorised absence	Overall absence

Pupils: Food

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school pupils are known to have food intolerance in each local authority area; [250706]

(2) how many children of (a) primary and (b) secondary school age in each local authority area have been referred for food intolerance testing after having visited an educational psychiatrist or educational psychologist in the last 12 months. [250707]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information is not collected by the Department.

Qualifications and Curriculum Authority: Public Appointments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he requested the resignation of the Chief Executive of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority, Dr. Ken Boston; and if he will make a statement. [253417]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, made no such request.

Schools: Arson

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many schools closed for a period of two weeks or more as a result of an act of arson in the last 12 months; [251949]

(2) what estimate he has made of the cost of repair to school premises following acts of arson in each of the last three years; [251951]

(3) how many incidents of arson against schools have been recorded in the last 12 months; and what estimate he has made of the number of such fires which were started externally. [251952]

Jim Knight: The Department does not have any figures for the numbers of schools closed as a result of an arson attack or for the cost of repairs to school premises following acts of arson in the last three years. The latest information we have on the costs of repairs is that according to estimates made by Communities and Local Government the average cost of school fires for 2000-04 was £58 million per year.

According to the latest available provisional figures for 2007, there were 348 deliberate fires in schools in England, of which 73 (21 per cent.) were started externally. Figures are partially based on sampled weighted data.

Arson is a legal term not used in the national fire statistics collection; deliberate fires are those as determined by the Fire and Rescue Service in attendance at the fire.

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many school buildings have sustained structural damage requiring repair following acts of arson in each of the last three years. [251950]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold this information.

Schools: Blackpool

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has spent on (a) primary and (b) secondary school buildings in Blackpool since the local authority became a unitary authority in 1998-99. [251315]

Jim Knight: The Department relies on local authorities to prioritise resources, and does not keep central records of the split of expenditure between primary and secondary schools. The Department has allocated £101.7 million to Blackpool between 1998-99 and the present, including the current year 2008-09.

Schools: Buildings

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has spent on (a) primary and (b) secondary school buildings in each local authority area in England in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [251839]

Jim Knight: The Department allocates funding to local authorities and schools to be prioritised locally in accordance with asset management plans. Local expenditure on schools will differ from allocations in any single year due to (a) timing differences between allocation and spend, (b) decisions taken locally by local authorities and (c) the amount of other resources available locally.

Figures on allocations regarding the total of the major school capital programmes to each local authority area in each of the last 10 years, 1998-99 to 2007-08 can be found in the following tables.

Note:

Schools: Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what plans his Department has to increase the energy efficiency of the schools estate, with particular reference to schools constructed under the Building Schools for the Future programme; and if he will make a statement; [252588]

(2) how many biomass boilers (a) have been and (b) are planned to be installed in new schools following calculation of such schools' carbon dioxide emissions using the Government's carbon calculator. [252663]

Jim Knight: In December 2007 we announced an ambition for all new school buildings, including all new schools within Building Schools for the Future, to be zero carbon by 2016. A task force has been appointed to advise on how to achieve this ambition. The task force will develop a strategy for moving the school system to zero carbon, setting targets and milestones to 2016. It will also scope the potential to reduce carbon emissions during school refurbishment projects.

It is already a requirement that newly constructed schools must meet a carbon emissions reduction of 60 per cent. relative to the energy efficiency standards in 2002 building regulations. My Department has provided additional funding for more than 200 schools in Building Schools for the Future and the academies programme to fund the implementation of energy efficiency and renewable energy measures on school sites to enable this requirement to be met.

The carbon calculator was developed to allow users to compare the likely effectiveness of various energy efficiency and renewable energy solutions, and to demonstrate how they would achieve the 60 per cent. reduction. We have received completed carbon calculators for 53 school projects which are currently in design. Of these designs, 46 propose to include biomass boilers, two propose to include biomass combined heat and power (CHP) plant, and one proposes a combination of biomass and ground source heat pump. There may be more schools with plans to include biomass boilers; we do not impose a requirement on schools that they report such plans to us.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his assessment is of levels of energy efficiency in school buildings constructed under the Building Schools for the Future programme; and what measures he has put in place to evaluate the energy efficiency of new school buildings proposed under the programme. [253141]

Jim Knight: The Department requires that newly constructed schools, including those within Building Schools for the Future, meet a carbon emissions reduction of 60 per cent. relative to the energy efficiency standards in 2002 building regulations. Additional funding has been provided for more than 200 schools in Building Schools for the Future and the Academies programme to fund the implementation of energy efficiency and renewable energy measures on school sites to enable this requirement to be met. We have developed a 'carbon calculator'—a software tool—which allows users to compare the likely effectiveness of various energy efficiency and renewable energy solutions, and to demonstrate how they would achieve the 60 per cent. reduction. We have received completed carbon calculators for 53 school projects which are currently in design[1].

Partnerships for Schools monitors the compliance of the carbon ratings of school designs with Government targets and in PFI schools ensures that the payment mechanism during the contract period (normally 25 years) reflects the DCSF policy on energy use. A low carbon rating may be due to energy efficient design or the employment of low and zero carbon fuels, including renewables.

Schools: Parents

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of variations in the quality and level of parental involvement in education according to (a) sex, (b) race and (c) income. [253305]

Jim Knight: The Department has commissioned research to examine the level of parental involvement in children's education. This includes a national survey of parents and carers conducted in 2008 which examined variation in parental engagement in learning and education by gender, ethnicity and income. The quality of parental involvement was examined at a broad level, in terms of frequency of help with homework, attendance at parents' evenings and discussions about educational options.

The Department also undertook research in 2007 which examined the variation in parental involvement in their children's education according to gender and ethnicity. The quality of parental involvement was not examined in this research; however it did investigate the types of activities that parents were involved in and their confidence in helping their child with homework.

The finding of this research are informing the Department's new approach to supporting parental engagement and is outlined in the Children's Plan: One Year On report published in December 2008.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what research his Department has evaluated on the relationship between parental choice and achievement; and if he will make a statement. [253307]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families has evaluated the following research on the links between choice, diversity and standards:

Simon Burgess, Carol Propper and Deborah Wilson (2007): "The Impact of School Choice in England", Policy Studies, vol. 28, No. 2, 2007

Peterson, P., Howell, W., Wolf, P. and Campbell, D. (2003) "School vouchers: results from randomised experiments", The Economics of School Choice , ed. C. Hoxby, Chicago, IL: University of Chicago Press.

Hoxby, C. (2003c) "School choice and school productivity: could school choice be a tide that lifts all boats?", The Economics of School Choice, ed. C. Hoxby, Chicago, IL: University of Chicago Press

Sandstrom, F. and Bergstrom, F. (2002) "School Vouchers in Practice—Competition Won't Hurt You", IUI Working Paper Series 578, The Research Institute of Industrial Economics, Stockholm.

Ladd, H and Fiske, E (2001) "The uneven playing field of school choice: evidence from New Zealand", Journal of Policy Analysis and Management, vol. 20, No.1, pp. 43-64

Cullen, J; Jacob, B; Levitt, S. (2000) "The Impact of School Choice on Student Outcomes: An Analysis of the Chicago Public School", NBER Working Paper 7888, Cambridge

There is no clear evidence that school choice directly affects pupil progress. However, evidence suggests that schools respond positively to competition by raising their standards.

Schools: Repairs and Maintenance

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress his Department has made toward its targets of (a) the provision of funding for every local authority to renew at least the school in greatest need by 2011 and (b) major rebuilding and remodelling projects in at least three schools to be started in every local authority by 2016; and if he will make a statement. [252662]

Jim Knight: The Department has (a) allocated resources to all local authorities to renew at least one secondary school through its Building Schools for the Future programme, academies programme and One School Pathfinder programme; we are (b) looking to bring every local authority into the Building Schools for the Future programme, with at least a priority 3-5 school opening project, as soon as is practicable.

Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which maintained secondary schools offer courses for (a) pre-U qualifications and (b) the international baccalaureate. [249226]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 9 December 2008, Official Report, columns 80-81W.

Special Educational Needs

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average standard assessment test scores achieved by special educational needs pupils taught in mainstream schools were in each of the last 10 years. [248867]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Data for the last 10 years can only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Information on the levels obtained in key stage 2 and key stage 3 tests by pupils with special education needs (SEN) in mainstream schools in 2007 can be found in the following tables. These figures are based on final KS2 and KS3 data.

Similar information for all pupils with SEN (i.e. including those at maintained special schools as well as mainstream schools) for 2007 can be found in SFR38/2007, at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000759/index.shtml

The KS2 and KS3 figures in this published SFR were based on provisional data.

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: This information is not collected centrally.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils with special educational needs were given free transport to school in each of the last 10 years broken down by local authority. [253355]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not collect information on the provision of free transport to children with special educational needs.

Teachers: Training

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding has been (a) allocated and (b) spent under the Assessment for Learning programme for teacher training. [253299]

Jim Knight: From 2008-11, £50 million per year is being allocated to schools via local authorities through the Standards Fund for teachers' professional development in Assessment for Learning.

Information on expenditure is not collected centrally.

Truancy: Hillingdon

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many days of truancy there were in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in the London Borough of Hillingdon in each of the last three years. [250778]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not maintain records of "truancy". Information is collected on unauthorised absence.

Unauthorised absence is absence without leave from a teacher or other authorised representative of the school. This includes all unexplained or unjustified absences, such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence where reason is not yet established and truancy.

The latest available published information on absence is published as SFR30/2008

[1] Due to previously released data, figures for 16 year olds in 2006 have been suppressed. Revealing the figure for 16 year olds will result in inadvertently disclosing small numbers for the younger ages.

Note:

"—"= suppressed value less than 10 (between 0-9) or where a presented figure would reveal a suppressed value. This is in line with the Office for National Statistics' guidance on the release of abortion statistics (2005)

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people undergoing NHS alcohol treatment courses in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire (i) have and (ii) have not completed the treatment successfully in each of the last five years. [253785]

Dawn Primarolo: On 1 April 2008, a National Alcohol Treatment Monitoring System (NATMS) begun operation to collect and report local and national information on the provision of structured care-planned treatment for alcohol misuse in England. Prior to 1 April 2008 there was no routine collection of data on numbers receiving alcohol treatment in England.

The first year's data will be reported in October 2009 and will include data on the number of individuals who have completed their treatment.

Limited NATMS data are reported on the National Drug Treatment Monitoring System website, at:

www.ndtms.net/alcohol.aspx

Ambulance Services

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effects of the implementation of the Licensing Act 2003 on the shift patterns used by ambulance services in (a) Lancashire and (b) England and Wales. [253281]

Mr. Bradshaw: No such assessment has been made.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 219W, if he will provide the correct web link for his Department's statistical bulletin Ambulance Services, England 2007-08. [253934]

Mr. Bradshaw: The annual statistical bulletin "Ambulance Services, England 2007-08", has already been placed in the Library and is available at the following link:

I regret the error in my pervious reply to the right hon. Member.

Autism

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) by what means his Department plans to ensure that the evaluation of the individual budgets' pilots will capture people with specific conditions; and if he will make a statement; [253678]

(2) how people with autism were classified in the recent individual budget pilots; [253679]

(3) whether data from the recent individual budgets pilots can be used to determine the effect of individual budgets on people with (a) autism and (b) sensory impairments. [253680]

Phil Hope: The independent individual budget evaluation was not designed to examine the outcomes for specific groups of service users, but for broad categories of people: older people, people with learning disabilities, people with physical disabilities and people with mental health problems. It was a randomised controlled trial, in which all those people potentially eligible for individual budgets within each pilot site were allocated at random to an individual budget or a comparison group. Sites varied in the groups of service users for whom they intended to pilot individual budgets.

The final report of the independent individual budget was published on 21 October 2008 and can be obtained via the Department's website. A copy has been placed in the Library.

The evaluation team was highly dependent on local authorities collecting the data and they allocated study participants to the broad user groups. These allocations to user groups would have reflected convention and practice within specific local authority teams. While some people with autism and sensory impairments are likely to have been included within the sample , it is not possible to identify people with specific conditions from the information the evaluation team collected.

Blood: Donors

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the planned target for blood donation was in each year since 1992; how many units of blood were collected in each year; and what percentage of demand the National Blood Service met in each year. [254150]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is not available for the entire time period requested. Figures for blood collection against planned targets and percentage of demand met for red blood cells is only available from the financial year 2000-01, as information was not collated centrally prior to this date.

Practices will begin to work towards achievement of the new contraception indicator in the Quality and Outcomes Framework from 1 April 2009. Achievement data will be published in September 2010 by the NHS Information Centre for health and social care.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many freedom of information officers are employed on (a) a full-time and (b) a part-time basis by his Department, its agencies, health authorities and trusts; and what recent estimate he has made of the overall annual cost of their employment. [253079]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of staff employed to deal with requests under the Freedom of Information (FOI) Act on a full-time and a part-time basis by the Department, its agencies, and the overall estimated annual cost of their employment are set out in the following table.

The estimated overall annual cost of their employment is £360,000, based on the mid-range of salary per member of staff.

In addition, the Department and its agencies call on legal support as required.

Information for health authorities and trusts is not routinely collected. The cost of gathering such information would be disproportionate.

[251240]

Mr. Bradshaw: The projects listed under the original parliamentary question were those over £100,000 currently being undertaken by the Department, the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) and the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency (PASA). The current expected completion date and estimated cost details, as at 28 January 2009, are as follows:

[1] The HPI is an IT programme, rather than a single project. It has been set up to provide information and data services to enable the DH to manage the national immunisation programme. It also provides tools to facilitate the management of surveillance information as part of the DH Pandemic preparedness measures. The programme was initially established in 2004 to collect Flu Update data from GPs with a budget of £485,000. The programme has expanded since that point, providing national immunisation data related to a number of vaccinations including Influenza, Pneumococcal and HPV, as well as surveillance and Pandemic Preparedness initiatives. Further development and support of the application will be ongoing, to reflect the evolving Immunisation and Pandemic preparedness programmes. The website is being produced and maintained as part of this programme. It does not have a given date.

The IT projects undertaken by Connecting for Health are listed as follows:

Name of organisation	Name of project	Current estimated delivery date of project	Total estimated cost of project (£ billion)
Connecting for Health	National Programme for IT (NPfIT)	[1]—	[2]12.656

[1] NPfIT comprises a number of separate systems and services for which, as a whole, there is no single completion date.

[2] At 2004-05 prices, including local costs, as reported by the National Audit Office in its May 2008 report on NPfIT.

Departmental Internet

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 20 November 2008, Official Report, column 687W, on the departmental internet, if he will list the websites operated by his Department in addition to its two main websites. [251480]

Mr. Bradshaw: In addition to its two main websites:

www.dh.gov.uk

and

www.nhs.uk

the Department of Health operates 91 websites, as at 26 January 2009. The following table lists these sites.

Under rules set out by the transformational government agenda, these 91 websites will be closed by March 2011, as their content is being migrated to the Department's two main websites, to Directgov www.direct.gov.uk

or to Business Link

www.businesslink.gov.uk

as appropriate.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which websites were operated by his Department in addition to its main website in the last five years. [251481]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under the Transformational Government agenda, the Department completed an audit of the websites that it operated in March 2007. In addition to its two main websites:

www.dh.gov.uk

and

www.nhs.uk

it identified 224 websites. A copy of which has been placed in the Library.

As at 26 January 2009, this figure had reduced to 91.

To establish the number of websites operated between January 2004 and the Department's website audit would incur disproportionate costs.

Departmental Lost Property

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to recoup the value of Department property lost by officials from those officials. [252572]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has no plans to implement a policy to recoup the value of Department property lost by staff.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether civil servants in his Department who have lost laptops that were the property of his Department have been charged the full value of the item in the last 12 months. [252649]

Mr. Bradshaw: When a laptop is reported lost by a member of staff, the Department does not seek to charge that individual for the full replacement or residual value of the laptop.

Departmental Recycling

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much (a) paper, (b) plastic and (c) other waste was produced by his Department in each of the last three years; and what proportion of such waste was recycled. [252870]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information requested is shown in the following table.

	Tonnes
	Paper (including cardboard and newspapers)	Plastic	Other waste	Proportion of total waste recycled (Percentage)
2005-06	316.3	0.6	54.3	88
2006-07	300.0	1.5	55.1	89
2007-08	280.2	1.8	56.7	88

These figures represent waste removed from the Department's London administrative estate. They differ from those shown in the annual Sustainable Development in Development (SDiG) report, published by the sustainable development commission, which also includes waste removed from the Department's Executive agencies. The buildings included are as follows:

2005-06: Skipton House, Wellington House, Richmond House, Eileen House (closed July 2005), Hannibal House (closed September 2005).

2006-07 and 2007-08: Skipton House, Wellington House, Richmond House, New Kingsbeam House (paper only; other waste is collected by the landlord's contractor).

Waste from Quarry House in Leeds is collected by the Department for Work and Pensions contractor.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which external organisations his Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in his Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252223]

Mr. Bradshaw: Most fast streamers' training is booked directly by the individual fast streamers themselves. The Department only records fast stream training that requires payment from the central training budget. To obtain a full record of all training that fast streamers have taken from external providers, would incur disproportionate costs.

Over the last three years, the Department's human resources (HR) central records show that the generalist Fast Streamers have used the following providers:

National School of Government

Westminster Explained

Government Exchange

Suzanne James Associates

Common Purpose

Birmingham University
Reed Training
The Emergency Planning College
Neil Stewart Associates
Axon Solutions
Penna plc
Industry and Parliament Trust
Eastmeade EU Training
Hemsley Fraser Group
Parity
Department of Culture, Media and Sport
Clutterbuck Associates
3E Training
Chartered Institute of Management Accountants (CIMA)
Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA).

The Department's HR division only took on oversight of training for specialist fast streamers in 2007 and therefore only information about the last two years is available. Prior to that fast stream training was not dealt with centrally and to obtain information before that would incur disproportionate costs.

Over the past two years, the Department's HR records show that specialist fast streamers have used the following providers:

National School of Government
London School of Economics
Luigi Siciliani—University of York
Paul Kind Quality Outcomes
Government Economic Service
Birkbeck University
University of Manchester
Oxford University
JHA HR Consultancy
The Outlook Training Organisation
Saxton Bampfylde
Royal Statistical Society
Government Statistical Society
Imperial College
Institute of Education
HM Treasury
Remarch Technologies
University of London
Brunei University
Royal Economic Society
Bath University
University of Southampton
Good decisions partnership
Leeds University
Office for National Statistics
Cambridge Econometrics
Modern Government.

No records are held centrally about the number of civil servants in the Department who have participated in provision of training for external organisations, and would incur disproportionate cost to establish.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252269]

Mr. Bradshaw: Training for staff within the Department is paid for by individual business units and this information is not held centrally.

In addition, the Department has no record on its finance system of any payments to the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252025]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department and its agencies operate the flexible working hours scheme which aims to provide staff and line managers with as much flexibility as possible to accommodate their domestic and other responsibilities without impairing the efficient and effective running of the Department and its business.

The scheme gives staff the opportunity to vary their times of arrival and departure from work, around core hours, vary the timing and length of their lunch break, and take time off in lieu if they work extra hours. These principles apply to all staff unless standard hours are in operation (such as where a team has to provide a customer service between certain times). There may be occasions when the operational needs of the work performed to be given priority. In such circumstances staff and line managers agree suitable arrangements. This scheme is managed locally by line managers, and therefore we do not hold central details.

Part-time staff may choose to work additional hours if the arrangement meets operational needs. Staff are entitled to pay for additional hours above their normal part-time hours, up to the conditioned hours of the grade, when necessary for attending a training course. Line managers may allow time off in lieu to be taken as an alternative to payment subject to the needs of the work.

Staff working additional hours at weekends and/or on public holidays outside contracted hours will be paid at the enhanced rates for all additional hours worked.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252026]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department's flexible working hours scheme, which sets out how days off in lieu are earned, is managed locally by line managers using individual timesheets ('flexisheets').

These records are therefore not held centrally and to collect them would incur disproportionate costs.

Dietary Supplements: EU Law

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent discussions the Food Standards Agency and the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency have had with the authorities in Jersey on implementation of the (a) Food Supplements Directive, (b) Nutrition and Health Claims Regulation and (c) Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive; [252576]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of the progress of (a) Jersey and (b) Guernsey in ensuring their compliance with the (i) Foods Supplements Directive, (ii) Nutrition and Health Claims Regulation and (iii) Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive. [252886]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency (FSA) was advised by the Government of Jersey on 28 January that work is progressing under its programme to update Jersey's food safety legislation. On the same date the Government of Guernsey advised the FSA that discussions at official level on implementing the food supplements directive are ongoing, but that priority is being given to drafting the secondary legislation necessary to ensure that the Medicines Directive 2001/83/EC, which will prohibit and allow enforcement action to be taken against food supplements marketed with medicinal claims, is fully implemented.

Jersey and Guernsey officials had undertaken to work with companies based on the Islands to prevent the sale of food supplements that would be illegal in the United Kingdom. They have made visits to several companies to ensure that they are fully aware of relevant concerns. FSA officials continue to liaise with officials in Jersey and Guernsey to keep abreast of developments and on direct action with companies where examples of marketing of illegal products have been identified.

The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) will be meeting the Government of Jersey on 11 February 2009 to begin discussions on the implementation of the medicines directive, including the implementation of the traditional herbal medicinal products directive. The MHRA continues to assist the Government of Guernsey in the development of the additional legislation required for the implementation of the medicines directive.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to reduce waiting times for drug rehabilitation in Crosby; what the budget was for the drug action team in Crosby in 2007-08; and how many people have been seen by the drug action team in each year since 2003. [253413]

Dawn Primarolo: The Crosby area is served by the Sefton Drug Action Team (DAT), which is the partnership responsible for delivering the drug strategy at a local level.

The funding of local drug treatment services is the responsibility of local primary care trusts (PCTs). The Department, in association with a small contribution from the Ministry of Justice, provide specific resources, through the pooled drug treatment budget (PTB), to local partnerships for drug treatment services. In 2007-08, the Sefton area DAT spent £5,514,382 (PTB and local national health service investment) on drug services.

The number of people of Sefton residents in contact with structured drug treatment in each year since 2003 is shown in the following table:

	Number of People
2003-04	1,157
2004-05	1,411
2005-06	1,579
2006-07	1,568
2007-08	1,748

Health Services

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of levels of use of the NHS by people who have no right to free treatment. [253412]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Health Service (Charges to Overseas Visitors) Regulations 1989, as amended, set out the criteria for eligibility for free NHS hospital care. It is the legal responsibility of all hospital trusts to ensure that the eligibility of all patients seeking treatment is confirmed and, if they are not eligible for free health care, that the appropriate charges for treatment are levied and subsequently recovered. The Department has provided comprehensive guidance on implementation of the charging regulations to help the NHS to discharge their responsibilities. Most hospitals employ staff specifically to undertake these duties.

We are committed to taking the strongest possible action to tackle abuse in NHS, including that committed by foreign nationals. The NHS Counter Fraud Service will thoroughly investigate allegations of fraud and also take steps to ensure that, wherever possible, fraud is prevented from occurring in the first place.

The Department is satisfied that these procedures ensure that the regulations are applied fairly and effectively, and that there has been no recent evidence that would justify any further assessment of levels of abuse at this time.

Health Services: Public Consultation

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to launch the public consultation on access to healthcare for foreign nationals. [251645]

Ann Keen: The Department and Home Office are jointly reviewing the rules on access of foreign nationals to national health service medical services. This review is ongoing and no decisions have yet been made on the very complex and inter-connecting issues under consideration. A public consultation will take place once the review is complete, giving everyone an opportunity to comment on the proposals.

HIV Infection: Fees and Charges

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will amend the NHS (Charges to Overseas Visitors) Regulations 1989 to specify HIV as a condition exempt from charging. [253512]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Health Service (Charges to Overseas Visitors) Regulations 1989, as amended, already state that diagnostic testing for HIV and any associated counselling is free of charge to all irrespective of their residency status. Overseas visitors not eligible for free hospital treatment are required to pay the full costs of any HIV treatment beyond the initial test and counselling. A review of access to the national health service by foreign nationals, including consideration of the diseases for which no charge is to be made for treatment, is currently ongoing. This is expected to be subject to a full consultation exercise shortly.

HIV Infection: Life Expectancy

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) months and (b) years on average patients with HIV/AIDS have survived following their diagnosis with HIV in the last 20 years. [253653]

Dawn Primarolo: A recently published article in the Lancet (2008; 372:293-99) provides estimates of life expectancy for HIV-infected adults receiving combination antiretroviral therapy. It is based on analysis of over 43,000 patients from industrialised countries, including some from the United Kingdom. The median life expectancy for such patients was 63 years for those diagnosed at age 20 and 67 years for those diagnosed at age 35.

Figures are not available for each of the last 20 years, but the estimated life expectancy increased between the first period studied in the research (1996-99) and the last (2003-05). For those patients starting combination therapy at age 20, life expectancy increased from an estimated 56.1 years in 1996-99 to 69.4 years in 2003-05. Equivalent figures at age 35 are from 60 years to 72.3 years.

Hospital Beds

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) adult and (b) child respite beds there are per head of population in each health authority area. [250965]

Phil Hope: The Department does not collect data on the number of respite beds centrally.

Hospitals: Admissions

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many admissions were made to hospital wards on referral from accident and emergency units in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) England in the latest period for which figures are available. [253610]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not centrally collect the number of admissions made to hospital wards on referral from accident and emergency (A and E) units for Hemel Hempstead, however data are collected for West Hertfordshire Hospitals NHS Trust which provides A and E services at Hemel Hempstead and Watford General Hospital. This information together with data for England in the latest period for which figures are available is set out as follows.

Admissions through accident and emergency departments, NHS organisations in England, 2008-09 July to September (Q2)[1]

Org code	Name	Admissions through A and E
	England	788,375
RWG	West Hertfordshire Hospitals NHS Trust	4,551

[1] Status: Published 14 November 2008.

Notes:

1. Data are collected at trust level rather than individual hospitals.
2. West Hertfordshire Hospitals NHS Trust provides A and E services at Hemel Hempstead General Hospital and Watford General Hospital. West Hertfordshire Hospitals NHS Trust also provides a Type 3 A and E department—other type of A and E/minor injury unit at St. Albans City Hospital, however this did not have any admissions through A and E.

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of his Department's contracts with press monitoring services was in each of the last five years. [251219]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department sources a national press cuttings service via a framework agreement used by various Government Departments. As such, the value of the 'contract' cannot be established in full; although a breakdown of costs incurred during the financial years 2003-04 to 2007-08 is given in the following table. Daily cuttings from the national press have been provided by EDS Media since 1 July 2007. Before July 2007 national press cuttings were provided by Durrants, whose contract commenced in April 2003.

Medical Records: Internet

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of people in early adopter areas have registered for an advanced account with HealthSpace; and if he will make a statement. [252338]

Mr. Bradshaw: Patients are eligible for an advanced HealthSpace account once their general practitioner practice has created their summary care record (SCR). Information on the uptake to date of advanced HealthSpace accounts in each of the primary care trust (PCT) SCR early adopter areas is in the following table:

PCT area	Registered accounts	Registered accounts as a percentage of patients with a SCR
Bury	210	0.21
Bolton	93	0.13
Bradford	20	0.1
Dorset	601	[1]—

[1] Uploading of summary care records has not yet started in Dorset. In future, the facility to register for an advanced HealthSpace account will only be made available once uploading of summary care records has begun.

Mental Health Services

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the economic downturn on the demand for mental health services. [253076]

Phil Hope: The Department has not commissioned research on the impact of the economic downturn on levels of demand for mental health services. However, we recognise that there are links between poor mental health and difficult economic circumstances and, in the current climate it is understandable that people might worry more about their finances and employment. Mental health services in England are now better prepared than ever before to provide help for these people.

Since 2001-02, real terms investment in adult mental health services increased by 44 per cent. (or £1.7 billion) putting in place the services and staff needed to transform mental health services. The NHS spent £5.53 billion on these services in 2007-08 (£3.844 billion in 2001-02).

We now have 64 per cent. more consultant psychiatrists, 71 per cent. more clinical psychologists and 21 per cent. more mental health nurses than we had in 1997, providing better care and support for people with mental health problems. (Full-time equivalent).

Because of the National Service Framework and increased funding, we now have over 740 new community mental health teams offering home treatment, early intervention, or intensive support for people who might otherwise have been admitted to hospital.

Further, we are investing significantly in the Improving Access to Psychological Therapies (IAPT) programme with annual funding rising to £173 million in the third year (2010-11), to train 3,600 extra therapists and treat 900,000 more people in those three years.

This programme is relieving distress and transforming lives by offering effective intervention and treatment choice to people with depression and anxiety disorders and improving the collection, recording and measuring of patients' health outcomes.

35 new services were launched last month, with more than 800 therapy workers now offering this support to people who need it.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to improve the care of people with mental health problems regarding service redesign and strengthening local partnerships across traditional organisational boundaries in (a) England and (b) the Sefton Primary Care Trust. [253414]

Phil Hope: Specialist care is now often provided in the community, through multi-disciplinary community mental health teams, which give general long-term care, and three specialist teams, each the subject of national targets over the last five years:

crisis resolution/home treatment teams provide intensive support for people in mental health crisis in their own home, reducing the need to be admitted to hospital;

assertive outreach teams engage with people with severe and persistent mental illness with complex needs who have difficulty engaging with services and often require repeat admissions to hospitals; and early intervention teams provide services to those experiencing a first episode of psychosis.

Further, the Improving Access to Psychological Therapies (IAPT) programme is rolling out across England, training a new workforce of therapists to help the national health service implement the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) guidelines for the treatment of common mental health conditions of depression and anxiety disorders. 35 primary care trusts (PCTs) are launching their IAPT services in this first year and have recruited more than 800 trainees. There is £33 million funding available in this first year. More PCTs will follow in each of the next two years as a further £140 million in funding is released and we expect Sefton PCT to be developing an IAPT service in the second year.

IAPT services build strong ties with local employment services, helping people stay in or return to work if mental health problems have put their job at risk or prevented them getting one while they have been unwell.

The North West strategic health authority (SHA) reports that Sefton PCT proposes to spend around £31 million on mental health services in 2008-09. A similar amount was spent in 2007-08.

The PCT has been awarded Improved Access to Psychological Therapy development site status from 1 April 2009, which should bring with it additional resource to develop services for people with common mental health problems.

The SHA also reports that services commissioned from Mersey Care Trust are achieving key performance indicators for crisis resolution/home treatment, early intervention in psychosis and assertive outreach services.

Jointly with the local authority, the PCT has commissioned the required number of black and ethnic minority community development workers who are located within the Sefton Equalities Partnership.

NHS East Midlands: Parking

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the workplace parking charges being introduced by Nottingham City Council will be required to be paid by staff of (a) NHS East Midlands and (b) the Commission for Social Care Inspection in whole or in part where those staff work in offices located within the workplace parking charging zone. [253776]

Mr. Bradshaw: This is a matter for Nottingham city council in discussion with relevant stakeholders.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, what proportion of the repayment costs for each trust reflect (a) repayment of the capital value and (b) service and other charges; and what the total for each trust is of the additional charges which have been levied through the relevant private finance initiative contract. [254109]

Mr. Bradshaw: Unitary payments on private finance initiative (PFI) schemes are structured and priced to deliver an integrated service. It is not therefore possible to precisely identify costs attributable to each expenditure category.

However, analysis undertaken by officials on a sample of PFI schemes showed that the provision of 'soft' facilities management (FM) services (e.g. catering, cleaning, portering) made up on average 26 per cent. of the unitary payment; 'hard' FM services (building maintenance) on average 20 per cent. Costs to the private sector in management fees (administering the special purpose vehicles or 'project companies') and taking out insurance on the new facilities account for another approximately 4 per cent. Repayment of the annualised total financing debt (i.e. the capital cost and borrowing charges) accounted for on average 50 per cent. of the unitary payment.

There are no additional charges levied under a signed PFI contract private. The payment mechanism in a contract contains a volume element under which the quantity of variable items such as meals or linen provided is directly related to the throughput of patients, so where the volume of services are above those initially stated in the PFI contract, trusts will make additional payments. Under a 'variation of services' clause in the contract, trusts can also require a change to the contract, for example, to increase capacity, which is charged for through an increase to the unitary payment.

Organs: Donors

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Government plan to make changes to the conditions which determine who receives organs donated by those carrying a donor card. [253117]

Dawn Primarolo: We have no plans to change the conditions which determine who receives organs from deceased donors, including those who carry a donor card. The system of allocation differs according to the type of organ, whether it is a heart, lung, kidney, or liver. Patients waiting for a heart or liver who are classified as urgent are given priority. This is because their life expectancy without a transplant can be measured in days or even hours. If there are no urgent patients on the waiting list, the organ is offered for patients on the non-urgent list who are nearest in age and blood group to the donor. The location of donor and recipient is also considered to minimise the delay between retrieving and transplanting organs.

Psychiatry

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many psychotherapists are employed by each primary care trust in (a) the East Midlands and (b) England. [253295]

Phil Hope: The numbers of psychotherapists in England and those employed by each East Midlands primary care trust (PCT) are shown in the following table:

NHS hospital and community health services: Non-medical qualified psychotherapy staff and medical and dental staff within the psychotherapy specialty in England and the East Midlands strategic health authority area by organisation as at 30 September 2007

Supporting People Programme

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to include proposals on the Supporting People programme in his forthcoming Green Paper on social care. [254153]

Phil Hope: The Government will publish a Green Paper on care and support reform in spring 2009.

The reaction from stakeholders and the public to various key questions was tested during an engagement process from May until November 2008. The Department clearly put Supporting People within the scope of this engagement by referring to it in "The case for change - Why England needs a new care and support system", which was published in May 2008. A copy has been placed in the Library. The Supporting People programme was mentioned in the document as one of the wide range of services which, taken together, enable people to live as independently as possible.

The views and comments received during the engagement will help inform the Green Paper and a report of the findings will be published with it. We do not intend to comment on the content of the Green Paper until it is published.

X-Ray Scanners

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dual energy X-ray absorptiometry scanners used to carry out NHS-commissioned scans there are in each (a) strategic health authority and (b) primary trust in England; and what the location of each is. [253576]

Mr. Bradshaw: Data for dual-energy x-ray absorptiometry (DXA) scanners are not collected.

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department provides to primary care trusts on referring patients for dual energy X-ray absorptiometry scans; and if he will make a statement. [253577]

Phil Hope: The National Service Framework for Older People recommends that those patients identified as being at high risk of developing osteoporosis, or an osteoporotic fracture, should be referred for assessment of their bone mineral density, measurable by use of a dual energy X-ray absorptiometry scan, in accordance with guidance issued by the Royal College of Physicians—'Osteoporosis: Clinical Guidelines for Prevention and Treatment'.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

British Energy: EDF Energy

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the Written Ministerial Statement of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 19WS, on EDF takeover, whether the £4.42 billion dedicated to the Nuclear Liabilities Fund paid on 19 January by Electricité de France EDF may be used for decontamination of radioactively polluted land on British energy sites; and whether title to the plutonium owned by British Energy has been transferred to EDF as part of the takeover. [250729]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The assets of the Nuclear Liabilities Fund (NLF) will be used to meet certain decommissioning costs and uncontracted liabilities attaching to existing nuclear power plants operated by British Energy. To the extent that any radioactively polluted land is identified during the decommissioning process, decontamination would be paid for by the NLF if it qualified for payment under the terms of the restructuring agreements. Otherwise it would fall to the account of British Energy.

Title to the plutonium owned by British Energy remains with British Energy Generation Limited (BEG). Title will not transfer to EDF as part of the takeover. However, as a result of the takeover the shares in BEG are now controlled, indirectly, by EDF.

Carbon Sequestration

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions he has had with the power generation companies on carbon capture and storage in the last six months; and if he will make a statement. [252564]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Since the creation of the Department in October 2008, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has met with senior members of the power generation industry in the course of business to discuss energy issues. Carbon capture and storage is one of the areas that has been discussed among others.

Coal: Prices

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment has been made of the effect of rising energy prices on people who rely on coal as their main energy source. [241573]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 9 December 2008]: The Department does not carry out separate analysis to quantify the effect of rising energy prices on domestic coal users. However, in 2006, around 101,000 households in England that relied on coal and other solid fuel as their primary source for central heating were fuel poor, around 46 per cent. of all such households. This is a slight increase from 45 per cent. of all households reliant on solid fuel central heating in 2005 (or 106,000 households).

Departmental Buildings

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change with reference to the answer of 17 November 2008, Official Report, column 109W, on departmental buildings, what costs have been incurred in moving staff into 3 Whitehall Place. [242565]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department has spent £54,000 to date on moving staff to 3 Whitehall Place.

Departmental Internet

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the budget for his Department's website is for 2008-09; and how many of his Department's staff are employed to manage the website. [250791]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The current DECC website was put in place at no cost as a temporary measure while a new site for the Department is developed. This current site provides links to the BERR and DEFRA websites where policy content for Energy and Climate Change issues continues to be hosted. £45,000 has so far been allocated for the replacement site for 2008-09. One member of staff is currently employed in managing the website.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department since its inception; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246972]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The detailed information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Once the Transfer of Function Order related to the creation of the Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) has come into force, DECC will sponsor a number of advisory non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) which provide independent expert advice on a number of issues. Appointments to NDPBs are governed by the principles set out in the Commissioner for Public Appointments' Code of Practice. Summary information is published in 'Public Bodies' which can be accessed on line at www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies or copies are available in the Libraries of the House.

Summary information on the political activity of individuals appointed to posts regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments' Code of Practice is published each year in the Commissioner's Annual Report.

In addition, the Government publish on an annual basis the names and numbers of special advisers in each pay band. For the most recent information I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 99-102WS. DECC will be covered in future such returns.

Electricity Generation

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the Answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1002W, on electricity generation, what percentage of electricity production in 2007 was from each of the sources classified as other fuels. [251717]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 29 January 2009]: Of the 3.1 per cent. of electricity generation in the United Kingdom attributable to fuels other than coal, gas, nuclear and renewables, 1.2 percentage points were from oil, 1.0 percentage point was from pumped storage, 0.2 percentage points from non-biodegradable wastes, and 0.7 percentage points from coke oven gas, blast furnace gas and waste products from chemical processes. The source of these statistics is the Digest of United Kingdom Energy statistics 2008 a copy of which is available in the Library of the House and also at

Electricty Generation: Nuclear Power

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1002W, on electricity generation, what the UK's capacity for electricity production from nuclear energy was in 2007; and how much electricity was produced from nuclear energy in that year. [251718]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 29 January 2009]: The generating capacity of nuclear plant in the UK at the end of December 2007 was 10,979 MW, compared with 10,969 MW at the end of December 2006. Electricity generated at these nuclear stations during 2007 amounted to 63,028 GWh. The source of these statistics is the Digest of United Kingdom Energy Statistics 2008, Tables 5.6 and 5.7, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House and also at http://www.berr.gov.uk/whatwedo/energy/statistics/publications/dukes/page45537.html.

Energy: Prices

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the adequacy of publicity highlighting reduced domestic energy tariffs under the Government's agreements with the energy utilities. [243266]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 16 December 2008]: Energy suppliers offer a range of help to their most vulnerable customers such as social tariffs, trust funds and rebates. In April, they agreed with the Government to increase their spend on social assistance and this year they will be spending collectively £100 million, rising to £125 million next year and £150 million by 2011.

In order to facilitate the role of advice organisations, switching sites and other intermediaries in making information available to their clients about social tariffs and other assistance, suppliers agreed in the Fuel Poverty Summit organised by Ofgem in April to provide greater visibility of their offers.

Subsequently Ofgem sought advice from key consumer organisations regarding what information suppliers should include on their websites. Following this process, all suppliers now have relevant information on their websites about their social tariffs and programmes and a contact phone number for consumers to check their eligibility.

Early indication from suppliers is that since this time last year the numbers of customer accounts on social tariffs have at least doubled and will exceed the 600,000 customer accounts originally suppliers estimated that would benefit this winter. This is a good indication of the level of awareness of the assistance suppliers offer, although the Department does not monitor the suppliers' publicity activity directly.

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) if he will seek discussions with energy suppliers regarding the availability of social tariffs to cancer patients; [245815]

(2) what recent estimate he has made of the number of people with a cancer diagnosis who are living in fuel poverty. [245814]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information as to how many people with a cancer diagnosis are living in fuel poverty is not available. People with a cancer diagnosis are classified as long-term sick and the detailed tables of the UK Fuel Poverty Strategy, Sixth Annual Progress Report 2008, available online at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file48038.pdf show the number of households containing somebody who is disabled or long-term. These show that in England in 2006, there were around 915,000 fuel-poor households containing somebody who was disabled or long-term sick, however this number does not show how many of these households may contain someone who suffers from cancer.

In respect of social tariffs, suppliers do not record information regarding customers who may suffer from cancer. A number of them do, however, work with voluntary organisations, such as Macmillan Cancer Support, to identify those most vulnerable to fuel poverty.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he has taken to encourage energy companies to lower the gas prices they charge to consumers. [251738]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, has met with major energy suppliers and has strongly encouraged them to lower prices to consumers as a matter of urgency. Wholesale gas prices peaked last summer and have now fallen, though not back to 2007 levels. It is important that consumers begin to see the benefits of those lower wholesale prices, and that people can have confidence that they are being treated fairly by suppliers.

Ofgem have been asked to publish quarterly reports on wholesale and retail prices. This will deliver greater transparency over future prices.

Fossil Fuels

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the proportion of UK energy demand that was met from fossil fuel sources in each year since 1990. [242493]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The following table shows the proportion of UK energy demand met from fossil fuel sources (coal, petroleum and gas). Data are derived from table 1.1.1 of the internet annex to the Digest of United Kingdom Energy Statistics (DUKES) 2008.

	Fossil fuel use (Percentage)
1990	91.4
1991	90.9

Fuel Poverty

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) what estimate he has made of (a) the number of people benefiting from and (b) the average benefit received from each social tariff scheme operated by energy supply companies in the UK; [242497]

(2) with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 1144W, on energy supply: fuel poverty, when he expects Ofgem to publish its report on the social programmes undertaken by energy supply companies. [242585]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Ofgem published its first Review of Suppliers' Voluntary Initiatives to Help Vulnerable Customers on 6 August 2007, which covered the period to July 2007. Ofgem updated this report in October 2007. Both reports can be found online at:

http://www.ofgem.gov.uk/Sustainability/SocAction/Suppliers/CSR/Documents1/Review%20of%20suppliers%20voluntary%20mitiatives.pdf

http://www.ofgem.gov.uk/Sustainability/SocAction//Suppliers/CSR/Documentsl/CSRupdate_open_letter_23507.pdf

The October update report shows that the number of gas and electricity customer accounts benefiting from each social tariff scheme and the average benefit received from each social tariff scheme was as follows:

As at 31 August 2007

Supplier	Tariff name	Customer accounts on tariff	Total savings (£ million)	Average saving per customer account (£)
British Gas	Essentials (Gas)	197,000	13.6	69
	Essentials (Electricity)	83,000	1.9	22
	Total		15.5	92
EDF Energy	Energy Assist (Gas)	14,825	1.3	87
	Energy Assist (Electricity)	45,154	2.4	54
	Total		3.7	140
Npower	First Step (Gas)	1,042	0.05	48
	First step (Electricity)	1,415	0.11	75
	Total		0.16	124

As at 31 August 2007

Supplier	Tariff name	Customer accounts on tariff	Total savings (£ million)	Average saving per customer account (£)
Powergen	Staywarm	10,373	4.4	424
Scottish Power	No social tariff currently offered	—	—	—
SSE	EnergyPlus (Gas)	4,983	0.57	115
	EnergyPlus (Electricity)	7,538	0.54	71
	Total		1.1	186

Ofgem is planning to publish an update to its October 2007 review before the end of the year. This will cover the period from 31 March 2007 to 1 April 2008,

Following the announcement in Budget 2008, energy suppliers agreed to increase the amount they spend on social programmes. This year they will be spending collectively £100 million, rising to £125 million in 2009-10 and £150 million in 2010-11. Suppliers have only provided forecast numbers for the first time for 2008, which show that around 600,000 customer accounts are expected to be on social tariffs this winter. The actual number of customer accounts on social tariffs during the first year of the voluntary agreement and the benefit per customer account will be published in Ofgem's next reporting cycle in 2009.

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many claims for (a) miners' hearing loss, (b) vibration white finger and (c) chronic obstructive pulmonary disease were paid to residents of Houghton and Washington East constituency in each of the last six years. [250056]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The number of payments made for noise induced hearing loss (NIHL), vibration white finger (VWF) and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) in Houghton and Washington East constituency as at 18 January 2009 is shown in the following table:

Number of payments made

Claim	pre-2003	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008	2009	Total
NIHL	181	55	32	48	20	0	4	0	340
VWF	581	200	211	145	240	418	118	0	1,913
COPD	470	539	783	1,597	1,290	774	284	13	5,750

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many claims for compensation for respiratory disease brought under the Coal Health Compensation Scheme have been settled under the fast track procedure (a) by way of expedited payment and (b) under the live optional risk scheme since 1 January 2004 in which Avalon Solicitors, Warrington, have been the claimant's representatives in each parliamentary constituency in respect of which legal proceedings have been concluded. [252425]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I am today placing in the Libraries of the House a table indicating how each of the settled claims for which Avalon Solicitors have been the claimant's representatives, were concluded, broken down by parliamentary constituency.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress has been made in settling coal health claims for surface workers in the mining industry. [252854]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 29 January 2009]: In February 2006, my right hon. Friend the Member for Croydon, North (Malcolm Wicks) as Minister responsible, undertook to look at any generic lessons that arise from the conclusion of a trial of a sample of "test cases". Following a court order agreed in July 2007 this cohort of surface workers has now been narrowed to around 5,800 claims identified by solicitors of men who worked in Coal Preparation Plants (CPP) on the surface.

Four lead cases have been identified by claimant representatives and are now being progressed towards trial. That trial will begin in November 2009.

Industrial Injuries: Compensation

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will take steps to recover from Jim Beresford and Douglas Smith of Beresfords Solicitors the monies they accrued improperly in processing personal injury claims under the Coal Health Compensation scheme; and if he will make a statement. [250943]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Ministers have consistently demanded that solicitors who have unfairly taken a proportion of miners' compensation repay the money. However, the issue of solicitor conduct is a matter for the Law Society and I welcome the progress being made by the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal (SDT) in investigating these cases. Once the detailed ruling of the SDT hearing into Jim Beresford and Douglas Smith is published, the Department will consider the issue further. The Ministry of Justice has helped to coordinate action to address this abuse and has taken action to ensure quicker redress of complaints in the future.

Both DECC and the Ministry of Justice continue to support the Legal Complaints Service in their programme to highlight the issue with coal health compensation claimants and Ministers will be meeting the Legal Complaints Service and the Solicitor Regulation Authority in March to review their progress on this important issue.

Dan Norris: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much compensation for (a) respiratory disease and (b) vibration white finger has been paid in total to former miners in Wansdyke constituency. [251832]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The total amount of damages paid to former miners or their families for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease is £4.2 million; and for vibration white finger is £8,550 in Wansdyke constituency as at 22 January 2009.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what venues were used as health testing centres by his Department for the administration of medical tests under the coal health compensation scheme; and at what cost to his Department such venues were used. [252775] the total medical costs for chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease are £404.64 million; and for vibration white finger are £34.95 million as at December 2008. We are unable to breakdown these figures by medical test centres.

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The medical test centres used under the coal health compensation schemes are shown in the following lists.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much has been paid by his Department to Nabarro Nathanson for handling issues related to miners' industrial diseases since 1995. [252867]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: From April 1999 to October 2008, the Department and its predecessors spent £28.7 million + VAT in relation to Nabarro's fees across all mining-related industrial disease claims. But note this excludes all Counsel costs, expert fees, cost draftsman's fees and foreign lawyer's fees.

International Renewable Energy Agency

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the potential contribution of the International Renewable Energy Agency to the development of renewable energy. [251276]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 26 January 2009]: To achieve our global climate change goals we need to accelerate rapidly the deployment of renewable sources of energy and the International Renewable Energy Agency (IRENA) has the potential to make a significant contribution to that work.

The Founding Conference of the IRENA was held on 26 January 2009 and IRENA will be formally constituted when 25 countries have ratified the IRENA statutes. An initial work programme and budget have also to be agreed. It is therefore a little early to be able to make a detailed assessment of the contribution that IRENA might make in the future.

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what consideration the Government have given to joining the International Renewable Energy Agency; and if he will make a statement. [251277]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 26 January 2009]: We have been very keen on joining and have been in close contact with the German Government on the details of the new organisation.

During 2008 we participated fully in the process for establishing the International Renewable Energy Agency (IRENA) and we participated at the founding conference on 26 January and the first session of the Preparatory Commission of IRENA on 27 January 2009.

We have been talking to Germany about how IRENA can contribute to the roll-out and deployment of renewables and how we can help to get other countries such as Canada, China, Japan, India and the US to join. We are also talking about how we can make sure that IRENA works closely with, and avoids overlap and duplication with, other international bodies and organisations, such as the International Energy Agency (IEA) and the Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency Partnership (REEEP), of which the UK is already a member.

Marine Renewables Deployment Fund

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many grants have been made by the Marine Renewables Deployment Fund in each year since the fund was created; and how much was paid in such grants in each of those years. [242495]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Two grants have been made to EMEC (European Marine Energy Centre) from the infrastructure support budget category of the Marine Renewables Deployment Fund. A total payment of £831,000 was made in 2005-06 and £300,000 in 2006-07.

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many applications for grants have been received by the Marine Renewables Deployment Fund in each year since the fund was created. [242496]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Marine Renewables Deployment Fund (MRDF) received two grant applications for infrastructure support, one in 2005 and one in 2006. Both applications were approved. We also received two applications for support in 2006 from the Wave and Tidal-stream Energy Demonstration scheme. However neither application met the eligibility criterion of three months' continuous operation of a full-scale prototype.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many projects have received funding from the Marine Renewable Deployment Fund, broken down by (a) nation and (b) region. [242550]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Seven projects have been supported by the Marine Renewable Deployment Fund; six have been research related and the other infrastructure support. The projects are broken down by (a) nation and (b) region below:

(a) Nation

	Number of projects
England	1
Scotland	6
Wales	0
Northern Ireland	0

(b) Region

	Number of projects

Aberdeen	1

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to reply to the letter of 24 October 2008 from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford on Ms S Harman of Chelmsford; and what the reasons are for the time taken to reply. [247893]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 15 January 2009]: I responded to the hon. Member on 19 January 2009. I apologise for the delay in replying.

Mining: Equal Pay

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress has been made in settling claims for equal pay from cleaners and canteen workers in the mining industry. [252142]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 28 January 2009]: I am pleased to confirm that liability has been discharged in respect of all traceable, valid claims.

Although careful consideration was given to those British Coal canteen workers and cleaners who did not lodge valid claims within the time limits of the employment tribunal, it would not be deemed to have been appropriate to make an exception.

National Grid: Expenditure

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much has been spent by the Government on (a) maintenance and (b) new capital projects in respect of the national grid in each of the last 20 years. [250757]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Following the privatisation of the GB electricity industry under the Electricity Act 1989 National Grid, the Scottish Transmission Companies and the Distribution Network Operators (DNOs) have been responsible for maintaining, building and reinforcing the transmission and distribution networks.

Since then the Government have not funded either regular maintenance or new capital projects for the Grid.

Radioactive Materials: Transport

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much spent nuclear fuel was transported through Shropshire (a) to and (b) from the installations at (i) Sellafield and (ii) Wylfa in the last 12 months. [252760]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 28 January 2009]: I am advised that the answer is none.

Renewable Energy

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the implications for the UK's international competitiveness of the more effective promotion of renewable energy industries by other countries. [251275]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The UK is committed to an ambitious tenfold expansion in the share of renewable energy in its energy mix in order to meet its 15 per cent. renewable energy target by 2020, and will be publishing a comprehensive Renewable Energy Strategy in the summer.

The development of renewables and the more general transition to a low-carbon economy will lead to significant business and employment opportunities. The Government's aim is to secure a disproportionate share of these jobs for the UK, providing the right frameworks and support for UK companies and attracting inward investment.

The development and deployment of renewable energy technologies in other countries will help the global battle against climate change and renewable deployment abroad could also help reduce the costs of these technologies and hence improve the UK's competitiveness as they are deployed here.

Sellafield: Insurance

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change on what date he was informed that the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority planned to propose that the proposed insurance indemnification to be granted to the new management tier for Sellafield should be made available for prior scrutiny only to certain hon. Members in July 2008. [250107]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) did not exist when decisions on the Sellafield nuclear indemnity were taken; it was then the responsibility of the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR).

I am told that my right hon. Friend the Member for Croydon, North (Malcolm Wicks) the then Minister for Energy wrote to the Chairman of the Public Accounts Committee on 9 June 2008 providing him with advance notice and background information on the intention to seek approval in July for a nuclear indemnity for the preferred bidder for the Sellafield competition. While all the bidders would require an indemnity to proceed to contract, it was not possible to submit an indemnity for scrutiny any earlier because the details were subject to competitive tension and evaluation within the competition process.

Tidal Power: Expenditure

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has spent on wave and tidal renewable energy technologies in (a) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland constituency, (b) the North East, (c) England and (d) the UK in the last 12 months. [249517]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change provides funding for demonstration and deployment of commercial scale wave and tidal energy technologies under the marine renewables deployment fund (MRDF). Following is a breakdown of expenditure excluding VAT in the last 12 months:

	£ (excluding VAT)
Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland	0
North-east England	0
England	24,943
UK	54,887

The Government also provide financial support for research and development into wave and tidal energy technologies through the Research Councils' Supergen Marine initiative, the Carbon Trust, the Technology Strategy Board and the Energy Technology Institute.

Wind Power

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the effects of the depreciation of sterling on (a) investment in and (b) the costs of (i) the London Array and (ii) other major offshore renewable energy projects; and if he will make a statement. [250728]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 26 January 2009]: Investment in renewables projects such as offshore wind is determined by a wide number of factors of which the exchange rate is only one. The Government are working to create the right conditions for rapid deployment of renewable energy—both to meet challenging climate change goals and maintain energy security. We are the leading country in the world for operational offshore wind farms, and with over 440 megawatts under construction, we are set to remain so in 2009. The UK remains an attractive market for offshore wind and companies continue to invest, with more than 90 UK and international companies registering their interest with the Crown Estate for round three.

It would be inappropriate to give a running ministerial commentary on how currency movements affect commercial investments by private companies like those involved in the London Array.

TRANSPORT

Buses: Fares

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what timescale has been established for the roll-out of smartcard technology on buses in England; whether it is policy that all buses should be smartcard-enabled; and if he will make a statement. [253907]

Paul Clark [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The Department for Transport would like all buses in England to eventually be smartcard enabled. To help achieve this, we have specified that all concessionary travel passes must be smartcards and have announced our intention to pay a higher rate of Bus Service Operators Grant (BSOG) for buses that use such technology. We anticipate that as a result of these initiatives there will be a transformation in the availability of smart card systems and the use of smart cards over the course of this decade.

Work is under way on a ticketing strategy for England, which will encompass smart ticketing. The intention is to publish a consultation paper in the spring and officials are currently meeting with key stakeholders to inform the development of the consultation.

Carbon Emissions: EC Law

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions his Department has had with the European Commission on the implementation of EC Regulations (a) 715/2007 and (b) 692/2008 on replacement catalytic converters. [254119]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None. However, under the terms of directive 98/34/EC, the Department for Transport recently notified the Commission of certain additional domestic provisions which are included in the UK's regulations implementing the EU legislation. These provisions require replacement catalytic converters which are not subject to the EU requirements to be labelled accordingly. The Government consider these provisions to be essential to ensure effective enforcement and hence to fully achieve the objectives of the EU legislation.

Departmental Equality

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which of the milestones set out on page 7 of his Department's human resources Race Equality Action Plan 2005 to 2008 were not achieved. [253566]

Mr. Hoon: Two of the milestones on page 7 of the Race Equality Action Plan 2005 to 2008 were not fully achieved. These were:

> "publish analysis (of diversity monitoring data) annually" - some information was not published in year, however, all of the information for the years 2005 to 2008 has now been published.
> "ensure that external recruitment agencies ... collect and supply ethnicity-monitoring data..." - information has not been available for external recruitment from one contractor for campaigns run in the year 2007-08.

Departmental Leave

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which of his Department's bargaining units grant disability leave to staff. [253174]

Mr. Hoon: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency, Driving Standards Agency and Vehicle and Operator Services Agency grant disability leave to staff. In other bargaining units, requests for time off for disability-related medical appointments and rehabilitation are considered on a case by case basis.

Departmental Recycling

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much (a) paper, (b) plastic and (c) other waste has been produced by his Department in each of the last three years; and how much of that waste was recycled. [253292]

Mr. Hoon: The figures for the Department for Transport for the last three years are as follows:

	Total waste (Tonnes)	Recycled waste (Tonnes)	Waste recycled (Percentage)
2005-06	4,300	3,014	70.1
2006-07	3,878	2,214	57.1
2007-08	3,711	2,015	54.3

Very few parts of the Department for Transport are able to calculate the specific volumes of paper and plastic waste generated. However, the following data represent the departmental figures for the specified waste streams.

Tonnes

	Recycled paper waste	Recycled plastic waste	Other waste recycled
2005-06	1,325	4	1,685
2006-07	1,297	4	913
2007-08	1,227	5	783

Driver Vehicle Licensing Agency: Debts

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency on the performance of Moorcroft Debt Recovery Ltd; what conclusions he reached; and if he will make a statement. [253562]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The performance of Moorcroft Debt Recovery Ltd. is monitored on a regular basis.

Driving Standards Agency: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much the Driving Standards Agency spent on alcohol in relation to its operations conference in September 2008. [250790]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Driving Standards Agency spent £1,429.64 on drinks served at the Operations Conference in September 2008. This amounted to slightly under £10 per delegate.

Driving Tests

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of scheduled driving tests have been cancelled by the Driving Standards Agency in each of the last five years. [253479]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The proportion of scheduled driving tests that have been cancelled by the Driving Standards Agency in each of the last five years are as follows:

	Total cancellations (Percentage)
2003-04	4.4
2004-05	3.7
2005-06	3.0
2006-07	4.1
2007-08	5.8

The majority of these tests were cancelled as a result of bad weather or were cancelled outside of the short notice period.

Infrastructure Policy Statements

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects the infrastructure policy statements for (a) ports, (b) surface networks and (c) aviation to be published. [253901]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 3 February 2009]: I expect to publish a draft National Policy Statement (NPS) for ports this summer for consultation, with a view to designation early in 2010; to publish a draft NPS for National Networks (strategic highways and railways, including strategic rail freight interchanges) for consultation this autumn, with a view to designation later in 2010; and to publish a draft NPS for airports by 2011.

Oil: Prices

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assumptions on the price of oil his Department used in developing its High Level Output Statement; and whether he plans to revise such assumptions. [253690]

Paul Clark: The oil price assumptions used in the High Level Output Statement were taken from the National Transport Model and the Department for Transport (DFT) Appraisal Guidance, details of which are available on the DFT website at www.dft.gsi.gov.uk.

These forecasts are kept under review and updated as necessary.

Public Transport: Concessions

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what timetable he has set for the transfer of responsibility for concessionary fares from district to county councils. [253902]

Paul Clark [holding answer 3 February 2009]: We shall shortly be consulting on possible changes to the administration of concessionary travel. These will include the possibility of moving responsibility for administering concessionary travel from district to county councils or centralising the scheme.

Railways: Freight

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with the Railfreight Interchange Investment Group on financial support for the development of railfreight interchanges. [254564]

Paul Clark: There have been no recent discussions between Ministers with the Railfreight Interchange Investment Group on the provision of financial support for the development of railfreight interchanges.

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the development of railfreight interchanges will be subject to a National Planning Policy Statement under the Planning Act 2008. [254565]

Paul Clark: The development of strategic railfreight interchanges, as specified under the Planning Act 2008, will be part of a National Policy Statement.

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the process is for reviewing and updating the railfreight interchange policy. [254566]

Paul Clark: The policy relating to strategic railfreight interchanges will be updated as part of the appropriate National Policy Statement. This review of the current published policy is being undertaken and will be the subject of consultation when published.

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he is holding with the Railfreight Interchange Investment Group on the development of the Department's policy on railfreight interchanges. [254567]

Paul Clark: Although there is ongoing contact between officials and the Railfreight Interchange Investment Group, there are no discussions taking place with the group on the development of the Department for Transport's policy on railfreight interchanges at present.

Road Traffic

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the percentage change in traffic levels (a) on English roads and (b) on roads in each county within England was in each year since 1997, taking 1997 levels as 100 per cent. [253845]

Paul Clark: A table providing traffic volumes for all motor vehicles on all roads for (a) English roads and (b) each local highway authority in England has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

The figures provided in the table are for the period 1997 to 2007 and are indexed to 1997. More recent data for 2008 will be published during summer 2009.

Traffic estimates at local highway authority level are not designated as National Statistics and are therefore not as robust as the national estimates. Some discontinuities exist in the data between various years for certain local highways authorities. These are caused by the Department for Transport collecting an increased number of road counts in particular years, which allows the Department to make traffic volume series in subsequent years more accurate.

Road traffic by local highway authority can be found on the Department's website at the following web address:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/roadstraffic/traffic/rtstatisticsla/

Road Traffic: Cameras

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) locations and (b) roads in (i) the Metropolitan police area of London, (ii) Essex and (iii) Hertfordshire are where enforcement cameras to police no overtaking zones (A) are in place and (B) will be in place within the next 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [252989]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The enforcement of offences is an operational matter for the police; the Department for Transport therefore does not hold the information requested. The Home Office type approve equipment that the police use for enforcement, so that the evidence it produces is admissible in court without corroboration. They do not type approve cameras to enforce no overtaking zones, only speed, red light, bus lane and unlicensed vehicle offences.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much revenue enforcement cameras for the policing of no overtaking zones have generated in Essex in each year since 1997; and how much of that revenue has been spent in Essex. [252990]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Home Office type approve equipment that the police use for enforcement, so that the evidence it produces is admissible in court without corroboration. They do not type approve cameras to enforce no overtaking zones, only speed, red light, bus lane and unlicensed vehicle offences. Overtaking in a no overtaking zone is an endorsable fixed penalty offence (£60) or can result in a maximum Level 3 (£1,000) fine on conviction. The Department for Transport does not hold any information on the level of fine revenue from these offences.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were killed in (a) West Chelmsford constituency and (b) Essex in drink-driving-related accidents in each of the last five years. [254747]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Estimates of the number of drink-driving-related accidents or casualties are not available below Government Office Region level. The estimates are published as an article 3, entitled "Drinking and driving" in "Road Casualties Great Britain—Annual report 2007". Copies of the report have been deposited in the Libraries of the House and it is also available at the following web address:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/accidents/casualtiesgreatbritain/roadcasualtiesgreatbritain20071

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were (a) killed and (b) seriously injured on roads in the London borough of Bexley in each of the last five years. [254802]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of casualties that were (a) killed and (b) seriously injured resulting from reported personal injury road accidents in the London borough of Bexley in each of the last five years are given in the following table:

	Number of casualties
	Killed	Seriously injured
2003	4	115
2004	2	80
2005	6	81
2006	6	97
2007	6	99

Shipping: Piracy and Terrorism

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will hold discussions with his European and US counterparts on counter-piracy and counter-terrorism measures aboard passenger cruise ships. [252113]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Currently there are no plans for Department for Transport Ministers to hold discussions with European or US counterparts on improving counter-piracy and counter-terrorism measures on board passenger cruise ships. The Government work with international partners, including the International Maritime Organization, to ensure UK registered cruise ships are given the best advice available to prevent acts of piracy and terrorism. We undertake a programme of inspection to check that our ships are complying with their on board counter-terrorism security plans. Such plans are approved by the Department for Transport as meeting the relevant provisions of the Safety of Life at Sea Convention, the International Ship and Port Facility Code and European Regulation. Our advice on preventing pirate attacks, including the measures that can be taken on board ships, is contained in Marine Guidance Note 298.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent guidance his Department has issued on the visibility of speed enforcement cameras; what legislation currently regulates the visibility of speed enforcement cameras; and if will make a statement. [253005]

Jim Fitzpatrick: On 31 January 2007 the Department for Transport issued DfT Circular 01/2007, guidance on the deployment, visibility and signing of speed and red light cameras. The guidance was placed in the Library of the House and is also available on the Department's website. This came into effect on 1 April 2007 and recommends a high visibility approach to speed enforcement that the Department expects road safety partnerships to follow. However there is no legislation in place regulating the visibility of speed enforcement. The Department has always made clear that it remains open to the police to conduct covert enforcement of speed limits.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport under what legislation speed camera zones must be clearly signposted; what changes have been made to this legislation since its enactment; and if he will make a statement. [253009]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There is no legislation in place mandating the signing of areas where speed enforcement is taking place. Guidance on the deployment, visibility and signing of speed and red light cameras is contained in DfT Circular 01/2007, guidance on the deployment, visibility and signing of speed and red light cameras. The guidance was placed in the Library of the House and is also available on the Department for Transport's website. This came into effect on 1 April 2007 and recommends the use of camera warning signs where permitted and practicable. The signing is contained in the Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions (TSRGD) and its use is not mandatory. However, in order for a speed limit to be enforced all speed limit signing must be lawful and correct and in accordance with TSRGD.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many speed cameras were (a) installed on and (b) removed from roads in (i) England and Wales, (ii) Essex and (iii) Southend in each year from 2000 to 2007. [254137]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The Department only holds figures for 2007 until 31 March, when the National Safety Camera programme ended. The number of speed camera sites installed and removed in England and Wales and Essex is outlined in the following table. Separate information for Southend is not held:

Number of speed cameras installed and removed in England and Wales and Essex

Transport Innovation Fund

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 1432W, on public transport: Greater Manchester, how many high quality Transport Innovation Fund proposals he has received. [253860]

Paul Clark: We continue to work with a number of other authorities as they consider their congestion problems and the role that demand management, including road pricing, alongside better public transport could play in tackling them and, if appropriate, develop proposals.

PRIME MINISTER

India: Ministerial Visits

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Prime Minister whether he has received representations from the Indian Government on the recent visit by the Foreign Secretary. [253705]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the Press Briefing given my spokesman on 21 January. A transcript of this is available on the No. 10 website at:

http://www.number10.gov.uk/Page18111

Sir Fred Goodwin: Honours

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Prime Minister if he will recommend to Her Majesty the Queen that the knighthood awarded to Sir Fred Goodwin for services to banking be withdrawn. [253483]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) on 28 January 2009, Official Report, column 542W.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Internet

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, columns 995-6W, on the internet, on what date he estimates the better quality videos of the Parliamentary tour will be available for viewing on YouTube. [254569]

Nick Harvey: Following the review of the tour videos against editorial standards for quality and accuracy, it has been decided that, in their current form, the videos do not meet the required standards and that some additional filming will probably be required. The films will not therefore be ready to be relaunched in the immediate future. No date has yet been set as the work is still being scoped, but they will be put back on the website as soon as this work has been done.

Members: Pensions

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether the House of Commons Commission has set a target for the time within which hon. Members' enquiries regarding their pensions are to be responded to. [253924]

Chris Bryant: I have been asked to reply.

The administration of the Parliamentary Contributory Pension Fund is a matter for the Trustees. I have asked their chairman, the hon. Member for Bournemouth, West (Sir John Butterfill), to write to the hon. Member.

Snow and Ice

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many snow shovels are owned by the House of Commons. [254561]

Nick Harvey: Snow clearance on the parliamentary estate is the responsibility of the company which holds the main cleaning contract. The company currently has five snow shovels on site. It has been instructed to increase the number to 20. On 2 February other shovels were also used. The problems encountered in clearing the snow were caused by a shortage of staff. Given the circumstances both the contractor's and the House's personnel were used to clear snow but many had been prevented from travelling by the weather.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Lead Theft

9. John Mann: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what estimate the Church Commissioners have made of the number of churches from which lead has been stolen in the last two years. [254306]

Sir Stuart Bell: In the last two years, Anglican churches have suffered over 4,500 thefts of metal costing around £18.5 million. These have been by far the worst in the Church's history for metal theft.

Church of England: Finance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what assessment the Church Commissioners have made of the effect of the current economic climate on levels of giving to parishes (a) via the collection plate and (b) otherwise; and if he will make a statement. [254221]

Sir Stuart Bell: Over the last 30 years church members have increased giving as a proportion of net income from 1 per cent. to over 3 per cent., so there is still some way to go to achieve General Synod's 5 per cent. target. Clearly church members will, like everyone else be affected by the present economic difficulties and the dioceses and Archbishops' Council are monitoring the situation closely. The high proportion who give by regular standing order provides some measure of resilience, but these are uncertain times, particularly with other sources of Church income also under pressure.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Registrar of Members' Interests

6. Hugh Bayley: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps the Electoral Commission is taking to share information with the Registrar of Members' Interests. [254303]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it has agreed with the Registrar the changes necessary to harmonise the Rules relating to the conduct of Members with the statutory requirements of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000. These changes are set out in the Fourth Report of the Committee on Standards and Privileges which was published on 2 February 2009.

Early Voting

8. Mrs. Riordan: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what assessment the Electoral Commission has made of proposals for early voting in elections. [254305]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it believes that paper-based, early voting at polling stations could improve access to the voting process without harming the integrity of the ballot. The Commission believes that the Government should decide how to proceed with early voting as part of a wider electoral modernisation strategy.

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what administrative financial penalties may be levied by the Electoral Commission. [253588]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission has powers to issue civil penalties under section 147 of the Political Parties Elections and Referendums Act 2000 (PPERA) where a relevant organisation is late in delivering a statutory report to the Commission. The amount of the civil penalty is calculated in accordance with subsection 3 of section 147, and depends on how late the relevant information is provided to the Commission.

The Electoral Commission is also able to apply to a magistrates court to order the forfeiture of an amount equal to the value of a donation that has been accepted by a registered party or regulated donee, if the donation was impermissible or a court is satisfied that the true amount of a donation was intentionally concealed.

Local Government: Suffolk

Mr. Yeo: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what representations from local authorities in Suffolk concerning its inquiry into the future structure of local government in Suffolk the Boundary Committee for England has received; and if he will make a statement. [252002]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that the Boundary Committee received representations from the county council and all seven district councils in Suffolk. All submissions received are available on the Boundary Committee's website:

www.electoralcommission.org.uk/boundary-reviews

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Air Pollution: Crime

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many prosecutions there have been in each of the last five calendar years for offences under Part III of the Clean Air Act 1993. [252146]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA does not maintain or publish details of prosecutions under the Clean Air Act 1993. Information provided by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the Court Proceedings Database does not separately identify offences under parts of the Clean Air Act 1993. The following table shows the total number of defendants prosecuted under the Act (excluding offences under section 33) at magistrates courts in England and Wales for the last five years available.

[1] Excludes section 33 (cable burning).

[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[4] Persons data given are for males and females.

[5] Other data refer to companies, public bodies, etc.

Joint Waste Authorities

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance his Department has issued on whether members of a joint waste authority are entitled to responsibility allowances and salaries; and whether members will be eligible to join the local government pension scheme. [252322]

Jane Kennedy: No guidance on these issues has been published.

Origin Marking

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to improve country of origin labelling. [253937]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

The framework European Commission legislation governing general food labelling is currently being revised in Brussels. This includes a consideration of the tightening of criteria around voluntary country of origin declarations. The Government support this move and are actively involved in these negotiations.

In order to help industry meet consumer interest in this issue, the Food Standards Agency has had in place since 2002, best practice guidance. This advises, for example, that bacon products from imported pork should be clearly labelled as such. Department for the Environment Food and Rural Affairs Ministers are holding a series of meetings with industry to promote uptake of the guidance.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many local authorities levy charges for the provision of bags for the collection of household waste. [252440]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA does not hold this information.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to his Department's consultation on revised waste exemptions from environmental permitting, whether municipal allotments will be charged to have permit or exemption in order to have a compost heap. [252638]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Colchester (Bob Russell) on Compost: Licensing, on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 46W.

TREASURY

Child Trust Fund: County Londonderry

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Child Trust Fund take-up rates in each ward in East Londonderry constituency were in the most recent period for which figures are available. [254047]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 3 February 2009]: Information broken down by ward would be available only at a disproportionate cost.

However, constituency-level data, including the number of vouchers issued and parental account opening figures, on Child Trust Fund accounts were published on 6 November 2008 and can be viewed on the HM Revenue and Customs' website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/ctf/cons-stats-oct08.pdf

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Shepherd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many responses to letters received in his Department from hon. Members were outstanding in each month since September 2008. [253812]

Angela Eagle: This information is not held on a monthly basis. However, the Cabinet Office annually publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence, which is available in the Library of the House.

Economic Situation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions his Department has had with outside organisations to discuss policy to reduce the impact of the recession on matters within his Department's responsibility. [254065]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury has regular engagements with outside organisations, including relevant Government Departments, on a range of issues relating to the economy.

Foreign Workers

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many non-UK born individuals have been in (a) public and (b) private sector employment in each year since 1978; and how many such individuals were in employment in each year. [253923]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many non-UK born individuals have been in (a) public and (b) private sector employment in each year since 1978; and how many such individuals were in employment in each year. 253923

The available information is provided in the attached table. Comparable estimates prior to 1995 are not available.

The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). The distinction between public and private sector is based on respondents' views about the organisation for which they work. The public sector estimates provided do not correspond to official Public Sector Employment estimates. Those are derived directly from employers and are based on National Accounts definitions, but do not include this detailed age breakdown.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The figures have been derived from the LFS microdata which are weighted using the official population estimates published in autumn 2007. Consequently the estimates from Q3 2006 onwards are not entirely consistent with the figures published in the monthly Labour Market Statistics First Release, or the migrant worker figures published every quarter, which are weighted using more up-to-date population estimates.

[1] It should be noted that public and private sector estimates:
are based on survey respondents' views about the organisation for which they work;
do not correspond to the National Accounts definition used for Public Sector Employment estimates.

[2] Includes nationalised industry or state corporation, central government, civil service, local government or council (including police, fire services and local authority controlled schools or colleges), university or other grant-funded educational establishment, health authority or NHS trust and armed forces.

[3] Includes self-employed and unpaid family workers.

[4] Includes those whose type of employer was not known.

[5] Coefficients of Variation have been calculated as an indication of the quality of the estimates, as described below:

Guide to Quality:

The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV—for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5% we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.

Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) (%) Statistical robustness

* 0 = CV <5 Estimates are considered precise.
 5 = CV <10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise.
 10 = CV < 20 Estimates are considered acceptable.
* CV = 20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes.

It should be noted that the above estimates exclude people in most types of communal establishment (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites etc.)

Inheritance Tax: Housing

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what internal guidance documents the Valuation Office Agency uses for valuing properties for inheritance tax purposes. [253897]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency (VOA) internal guidance for valuing properties for inheritance tax purposes is contained in its Inheritance Tax Manual, which is available electronically on the VOA website at:

www.voa.gov.uk/publications

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many letters from hon. Members are yet to be answered by his Department; what the average time taken to reply to a letter from an hon. Member has been in each of the last six months; what his Department's target time for responding to a letter from an hon. Member is; and how many such letters have not been answered within that timescale in the last six months. [251269]

Angela Eagle: The Cabinet Office annually publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence, which is available in the Library of the House.

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letter sent to his Department by the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead dated 29 October 2008, regarding tax credits. [253972]

Mr. Timms: A reply has been sent to the hon. Member.

Pay

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 19 November 2008, Official Report, columns 468-9W, in relation to what other groups (a) HM Revenue and Customs and (b) its predecessor bodies have conducted similar sample surveys. [254108]

Mr. Timms: Inland Revenue, and more recently HMRC, has carried out similar sample surveys in respect of general practitioners and NHS dentists. Results of recent surveys are published on The NHS Information Centre for health and social care website:

http://www.ic.nhs.uk

Revenue and Customs: Chorley

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date HM Revenue and Customs office in Chorley is planned to be closed. [253941]

Mr. Timms: As announced in February 2008 HMRC is planning to vacate Lingmell House, Chorley by autumn 2010. No specific vacation date has yet been set. Inquiry centre services will be continued in the locality.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Offenders: Employment

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Leader of the House what her Office's policy is on the employment of former prisoners. [253809]

Chris Bryant: I refer the right hon. Gentleman to the answer given by the Cabinet Office on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 872W. The Leader's Office is part of the Cabinet Office.

The Cabinet Office does not require applicants who have spent convictions under the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 to provide details of those convictions when seeking employment. Applicants with current convictions are not precluded from taking up employment and each case is considered on the basis of individual circumstances.

JUSTICE

Cannabis: Cumbria

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many successful prosecutions for the possession of cannabis there have been in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland constituency in each of the last five years; [253618]

(2) how many (a) arrests, (b) prosecutions and (c) convictions there were of people from each district council ward in Copeland for (i) the possession and (ii) the supplying of cannabis in the last five years; [253757]

(3) how many of the successful prosecutions for the supplying of cannabis in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland involved (i) offenders resident outside of Cumbria and (ii) young offenders in the last five years; [253758]

(4) how many successful prosecutions for the supplying of cannabis there have been in (a) Cumbria and (b) Copeland in each of the last five years; how many of each resulted in a custodial sentence in each year; and how many resulted in offenders taking part in a drug rehabilitation programme in each year. Maria Eagle: The information requested is set out as follows:

Court proceedings

Information on the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for the possession and supply of cannabis in Cumbria for 2003 to 2007, broken down by age is in table 1.

Information on the number of defendants given a custodial sentence and given drug treatment and testing orders for the supply of cannabis are in table 2. Drug treatment and testing orders were replaced in 2006 by community orders (not currently collected by the Ministry of Justice) which can comprise a number of possible requirements including a drug treatment programme.

Information held centrally on the Court Proceedings Database from which the data has been derived does not include information on constituencies and the residence of defendants.

Arrests

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, covering categories such as violence against the person, sexual offences and drug offences. From these centrally reported data, we are not able to identify specific offences from within the main offence groups.

Data are reported to the Home Office at police force area level only therefore further breakdowns of data by district council ward are not available.

Table 1: Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for the possession and supply[1] of cannabis, in the Cumbria police force area, 2003-07, broken down by age [2] [3]

	All ages	31	16	10	16	21	24	18	5	11	16

[1] Includes "Supplying or offering to supply" and "Possession with intent to supply".

[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Courts: Closures

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) courts and (b) hearing centres have closed in each year since 1997. [253582]

Bridget Prentice: Up until 1 April 2005 magistrates courts were the responsibility of locally managed magistrates courts committees who were statutorily independent. They were not required by statute to inform the Department of closures that were not subject to an appeal under section 56(3) of the Justices peace Act 1997 (now repealed).

The following table shows details of court closures within Her Majesty's Courts' Service, (including Crown, magistrates and county courts) since 1997.

Courts: Prison Accommodation

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions court cells were (a) made available for and (b) used for housing prisoners overnight in the last 12 months; and how many prisoners were accommodated on each occasion they were used. [252824]

Mr. Straw: Court cells were used on 21 nights between the nights of 5-6 and 28-29 February 2008. At any one time a maximum of 164 cells were available for use.

The following table shows the number of places used in each of five courts over this period. Court cells have not been used since 28-29 February 2008.

Cremation

Mr. Olner: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will publish guidance to local authorities on (a) the length of time ashes should be retained by crematoria and (b) the methods to be used to dispose of ashes not claimed by the family of the deceased. [253654]

Bridget Prentice: We currently have no plans to issue guidance on these issues. Regulation 30 of the Cremation (England and Wales) Regulations 2008, which came into force on 1 January, sets out the duties of cremation authorities in respect of the disposal of ashes. These are that the cremation authority must give the ashes to the applicant for cremation or someone nominated by the applicant for that purpose. If the applicant does not want the ashes and has not nominated anyone, the cremation authority must retain the ashes for burial or scattering within the crematorium grounds. The authority must not inter or scatter the ashes unless it has given 14 days' notice of its intention to do so to the applicant.

Judicial Appointments Commission: Finance

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the budget of the Judicial Appointments Commission was in each of the last three years. [253584]

Maria Eagle: The Judicial Appointments Commission (JAC) was officially launched on 3 April 2006. The grant funding for JAC provided by Ministry of Justice in each of the last three years is as follows:

	£000
2006-07	6,104
2007-08	7,130
2008-09	8,148

The 2008-09 grant number is based upon the published winter supplementary estimate.

Prison Sentences

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the likely effect of the creation of a Sentencing Council on the level of the prison population in England and Wales. [253583]

Mr. Straw: The creation of a Sentencing Council has no direct impact on the prison population. This is because there is no requirement in the Coroners and Justice Bill for a sentencer in an individual case to have regard to resources. There is also no requirement in the Bill for the Council to produce guidelines that fit within resource constraints. A key new role of the Sentencing Council will however be to monitor and assess the impact that sentencing guidelines and other factors have, or are likely to have, on the prison population and probation service.

Prisoners: Voting Rights

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether prisoners on (a) end of custody licence, (b) release on temporary licence and (c) home detention curfew are eligible to vote if registered. [252817]

Mr. Straw: Prisoners who are detained in a penal institution are ineligible to vote in all UK elections under the terms of section 3 of the Representation of the People Act 1983 and other related legislation. Prisoners are only granted temporary release for one of the purposes laid down in rule 9 of the Prison Rules 1999 or rule 5 of the Young Offender Institution Rules 2000. Voting is not included in those purposes who have been released from prison under the home detention curfew scheme are eligible to vote unless they are otherwise excluded by statute.

Prisons: Wind Power

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will commission research on the effect on (a) prison security, (b) the well being and health of prisoners and (c) the safety and health of prison staff from (i) noise from, (ii) vibrations from and (iii) movement of wind turbines sited close to prisons. [253819]

Mr. Hanson: The Departments for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, are responsible for Government policy on wind turbines and therefore for research about their impact on residential property and businesses in close proximity to them. The National Offender Management Service already reviews the security implications of wind turbines sited close to prisons and will conduct appropriate health and safety risk assessments on wind turbines that are already in place.

Victims' Champion: Finance

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the budget of the Victims' Champion is for the term of the appointment. [253586]

Mr. Straw: £60,000 for this calendar year.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many additional helicopters have been delivered to forces in Afghanistan as a result of the UK-French Helicopter Fund announced at the March 2008 Franco-British Summit. [254419]

Mr. Hutton: Nations benefiting from the Helicopter Fund will start to deploy helicopters to Afghanistan in September this year. By mid-2010 we anticipate that the first three nations to use the fund to support their theatre-entry equipment and training requirements will have deployed eight helicopters to Afghanistan. Furthermore, three other nations that are considering deploying helicopters to Afghanistan for the first time have made informal enquiries about how the fund may be used to help with the procurement of mission-essential equipment.

Armed Forces: Labour Turnover

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of personnel who left the armed forces in each year since 2002 had served in Iraq or Afghanistan. [253719]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding reply 3 February 2009]: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) original and (b) revised estimate of the value of defence estates to be sold under package 1 of the Defence Training Review was. [253094]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Department is continuing to seek planning consents for the proposed sale of the sites programmed to be sold under the current Metrix deal for Defence Training Review Package 1. Anticipated values rise and fall according to market conditions and are continually reviewed in line with HM Treasury guidance. Surplus sites are planned to be sold at market value from 2012 onwards. I am withholding the anticipated values as disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice commercial interests. There is no direct relationship between their disposal and affordability of the Package 1 Project.

Central Africa: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which EU member states are contributing to the EU military mission to Chad and the Central African Republic; and what each is contributing. [253363]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The majority of EU member states are contributing to EUFOR TCHAD/RCA. The specific contribution of other EU member states is a matter for them. Further information on EUFOR TCHAD/RCA can be found on the website of the Council of the European Union:

http://www.consilium.europa.eu/

The UK is providing four military officers under standing EU headquarters augmentation procedures as part of the operation: two officers in the operation HQ at Mont Valerien in Paris and two officers in the force HQ in Chad. There is also one British staff officer attached to the French NATO Rapid Deployment Corps which France has recently deployed to Chad.

Cyprus: Military Bases

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British troops have been stationed in the Sovereign Base Areas of Akrotiri and Dhekelia in each year since 2002. [252911]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: A breakdown of figures for the two sovereign areas of Akrotiri and Dhekelia is not available. The following table shows the total number of UK service personnel stationed in Cyprus as at 1 April each year:

	Total in Cyprus
2002	3,460
2003	[1]—
2004	[1]—
2005	3,170
2006	3,040
2007	[2]2,950
2008	[2]2,780

[1] Data not available.

[2] Provisional due to on-going validation of data.

Location statistics between 2003 and 2004 were suspended due to concerns over data quality.

Data for 2002 include deployed and stationed personnel; from 2005 onwards data are for stationed personnel only.

The UK regular forces stationed location figures are available in UKDS. The latest published figures are available at:

> http://www.dasa.mod.uk/applications/newWeb/www/index.php?page=48&thiscontent=1610&date=2008-10-01&pubType=1&PublishTime=09:30:00&from=home&tabOption=3

EU Battlegroups

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to paragraph 107 of the Explanatory Memorandum of 11 December 2008 on the French Presidency Report on European Security and Defence Policy, European Union Document No. 16686/08, whether the generic preparation guide for EU battlegroups uses NATO standardisation agreements. [254420]

Mr. Hutton: 26 EU member states are also members of NATO or NATO Partnership for Peace and therefore use NATO standardisation agreements. The EU battlegroup preparation guide stipulates that

> "EU Battlegroup evaluation procedures and standards should, where applicable, be analogous to those defined within NATO, taking into account the specific nature of EU crisis management" (paragraph 70, page 16).

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to paragraph 107 of the Explanatory Memorandum of 11 December 2008 on the French Presidency Report on European Security and Defence Policy, European Union Document No. 16686/08, whether the British armed forces will use the generic preparations guide for EU battlegroups; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the guide. [254423]

Mr. Hutton: The UK contributed to the formulation of the generic preparations guide for EU battlegroups that was agreed under the French presidency for use on a voluntary basis by EU member states in accordance with the battlegroup concept. The UK's contributions to the EU's battlegroup roster are prepared and certified nationally to standards that meet and exceed the ones set out in this and other documents agreed by the council. I will place a copy of the guide in the Library of the House.

EU Rapid Reaction Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which components of the UK's commitment to the Helsinki Headline Goal comprise an (a) armed mechanical brigade and (b) amphibious brigade. [253368]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The United Kingdom currently offers:

> Three brigades from the army to HG2010. The three brigades offer a degree of flexibility that allows the UK to provide either an Armoured Brigade (based on Warrior Armoured Fighting Vehicles and Challenger 2 Main Battle Tanks), a Mechanised Brigade (based on Saxon Infantry Fighting Vehicles and Challenger 2 Main Battle Tanks) or an Air Assault Brigade consisting of lightly equipped infantry in the Air Manoeuvre role.
> One amphibious brigade from the Royal Navy to HG2010.

A member state's declaration to the Headline Goal indicates the range of forces that could be made available to support potential EU operations. It does not bind the member state to providing the forces declared for any specific mission.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to paragraph 106 of the Explanatory Memorandum of 11 December 2008 on the French Presidency Report on European Security and Defence Policy, European Union Document No. 16686/08, what (a) resources and (b) capabilities the UK has declared for the (i) Maritime Rapid Response Concept and (ii) Air Rapid Response Concept for 2009. [254421]

Mr. Hutton: The Maritime Response Concept and the Air Rapid Response Concept are mechanisms to speed up the force generation process in the EU and do not indicate any standing forces. The UK has committed no capabilities or resources specifically to either concept but has set out in its response to the EU Headline Goal 2010 the forces, including maritime and air, that are potentially available for planning purposes for EU missions.

Military Aircraft

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his latest estimate is of the in-service date for the A400M airlift aircraft. [252864]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Airbus Military has announced a series of delays in the development and production of the A400M programme, and has recently indicated that first deliveries to customer nations will be three years after the achievement of first flight of the A400M prototype. Airbus has indicated that first flight will occur no earlier than the second half of 2009, and has also announced a slowdown in its production plans. Early A400M production aircraft will be delivered to some of our partner nations and therefore the first UK delivery would occur at least six months after Airbus delivers the first A400M. This suggests that initial UK deliveries could not start before 2013 and therefore the estimated in-service date of the A400M (defined as acceptance into service of the seventh aircraft) would be 2014.

Navy: Contracts

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what multi-activity contracts (MACs) the Royal Navy has; and what the (a) scope, (b) monetary value and (c) date of expiry of each MAC is. [254362]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Royal Navy has 11 commercial agreements that can be described as multi-activity contracts of varying size, value and scope. These range from services provided under a 15-year partnering arrangement to a small contract for catering and cleaning services. Details are provided in the following table:

RNHQ Northern England and HMS Cambria	Soft Facilities Management	Estimated annual value of £0.1 million with an initial period of three years	31 July 2011 with potential for further periods

Navy Command Air Engineering MAC	Technical Services Management	Estimated annual value of £8-11 million with a duration of three years	31 March 2011

Notes:

1. Soft Facilities Management may include but is not limited to the provision of catering, retail and leisure, mess and hotel services, establishment cleaning and waste management, graphic and media support, and administration services.
2. Hard Facility Management may include but is not limited to the provision of civil and domestic building/works, infrastructure maintenance, and grounds maintenance.
3. Technical Services Management may include but is not limited to the provision of training and training support, equipment maintenance and technical support, airfield services and support.

Warships

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria were used to determine the successful bidder for the Royal Navy contract entitled Specialist Vessel Requirement S&MO CB/3193; and if he will make a statement. [254449]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The contract for the provision of harbour support and coastal re-supply services to the Falkland Islands was awarded on 23 January 2009 following an open competition that fully complied with MOD guidelines and EU regulations. All bids received were assessed on a fair and equitable basis against stringent operational requirements and criteria to ensure value for money for the taxpayer. The most technically compliant and affordable bidder was awarded the contract.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

National Audit Office: Future Work Programme

7. David Taylor: To ask the Chairman of the Public Accounts Commission when he last discussed the National Audit Office's future work programme with the Comptroller and Auditor General. [254304]

Mr. Alan Williams: The Comptroller and Auditor General is responsible for the selection of topics for the National Audit Office's future work programme. He discusses the actual topics with the Public Accounts Committee. The Commission's role is to ensure that adequate resources are available for the NAO's programme. The Commission last discussed the National Audit Office's work with the Comptroller and Auditor General on 2 July 2008 when it examined the Office's Corporate Plan.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Arms Control

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what increased resources his Department has dedicated to tackling chemical, biological, radiological and nuclear terrorism threats, as referred to on page 12 of his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report. [246260]

David Miliband: We are increasing programme spend from £2 million for the financial year 2009-10 to £3 million for the financial year 2010-11. Eight officers within the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Directorate for Defence and Strategic Threats cover aspects of work related to chemical, biological, radiological and nuclear (CBRN) terrorism; this represents an increase in the number of staff dealing with the issue. In addition there are officers at posts overseas working on CBRN as part of their portfolios.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what percentage of contractors and suppliers to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have reported that they are compliant with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245323]

Gillian Merron: This information is not held centrally in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and the cost of collecting it would incur disproportionate cost. The FCO's Senior Information Risk Owner wrote to the FCO's main contractors in December 2008 reminding them of their responsibilities under the Data Handling Report in managing data securely. FCO contracts include new security clauses which are applicable to all contracts involving personal data.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have which allow contractors to store personal data of UK citizens overseas; for which contracts this applies; in which countries the data for each contract is held; and how many people have their data stored overseas in the case of each such contract. [245344]

Gillian Merron: The information requested is not held centrally, and the cost of providing it would be disproportionate.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the Written Ministerial Statement of 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 99-102WS, on what date Mr. Ravi Gurumurthy was appointed. [242156]

Gillian Merron: Mr. Ravi Gurumurthy was seconded to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on 28 June 2007.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [247920]

Gillian Merron: Communication Directorate within the Foreign and Commonwealth Office acts as its central media and communication unit. Only a small number of public surveys have been carried out by the directorate in the last three years. Between April 2006 to March 2007, and April 2007 to March 2008, there were none. From April 2008 to January 2009 the directorate spent an estimated total of £25,000 on public surveys.

Embassies: Operating Costs

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the running costs of each British diplomatic mission overseas were in the last financial year for which information is available. [242201]

David Miliband: I will write to the right hon. Member separately with details of the costs of each British diplomatic mission overseas for 2007-08, and will place a copy of these details in the Library of the House.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Billericay dated 28 October 2008 on the subject of the John Williams draft of the Iraq dossier. [248487]

Gillian Merron: I responded to the hon. Member on 19 January 2009.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy on the recent Arab Peace Initiative is. [248125]

Bill Rammell: The Arab Peace Initiative offers Israel recognition by, and normalisation of relations with, the 22 Arab League States as part of a comprehensive peace. The Government believe that it provides a positive vision for the progress in the Middle East Peace Process. We are working with the Governments of Israel and of the Arab world to pursue a such comprehensive peace.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what agreements there are affecting the use of British military airbases for the transfer of weapons from the United States to Israel; and whether the terms of such agreements have been invoked in the last two months. [249201]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I have been asked to reply.

The Ministry of Defence has a system in place that requires all countries to seek clearance for all aircraft registered as military or state aircraft that wish to enter, fly over or depart from UK airspace or for civilian aircraft wishing to land at military bases. All other types of aircraft are subject to the requirements of the Civil Aviation Authority. A request for MOD clearance includes the final destination of the flight and details of any dangerous cargo that may be in transit. I can confirm that we have had no such requests for clearance from the US with regards to flights on to Israel in the last two months.

Morocco: Trade

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what guidance his Department has issued to firms about trade with Morocco where such trade draws upon the resources of the Non Self-Governing Territory of Western Sahara. [244030]

Gillian Merron: Commercial deals are a matter for the companies concerned. However, the Government work to ensure that companies are aware of the undetermined status of the non self-governing territory of Western Sahara when trading with Morocco. The UK supports UN efforts to resolve the conflict and urge all parties to achieve a mutually acceptable solution that provides the people of the Western Sahara with an opportunity to exercise their right of self-determination.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Coal: Imports

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much coal was imported in each of the last 10 years; how much he forecasts will be imported in the (a) current year and (b) next three years; and if he will make a statement. [250076]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The following table shows how much coal was imported into the United Kingdom in each of the last 10 years. Provisional annual figures for 2008 will be published in the March edition of Energy Trends.

	Amount (Thousand tonnes)
1998	21,244
1999	20,293
2000	23,446
2001	35,542
2002	28,686
2003	31,891
2004	36,153
2005	43,968
2006	50,529
2007	43,365

Source: Table 2.1.1 Long Term Trends, Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2008.

A range of scenarios for future coal imports implied by scenarios for demand and indigenous production of coal can be found on page 88 of the "Energy Markets Outlook Report" December 2008, produced by Department of Energy and Climate Change. A copy of this publication is available in the House of Commons Library or can be accessed through this link:

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what percentage of contractors and suppliers to his Department has reported compliance with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245309]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) was formed on 3 October 2008, bringing together policy responsibility for energy (formerly with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR)) and climate change (formerly with the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs (Defra)). The Department is not at present party to any contracts, as the Transfer of Function Order related to the creation of DECC has not yet come into force. Existing contracts related to energy and climate change matters will remain with BERR and Defra respectively until the Transfer of Function Order comes into force. Given that, I refer the hon. Member to the answers given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1588W and by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs for the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 422W.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many contracts his Department has which allow contractors to store personal data of UK citizens overseas; for which contracts this applies; in which countries the data for each contract is held; and how many people have their data stored overseas in the case of each such contract. [245333]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) was formed on 3 October 2008, bringing together policy responsibility for energy (formerly with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR)) and climate change (formerly with the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs (Defra)). The Department is not at present party to any contracts, as the Transfer of Function Order related to the creation of DECC has not yet come into force. Existing contracts related to energy and climate change matters will remain with BERR and Defra respectively until the Transfer of Function Order comes into force. Given that, I refer the hon. Member to the answers given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 890W and by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs for the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 423W.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change on how many occasions since the creation of his Department Ministers used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249131]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Since the Department's inception on 3 October 2008, Minister's have not asked for any parliamentary questions to be answered whereby disproportionate costs would have been incurred.

Members: Correspondence

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he expects to reply to the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead's letter of 10 October 2008, that was transferred to the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on cavity wall insulation. [247207]

Joan Ruddock: I replied to the hon. Member on 20 January 2009 and apologise for the delay, which was due to departmental reorganisation.

Warm Front Scheme: North Yorkshire

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent representations he has received on the operation of the Warm Front scheme in North Yorkshire; and if he will make a statement. [250353]

Joan Ruddock: The Department for Work and Pensions operates the winter fuel payments. My Department has received representations on the operation of the Warm Front Scheme in North Yorkshire.

I am currently receiving all aspects of the scheme and all such representations are informing the process.

Wind Power

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer of 15 January 2009, Official Report, columns 896-97W, on wind power, what assessment he has made of the contribution of operational wind turbines towards the Government's renewable energy targets. [250721]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The UK has a domestic target of 10 per cent. of our electricity coming from renewable sources by 2010. In 2007, all renewables generated 19,664 GWh of electricity, or 5 per cent. of the UK's electricity.

Of this, onshore wind generated 4,491 GWh. The contribution from onshore wind to overall UK electricity generation was 1.14 per cent.

Offshore wind generated 783 GWh in 2007. The contribution from offshore wind to overall UK generation was 0.2 per cent.

The contribution from onshore and offshore wind to overall UK generation was therefore 1.34 per cent.

Source: AEA Technology/RESTATS.

It should be noted, however, that since this data was collated new projects have gone live in 2008—such as the 194MW Lynn and Inner Dowsing offshore wind farms and the 322MW Whitelee onshore wind farm. Generation data for these sites is not yet available.

With the construction of Lynn and Inner Dowsing, the UK now has 598MW of offshore wind capacity, overtaking Denmark as world leader in this technology. This extra capacity also takes the UK over the 3GW mark of total installed onshore and offshore wind capacity.

We are committed to increasing the use of wind power far beyond 3GW over the next few decades. The step change in the policy and measures necessary to achieve this are already in train or being developed.

The UK Government support the agreement that has been reached between the Council and European Parliament following the Council in December 2008 that 20 per cent. of EU energy consumption should come from renewable energy sources by 2020. In the UK this equates to a 15 per cent. target by 2020.

To meet this target, we consulted on a draft UK Renewable Energy Strategy last summer. We sought stakeholders' views on a wide range of measures, including further development of wind power, to help meet our share of the EU target. We will publish our finalised Renewable Energy Strategy later this year.

We also have a range of measures already in place to bring on more renewables development, including onshore and offshore wind, in order to meet our targets. For example, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced in the pre-Budget report that we would be extending the Renewables Obligation (RO) until 2037. This will ensure that investors can plan with confidence for the future so that over the next decade the market will continue to deliver the renewables projects that we need to achieve our 2020 target.

This Department will also be launching an Office for Renewable Energy Deployment (ORED), one of a suite of new low-carbon offices, as a one-stop-shop for business and other stakeholders aimed at removing supply chain barriers to renewables deployment. ORED will also have a strong role to play in tackling other deployment barriers related to grid, planning and raising public awareness.

Other measures include the launch this year of tenders under the Offshore Transmission Regime, to enable more offshore wind power to be connected to the grid. The Transmission Access Review will also enable more onshore wind to get early connection dates.

In summary, we are working across policy areas to increase wind developments: planning, financial incentives, business development and grid infrastructure. These measures will ensure wind power plays a full part in meeting our carbon budgets and energy supply needs in 2020 and beyond.

OLYMPICS

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister for the Olympics when she plans to reply to the letters of 6 November 2008 and 14 January 2009 from the hon. Member for Forest of Dean on Olympic events for women cyclists, reference SP2318. [254529]

Tessa Jowell: I will reply to the hon. Member's letter early next week. I apologise for the delay.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how much his Department has spent on advertising in the last five years; [243249]

(2) with reference to the Answer of 12 November 2008, on departmental marketing, how much his Department spent on advertising in the last five years. [243526]

Mr. Woodward: The following table provides details of the Northern Ireland Office's advertising expenditure, excluding agencies and NDPBs, in the last five years.

	Advertising expenditure (£)
2003-04	372,922
2004-05	548,451
2005-06	159,146
2006-07	190,204
2007-08	454,075

The increase in 2007-08 was largely due to a public advertising campaign for fireworks safety, funded by Firearms and Explosives Branch. Expenditure in this campaign included creative, agency and production costs as well as media advertising, promotion, education packs and initiatives for schools.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251871]

Mr. Woodward: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 5W, in relation to the Government Car and Despatch Agency. Other transport costs for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the ministerial code.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Advertising: Regulation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps his Department has taken to regulate the advertising industry. [253800]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 4 February 2009]: Advertising in the UK is strictly controlled through a system of co-regulation and self-regulation, which is enforced by the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA). This regulatory system is independent of Government and is ultimately responsible for setting the standards in advertising.

The bodies responsible for writing and maintaining the advertising codes, the Committee of Advertising Practice (CAP) and the Broadcast Committee of Advertising Practice (BCAP), are currently undertaking a full review of all the advertising codes. CAP and BCAP will hold a public consultation on proposed changes to the advertising codes in 2009.

Arts Council England: Grants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding Arts Council England provided to (a) the Hayward Gallery, (b) the London Philharmonic Orchestra and (c) the Saison Poetry Library in each of the last five years; and how much came from (i) Exchequer funding and (ii) the National Lottery in each such year. [249420]

Barbara Follett: Arts Council England has advised that it has provided funding to the Hayward Gallery and the London Philharmonic Orchestra in each of the last five years as set out in the table. Regular funding towards the ongoing running costs of the Hayward Gallery and the Saison Poetry Library is included in the overall allocation for the South Bank Centre. The Saison Poetry Library has received no lottery funding.

BBC: Location

Jim Dowd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what information his Department holds on the cost of relocation of BBC staff to Media City, Salford; what discussions he has had on the subject with (a) the Director General of the BBC and (b) the BBC Trust; and if he will make a statement. [254032]

Andy Burnham: The cost to the licence fee payer of relocating BBC staff to Media City in Salford was estimated by the BBC at the time of the licence fee settlement announcement at £200 million over the current licence fee period, which is from April 2007 to March 2013.

The BBC director general and the chair of the BBC Trust update me regularly on BBC-related matters, including the relocation to Media City.

Broadband

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he plans to respond to the Review of Barriers to Investment in Next Generation Broadband. [242071]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

The Government have been considering the recommendations from the Caio Review into the barriers to investment in Next Generation Access carefully, particularly in relation to the recently announced Digital Britain Report, which will provide a strategy for a fully digital Britain. The Government will fully respond to these recommendations in due course.

Digital Broadcasting: Publicity

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of campaigns to inform people about the switchover from analogue to digital television. [253802]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 4 February 2009]: DigitalUK is responsible for informing the public about switchover. The DigitalUK tracker survey Q3 2008 shows that public awareness now stands at almost 90 per cent. and Digital Television take-up at 87 per cent.

Public Service Broadcasting: Standards

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps his Department has taken to ensure quality of service from public service broadcasters. [253799]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 4 February 2009]: Within the framework of the Communication Act 2003 and the BBC's Charter and Agreement, day-to-day responsibility for ensuring quality of Public Service Broadcasting rests with the broadcasters and the broadcasting authorities.

The Government are looking at how the quality of Public Service Broadcasting can be sustained in the future, as part of the current Digital Britain review, due to published in the summer of 2009.

Television: Licensing

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much TV Licensing spent on public relations in each of the last three years. [249805]

Andy Burnham: The BBC has a statutory responsibility for the administration of the television licensing system. Under contract to the corporation, TV Licensing carries out the day to day administration of these duties.

"TV Licensing" is a trading name used by companies contracted by the BBC to administer the collection of television licence fees and enforcement of the television licensing system. TV Licensing's marketing and public relations activities are carried out by the AMV consortium, which is made up of the following four companies: Abbott Mead Vickers BBDO Ltd, Fishburn Hedges Boys Williams Limited (who are responsible for TV Licensing's public relations activities), PHD Media Limited and Proximity London Ltd.

The BBC considers that release of the information requested would be likely to prejudice the commercial interests of parties within, and connected to, this arrangement, as well as the BBC itself, as it would reveal valuable information on pricing structures, business structures and operations to these companies' competitors.

Television: Standards

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether he received any representations from viewers regarding the use of language in Gordon Ramsay's Kitchen Nightmare programme broadcast on Channel 4. [254555]

Andy Burnham: My Department has not currently received any representations from viewers referring to the use of language in Gordon Ramsay's Kitchen Nightmare programme.

Tourism

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans his Department has to encourage foreign visitors to the United Kingdom over the next 18 months; and if he will make a statement. [247213]

Barbara Follett: VisitBritain (VB) is currently formulating a new three-year strategy on the back of the many recommendations of the recent British Tourism Framework Review. The strategy will set out the steps that VB will take between 2009 and 2012 to increase the visitor economy to £133 billion by 2018. The strategy is due to be launched on 11 February.

Overseas visitors demand the highest levels of customer service and we believe that despite the global economic downturn, they are willing to spend on good quality products. VisitBritain therefore announced a new marketing campaign 'Value for Money' at the Liverpool Tourism Summit on 8 January 2009 costing £6.5 million. This will include the promotion of London as a more affordable destination at the present time. In addition, the Government will continue to invest in skills and in tourism product itself. This will include the quality of accommodation; the Olympics and Paralympic Games; the Cultural Olympiad; free museums and galleries; heritage and seaside resorts, which are all critical to meeting visitor expectations and their demand for an exceptional experience.

Tourism: EU Grants and Loans

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans his Department has to bid for EU funding schemes for tourism in England during the current financial year. [253233]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 2 February 2009]: The Department has no current plans to bid for EU funding schemes for tourism in the current financial year. Bids for funds from the European Regional Development Fund Objective 2 and the European Social Fund for Tourism are usually submitted by the Regional Development Agencies.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Carer's Allowance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate his Department has made of the cost to the public purse of an annual increase in carer's allowance of (a) £3, (b) £4, (c) £5, (d) £6, (e) £7, (f) £8, (g) £9 and (h) £10 a week in each of the next six years. [246725]

Jonathan Shaw: The estimated additional annual cost of increasing carer's allowance by the specified amounts is shown in the following table. The increase in carer's allowance is represented as a cash amount in the given years. The costs are given in nominal terms.

Estimated additional annual cost of increasing carer's allowance

£ million

Increase in carer's allowance amount	2009-10	2010-11	2011-12	2012-13	2013-14	2014-15
£3	40	42	44	45	47	48
£4	54	56	58	60	62	64
£5	67	70	73	75	78	80
£6	80	84	87	90	93	96
£7	94	98	102	105	109	113
£8	107	111	116	120	125	129
£9	121	125	131	135	140	145
£10	134	139	145	151	156	161

These figures represent the best estimate we can provide given the limitations of the data. However, they are likely to under estimate the total costs. This is because they do not include any costs for carer's allowance recipients who are in a household where a member receives an income-related benefit, as we are unable to estimate the costs of increasing carer's allowance for this group.

Children: Maintenance

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what enforcement action his Department and its agencies have taken to recover debts in respect of which they have obtained liability orders in each region of England in each of the last three years. [250962]

Kitty Ussher: The Department does not use liability orders to recover benefit overpayment debts.

Council Tax and Housing Benefits

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many outstanding unprocessed council tax benefit claims there were in each local authority area in each (a) quarter of each year from 1999 to 2008 and (b) of the last 12 months; [249428]

(2) what the average number of days taken to process council tax benefit applications was in (a) each quarter of each year from 1999 to 2008 and (b) each of the last 12 months; [249429]

(3) what the average number of days taken to process housing benefit applications was in (a) each quarter of each year from 1999 to 2008 and (b) each of the last 12 months; [249430]

(4) how many outstanding unprocessed housing benefit claims there were in each local authority area in (a) each quarter of each year from 1999 to 2008 and (b) each of the last 12 months. [249433]

Kitty Ussher: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Departmental Internet

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which websites are operated by his Department in addition to its main website; and what the operating budget for those websites is. [251212]

Jonathan Shaw: The following tables detail the websites currently operated by the Department for Work and Pensions, and the costs associated with them.

DWP websites are mostly operated by the Department's own in-house Digital Media team.

DWP is currently working with the COI to develop a standardised method for quantifying website costs across Government. We will be implementing this standard from March 2009 in line with the current timetable.

However, for the financial year 2007-08, the latest available figures, it was not possible for us to quantify internal staff costs, because in most cases, staff were engaged in more than one role. In addition, we were unable to establish accurately our infrastructure costs because they formed part of a wider departmental IT contract. We have therefore detailed only quantifiable costs for each site—these include payments to suppliers for services such as research, testing and site builds. Figures for the jobcentre plus website include the costs of maintaining some online services, since these figures are quantifiable.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and how much was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249849]

Jonathan Shaw: The information is as follows:

End of year performance bonuses

Senior civil service individual performance bonuses reward the delivery of in-year personal and business objectives or targets.

For the senior civil service end-of-year bonuses are determined on an individual basis by the relevant DWP SCS pay committee. The number of bonuses awarded to senior civil servants in DWP and its agencies and totals paid in 2007 and 2008 are shown in the following table:

	DWP and its agencies
	Number of bonuses awarded to senior civil servants	Total paid (£ million)
2007	202	1.73
2008	208	1.82

Notes:
1. Some individuals may have received more than one type of bonus payment in the year.
2. The total amount paid includes employers national insurance contribution (ERNIC).

Special bonus and voucher payments

Individuals may also be entitled to special bonus payments either as cash or vouchers. These are one-off recognition awards, payable at any time during the performance year and are not linked to the annual pay award. Information on special bonus and voucher payments is not collated separately for the senior civil service and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Electronic Government

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the accessibility of Government websites; and if he will make a statement. [243868]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Central Office of Information. I have asked the chief executive to reply.

Letter from Alan Bishop, dated December 2008:

As Chief Executive of the Central Office of Information (COI), I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question [243868] on what assessment has been made of the accessibility of Government websites.

Standards for websites across government are the responsibility of the Central Office of Information (COI). Guidance on website accessibility was issued to Departments in June 2008 following public consultation. Departments are required to have central government website accessibility plans in place by 1 January 2009. Plans must be implemented and all websites must comply with the double-A W3C web accessibility standard by 1 January 2010. Departments will be requested to report their compliance with these measures.

EU Grants and Loans

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what allocation the UK has received from the European Union Globalisation Fund for the next 12 months; and what allocations of that funding have been made by his Department. [252128]

Mr. McNulty: The European Globalisation Adjustment Fund, or EGF, does not operate through making allocations to member states. It is a contingency fund as such and a member state has to make a specific application for matched funding from the EGF. There is no ring fenced EGF budget: rather, the fund can draw on up to €500 million per year from within the EU budget where there may be underspends or decommitted funds.

Jobcentre Plus: Vacancies

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many posts in the Jobcentre Plus network have been vacant in each of the last 12 months. [241452]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many posts in the Jobcentre Plus network have been vacant in each of the last 12 months. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The table below shows a snapshot of the number of internal and external vacant posts in each of the last 12 months within Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentres: Scotland

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff were employed in job centres in each (a) parliamentary constituency and (b) local authority area in Scotland on (i) 1 January 2008 and (ii) 1 January 2009. [253082]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available broken down by constituency or local authority area.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of jobseeker's allowance (JSA) claimants have returned to claiming JSA within 12 months of gaining employment in the latest year for which figures are available. [249029]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not available.

Rheumatoid Arthritis

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what information his Department holds on people with rheumatoid arthritis; whether rheumatoid arthritis is classified as a disability under the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Acts 1995 and 2005; and if he will make a statement; [253918]

(2) what recent estimate he has made on the effect of the Disability Discrimination Acts 1995 and 2005 on access to employment for people with rheumatoid arthritis; [253919]

(3) if he will bring forward proposals to strengthen the legal rights of people with rheumatoid arthritis in the workplace. [253920]

Jonathan Shaw: Data are held by my Department in respect of information provided on claims made to incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance. These data indicate that at February 2007 there were 26,470 claimants whose medical condition was recorded as "other rheumatoid arthritis"[1]. Similarly, information on the disabling condition is collected for claimants of disability living allowance, but it does not separately record rheumatoid arthritis.

Rheumatoid arthritis is not specifically classified as a disability under the Disability Discrimination Act as amended (DDA). In general, a person is considered to be disabled for the purposes of the Act if they have a "physical or mental impairment which has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on their ability to carry out normal day to day activities". A person with rheumatoid arthritis will be protected by the provisions of the Act where he or she meets this definition of a disabled person. Furthermore, a person with rheumatoid arthritis may be able to benefit from special provisions in the Act which apply to persons with progressive or fluctuating conditions[2].

My Department has made no estimate of the effect of the DDA on access to employment for people with rheumatoid arthritis. Access to employment by disabled people, including those with rheumatoid arthritis is influenced by a range of factors, for example, the economic climate, the availability of work programmes and in-work benefits, and the advice disabled people receive to help them to find work.

It is not possible to isolate the effect of disability discrimination legislation on access to employment for disabled people.

The Government have significantly improved and strengthened the DDA, so that it now provides a comprehensive and enforceable set of civil rights for disabled people. We have no plans to extend legal rights in the workplace specifically for people with rheumatoid arthritis. We are, however, taking the opportunity of the forthcoming Equality Bill to simplify and streamline the disability discrimination legislation to make it more accessible and effective for disabled people, including those with rheumatoid arthritis, to operate.

[1] To qualify for IB, claimants have to undertake a medical assessment of incapacity for work which is called the Personal Capability Assessment. Therefore, the medical condition recorded on the IB claim form does not itself confer entitlement to incapacity benefits, so for example, the decision for a customer claiming IB under any category would be based on their ability to carry out the range of activities in the Personal Capability Assessment. These statistics provided are gathered by DWP for its own purposes and are based on DWP staff's interpretation of what can sometimes be quite vague information about the disabling condition on medical certificates and other corroborating evidence given by claimants. It is important to note that, where someone has more than one diagnosis or disabling condition, only the predominant one is currently recorded. In light of this, the information provided cannot be taken as a robust indication of the underlying condition that results in entitlement to IB.

[2] Detailed information on the provisions relating to progressive and fluctuating conditions are included in the statutory guidance on the definition of disability (Disability Discrimination Act: Guidance on matters to be taken into account in determining questions relating to the definition of disability:

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Coastal Towns Network

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which principal seaside towns are (a) members and (b) not members of the Coastal Towns Network (CTN); and whether there are plans to develop links between the CTN and coastal towns in Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. [244860]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

The CTN is made up of representation from a range of national and regional stakeholders. Individual coastal towns are not on the CTN, but relevant towns and places are represented through local authority representation on the CTN programme, and other networks.

So far the network has included the following local authorities in meetings and circulation of papers; Brighton and Hove city council, Thanet district council, Kent county council, Lincolnshire county council, East Lindsay district council, Boston district council. CTN included representation from the BURA (British Urban Regeneration Agency) seaside network (which has a membership of public and private sector organisations in excess of 120), Coastal Communities Alliance and BRADA (British Resorts and Destinations Association). There are plans to make links with similar networks in Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland in the first half of 2009.

Community Relations: Islam

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 294W, on community relations: Islam, if she will place in the Library a copy of the report by the Change Institute on Understanding Muslim Ethnic Communities. [252177]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government has commissioned the Change Institute to conduct research on Understanding Muslim Ethnic Communities. This work has not yet been completed.

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the merits of establishing further community-based advisory groups modelled on the Young Muslim Advisory Group. [254178]

Mr. Khan: The Department is committed to engaging with community-based groups across the Department's agenda. The Young Muslims Advisory Group has been in existence for less than six months. We will be monitoring the group's progress, and will use this information to inform any future decisions on establishing new community-based advisory groups.

Departmental Billing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Winchester (Mr. Oaten) of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1044W, on billing, if she will place in the Library a copy of her Department's letter to its agencies and non-departmental public bodies. [251863]

Mr. Khan: The information has been deposited in the Library of the House.

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State plans to reply to the letters of 4 December and 30 December from the hon. Member for Forest of Dean on the fees levied by local authorities in respect of discharge of planning conditions, reference FD5970. [254528]

Mr. Iain Wright: I replied to the hon. Member's correspondence on 2 February 2009.

Departmental Databases

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Rochford and Southend East (James Duddridge) of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 300W, on departmental databases, how ACORN data are used in relation to (a) her Department's House Price Index, (b) local authority formula grant distribution and (c) the citizenship survey; and how MOSAIC data are used in relation to the Neighbourhood Renewal Evaluation. [252176]

Mr. Khan: The information requested is as follows:

Acorn:

(a) The CLG monthly house price index is a hedonic mix-adjusted index. The mix-adjustment weights are updated on an annual basis using a variety of variables. One of the variables is type of neighbourhood. This is produced by linking the house price dataset to Acorn data via the postcode.

(b) The distribution of formula grant takes into account the relative needs and relative resources of an authority relative to all other authorities providing the same service. There is also a central allocation and floor damping mechanism. The formulae used in the distribution system cover a wide range of socio-economic and demographic indicators

For the 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 settlement, Acorn data have been used for indicators that are used within the Police Relative Needs Formula (RNF) and the Fire and Rescue RNF.

Annex D of the Local Government Finance Report (England) 2008-09 (HC 262) contains the description of each of the indicators used in the calculation of the allocation of formula grant.

(c) Recent analysis of the Citizenship Survey has not used Acorn data. Analysis using Acorn was last carried out using 2003 and 2005 data as reported in the annual reports. More recently, data are analysed using classifications such as the new Index of Multiple Deprivation, urban/rural, and social class. However, we provide Acorn in the publicly available Citizenship Survey dataset as we recognise that local area characteristics can play an important role in cohesion and data users may wish to use this.

Mosaic:

The National Strategy for Neighbourhood Renewal Evaluation requires the identification and analysis of socio-economic trends at small spatial scales (i.e. Lower Level Super Output Areas—LSOA) which is why the Department's contractors, Amion Consulting, have used Mosaic group data provided by Experian as it provides a typology of areas. It was initially used as part of the modelling analysis but was ultimately set aside due to extensive correlation with other socio-economic variables and consequential statistical problems.

The Mosaic typology is based on a series of datasets assembled by Experian. Two of these datasets have also been used in the Evaluation:

The ethnic origins dataset—which was also set aside in preference to Census data but is being used to identify areas with high concentrations of particular ethnic groups for subsequent analysis; and the length of residence dataset—which was employed as part of the transition-modelling process as it provides an indicative measure of population churn (identified as an important factor in influencing area change).

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether special advisers in her Department may claim overtime payments. [251795]

Mr. Khan: Special advisers may not claim overtime payments, as set out in the Department's staff handbook and the Model Contract for Special Advisers.

Derelict Land: Hampshire

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of recent levels of brownfield development in (a) the City of Southampton, (b) Test Valley borough and (c) Eastleigh borough. [254015]

Mr. Iain Wright: In the period 2003 to 2006,

(a) 94 per cent. of the land changing to a developed use in Southampton was previously-developed.

(b) 71 per cent. of the land changing to a developed use in Test Valley was previously-developed.

(c) 71 per cent. of the land changing to a developed use in Eastleigh was previously-developed.

"Brownfield" development has been interpreted as all development on previously- developed land, not just residential development. Information on residential development can be found on the CLG website at

http://www.communities.gov.uk/planningandbuilding/planningbuilding/planningstatistics/livetables/landusechange/

Disadvantaged

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which electoral wards make up the 10 per cent. most deprived in England and Wales. [253340]

John Healey: The English Indices of Deprivation have, since 2004, been produced at Lower Level Super Output Area (LSOA). These are smaller than wards and are designed to remain consistent in size, and over time, to allow more detailed identification of pockets of deprivation. This also overcomes difficulties in producing statistics for electoral wards associated with frequent boundary changes. There are 32,482 LSOAs in England with an average population of 1,500 people.

I have placed a table of the 10 per cent. most deprived LSOAs from the English Indices of Deprivation 2007 in the Libraries of the House.

The Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland administrations produce separate deprivation indices.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the Communities and Local Government Euro Changeover Plan 2007. [252186]

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of her Department's most recent Euro Changeover Plan; and on what date the plan was last updated. [254849]

Mr. Khan: The Communities and Local Government Euro Changeover Plan was placed in the Library in February 2006.

There has been no change of note to Communities and Local Government, its agencies and NDPB's Euro Changeover Plans since then.

The Department has therefore not produced a further version of such plans.

Economic Situation

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions her Department has had with outside organisations to discuss policy on reducing the effect of the recession on matters within her Department's responsibility. [254051]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government has frequent discussions with a very wide range of external stakeholders across the full breadth of our responsibilities, covering numerous issues including reducing the impact of the recession.

Economic Situation: Hertfordshire

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what briefing notes the Minister for the East of England has received on the business environment in Hertfordshire since 1 August 2008. [254222]

Mr. Khan: The Regional Minister receives regular briefing on a range of issues which impact on the business and economic environment across the region and within Hertfordshire.

Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, columns 1201-2W, on empty property, if she will place in the Library a copy of the most recent list of vacant domestic dwellings, broken down by (a) local authority and (b) ward. [252163]

Mr. Iain Wright: The most recent statistics on vacant dwellings at local authority level are for October 2008 and these have been placed in the Library. The latest statistics on vacant dwellings published at ward level are for April 2005. These are on the Office for National Statistics' Neighbourhood Statistics website at:

http://neighbourhood.statistics.gov.uk/dissemination/datasetList.do?JSAllowed=true&Function=%24ph=60&CurrentPageId=60&step=1&CurrentTreeIndex=1&searchString=&datasetFamilyId=1618&Next.x=11&Next.y=16

Statistics for 2006, 2007 and 2008 are due for publication later this year.

Fines

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what administrative financial penalties may be levied by her Department and its agencies. [253599]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Communities and Local Government and its agencies have no powers to levy administrative financial penalties.

Fire Services: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many firefighters required medical treatment as a result of assaults in each of the last three years, broken down by fire and rescue service area. [254214]

Mr. Khan: This information is not held centrally.

Fire Services: Defibrillators

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of operational fire appliances carry defibrillators. [254858]

Mr. Khan: Information on which front-line appliances carry a defibrillator is not centrally held. However, recent research on co-responding indicated that, as at the end of 2007, over one-third of fire appliances had a defibrillator on board.

Fire Services: Finance

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons new burdens funding will not be provided in relation to Project Fireguard. [254008]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 771W.

Government Office for the Regions

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Local Authority Leaders' Boards will be based in the Government office regions. [254771]

Mr. Iain Wright: Yes, the intention is that Local Authority Leaders' Boards would be set up to cover the same regions as covered by Government offices and regional development agencies.

Government Office for the Regions: EU Grants and Loans

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much European Regional Development Fund (ERDF) funding for 2000-2006 was unspent (a) in each Government Office region and (b) in each EDRF programme; and if she will make a statement. [254620]

John Healey: The 2000 to 2006 ERDF programmes have so far recorded spend of over €5 billion. There are over 2,900 ERDF grant claims being processed in our systems and more are expected as projects make their final claims for grant. Until these claims are all paid we will not have a final spend position but expect it to show successful take up of the available funds—at least equal to previous rounds of ERDF.

Housing

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local housing authorities under section 226 of the Housing Act 2004; and when such guidance was last issued or revised. [254854]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government issued guidance to local housing authorities on Gypsy and Traveller Accommodation Needs Assessments under section 226 of the Housing Act 2004 in October 2007.

Housing: Construction

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of (a) all newly constructed dwellings were constructed on previously-developed land, (b) all dwellings on previously-developed land were newly constructed dwellings on previous residential land and (c) all newly-constructed dwellings were new dwellings on previously-residential land in each (i) region, (ii) county and (iii) local authority area in each of the last three years. [253940]

Mr. Iain Wright: In 2007, on a provisional estimate, 77 per cent. of all new dwellings (including conversions) were built on previously-developed land, compared to 76 per cent. in 2006. Land Use Change Statistics Live Table 212 gives a regional breakdown of the percentage of all new dwellings that were built on previously-developed land. Land Use Change Statistics Live Table 213 gives a local authority level breakdown of the percentage of all new dwellings that were built on previously-developed land. Both tables can be found at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/planningandbuilding/planningbuilding/planningstatistics/livetables/landusechange/

Tables have been deposited in the Library providing county level estimates of (a) all newly constructed dwellings that were constructed on previously-developed land, and regional, county and local authority level estimates of (b) all dwellings on previously-developed land were newly constructed dwellings on previous residential land and (c) all newly-constructed dwellings were new dwellings on previously-residential land. Estimates at a local authority and county level are provided as multi-year averages because of the unrobust and volatile nature of the data at spatial levels lower than Government office region.

Housing: Learning Disability

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to increase the number of houses available in the West Suffolk area to enable people with learning difficulties to live independently. [253122]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities are responsible for assessing the housing needs in their particular locality in order to deliver the most appropriate housing solutions for their residents including those with specific needs.

In the East of England, based on recommendations within the Regional Housing Board investment plan, the Homes and Communities Agency has available £78.21 million from the National Affordable Housing Programme over the three years 2008-11 to fund Supported Housing Projects, which includes specialist provision for people with learning disabilities. Allocations of these funds are dependent on suitable schemes being submitted to the HCA for approval and, where necessary, supporting people funding being available through the local authority.

People with learning disabilities may also benefit from our standard HomeBuy products and through our specialist Home Ownership for People with long term disabilities (HOLD) product. HOLD enables purchasers with disabilities to select a home on the open market, in the location of their choice that is suitable for their needs and then buy it on shared ownership terms with a housing association. Interested applicants may apply through HomeBuy Agents in the usual way and will be referred to a specialist housing association provider, as necessary.

Housing: Mortgages

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of people who have (a) a mortgage on a domestic property and (b) own a property outright. [255215]

Mr. Iain Wright: It is estimated that there were 8 million households buying with a mortgage and 6.7 million households who were outright owners in England in 2008. These estimates are based on data from the ONS Labour Force Survey.

Housing: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether section 106 agreements may be attached to household extensions in cases where the proposed extension (a) does and (b) does not have permitted development rights. [252303]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning obligations (also known as section 106 agreements) can be attached to a planning permission to make acceptable development which would otherwise be unacceptable in planning terms.

Research commissioned by the Department shows that in 2005-06 only 6.4 per cent. of planning permissions had an obligation attached to them and that the majority of these obligations were attached to large development.

New revisions to planning regulations for General Permitted Development Orders, announced by the Government on 10 September 2008, meant that from 1 October 2008 the majority of homeowners will no longer need to get planning permission when extending their existing homes.

Therefore, for the majority of household extensions with permitted development rights planning permission would not be required and they would therefore not be liable for planning obligations. For those developments which do not have permitted development rights, planning permission may be required and therefore a section 106 obligation could be attached to the permission.

Housing: Regeneration

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding her Department has allocated to each housing market renewal pathfinder for each of the next three years. [254851]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my noble Friend Baroness Andrews to Lord Greaves on 23 January 2009, Official Report, column WA239.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the average cost of a (a) new build, (b) refurbishment, (c) acquisition and (d) demolition in a housing market renewal pathfinder in the latest year for which figures are available. [254852]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 17 December 2008, Official Report, columns 791-92W.

Housing: Sustainable Development

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1146W, on housing: sustainable development, if she will place in the Library a copy of BS 5906:2005. [252861]

Mr. Iain Wright: BS 5906:2005 waste management in buildings is one of the many standards that are produced and published by BSI—British Standards, a division of the BSI Group. BSI Group is non profit making and all profits are reinvested to create new standards. The documents are not published by my Department and as such I am unable to place a copy in the Library. All BS standards are available to view in the British Library or in the BSI Library in Chiswick (for a nominal fee). They are also available on the BSI website at:

http://www.bsigroup.com/en/standards-and-publications/online-subscription-products/BSOL

Local Government Finance

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her estimate is of the average change in per capita Government funding in (a) district councils, (b) county councils, (c) London boroughs, (d) metropolitan councils, (e) existing unitary councils and (f) new unitary councils between 2008-09 and 2009-10. [253869]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1074W.

Local Government Services: Public Participation

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local community groups on accepting community transfer of libraries and other facilities. [253739]

Mr. Khan: There has been no specific guidance issued on the transfer of library facilities. General guidance was published by the Department in July 2008 on Managing Risks in Asset Transfer. The Asset Transfer Unit, which is hosted by the Development Trusts Association and funded by the Department, opened for business in January 2009 to raise the profile and importance of transferring assets to communities, and will respond to requests from community groups and public bodies for information and advice.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on the transfer of facilities to community groups. [253741]

Mr. Khan: The findings of the Quirk review of Community Management and Ownership of Public Assets was published in May 2007 and made available to every local authority in England. In July 2008 every council leader and chief executive in England was sent a copy of 'Managing Risks in Asset Transfer: A Guide' which is a practical guide on managing and minimising risk. Additionally the Department has funded the Advancing Assets demonstration programme where 50 local authorities and community partnerships have been supported to facilitate community asset transfer and 60 more will be supported between 2009 and 2011.

Local Government: EU Grants and Loans

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations her Department received from (a) regional development agencies, (b) Government offices of the regions, (c) local authorities and (d) Objective 1 and 2 convergence partnerships on the extension to the deadline offered to all EU countries to spend unused 2000-2006 European regional developement funds; and if she will make a statement. [254623]

John Healey: The Government took into account views from the regions, including on the extent to which any additional resources resulting from programme extension could be used given the lack of flexibility in the EC's offer of extension and decided that there was insufficient benefit to justify changing existing spending plans.

Local Government: Publicity

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for the revision of the Code of Recommended Practice on Local Government Publicity. [253885]

Mr. Khan: Our current consultation on proposals to revise the Code of Recommended Practice on Local Government Publicity ends on 12 March 2009. We intend that any revisions we make following consultation should come into force by April 2010, in parallel with any guidance issued on the proposed new duty on councils to promote democracy, for which the Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Bill makes provision.

Local Government: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to fund the floor damping system from central Government funds. [253139]

John Healey: Floor damping is already met from central Government funds. It ensures that every authority in England will receive at least a minimum increase in formula grant year-on-year on a like-for-like basis i.e. after adjusting for changes in funding and function. The cost of the floor is paid for by scaling back grant increases above the floor. This provides stability, while allowing some of the underlying change in grant to come through.

We consulted in 2005 on the mechanism for floor damping. The overwhelming majority of responses to the consultation preferred the existing system for funding the floor, by scaling back grant increases above the floor, and we accepted this as the way forward.

Local Government: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will review the processes employed by the Boundary Committee to reach a decision on the options of local government structure in Suffolk. [253123]

John Healey: The Boundary Committee is a statutory committee of the Electoral Commission which reports to Parliament and not Government, and its review processes are a matter for the Committee itself. The Secretary of State will have regard to all relevant matters when considering any advice provided by the Boundary Committee in response to the Secretary of State's request for advice of 6 February 2008.

Local Government: Waste Disposal

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities include measures on waste in their local area agreement 35 local improvement targets. [253078]

John Healey: 126 out of 150 local areas have at least one designated target in their local area agreement, covering measures on waste. All LAAs are publicly available on the IDeA website at:

http://www.idea.gov.uk/idk/core/page.do?pageId=8399555 and contain details of the partner agencies that are signed up to targets.

Local Spending Reports

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the reason is for the time taken by her Department to publish a consultation document on local spending reports. [253689]

Mr. Khan: The Sustainable Communities Act 2007 requires the Secretary of State to make arrangements for the production of local spending reports; to make the first arrangements before 23 April 2009; and to consult affected persons before doing so. This is a complex task and we have been working across Government to map available information. We aim to consult shortly.

National Policy Statements

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for the publication of national policy statements (NPSs); and what subject topics each NPS will cover. [253690]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Communities and Local Government published a Route Map for implementation of the Infrastructure Planning Commission regime, including the current timetable for preparation of national policy statements, on its website on 27 January. Copies are also in the House Library.

The Government are planning initially to produce 12 NPSs covering the following infrastructure sectors:

Overarching Energy (setting the context for the other five energy NPSs) as follows:

Renewables

Fossil Fuel

Electricity Networks (i.e. power lines etc.)

Oil and Gas Infrastructure (e.g. pipelines and storage)

Nuclear Power

Ports

National Networks (i.e. strategic roads and railways, including strategic rail and freight interchanges)

Airports

Waste Water (e.g. sewage treatment infrastructure)

Water Supply (e.g. reservoirs)

Hazardous Waste (e.g. high temperature incineration).

The first tranche—the NPSs on Non-Nuclear Energy and Ports—are currently scheduled for publication for consultation in the summer and then designation in early 2010.

Our current plans for the later NPSs are as follows:

We plan to start the consultation on the Nuclear NPS in 2009 following on from the package of non-nuclear energy NPSs, and aim to designate this NPS in the spring of 2010.

The National Networks NPS is scheduled for consultation and parliamentary scrutiny in autumn 2009 with designation later in 2010.

We expect consultation on the Waste Water NPS late in 2009, with the Hazardous Waste NPS published for consultation in spring 2010, the Water Supply NPS later in 2010, and the Airports NPS planned for public consultation by 2011.

Ordnance Survey: Visits Abroad

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 29 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1150-1W, on Ordnance Survey: visits abroad, what the purpose was of each visit. [252789]

Mr. Iain Wright: A table showing the countries and cities visited by Ordnance Survey in the time period specified along with the purpose for each visit has been deposited in the Library. In some cases the location listed was an intermediate business stop during a longer journey to other listed destinations.

Partnerships UK

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what remuneration Baroness Ford has received for her work for Partnerships UK on surplus public sector land in 2008-09. [252459]

Mr. Iain Wright: This Department has not provided any direct remuneration to Baroness Ford.

Partnerships UK is a dedicated centre of expertise available to the public sector to provide strategic support for delivering successful projects and programmes and has an established framework agreement with Communities and Local Government. Communities and Local Government contracted with Partnerships UK, using its framework agreement, to provide work required by the Government to increase the pace of change in the surplus public sector land programme. The maximum fee payable to Partnerships UK for this work is £75,000 plus VAT. Partnerships UK in turn contracted with the Royal Bank of Canada Europe Limited to provide specialist advice in relation to that commission. Baroness Ford is employed by the Bank as its director of social infrastructure and has specialist knowledge of housing and regeneration. The contractual relationship that Communities and Local Government entered into was with Partnerships UK and this Department is not a party to their contractual arrangements with the Royal Bank of Canada, nor to the Bank's contractual arrangements with Baroness Ford.

Plain English

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department has taken to adopt Plain English standards in its publications. [253884]

Mr. Khan: The Department is a corporate member of the Plain English Campaign, which allows us to seek advice or request Crystal Mark status for our publications on a case by case basis.

For information on the publications which the Department has submitted for Crystal Mark status since 2005 I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Monmouth (David T.C. Davies) on 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1286W.

Planning Permission: Greater London

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to intervene in planning applications which relate to development of areas in London in which war memorials are located. [253338]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's policy on the call-in of planning applications was set out by my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Central (Mr. Caborn) on 16 June 1999, Official Report, column 138W. The Government have no plans to alter this policy at this time.

Planning Permission: Parking

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what planning policy guidance is in force in relation to the use of car parking charges in developments to encourage alternative modes of transport. [254767]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning Policy Guidance note 13: Transport (PPG13), published in 2001, asks local authorities to use parking charges to encourage use of alternative modes of transport. Regional Transport Strategies should set out the longer term objectives, ensure consistency and avoid wasteful competition between locations. Within this framework, local authorities should set appropriate levels and charges for parking in their local transport plans that do not undermine the vitality of town centres. Local authorities can refuse permission for developments that are not in accordance with the policies set out in their plans.

Regional Spatial Strategies

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her (a) powers and (b) responsibilities are to (i) approve and (ii) amend the final versions of the integrated regional strategies. [253870]

Mr. Iain Wright: Part 5 of the Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Bill covers our provisions for regional strategies. The Bill is currently being considered in the other place. Clause 72 sets out the proposed powers and responsibilities of the Secretary of State in approving the regional strategy.

Zanzibar eProcurement Service

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of her Department's contracts with suppliers are handled through the Zanzibar eProcurement Service; and what estimate she has made of the resultant savings achieved in (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) 2008-09. [252704]

Mr. Khan: Four of our supplier contracts are currently handled through the Zanzibar eProcurement Service. For Communities electronic purchase to pay systems are most suitable for low value high volume requirements and the department uses Zanzibar to handle stationery, IT consumables and temporary agency staff.

Savings from electronic purchase to pay systems were estimated, for the purpose of building a business case, at £41 for each transaction. Zanzibar provides catalogue hosting and management for our electronic purchase to pay systems. The future use of Zanzibar is currently being reviewed in the Department.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate her Department has made of the potential annual saving which would result from the full-scale implementation of the Zanzibar eProcurement Service; [252705]

(2) what initiatives, procedures or training programmes her Department has to ensure the take-up of the Zanzibar eProcurement Service by (a) agencies and non-departmental public bodies within her Department and (b) local authorities. [252706]

Mr. Khan: The Department is currently reviewing the use of the Zanzibar eProcurement Service and there are no plans to roll out the service to its agencies and non-departmental bodies or local authorities.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what records the Government Equalities Office maintains of its expenditure on (a) official hospitality and (b) alcohol for official hospitality. [240464]

Maria Eagle: Information relating to the recording of hospitality expenditure is kept locally within the GEO's finance team and monitored by internal audit and externally by the National Audit Office. Expenses for hospitality can be claimed by GEO's director general and deputy directors in accordance with departmental limits. The provision of alcohol falls under the hospitality account. We maintain records of expenditure on this account.

WALES

Departmental Temporary Employment

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much has been spent by his Department on (a) agency and (b) temporary staff in each financial year since 2005-06. [251427]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Amounts spent by Wales Office on agency staff in each financial year since 2005 were:

2005-06	91,923
2006-07	19,808
2007-08	1,585

Amounts spent for temporary staff were:

2005-06	55,488
2006-07	8,332
2007-08	69,845

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff have been employed in each of his Department's country offices in (a) 2006, (b) 2007, (c) 2008 and (d) 2009. [252755]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Following the National Audit Office's October 2008 report on the Department for International Development's (DFID) work in insecure environments and improvements to the way DFID ensures the safety and security of its staff, the Department does not publicise staff numbers, or changes in staff numbers, for each country office.

Developing Countries: Debts

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what measures his Department has put in place to ensure that new loans to poor countries do not result in unsustainable levels of debt, with particular reference to loans for initiatives to address (a) climate change and (b) food shortages. [253421]

Mr. Michael Foster: The UK has led international initiatives to resolve the debt problems of the poorest countries and is committed to ensuring that they do not reoccur. We have worked to:

Develop the Debt Sustainability Framework (DSF) which helps countries to take informed decisions about new borrowing.

Ensure the DSF is used by the Multilateral Development Banks to determine whether their assistance to poor countries is in the form of grants or highly concessional loans.

Ensure that new ECGD-guaranteed lending to low income countries is consistent with the DSF and will contribute to their development, and secured agreement at the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) that other Export Credit Agencies do the same.

One of our major responses to the challenge of climate change has been to set up the climate investment funds (CIFs). Low and middle income countries will benefit from these resources, and the CIFs will provide grants and concessional loans. For low income countries assistance will be consistent with the DSF.

DFID has committed £868 million in response to the food crisis. All of DFID's aid is given as grants and therefore does not contribute to debt accumulation. The World Bank allocated $1.2 billion (£840 million) to the global food crisis response programme. $200 million (£140 million) of this was in the form of grants for the poorest countries.

Development Aid

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to ensure that the Government's policy on attachment of economic policy conditions to aid and debt relief is extended to multilateral lenders, with particular reference to the IMF and World Bank Heavily Indebted Poor Countries debt relief initiative. [253419]

Mr. Michael Foster: The UK's policy is clear that conditionality must not be used to impose policy on governments and that conditions should be limited to issues essential to ensure programmes are successful. The UK continues to press the World Bank and IMF to reform their conditionality practice in line with our approach and we have had some success. The World Bank has stopped using prescriptive conditionality and has adopted good practice principles on conditionality. These provide clear guidelines to staff and emphasise a need for country ownership and fewer conditions. The IMF also agreed to limit the number of conditions used, to justify each condition and focus on major macroeconomic issues.

The Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) Initiative provides large scale irrevocable debt cancellation. It is therefore essential that we can have confidence that debt relief will be used in ways that will benefit poor people.

Conditions are agreed with each country, focussing debt relief on poverty reduction, economic management and financial accountability. The UK has pressed the World Bank and IMF to ensure conditions reflect countries' priorities and are applied flexibly where appropriate. Several countries have received their debt cancellation without having met all triggers, but when strong overall progress had clearly been made.

Haiti: Debts

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will support (a) Haiti's accelerated progress through the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries debt cancellation process and (b) a moratorium on Haiti's debt service payments. [253420]

Mr. Michael Foster: The International Monetary Fund (IMF) and World Bank anticipate that Haiti will complete the HIPC Initiative in the next few months, at which point it will receive irrevocable debt cancellation. The UK Government therefore do not believe an accelerated progress through the Initiative or a moratorium on debt service is required. Haiti has been receiving relief on its debt service since 2006 and is not making any payments to the UK Government.

The international community recognises the recent challenges Haiti has faced—hurricane damage, and high fuel and food costs—and has provided exceptional assistance. For example, the Inter-American Development Bank, the IMF and the World Bank have agreed additional assistance amounting to a total of $100 million (approximately £70 million).

Sri Lanka: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what assessment he has made of the security and safety of people within the humanitarian space which has been designated by the government of Sri Lanka in the northern region of the country; [253347]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the security situation in the northern region of Sri Lanka on the ability of humanitarian convoys to deliver assistance to those who are displaced. [253346]

Mr. Michael Foster: The security and safety of civilians in northern Sri Lanka, and their access to relief supplies is difficult to assess but causes great concern, especially following the Sri Lankan forces' recent offensive. We are extremely concerned at reports of civilian casualties within the designated safe zone and urge all parties to ensure the safety of non-combatants. We particularly deplore the recent shelling of a hospital.

We constantly monitor the situation through our high commission and other sources, supplemented by field visits by DFID humanitarian staff. We have recently programmed £2.5 million humanitarian funding through the UN, Red Cross and non-government organisations. We are sending another humanitarian mission in the next few weeks and have agreed a further £2.5 million humanitarian funding.

The problem will not be resolved by funding alone. We are resolute in pressing for better humanitarian access for aid convoys and other relief within safe humanitarian space. The Foreign Secretary repeated this to President Rajapakse on 30 January.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Numeracy

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many adult learners received basic numeracy skills qualifications under the skills for life funding scheme in each of the last five years, broken down by level of qualification. [251995]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The following table shows LSC-funded Skills for Life achievements—the number of adult learners (aged 16+) achieving LSC-funded accredited Skills for Life numeracy qualifications in the 2004/05, 2005/06 and 2007/08 academic years. Information on Skills for Life achievements is not available prior to 2004/05.

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 100, and may not sum to the total.
2. These figures include learners at Further Education Colleges (including learndirect), Work Based Learning (including apprenticeships, Train to Gain and entry to Employment) and Adult Safeguarded learning.

Building Colleges for the Future Programme

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many applications for capital funding from the Building Colleges for the Future programme were made by (a) further education and (b) sixth form colleges (i) in the 2006-07 academic year and (ii) at the latest date for which figures are available; [254190]

(2) what capital expenditure from the Building Colleges for the Future programme in the (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09 academic years has been allocated to (i) further education and (ii) sixth form colleges; [254191]

(3) how many projects relating to (a) further education and (b) sixth form colleges were affected by the moratorium on decisions on capital spending under the Building Colleges for the Future programme; [254192]

(4) what estimate he has made of the value of projects affected by the moratorium on decisions on capital spending under the Building Colleges for the Future programme. [254193]

Mr. Simon: In 1997, the total capital expenditure in further education colleges in England was nil. Since 1997, this Government have invested £2.4 billion in redeveloping and modernising further education colleges. In addition, we have plans to invest a further £2.3 billion in the next three years. Currently more than 250 projects are under way and funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC)—helped by the recent decision to accelerate £110 million in 2008-09 from future budgets to help beat the downturn.

In total, since the programme began, nearly 700 projects, at 330 colleges have been agreed.

The pace of demand for capital funding has increased. In addition, there are signs that the ability of colleges to raise their own funds for proposed projects is being affected by the downturn.

It is for this reason that over the next few weeks the Learning and Skills Council is working closely with colleges that have submitted or are working on bids, to look at the individual current positions before making further funding decisions. As a result of this, the consideration of a small number of applications that were due for decision—both in principle and in detail—has been deferred from December to March.

As your question relates to an operational matter for the LSC, Mark Haysom, the LSC chief executive, will write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in both Libraries.

Departmental Advertising

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many advertisements to attract students into higher education were placed by his Department and its predecessors in each year since 1997; how many were placed (a) in print newspapers and magazines, (b) on a website and (c) on television and radio; and what the cost was in each case. [249384]

Mr. Lammy: The information requested of the Department is as follows. The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills was formed in June 2007, following the machinery of Government changes, since this date/and as a result we are only able to provide information from June 2007. In 2007/08 DIUS spent £2,859,791 and in 2008/09 is budgeted to spend £2,255,791 on all advertising to attract students into higher education.

The breakdown is as follows

(a) Newspapers and magazines
Newspapers	460,000
Magazines	31,703
(b) Online/website	160,000
(c) TV and radio (budgeted)
TV	1,145,813
Radio	374,173

2008/09 (budgeted)

(a) Newspapers and magazines
Magazines	43,907
(b) Online/website	180,000
(c) TV and radio
TV	1,201,851
Radio	395,149

Departmental Recruitment

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans he has to recruit scientifically-trained civil servants; and what timetable he has set for the recruitment process. [253513]

Mr. Simon: The Department recruits staff through the civil service recruitment code that allows Departments to ask for specific skills and backgrounds to be key features in recruitment advertisements if they are required. A number of previous posts have lead to the recruitment of scientifically-trained employees.

We will continue to ask for such in some of our future recruitment campaigns where relevant. In addition we also take advantage of the science and engineering fast stream (Fast Track graduate recruitment) where each year we take some graduates from a Government-wide scheme.

Further Education: Finance

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the interest payments made by further education colleges to finance their capital programmes in the latest year for which figures are available. [254014]

Mr. Simon: Since 1997, this Government have invested £2.4 billion in redeveloping and modernising further education colleges. In addition we have plans to invest a further £2.3 billion in the next three years. In total, since the programme began, nearly 700 projects, at 330 colleges have been agreed.

The Learning and Skills Council is responsible for the administration of the further education capital budget. However, as independent providers, colleges themselves are responsible for the management and financing of their capital projects. As a result, the Department does not collect information relating to the level of interest payments made by colleges regarding the financing of their capital programmes.

However, the Department is aware of the important role finance can play for colleges and is being kept informed by the LSC and sector representatives about the cost and availability of finance for the sector.

Higher Education: March, Cambridgeshire

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what progress has been made on plans for the new campus of the College of West Anglia proposal for the town of March. [253159]

Mr. Lammy: Since 1997, this Government have invested £2.4 billion in redeveloping and modernising further education colleges. In addition we have plans to invest a further £2.3 billion in the next three years.

In total, since the programme began, nearly 700 projects, at 330 colleges have been agreed—including support for the College of West Anglia.

But the pace of demand for capital funding has increased. Projects and the scale of Government funding they require are becoming increasingly ambitious. In addition there are signs that the ability of colleges to raise their own funds for proposed projects is being affected by the downturn.

It is for this reason that over the next few weeks the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is working closely with colleges that have submitted or are working on bids, to look at the individual current positions before making further funding decisions. As a result of this the consideration of a small number of applications that were due for decision—both in principle and in detail—has been deferred from December to March.

As the hon. Member's question relates to an operational matter for the LSC, Mark Haysom, the LSC chief executive, will write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in both Libraries.

Higher Education: Overseas Students

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many EU-domiciled undergraduate students began courses at higher education institutions in 2008; [254168]

(2) how many EU-domiciled undergraduate students are expected to begin courses at higher education institutions in 2009. [254187]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 3 February 2009]: The latest available figures for the number of EU domiciled full-time undergraduate entrants to UK higher education institutions are shown in the table. Figures for the 2008/09 academic year will be available in January 2010.

EU domiciled undergraduate entrants by mode of study, UK higher education institutions, academic year 2007/08

	Number
Full-time	25,715
Part-time	9,050
Total	34,765

Note:
Figures are based on a HESA standard registration population and have been rounded to the nearest five.
Source:
Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA).

EU domiciles make up 4.4 per cent. of all undergraduate entrants, compared to 89.2 per cent. for UK domiciles and 6.4 per cent. for non-EU domiciles.

Figures from the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS) show that 21,255 EU domiciled applicants were accepted for entry to full-time undergraduate courses at UK higher education institutions in 2008. This is compared to 20,661 in 2007, a rise of 2.9 per cent. Not all EU domiciled applicants apply through UCAS, some will apply to the institutions directly. Final figures for applicants accepted for entry in 2009 will be available in January 2010.

The admission of students, whatever their nationality, is a matter for individual higher education institutions.

Higher Education: South East

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which colleges in (a) London and (b) Kent are affected by the Learning and Skills Council's decision to postpone capital projects by three months. [253917]

Mr. Simon: Since 1997, this Government have invested £2.4 billion in redeveloping and modernising further education colleges. In addition we have plans to invest a further £2.3 billion in the next three years.

In total, since the programme began, nearly 700 projects, at 330 colleges have been agreed.

But the pace of demand for capital funding has increased. In addition there are signs that the ability of colleges to raise their own funds for proposed projects is being affected by the downturn.

It is for this reason that over the next few weeks the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is working closely with colleges that have submitted or are working on bids, to look at the individual current positions before making further funding decisions. As a result of this the consideration of a small number of applications that were due for decision—both in principle and in detail—has been deferred from December to March.

As the hon. Member's question relates to an operational matter for the LSC, I have asked Mark Haysom, the LSC chief executive, to write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in both Libraries.

London Metropolitan University

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the student completion rate was at the London Metropolitan University in the last year for which figures are available. [252619]

Mr. Lammy: Figures from table T5 of the Performance Indicators in Higher Education show the proportion of full-time first degree starters expected to neither obtain an award nor transfer, at London Metropolitan University in the 2005/06 academic year, was 21.2 per cent. Figures for the 2006/07 academic year will be available in June 2009.

Mass Media

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the cost of his Department's contracts with press monitoring services was in each of the last five years. [251221]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills' (DIUS) media monitoring is supplied by Energy Data Service Limited (EDS) and the Media Monitoring Unit (MMU).

DIUS was formed on 28 June 2007 as a result of the machinery of Government changes. Information on the costs of contracts for the provision of media monitoring services to DIUS is therefore only available for the current financial year.

Available figures for the annual costs of each contract are as follows:

EDS

2008/09: £39,943 (to date)

MMU

2008/09: £42,125 (annual subscription).

Students: Finance

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much funding is allocated per student for (a) full-time undergraduates, (b) part-time undergraduates, (c) full-time foundation degree students, (d) part-time foundation degree students, (e) advanced adult apprentices, (f) full-time level 3 students in further education colleges and (g) part-time students in further education colleges; and if he will make a statement. [252850]

Mr. Lammy: The total expenditure provided by the Department (provisional 2006-07 figures) per full-time equivalent higher education student is £5,179 in cash terms. This is based on student support, teaching and research expenditure. Further information on the figure can be found in the DIUS 2008 departmental report (table 16, annex 2). It is not possible to produce like-for-like figures for the precise data requested in the question and the precise level of funding for each student is determined by a wide range of factors including choice of subject, location and intensity of study, previous qualifications and personal and family circumstances.

The funding provided by the Department and the Department for Children Schools and Families (2006-07 figures) per full-time equivalent further education student is £5,240. Further information on the figure can be found in the DIUS 2008 departmental report (table 15, annex 2). Funding at course level will vary depending on factors such as subject area, the location and learner success rates of the provider and other factors.

Relevant LSC guidance on funding for 2008/09 can be found at http://readingroom.lsc.gov.uk/lsc/National/LSC-P-NAT-080078_FundingRates.pdf

Westminster University

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with the University of Westminster on the closure of the Harrow Ceramics School; and if he will make a statement. [254197]

Mr. Lammy: Ministers and officials have had no discussions on this issue. The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) allocates grant to institutions independently of Government according to its statutory duties. It is for individual institutions to make decisions on the funding of particular courses and Ministers have no powers to intervene in those decisions. In this case I understand the future of the BA Ceramics course is currently under review, but no final decision has been taken.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Cabinet Office Leadership Conference

Mr. Soames: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster who attended the Cabinet Office Leadership Conference on 17 March 2008; who the speakers were; and what the agenda was. [253503]

Mr. Watson: The event on 17 March was for the senior civil servants working in the Cabinet Office. The speakers were drawn from the Cabinet Office Board. Delegates were informed of the outcome of the Cabinet Office's People Survey 2007. The agenda covered the key challenges for the Cabinet Office.

Childbirth

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what percentage of live births were to (a) non-UK born and (b) foreign national mothers and fathers in each (i) primary care trust and (ii) strategic health authority are in each year since 1997. [253925]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what percentage of live births were to (a) non-UK born and (b) foreign national mothers and fathers in each (i) primary care trust and (ii) strategic health authority are in each year since 1997. (253925)

The tables attached provide the percentage of live births that were to (a) mothers (table 1) and fathers (table 2) not born in the United Kingdom, in each (i) primary care organisation and (ii) strategic health authority in England, for each year from 1997 to 2007 (the latest year available). A copy has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Figures for the percentage of live births that were to (b) foreign national mothers and fathers are not available, as nationality is not recorded at birth registration.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many live births there were in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by the age of the mother. [254149]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your request for information on how many live births there were in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by age of mother. (254149)

The latest year for which figures are available is 2007. The attached table shows the number of live births in England and Wales in 2007, broken down by age of mother.

Civil Servants: Retirement

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the timetable is for removing the mandatory retirement age policy across the Civil Service; and whether such removal will apply to senior civil servants. [249918]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Secretary announced on 1 October 2008 that Departments and agencies who had not already done so will introduce a policy of having a no mandatory retirement age for staff by March 2010. A review is currently under way to assess the potential impact of extending such a policy to members of the senior civil service.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make it his policy to ensure that those temporary and permanent employees at the same grade in the Prime Minister's Office who are paid at an hourly rate are paid at the same rate. [244380]

Mr. Watson: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of the Cabinet Office.

Permanent Cabinet Office employees are paid an annual salary, rather than an hourly rate. Permanent employees are paid within the Cabinet Office grading structure, where the grade of each role and the corresponding salary range is determined by the demands of the role.

Temporary Cabinet Office employees (on a fixed term contract of up to one year) are also paid an annual salary within the Cabinet Office pay ranges, with the grade again determined by the demands of the role.

As such, temporary and permanent employees at the same grade will both be paid within the same pay range.

Temporary staff not employed directly by the Cabinet Office (such as agency staff or fee-paid staff) are not Cabinet Office employees. Hourly rates of pay are not determined by the Cabinet Office and may be different than for temporary and permanent Cabinet Office employees.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to staff survey response metric of the capable Departments key performance indicator for Cabinet Office Departmental Strategic Objective 5, what proportion of civil servants in his Department (a) agreed and (b) disagreed with the statement that (i) this organisation as a whole is well-managed and (b) overall I have confidence in the senior managers in my organisation in the most recent period for which figures are available. [249964]

Mr. Watson: Details of the results of the latest Cabinet Office People Survey 2007 are published on the Civil Service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/iam/staff_surveys.asp

A copy of this information has been placed in the Library.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the policy of (a) the Prime Minister's Office and (b) the Office of the Leader of the House is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (i) in lunch breaks, (ii) in evenings and (iii) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement; [252003]

(2) how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) the Prime Minister's Office and (b) the Office of the Leader of the House for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours in the latest year for which figures are available; [252004]

(3) what the policy of the Cabinet Office and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement; [252043]

(4) how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) its agencies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252044]

Mr. Watson: The Prime Minister's Office and the Leader's Office are part of the Cabinet Office.

There are times when any Cabinet Office employee may be required to work during meal breaks, evenings and other occasions beyond their conditioned hours. They can apply for and be granted time off in lieu equivalent to the actual additional hours worked rather than claiming overtime payment.

The number of days off in lieu granted to the Department's employees could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Disposable Income

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what proportion of their income was spent by (a) the poorest 10 per cent. and (b) the richest 10 per cent. of the population on (i) food and (ii) fuel in the latest year for which figures are available. [254113]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question to the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster asking what proportion of their income was spent by (a) the poorest 10 per cent and (b) the richest 10 per cent of the population on (i) food and (ii) fuel in the latest year for which figures are available (254113).

In 2007, the average weekly household expenditure on food, as a percentage of gross income, was 22 per cent for the lowest income decile group and 3 per cent for the highest income decile group. For fuel, the percentages were 11 per cent and 1 per cent respectively.

Estimates of expenditure on food and fuel are based on the Expenditure and Food Survey (EFS), an annual survey of approximately 6,200 households in the United Kingdom. Further information on the EFS is available in the annual publication 'Family Spending' which can be found on the National Statistics website

Emergencies: EC Action

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether he has had discussions with his counterparts in other European Union countries on proposals for an EU-wide civil protection rapid reaction force; and if he will make a statement. [248675]

Mr. Watson: The UK supports the principle of member states cooperating voluntarily in the response to disasters but not the creation of a stand-by European civil protection force. Such a force would require pre-commitment of member states' resources and would go beyond the current legal framework of the Community's Civil Protection Mechanism. The current voluntary approach to mutual assistance among European Union member states is more cost-effective and flexible than a standing EU-wide civil protection force; and it allows member states to provide urgent assistance bilaterally or as part of regional groupings.

My officials have been closely involved in discussions with their European counterparts and have kept me informed on developments. These issues have also been discussed at a ministerial level in the Justice and Home Affairs Council and the General Affairs and External Relations Council.

Employment

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of people aged (a) over 50 and (b) 16 to 24 years were employed in the fourth quarter of 2008. [254049]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many and what proportion of people aged (a) over 50 and (b) 16 to 24 years were employed in the fourth quarter of 2008. (254049)

The requested information will not be available until the publication of the February 2009 Labour Market Statistics First Release on 11 February.

Government Departments: Internet

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether each internet service provider supplying internet connectivity services to central Government deploys the blocking list of known child pornography web sites provided by the Internet Watch Foundation. [253403]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office Corporate IT System accesses the Internet via the Government Secure Intranet (GSI) services as provided by Cable and Wireless.

In order to enforce the Cabinet Office HR 'Appropriate Usage Policy' for our IT systems we additionally use the website blocking system Websense Web Filter. Websense Inc. is an associate member of the Internet Web Foundation (IWF). The Websense Web Filter provides a list of categories to be blocked and URLs of sites within the category are updated on a daily basis.

Each Government Department is responsible for setting, implementing and maintaining its own controls. The Cabinet Office does not keep information centrally about the controls applied in other Departments.

Public Appointments: Parliamentary Scrutiny

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will include in the list of posts deemed suitable for pre-appointment scrutiny all (a) public sector regulators, (b) permanent secretaries of Government Departments, (c) heads of the judiciary and (d) heads of the police and security services. [254621]

Kevin Brennan: The list of posts suitable for pre-appointment hearings was agreed with the Liaison Committee and published on 2 June 2008 in "Pre-appointment hearings by select committees: Government Response to the Committee's First Report of Session" 2007-08 (HC594). There are no plans to amend the list.

Public Service Forum

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of each meeting of the Public Service Forum. [250511]

Mr. Watson: A note of each future Public Services Forum meeting will be placed in the Library of the House and published on the internet.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people aged 16 to 24 years in each region (a) in total and (b) per 100,000 population were unemployed in (i) last quarter for which figures are available and (ii) the same quarter of the previous year, in rank order from highest to lowest. [254173]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated February 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions asking how many people aged 16 to 24 years in each region (a) in total and (b) per 100,000 population were unemployed in (i) last quarter for which figures are available and (ii) the same quarter of the previous year, in rank order from highest to lowest. 254173

The requested information is shown in the attached table. The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The figures in the table are derived from the LFS microdata which are weighted using the official population estimates published in autumn 2007. Consequently the estimates from Q3 2006 are not entirely consistent with the figures published in the monthly Labour Market Statistics First Release, which are weighted using more up-to-date population estimates.

Coefficients of Variation have been calculated as an indication of the quality of the estimates, as described below:
Guide to Quality:
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV - for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5% we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.
Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) (%) Statistical robustness
* 0 = CV <5 Estimates are considered precise.
 5 = CV <10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise.

Regional Development Agencies: Business Support

8. Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps regional development agencies are taking to support small and medium-sized businesses during the economic downturn; and if he will make a statement. [254315]

Mr. McFadden: RDAs are offering SMEs real help through the Business Link network, including access to the "Solutions for Business" portfolio of business support. In addition, outside London, RDAs are already providing or are in the process of setting up transition loan funds for viable small and medium-sized businesses facing finance difficulties. £25 million will be available through these funds to businesses suffering short-term funding problems owing to the global downturn.

Recession: North-east

10. Sir Alan Beith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the likely effect of recession on businesses in the North East. [254317]

Mr. McFadden: I receive a monthly report on the strengths and emerging issues facing the economy in the region from the regional development agency, One North East. Additionally, the right hon. Member for Newcastle upon Tyne, East and Wallsend (Mr. Brown), in his role as Minister for the North East, regularly addresses the likely impact of the recession on businesses in that region through regular engagement with the Northern Business Forum. The Government and their agencies will continue to do all it can to help North East businesses survive and thrive.

Small and Medium-sized Enterprises

11. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of the conditions under which small and medium-sized enterprises are conducting business. [254318]

Ian Pearson: BERR makes regular assessments of the conditions under which small and medium-sized enterprises are conducting business.

12. Mr. Baron: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what funding his Department is providing for small and medium-sized enterprises in 2008-09. [254319]

Ian Pearson: The regional development agencies are offering SMEs real help through the Business Link network, including access to the "Solutions for Business" portfolio of business support. In addition, outside London, RDAs are providing transition loan funds for viable small and medium-sized businesses facing finance difficulties. More information on Government support is available at www.businesslink.gov.uk/realhelp

Small Businesses: Credit

13. Alistair Burt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent representations he has received from small businesses on their access to credit. [254320]

Ian Pearson: My noble Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, Ministers and officials are in regular contact with small business representative organisations and with small businesses themselves on many issues, including access to credit.

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to assist small businesses in obtaining credit. [254316]

Ian Pearson: The Government recognise that the unprecedented combination of credit crunch and global economic downturn means that economically viable businesses may be struggling to receive funding for working capital, trade finance and investment. Against these continuing global economic challenges and uncertainties our priorities have been to stabilise the banking system, to stimulate the economy, and to ensure we get lending going again.

Alongside these measures my RHF the Chancellor has announced a package of measures designed to assist businesses obtain credit including:

£10 billion working capital scheme, securing up to £20 billion of short-term bank lending to companies seeking loans of £1,000 to £1 million with a turnover of up to £500 million.

A £1 billion enterprise finance guarantee scheme (EFG), securing up to £1.3 billion of additional bank loans to small firms with a turnover of up to £25 million.

A £75 million capital for enterprise fund (CEF) (£50 million from Government augmented by £25 million from the banks) to invest in small businesses with viable business models that have exhausted traditional forms of finance.

BERR continue to work very closely with the main lenders—through the Small Business Finance Forum—to ensure that viable businesses are given access to the credit they need. I would like to draw the House's attention to a commitment by RBS today to ensure that their branches are lending to small businesses.

Small Businesses: Government Assistance

14. Mr. Binley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent representations he has received from small businesses on Government assistance to them. [254322]

Ian Pearson: My noble Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, Ministers and officials are in regular contact with small businesses and their representatives on many issues, including Government support programmes.

Enterprise Finance Guarantee Scheme

15. Tony Baldry: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the level of take-up by businesses of the Enterprise Finance Guarantee has been since its introduction. [254323]

Ian Pearson: The Enterprise Finance Guarantee was launched on 14 January and we will report on its progress shortly.

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the criteria are for businesses to qualify for help under the Enterprise Finance Guarantee Scheme. [254308]

Mr. McFadden: The Enterprise Finance Guarantee (EFG) is intended to facilitate bank loans of between £1,000 and £1 million.

EFG is available to SMEs in the UK with an annual turnover of up to £25 million. Each lender is able to advise whether or not a specific business would be affected by these restrictions. The Government bear 75 per cent. of the risk of default, but the decisions on individual applications under the scheme are taken by the banks involved.

An interactive tool is available on the Real Help with Finance pages on the Business Link website at:

www.businesslink.gov.uk/realhelp/finance for businesses to assess their suitability for EFG. However, lending under EFG is at the discretion of the lender.

National Minimum Wage

16. Tom Levitt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the range of penalties for non-compliance with national minimum wage regulations; and if he will make a statement. [254324]

Mr. McFadden: The Government are committed to simple, effective NMW enforcement and HMRC follow-up all complaints of underpayment.

The Employment Act 2008 strengthens the NMW enforcement regime. From 6 April 2009 there will be automatic penalties of up to £5,000 for employers who do not comply and a fairer method of calculating arrears. This will help to ensure that vulnerable workers are paid the minimum wage.

Small Suppliers

17. Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he is taking to ensure that small suppliers are paid promptly by the Government and businesses. [254325]

18. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he is taking to ensure small suppliers are paid promptly by the Government and businesses. [254326]

Ian Pearson: All central Government Departments are committed to pay within 10 days, ensuring over £66 billion of payments reach business quicker than ever.

Regional Development Agencies: Business Support

19. Mr. Todd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps regional development agencies are taking to support small and medium-sized businesses during the economic downturn; and if he will make a statement. [254327]

Mr. McFadden: RDAs are offering SMEs real help through the Business Link network, including access to the 'Solutions for Business' portfolio of business support. In addition, outside London, RDAs are already providing or are in the process of setting up transition loan funds for viable small and medium-sized businesses facing finance difficulties. £25 million will be available through these funds to businesses suffering short-term funding problems owing to the global downturn.

Broadband

Mike Penning: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of households that do not have access to broadband internet in (a) Hemel Hempstead, (b) Hertfordshire and (c) England. [243004]

Mr. McFadden: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the Chief Executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the Chief Executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent representations he has received on the creation of a universal service obligation in respect of broadband internet provision. [249018]

Mr. McFadden: Since the announcement of the Digital Broadband Report on 17 October, this Department has received representations on universal service obligation in the form of correspondence from a Member of Parliament, a member of the Scottish Parliament and industry as well as a parliamentary question. The Digital Britain interim report will look at the case for a universal service commitment on broadband.

Broadband: Rural Areas

Mr. Swire: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of households that do not have access to broadband in (a) Devon, (b) East Devon constituency and (c) Exmouth. [242161]

Mr. McFadden: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Business for New Europe

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions he has had with Business for New Europe on his Department's policies for business in Europe since his appointment; and if he will make a statement. [254321]

Mr. Thomas: My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, has had two meetings with members of Business for New Europe since his appointment. He attended a breakfast meeting with BNE members on 10 December 2008 and again on 17 December 2008 to discuss the current economic situation, internationally and domestically.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Scott: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in each year since the Department's inception; how much has been spent on wallpaper in that time; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248801]

Mr. McFadden: The following figures relate to spend on the BERR HQ estate since its inception on 28 June 2007 and is broken down into the categories required:

(a) £2,100,000;

(b) £36,460;

(c) £6,871,000.

BERR does not use wallpaper on its estate. Further spending on departmental decoration is dependent on its lease obligations.

Office refurbishment costs have been included under (c). These projects will have included an element of redecoration and to split these costs out would involve disproportionate cost. Also included in (c) are the costs associated with a large number of projects, e.g. improvements to the heating and ventilation system in BERR's HQ building at 1 Victoria Street (including the conference centre and works to the lifts across the estate to bring them up to DDA (Disability Discrimination Act) compliance.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 894W, on departmental marketing, what expenditure on promotional products by the Insolvency Service has been since February 2008; and what branding appeared on each of the Insolvency Service branded (a) pens, (b) clocks, (c) mugs and (d) USB memory sticks procured in this period. [248997]

Mr. McFadden: The Insolvency Service has spent approximately £8,000 on departmental promotional products since February 2008.

The Insolvency Service has produced pens and mugs with the Insolvency Service logo. No clocks or USB sticks have been procured during this period.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 894W, on departmental marketing, what branding or logos were published on each of the branded Insolvency Service (a) pens, (b) clocks, (c) mugs and (d) USB memory sticks. [252452]

Mr. McFadden: The Insolvency Service has produced pens and mugs with the agency's logo and the strapline "working well together" and "your views matter".

No clocks or memory sticks were purchased during this period.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available; [252045]

(2) what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252046]

Mr. McFadden: The Department does not keep a central record of how many days off in lieu were granted to staff. The matter of granting time off in lieu is dealt with locally by line managers in accordance with departmental policies.

The Department has a flexible working policy which allows staff to work flexibly and organise their time around their contracted hours. The ways staff can work flexibly includes flexi-time, part-time, compressed hours, annualised hours and homeworking.

Complying with the Working Time Directive, staff are encouraged to take regular breaks including a minimum lunch break each day of half an hour. Staff who accrue flexi-time can take time off in lieu.

I have approached the chief executives of the Insolvency Service and Companies House and they will respond to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 5 February 2009:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question, reference 252045, to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House operates a Flexible Working Hours Scheme. Under the terms of that scheme staff who work lunch times, evenings or at other times build up flexi credits for the additional time they have worked. They then take that time as flexi leave. They have a responsibility to manage their time and can carry over 14 hours 48 minutes credit or debit from one flexi period to the next.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 5 February 2009:

The Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to your question (2008/742), how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times, in the last year for which figures are available.

The Insolvency Service is unable to supply you with data for the questions raised. The data required is held by local line-managers from different sources and in varied locations. To gather this information would entail disproportionate cost.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 5 February 2009:

The Minister of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to you directly in respect of your question (2008/743) asking what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours, and if he will make a statement.

I would like to answer the three parts of your question in relation to the Insolvency Service:

A) Staff are permitted to take time off in lieu when they are required for operational reasons to work through all or part of their meal break.

B) Staff attending approved evening or part day/evening courses of study may be allowed time off in lieu during the day, up to the equivalent time spent at classes, plus travelling time.

C) Time off in lieu may be allowed for necessary attendance at approved training activities on a Saturday, Sunday, public, Bank or privilege holiday or other recognised non-working day within the limits of conditioned hours.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 5 February 2009:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question, reference 252046, to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

As Companies House operates a Flexible Working Hours scheme, we have not granted any days off in lieu for staff working in lunch breaks or at other times.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the Answer of 17 July 2008, Official Report, column 694W, on Economic and Monetary Union, whether his Department's updating of its euro changeover plan has been completed; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the most recent version. [250102]

Mr. McFadden: BERR's euro transition plan is being updated to reflect recent machinery of Government changes. When completed, we will place a copy in the Library.

Electronic Equipment: Waste Disposal

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions his Department has had with other Government departments on its review of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Regulations. [251755]

Ian Pearson: The Department has had extensive discussions on the review of the waste electrical and electronic equipment regulations with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and devolved Administrations.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1271W, on housing: low incomes, which programmes (a) will not be proceeded with and (b) will receive reduced funding following the redirection of £300 million from the regional development agency budgets. [252741]

Mr. McFadden: The RDAs are working closely with Government to respond to the current economic challenges. Tough decisions had to be taken over the £300 million budget changes. The Government have also asked RDAs to refocus their budgets to concentrate on support for businesses in their regions. In reshaping its corporate plan for the period ahead, each RDA will be assessing with key partners and regional stakeholders, in the light of their regional economic strategy, how the cuts will impact and how best they can be mitigated and how best to maintain key priorities.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Chope: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the Secretary of State plans to respond to the letter from the hon. Member for Christchurch of 10 December 2008 on the loss of overseas business from a firm in his constituency. [252644]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 29 January 2009]: Officials are consulting with colleagues in the Home Office on this matter. I will respond to the hon. Member shortly.

Redundancy

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many redundancies were notified to his Department and its predecessor in each (a) month of the last five years for which information is available and (b) year since 1997. [252925]

Mr. McFadden: I cannot give the right hon. Member details of the actual number of redundancies as there is no requirement for employers to provide that information. However, employers who propose to make 20 or more redundancies at one establishment are required to notify the Secretary of State of the proposal under provisions contained in the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992. Information on those notifications is only held from January 2006. I have detailed as follows the number of notifications received for each month from January 2006 to December 2008. I should add that these are only proposed, not actual redundancies, therefore the number of actual redundancies that may have taken place would not be the same.

Regional Development Agencies: Consultants

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 1114W, on the Regional Development Agency National Secretariat, on which external public affairs firms or consultants spending was incurred; and for what purposes each was engaged. [253516]

Mr. McFadden: The total expenditure of the National Secretariat on external public affairs firms or consultants amounts to a sum of £29,397. This was paid to Linstock Communications for an analysis of RDA national newspaper coverage during an 18 month period from 1 April 2006 to 1 October 2007.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much each regional development agency spent on external consultants in 2007-08. [253768]

Mr. McFadden: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 13 November 2008, Official Report, column 1366W, which provides each regional development agency expenditure on external consultants in 2007-08.

Regional Development Agencies: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what allocations his Department has made to each regional development agency for (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [253769]

Mr. McFadden: The following table shows the indicative allocation of each RDA's grant in aid budgets for 2009-10 and 2010-11. These figures incorporate the bringing forward of £100 million of capital expenditure from 2010-11 to 2009-10 that was announced in the pre-Budget report.

Regional Planning and Development: North West

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether discussions have taken place between the North Western Regional Development Agency and Lancaster City Council on the Central Park Scheme in the west end of Morecambe. [246101]

Mr. McFadden: [holding answer 12 January 2009]: The agency were approached by Lancaster city council and the Winning Back the West End Regeneration Team in early 2007, and entered into discussions which led to a round one funding bid (concept approval stage) to the agency for the Central Park Scheme in August 2007.

Further information provided when working up the detailed bid revealed that the costs of the project were increasing, which led the agency to conclude that it would not present value for money and could not generate significant economic impacts. I understand, however, that the agency would be happy to enter into further discussions with Lancaster city council and the Winning Back the West End Regeneration Team.

Retail Sector

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with the Competition Commission on its proposals to (a) strengthen the code of practice in the grocery sector and (b) set up an ombudsman. [248241]

Mr. Thomas: Ministers and BERR officials hold regular meetings with the Competition Commission (CC) as part of the process of policy development and delivery to discuss a range of issues. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings. There have not been any recent meetings specifically held to discuss the CC's proposals to strengthen the code of practice in the grocery sector, or to set up an ombudsman.

Wind Power

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with power generation companies on the interference of wind power generators with television signal reception. [246223]

Mr. McFadden: Neither I, nor my right hon. Friends, the Secretaries of State for Energy and Climate Change and for Culture, Media and Sport, or our officials, have had any recent discussions with power generation companies on the interference of wind power generators with television signal reception.

This is essentially a planning matter. Paragraph 64 of the Technical Annex to the Government's Policy Planning Statement (PPS) 22 http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/planningandbuilding/pdf/147447.pdf states that

> "provided careful attention is paid to siting, wind turbines should not cause any significant problems of electromagnetic interference i.e. adverse effects on communication systems which use electromagnetic waves as the transmission medium (e.g. television, radio or microwave links)".

However, it is a requirement of the consenting process for onshore wind farms that the developer addresses any issues relating to possible interference with television signal reception.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Almondbury High School

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent communication he has had with Almondbury High School in Huddersfield; and when he expects the school to receive its students' full key stage test results. [252579]

Jim Knight: QCA advises that Almondbury High School has experienced particular difficulties in receiving results during the 2008 test cycle, and they have been in contact with the school to resolve these issues. They advise that the school has now been made aware of all its results, including the outcome of its review applications. The Department has no record of any communication with Almondbury High School.

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many schools in (a) Lancashire and (b) England are planned to have energy efficiency improvements under the Building Schools for the Future programme; and what estimate he has made of the consequential (i) carbon dioxide emissions avoided and (ii) savings in energy bills; [254194]

(2) how many schools in (a) Lancashire and (b) England have had energy efficiency improvements under the Building Schools for the Future programme; and what estimate he has made of the consequential (i) carbon dioxide emissions avoided and (ii) savings in energy bills. [254195]

Jim Knight: The Department does not gather detailed information on individual measures that have been implemented to improve energy efficiency for schools within Building Schools for the Future (BSF).

All schools within Building Schools for the Future (BSF) are expected to work with their Local Authority Partnership (LEP) to address their energy consumption. The effectiveness of each LEP is incentivised and monitored through a set of key performance indicators (KPIs). These KPIs include an assessment of energy efficiency in operation: comparing actual energy consumption per unit floor area with design estimates.

In December 2007 we introduced a requirement for all new schools within BSF to reduce their carbon emissions by 60 per cent. relative to the energy efficiency standards in 2002 building regulations. The Department has provided additional funding for more than 200 schools in Building Schools for the Future and the Academies programme to fund the implementation of energy efficiency and renewable energy measures on school sites to enable this requirement to be met. We have developed a 'carbon calculator' to allow users to demonstrate how they would achieve the 60 per cent. reduction. The carbon calculator compares the likely effectiveness of various energy efficiency and renewable energy solutions, but is not intended to provide accurate forecasts of energy savings.

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made on each project under the Building Schools for the Future programme affecting schools in North East Cambridgeshire constituency. [253158]

Jim Knight: Cambridgeshire county council has made good progress since starting its first Building Schools for the Future Project in February 2007. The local authority issued an OJEU notice to procure a local education partnership to develop four secondary schools, one special school, and a one pupil referral unit in the north east of the county on 1 July 2008. The two sample schools in the project are Thomas Clarkson community college in Wisbech and Neale Wade community college in March. The local education partnership is expected to be operational in 2010 with the first two schools being delivered in 2011 and 2012. The remaining four schools are expected to be delivered by 2014.

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many childcare settings have ceased operating permanently in each quarter of the last five years. [250970]

Beverley Hughes: The available information is shown in the tables.

Children: Diabetes

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps his Department is taking to encourage increased awareness of diabetes among teachers and head teachers; and if he will make a statement; [247315]

(2) what support is made available for children (a) up to the age of 11 and (b) aged between 11 and 16 years who have been diagnosed with diabetes; and if he will make a statement. [247316]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: "Managing Medicines in Schools and Early Years Settings", issued jointly by the Department and the Department of Health in 2005, specifically addresses what schools can do to support pupils with medical needs such as diabetes. It encourages schools and local authorities to develop policies on the management of pupil's medicines and on supporting pupils with medical needs, taking account of local resources and their various responsibilities. We also produced sister guidance in the same year, entitled "Including me: managing complex health needs in schools and early years settings".

Also, since September 2007 schools have a duty to promote the well-being of all pupils, including those with long term medical conditions. This duty defines well-being as the five outcomes of Every Child Matters, including being healthy and staying safe.

In April 2007, the Department of Health published a report entitled "Making Every Young Person with Diabetes Matter", and has convened a group to support the implementation of best practice as set out in the report. The Department for Children, Schools and Families is represented on that group, and also on the sub-group set up to look specifically at support in schools.

Children: Obesity

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress his Department has made towards its target to halt the year-on-year rise in obesity among children under 11 by 2010; and if he will make a statement. [247469]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Data from the Health Survey for England (HSE) form the basis of the PSA indicator for child obesity. The most recent data may be an early indication that obesity prevalence rates in children are levelling out. The 2007 HSE data, which was published in December 2008, estimated that the prevalence of obesity among two to 10-year-olds was around 15 per cent. The exact rate has increased very slightly, to 15.4 per cent., from 15.2 per cent. in 2006. However, this change is not statistically significant and it follows a fall from 16.8 per cent. in 2005. These are encouraging figures but there is no room for complacency and we will continue to monitor closely the trends in England.

The 2004 spending review public service agreement (PSA) target 4, to halt the year-on-year rise in obesity among children under 11 by 2010, has been superseded by a more ambitious target to reduce the proportion of overweight and obese children to 2000 levels by 2020 in the context of tackling obesity across the population. This target is one of the indicators that underpins the 2007 comprehensive spending review PSA to improve the health and wellbeing of children and young people.

Citizenship: Education

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teachers have taken up the citizenship continuing professional development programme; and how much has been spent by his Department on bursaries for such teachers. [253133]

Jim Knight: In 2007-08 103 teachers completed the citizenship continuing professional development programme. This is the latest information available. The amount spent on bursaries for such teachers is unknown.

Shona McIsaac: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools in (a) North East Lincolnshire and (b) North Lincolnshire have class sizes of over 30 pupils. [252782]

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W, on education maintenance allowance, if he will publish the daily processing statistics on the education maintenance allowance which his Department has received from the Learning and Skills Council since September 2008. [253075]

Jim Knight: I have regularly written to update the Select Committee on the delivery of the education maintenance allowance (EMA). Those updates have been copied to the hon. Member and copies placed in the Libraries. In the most recent update, dated 28 January, I reported that as of 23 January over 520,000 young people had received EMA payments in this academic year. This is over 1,000 more than at this time last year.

As I also reported in my letter of 28 January, the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and Capita are confident that they have accurate data on the numbers of EMA learners enrolled and those in payment. However, they have advised that the data on the number of applicants may include double counting. The LSC has therefore commissioned Capita to carry out a data-matching exercise to eliminate duplicates.

Given the possibility that the data on applicant numbers may be inaccurate, it would not be helpful or in the public interest to publish the daily statistical reports that the Department received from the LSC between September 2008 and January 2009. The key figure is the number receiving payment, which I have regularly provided.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many applications for education maintenance allowance were lost between 1 August 2008 and 31 December 2008; and if he will make a statement. [253193]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the both Libraries.

Education: Assessment

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what research his Department has commissioned to assess the extent of teaching to the test practices in schools. [253304]

Jim Knight: The Department has undertaken investigative research in a small number of primary schools to look at good practice in preparing pupils for key stage 2 national curriculum tests. The findings will be considered by the Expert Group on Assessment as part of their wider research into the future of testing. The group is due to report in March 2009.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what mechanisms his Department uses to assess the relevance of qualifications offered in schools and colleges to the requirements of employers. [253578]

Jim Knight: Qualifications taken by young people must equip them with the right knowledge and skills for employment, and we already involve employers directly in the design and delivery of many 14-19 qualifications. The extent to which qualifications meet employers' requirements is considered as part of the accreditation process, and at the point of consideration for public funding.

Employers are closely involved in the development of both Diplomas and Apprenticeships. Sector Skills Councils and individual employers play key roles in each of the Diploma Development Partnerships to ensure that the new qualifications respond to the needs of different sectors. Apprenticeship frameworks meet the needs of employers through Sector Skills Councils working with employers in their sector to assess the suitability of qualifications in designing a framework.

This year the Department has made £500,000 available to Sector Skills Councils to assess sector skills needs in the 14-19 age range, and to incorporate those assessments into their Sector Qualifications Strategies. These Strategies will provide evidence for determining the types of 14-19 qualifications which are eligible for public funding.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what research his Department has commissioned on pupils' and parents' views of testing in schools in the last two years. [253744]

Jim Knight: A number of recent surveys have found that most parents agree that national testing enables them to compare one school's performance against another, and that the performance of each school in tests and exams should be published and publicly available.

We have recently announced significant changes to the testing and accountability regime, and established an expert group on assessment to make recommendations to the Secretary of State on a wide range of assessment issues. The group is seeking the views of a wide range of stakeholders, including parents, to inform its thinking.

The independent evaluation of single level tests within the Making Good Progress pilot includes consideration of pupils' experience of testing. The interim report (Evaluation of the Making Good Progress, Research Report DCSF-RR065) sets out that the majority of interviewees who commented on pupils' test experiences, considered that pupils were generally not stressed by the tests involved, because they were pitched at the 'right' level.

Families at Risk Review

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the written ministerial statement of 10 January 2008, Official Report, column 15WS, on the Families at Risk review, which recommendations from the report (a) have and (b) have not been implemented. [250106]

Beverley Hughes: The Government Departments responsible for implementing the Families at Risk Review's recommendations are the Department of Work and Pensions, the Home Office, the Ministry of Justice, HM Treasury, the Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills, Communities and Local Government, the Department of Health and the Department of Children, Schools and Families. Reports on progress will be issued in due course.

General Certificate of Secondary Education: Ethnic Groups

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what factors he has identified as the primary causes of the disparity between children from different ethnic groups in GCSE attainment. [253619]

Jim Knight: The analyses from the latest national statistics on survey responses to the Youth Cohort Study (YCS) and the Longitudinal Study of Young People in England (LSYPE) released on 26 June 2008 exemplify the multi-faceted nature of the influences on GCSE attainment and outcomes. They show that personal characteristics including ethnicity, first language, socio-economic background, attitudes and behaviours all have strong relationships with attainment and participation outcomes. However it is noteworthy that GCSE attainment by black and other minority ethnic groups has improved over the last five years more rapidly than that of the whole cohort, so that most remaining gaps have narrowed.

Mathematics: GCE A Level

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils in (a) all schools, (b) independent schools and (c) comprehensive schools achieved a grade C or higher in A level mathematics in 2008. [251298]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 26 January 2009]: In 2008, 17,643 pupils in comprehensive schools, 11,622 pupils in independent schools and 36,317 pupils in all schools achieved an A-C grade in GCE A level Mathematics. The all schools figure includes pupils in selective, modern and other maintained schools. "Other maintained schools" includes community and foundation special schools, hospital schools and pupil referral units.

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many complaints his Department received concerning the quality of marking of Key Stage 2 national curriculum tests in each of the last five years. [253081]

Jim Knight: Information on the volume of queries received from schools about the quality of marking of the National Curriculum tests, during the period 2004 to 2007 can be provided only at disproportionate cost. Since 1 January 2008, the Department's Public Communications Unit has responded to 1,016 letters and e-mails about the quality of marking of the National Curriculum tests across both key stages 2 and 3.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment was made of the previous record of ETS Global BV before granting it the key stage tests marking contract. [253496]

Jim Knight: Decisions relating to the national curriculum test operations contract are the responsibility of the qualifications and curriculum authority (QCA). The award of the contract to ETS was investigated by Lord Sutherland as part of his Inquiry into the 2008 test delivery difficulties. Lord Sutherland concluded that the procurement process was sound but that QCA should have undertaken more detailed referencing of contractors prior to awarding the contract to ETS. Lord Sutherland's report is available at:

Pre-School Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) private, (b) voluntary and (c) independent nurseries have (i) opened and (ii) closed permanently in each of the last four quarters. [250967]

Beverley Hughes: Information is not available in the form requested. The available information on the number and percentage of child care providers that have opened and closed in each of the last four quarters is shown in the following table:

Note:

Due to changes in legislation as at 1 September 2008 new categories have been introduced for the collection of child care data and the current categories have ceased to exist. The latest Ofsted figures for a full quarter were published in June 2008.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) whether early years settings must have no exemptions from the Early Years Foundation Stage to receive funding for the free entitlement for nursery education; and if he will make a statement; [253104]

(2) what estimate he has made of the length of time it will take for early years settings to apply successfully for exemption from the Early Years Foundation Stage. [253105]

Beverley Hughes: Local authorities are responsible for determining which providers in their area should be funded to deliver the free entitlement. Local authorities have discretion whether to fund providers where there is an exemption in place. An exemption will not automatically make providers ineligible for funding.

It is estimated that most applications for exemptions will be dealt with within 12 weeks. There is no automatic right to an exemption and each application will be assessed on a case-by-case basis. The length of time to process an individual application will vary depending on the nature and complexity of the exemption sought. In cases where an application is declined, settings are free to submit a fresh application.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effects of the extension in free entitlement to nursery care on the children who receive it. [253107]

Beverley Hughes: We are extending the free early education entitlement from 12.5 hours to 15 hours delivered more flexibly in all local authorities by September 2010.

We are rolling out the extension in a staged approach. Twenty pathfinder local authorities have been delivering the extended flexible entitlement since April 2007, assessing the demand for different patterns of provision, and exploring ways of working that enable greater flexibility in a diverse childcare market. An additional 14 local authorities began delivery in September 2008. The extended offer will be available to the 25 per cent. most deprived children in every local authority from September 2009, and will be universal entitlement from September 2010.

The Department has commissioned external research to evaluate the demand for and deliverability of the extended flexible entitlement in Pathfinder local authorities and its impact on parents. The research will be published in the spring.

We already know from research that high quality early learning makes a real difference to children's development with lasting effects throughout primary school and that the free entitlement for three and four-year-olds allows parents to access child care as a route to work and training, lifting more children out of poverty.

Pre-School Education: Vacancies

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate his Department has made of the average number of vacant places in (a) children's centres nurseries, (b) maintained nurseries and (c) private, voluntary and independent nurseries in (i) England, (ii) each region, (iii) the 10 per cent. most deprived local authority areas and (iv) the 10 per cent. least deprived local authority areas in each year since 1997. [252065]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information vacant places for children at childcare and early years providers. Table 1 shows the average number of vacant places per setting in England, by type of provision. Data for previous years are not available.

Pupil Exclusions

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were permanently excluded from schools in England in (a) 2007 and (b) 2007-08. [247260]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: 8,680 children were permanently excluded from schools in England in 2006-07. This figure has been taken from the statistical first release "Permanent and Fixed Period Exclusions from Schools in England 2006/07—Amended" and covers all maintained schools in England. This publication can be found at the following link:

Figures are not yet available for 2007-08 and are due to be published in June 2009.

Pupils: Disadvantaged

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils on free school meals have been taught in schools with (a) 1,500 or more and (b) 2,000 or more pupils in each of the last 10 years, broken down by local authority. [247310]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information, in the format requested, could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, we have provided a table to show how many pupils on free school meals have been taught in schools with (a) 1,500 or more and (b) 2,000 or more pupils in each of the last 10 years in England and a table to show how many pupils on free school meals have been taught in schools with (a) 1,500 or more and (b) 2,000 or more pupils for 2008 broken down by local authority.

School Leaving

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he plans to raise the education and training leaving age to (a) 17 and (b) 18 years; and if he will make a statement. [253199]

Jim Knight: Our intention is that from 2013 all young people will participate in some form of education or training post-16. We plan to raise the participation age in two stages: to 17 in 2013 and to 18 in 2015. The first cohort to benefit from these changes began year 7 in September 2008.

Schools: ICT

Mr. Purchase: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what powers Partnership for Schools has to prevent individual schools opting out of proposals for authority-wide ICT programmes in favour of submitting an Alternative Business Procurement Case. [252688]

Jim Knight: Partnerships for Schools does not have powers to prevent a school opting out of proposals for authority-wide ICT programmes. Where a school wishes to opt out of the managed service it must submit an Alternative Business Procurement Case. This must demonstrate that the school's alternative provision will be at least of an equivalent standard to the managed service proposed by the local authority, that it is able to link up to the area-wide solution, and that it passes a value for money test to ensure taxpayers' money is being well spent.

Schools: Music

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) with reference to his Department's press release of 21 November 2008, on funding for music in schools, how many new musical instruments have been bought with the funds announced; [254392]

(2) how much of the planned £40 million expenditure over four years on new musical instruments announced by his Department on 21 November 2007 has been spent. [254435]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Music Instrument Fund (MIF) was introduced in 2007-08 and provides £10 million a year (capital grant) for LAs to purchase instruments for instrumental learning at key stage 2 or transitional programmes beyond key stage 2. In November 2007 it was announced that the £10 million grant would continue to 2011, hence the £40 million.

In 2007-08 local authorities claimed £9.97 million and 99,892 instruments were purchased. In 2008-09, £8.25million of the total allocation has already been claimed by local authorities and over 94,000 instruments purchased.

Schools: Parents

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of levels of accountability of schools to (a) parents and (b) students since 1997. [251306]

Jim Knight: Schools are accountable to the taxpayer, to parents and to pupils—both for their overall performance and for the outcomes of individual pupils.

The introduction of the New Relationship with Schools (NRwS) in 2004 brought about major changes to the school accountability framework, in order to make it more coherent and evidence-based. All schools now have a school improvement partner to help evaluate the school's performance and identify priorities for improvement, and there is a greater emphasis on school self-evaluation and building schools' capacity to drive their own improvement. The School Profile was also introduced to communicate with parents about each school's progress, priorities and performance. Building on the NRwS, we now plan to make the accountability system even more coherent and better able to recognise the full range of each school's achievements.

For example, school performance data are currently available to the public through the Achievement and Attainment Tables. However, we think there is scope for a wider range of information on schools' performance to be reported in a clearer and more powerful way, so it can be more easily used by governors, parents and the public. In December, we launched a consultation on 21st Century Schools and the school report card. The school report card will set out a range of outcomes for which schools will be held to account and provide an indication of the degree of challenge faced by each school. The consultation will be followed by a White Paper in the spring and further consultation on the detail of the school report card indicators.

Parents and pupils also need to be able to hold schools to account for the outcomes they deliver for individual children. Schools must report individual children's performance to parents and pupils at the end of the year, and many schools are now reporting pupils' progress to parents on a more regular basis. We are supporting the development of teachers' skills in pupil tracking through the Assessment for Learning Strategy, launched in May 2008 and underpinned by £150 million. We also expect that by 2010, all secondary schools will report online to parents on pupils' attendance, behaviour, special educational needs and achievement, and that all primary and special schools will do so by 2012.

All schools are also required to have home school agreements, containing commitments made by the school and parents to support children's education and well-being. In the children's plan one year on progress report, we outlined a new approach to improving parents' engagement and committed to review school reporting regulations and home school agreements and will shortly be consulting publicly on possible changes.

The inspection system gathers pupils' and parents' views about individual schools and assesses the extent to which parents are involved in their children's learning and development. In April 2007 new powers were introduced to enable Ofsted to investigate complaints from parents about their children's schools. These allow parents to raise concerns about systemic matters relating to a school which Ofsted can investigate. If the matter is of serious concern, this can lead to the immediate inspection of a school.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the potential effects on standards of attainment in maintained schools of the implementation by independent schools of Charity Commission guidance on bursary schemes; and if he will make a statement. [253323]

Jim Knight: My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, has made no assessment of the potential effects on standards of attainment in maintained schools of the implementation by independent schools of Charity Commission guidance on bursary schemes. It is for each independent school that has charitable status to decide for itself how to meet the public benefit requirement, having regard to the guidance published by the Charity Commission.

Secondary Education: Finance

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on the provision of funding for children in their final year of secondary school who have repeated a year. [253700]

Jim Knight: Local authorities receive revenue funding according to the number of pupils they have on roll at the spring school census—this would include those pupils that are repeating a year. Local authorities will apply their local funding formulae to fund schools in their area which takes account of all the children attending school.

Secondary Education: Vocational Guidance

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many staff in secondary schools are employed to act as careers advisers in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) the Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [253128]

Jim Knight: Responsibility for curriculum organisation and staffing is delegated to local authorities and schools. We do not keep records centrally on the number of teaching staff involved in providing careers advice in secondary schools.

Social Services: Children

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent representations he has received on the reorganisation of children's services in local authorities. [250008]

Beverley Hughes: My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, has received a large number of representations following the case of 'Baby P' in Haringey. Many of the correspondents have been supportive of the current requirement to have integrated services for children under a single Director of Children's Services and some have suggested these arrangements should be reconsidered.

We are currently consulting on revised statutory guidance on the role of the Director of Children's Services and Lead Member for Children's Services. The consultation ends on 10 February 2009 and to date we have received three responses suggesting the current requirements for an integrated service should be reconsidered.

Social Services: Haringey

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what inspections of Haringey council Ofsted has undertaken since 2000. [245922]

Beverley Hughes: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in both the Libraries.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 22 January 2008

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

Ofsted inspected Local Education Authorities in conjunction with the Audit Commission from 1997 to 2005, under section 38 of the Education Act 1997. Ofsted inspected Haringey Local Education Authority in 2002 and again in 2003. These inspections are shown in Table A.

That inspection regime was replaced in September 2005 by the current cycle of Joint Area Reviews. Prior to 2005, all inspections of local authorities' children's services in relation to children's social care were undertaken by the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) and these inspections are, therefore, not included in this response.

Ofsted is responsible, with other inspectorates, for inspecting children's services provided in a local area. As such, we have carried out annual performance assessments (APA) under section 138 of the Education and Inspections Act 2006 and a rolling programme of joint area reviews (JARs) in each of the 150 local authority areas of England under section 20 of the Children Act 2004. The full list of JARs and APAs carried out in Haringey is shown in Table B.

In April 2007, Ofsted took over responsibility for regulation and inspection of children's social care from CSCI. A list of the inspections carried out of Haringey Council social care services is shown in Table C. Please note that this includes only those inspections of services provided directly by Haringey Council and does not include all social care services in Haringey. CSCI reports from prior to April 2007 are not included in this response.

A copy of this reply has been sent to right hon. Beverley Hughes MP, Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Specialist Schools

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when his Department plans to review its policy on specialist schools. [253100]

Jim Knight: The Department publishes guidance on the specialist schools programme annually setting out the objectives of the programme and the procedures relating to the designation and redesignation of specialist schools. We expect to publish the 2009 guidance in the summer.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many specialist schools there are in (a) England, (b) the North East and (c) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [253101]

Jim Knight: There are 2,993 specialist schools in England, of which 170 are in the North East and five are in Middlesbrough and South East Cleveland constituency. These are Freebrough Specialist Engineering College (Engineering), Huntcliff School (Humanities), Laurence Jackson (Sports), Newlands Catholic School (Maths and Computing) and Kilton Thorpe Special School (Arts).

Teachers: Stress

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to reduce stress on teachers. [253116]

Jim Knight: The Department recognises that there are a variety of factors that contribute to teachers' stress. Accordingly we have put in place a range of measures to address the causes.

Through our ongoing work with social partners, we are undertaking a significant programme of work force reform to help address those causes associated with work load. The National Agreement on Raising Standards and Tackling Workload, which was signed in January 2003, led to guaranteed time for planning, preparation and assessment, limits on the amount of cover teachers could do, and a transfer of admin tasks to support staff, all of which help address the issue of workload. There have also been increases in the number of teachers and support staff working in schools. Since 1997, the number of support staff has more than doubled and teacher numbers have risen by over 40,000.

Encouraging better pupil behaviour and attendance also has a direct impact on reducing teacher stress. That is why we are investing in a comprehensive national programme to strengthen schools' capacity to manage pupil behaviour.

In addition we have encouraged better management of teacher health matters through improved occupational health guidance for schools and local authorities, and we are working with employers to encourage early intervention to avoid ill health retirements. We have recently reinforced those moves through the release of guidance on common mental health problems which give practical advice on positive action to support teachers through the stresses and strains that can arise through life and work.

Young, Gifted and Talented Programme

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1126W, on Young, Gifted and Talented Programme, what percentage of pupils aged between (a) four and 10 and (b) 11 and 18 are participating in the Young, Gifted and Talented Programme in each local authority. [248475]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Reliable data cannot be provided because, as indicated in the reply of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1126W, the relevant local authority can be confirmed only for less than one-third of pupils registered with the Young Gifted and Talented (YG and T) Learner Academy.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what subsequent support is available to people who successfully complete NHS alcoholic treatment courses; [252858]

(2) how many people (a) have and (b) have not successfully completed NHS alcoholic treatment courses in (i) Ribble Valley and (ii) England in each of the last five years. [252859]

Dawn Primarolo: On 1 April 2008, a National Alcohol Treatment Monitoring System (NATMS) begun operation to collect and report local and national information on the provision of structured care-planned treatment for alcohol misuse in England. Prior to 1 April 2008 there was no routine collection of data on numbers receiving alcohol treatment in England.

The first year's data will be reported in October 2009 and will include data on the number of individuals who have completed their treatment; however, this is a new system and it may not be possible at this early stage to accurately report the number of successfully completed treatments.

Furthermore, the data are unlikely to represent a complete picture of alcohol misusers receiving treatment. They primarily represent contact with specialist alcohol treatment services, and are therefore unlikely to include a significant number of alcohol misusers who receive interventions in primary care and/or accident and emergency departments.

Limited NATMS data are reported on the National Drug Treatment Monitoring System website, at www.ndtms.net/alcohol.aspx.

The currently available data, for those in structured care-planned treatment and for discharges, are given as follows for England and North West strategic health authority (SHA), which includes the constituency of Ribble Valley:

	North West SHA		England
	Number in treatment	Discharges	Number in treatment	Discharges
2008
April	7,998	874	47,011	5,594
May	8,554	1,037	48,206	5,495
June	9,010	1,175	49,998	6,032
July	9,464	1,180	51,591	6,562
August	9,584	1,112	51,389	5,481
September	9,802	1,109	52,865	5,885
October	10,014	1,041	54,070	5,891
November	9,890	721	53,280	4,172

It is important to note that data for November 2008 are likely to be an under-representation due to the time it takes to verify the data; additionally, there is likely to be an overall under-representation as NATMS is not yet fully established.

We know that for some alcohol dependence can be a relapsing condition and that aftercare following the completion of treatment is needed to ensure that they maintain the benefits gained from their treatment and do not return to their previous higher-risk drinking habits.

To aid commissioners and providers in delivering effective interventions and treatment for adults affected by alcohol misuse, the Department and the National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse jointly published, in June 2006, best practice guidance, "Models of care for alcohol misusers" (MoCAM). A copy has been placed in the Library.

MoCAM advises that commissioners take into account the role of aftercare in helping individuals maintain the gains they have made from alcohol treatment. Aftercare can involve:

psychosocial therapies;

support with housing, employment and family relationships; structured activates, designed to monitor progress, build on successes, identify problems and ways to overcome them; and mutual aid and self help groups.

Allergies: Medical Treatments

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has issued to NHS trusts on the use of desensitisation as a treatment for allergy; and if he will make a statement. [254391]

Dawn Primarolo: It is the responsibility of Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA), with advice from the Commission on Human Medicines

(CHM), to assess a medicinal product intended for desensitisation as a treatment for allergy (allergen immunotherapy). The products will need to establish quality, safety, efficacy and a favourable benefit:risk profile, as for any medicinal product. Neither the MHRA nor the CHM has any objection to the principle of immunotherapy for allergy. However, in view of the small risk of life threatening anaphylactic reactions associated with immunotherapy, the CHM has, naturally, been cautious in its approach to the licensing of desensitising vaccines.

There are three currently licensed desensitisation products:

Grazax (Timothy grass), a sublingual tablet for patients with hay fever;

Pollinex preparations (grasses and rye or tree pollen), for patients suffering from seasonal hay fever who have failed to respond to standard anti-allergy medication; and Pharmalgen (bee/wasp venom extract), for patients with hypersensitivity to bee/wasp venom.

Each application was assessed on the scientific evidence provided taking account of the current prevailing medical and scientific opinion.

Allergies: Research

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 December 2008, Official Report, columns 223-24W, on allergies: research, which aspects of allergy research his Department intends to prioritise; and what criteria are used in the allocation of funding for such research. [254533]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government's investment in health research in England is channelled through the Department via its Policy Research Programme and the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) and the Medical Research Council. Their usual practice is not to ring-fence funds for expenditure on particular topics: research proposals in all areas compete for the funding available. Each organisation welcomes applications for support into any aspect of human health and these are subject to peer review and judged in open competition, with awards being made on the basis of the scientific quality of the proposals made.

NIHR programmes identify and prioritise topics for research taking account of the views of those who work in, manage and develop policy for the national health service and of patients and the public. The NIHR website (www.nihr.ac.uk) provides an overview of the institute's role and functions and detailed descriptions of its various funding streams.

Cancer

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many incidents of (a) lung and (b) cervical cancer there were (i) in the North West and (ii) on average in all other regions in each year since 2004; and what steps have been taken in the North West (A) to prevent cancer, (B) to inform the public about the causes of cancer, (C) to provide equipment and services to treat cancer and (D) to provide palliative care for patients who are terminally ill since 2004. [253415]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. However, the following table shows registrations of newly diagnosed cases of lung and cervical cancer in the Government office for the north-west region compared with the average of all other regions in England from 2004 to 2006.

	2004		2005		2006
	North-west	Others	North-west	Others	North-west	Others
Lung cancer
Males	3,046	1,927	2,984	1,915	2,939	1,883
Females	2,241	1,302	2,365	1,355	2,373	1,344
Cervical cancer
Females	306	244	347	240	374	243

Notes:

1. Lung cancer is coded to C34 and cervical cancer is coded to C53 in the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10).
2. 'Others' is the average of all other regions in England.
3. Before the 2006 volume of Cancer Statistics, the rates in the government office regions table were crude rates.
4. In 2006, the north-west had the highest number of registrations for both lung and cervical cancer.
5. However, as there are differences in both the age profile of cancer patients between geographical areas and the population size and age profile of the nine regions in England, the unbiased way to compare cancer incidence between different regions is to calculate directly age-standardised incidence rates. Such rates, by region, are given in table five of the annual reference volume Cancer Statistics: Registrations Series MB1, available on the National Statistics website:

www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/
Product.asp?vlnk=8843&Pos=&ColRank=1&Rank=272

This shows that the north-west region has the second highest rate for lung cancer and the fourth highest rate for cervical cancer.

The Cancer Reform Strategy, published in December 2007, sets out guidance to the local national health service on how to improve cancer prevention, speed up the diagnosis and treatment of cancer, reduce inequalities, improve the experience of people living with and beyond cancer, ensure care is delivered in the most appropriate settings and ensure patients can access effective new treatments quickly. It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) to use the funds made available to them and work in partnership with strategic health authorities, local services, cancer networks and other local stakeholders to deliver these aims. Information on the work being done in the north-west can be obtained from the individual PCTs directly.

Through the Cancer Reform Strategy's National Awareness and Early Diagnosis Initiative, the Department, in partnership with Cancer Research UK, is co-ordinating a programme to support local interventions to increase cancer symptom awareness, and encourage people to seek help early.

Cannabis

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what evidence his Department holds on the effects of habitual, long-term use of cannabis on (a) physical and (b) mental health. [253789]
